Labor member Geoffrey de Freitas announced in a press statement that Graham "has asked to see me and my colleagues of the parliamentary Socialist Christian group on his arrival. The meeting will take place on Friday morning at the House of Commons."

Graham and his associates apologized profusely earlier today that they really meant to blast "secularism," not "socialism."

The uproar was touched off last week end by a calendar put out by the Billy Graham Evangelical Association. This was the offending quotation:

"When the war ended, a sense of frustration and disillusionment gripped England and what Hitler's bombs couldn't do, socialism with its accompanying evils shortly accomplished.

"England's historic faith faltered. The churches standing gradually emptied."

EXPLANATION SENT

De Freitas said Graham, who is scheduled to arrive in Britain Britain Tuesday, had wired an "explanation and apology to the 14,000,000 Labor voters for his mistake." He said an apology also had been received from Graham's organization in the United States.

The Labor MP added that he was withdrawing a parliamentary demand that Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe receive a Protestant-Roman Catholic church delegation to discuss "the reasons why Mr. Graham was allowed to come to Britain to carry out the crusade."

Important Things In Life Keep Right On Happening

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—The important things in life—love, marriage, kids, work—kept right on happening. Here and there they had odd twists.

A fellow in Caldwell, Idaho, really gummed up the post office cancellation machine when he sent his girl a valentine. The envelope contained an all-day sucker.

Love bounced in a Boston florist shop when a guy bought $12 worth of flowers for his girl and paid for them with a $25 check. The girl and the address were fictitious and the check was a phony.

A cop in Caledonia, N.Y. took a couple to a justice of the peace after a minor traffic violation. Once there the couple decided to get married. The cop witnessed the wedding and then withdrew the traffic charge.

CONFUSED BY BIRTH

The staff of a Norristown, Pa., hospital was confused by the birth of a boy to a woman for whom they had no admittance card. She explained she just went up the back stairs to the maternity ward five minutes before the birth. She knew the way perfectly. It was her 12th child.

ARRIVAL UNEXPECTED

In Oklahoma City the 48-year-old wife of a 79-year-old pensioner went to a hospital expecting to undergo a tumor operation. She left the mother of a healthy seven-pound boy.

In Springfield, Mo., a mother of 10 children, who's expecting another, filed suit for divorce. She charged her husband was "cold and indifferent."

A distraught mother called police headquarters in Little Rock, Ark., shortly after 10 p.m. and reported her son had not come home yet—he'd never been out so late before.

"How old is the boy, ma'm?"

"Oh," she said, "He's 55."

3 Killed In Crash

SASKATOON (CP)—Three persons were killed Sunday night 10 miles west of Saskatoon when two cars sideswiped. Killed were R. R. Minshall, Betty Klassen and Mrs. Agnes Garden, all of Biggar, Sask. Two young daughters of Mr. Minshall were taken to hospital with slight injuries.

KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—blame it on 'nerves'—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they fail and impurities stay in the system—disturbed rest often follows. If you don't rest well get and use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help the kidneys so that you can rest better—and feel better. 136

Why Niagara may be a good place for you to borrow . . .

MONEY

We agree with people who say, "don't borrow money unless you must"—however, when you do have to borrow money, we think Niagara is the kind of loan company you'll want to do business with. Here are some features you'll want when you borrow.

You'll rate "service" high on your list, we're sure. At Niagara, we do too. We like to think we're prompt—some loans are made in 20 minutes. And polite—our company has been designed to serve our customers. Almost everyone can borrow money at NIAGARA when they need it . . . our plans are flexible, and on many amounts a 24 month payment period can be used.

"Reliability" will be important to you, too. Our business started in Welland, Ontario, over 25 years ago. We're associated with the Industrial Acceptance Corporation whose Merit Plan has been used by hundreds of thousands of Canadians to buy cars, appliances, etc. We're an all-Canadian Company with over 80 branches from coast-to-coast.

And here are two additional points about Niagara Loans: Rates are lower on many amounts . . . so you get more for your money. Loans to $1500 are life insured at no extra cost to you . . . when you can get this family protection, why do without it?

If you need money for any good reason—just drop in or phone, anytime.

What do you want your life insurance to do for you?

Some men buy life insurance for one purpose only—to provide income for their retirement years. Others buy insurance primarily to provide money for their dependents should death cut off earnings.

Today, however, more and more men are coming to the realization that provision for both these possibilities—retirement, or early death—is important to their enjoyment of a worry-free life. Consequently they look for the answer in a single insurance policy that will make provision either if they "live too long or die too soon".

If you, too, are looking for a policy which will make this double provision; consider The Imperial Life's new "Security at 60" plan. Four units of the plan, for instance, will provide, if you live to age 60,

$100.00 a month income for life, or
$18,250.00 as a single cash payment.

If you die before age 60 your dependents receive $20,000.00 in cash. Other choices of settlement if you want to stop the plan before age 60 or if your need for protection for dependents continues beyond age 60 make the plan very adaptable in fitting it to possible changes in your circumstances.

The Company also issues a Security at 65 plan with death benefit provisions before age 65 and with similar income or cash options, but to be taken at age 65.

If you would like further information on either of these plans; see your Imperial Life man today—or fill in the attached enquiry form and mail it to the Company's Head Office. No cost or obligation to you, of course.

No Rent Controls For Peterborough

The Council's decision not to try to control rents in the city when the Province drops its controls is reasonable. Compared with other cities in the Province, Peterborough has no real shortage of houses. Our classified advertising columns of houses for sale and apartments for rent shows this. There is no superfluity of rental houses; on the other hand, the majority of Peterborough people now own their own places, or are in the process of buying them under mortgage and loan arrangements equivalent to paying rent.

* * *

If there had been any Province-wide shortage, the Frost administration would not have risked dropping its control measures. Therefore, in a place like Peterborough, which is better provided with houses than many others of its size, there can be no wide need of controls. The lack of public agitation for continuance of controls shows there is no great demand for it. No spectacular rise in rents and no special hardships are expected after March 2nd, when the Provincial controls lapse.

* * *

The fact is that rental controls in Peterborough virtually ceased to exist a year or more ago. At this moment there are probably not two hundred houses and apartments in Peterborough under controlled rents lower than the free market rate. It will be remembered that under existing and previous Provincial and Federal control regulations, a rented dwelling ceased to be liable to control if a tenant moved out of it, if the owner wished to move himself in, if the property were sold. And newly-built houses and apartments for rent have for several years been exempt from control regulations. A further element is this: the permitted maximum rates have continuously been raised during the last four or five years, and now most are at levels at which they would be were there no rent controls.

* * *

As a matter of principle, it is unwise to continue controls beyond the time that emergency conditions made them necessary. To continue rent controls from now to the end of time would be artificial interference with the democratic system under which this country operates. As a matter of financial practicability, for Peterborough all by itself to try to manage a system of controls would be unwieldy and expensive. It has been estimated that the cost of setting up municipal controls would have been around $30,000.

Any Success At Berlin?

The Berlin conference has ended in a whimper of failure. Nothing big and hopeful has been achieved. Europe will continue to remain a divided armed camp, Germany will not have unity or a peace treaty, and East and West, meeting in Berlin, really did not meet; they touched each other and drew away.

Yet there should be no cry of dismay that the Berlin Conference did not have spectacular success. Could any really have been expected? A world divided for eight years is not cemented in eight een days. The two great leaders of the two sides have mutually exclusive national interests to defend, and mutual distrust of each other. The United States cannot risk Soviet penetration any further west; the Soviet Union cannot risk giving up her similar front line of defence which runs through Berlin. The supporting nations of the two leading countries, while wanting a free and easy Europe will not urge it at the expense of Soviet domination of Europe on the one hand, or ,from the Communist point of view, American domination on the other. Berlin was not a struggle for power, it was a restatement of that struggle and testing of the post-war balance of strength. Who will control Europe? The one nation most intimately concerned—Germany—prefers to bide its time under American, Western hegemony rather than under Soviet control. So Soviet troops will remain in occupation of the East, and E.D.C. plans will go on for a European Army of the west.

Yet the Berlin conference was not an unqualified failure. One result, foreshadowed by the proposals of Molotov and the general give-and-take without acrimony, is likely to be a gradual military disengagement in Central Europe, without changes in territorial control or upsetting the balance of military strength. Another result is the plan to hold a Geneva conference on far-eastern matters, principally on a Korean settlement. The conflict between East and West is not by any means limited to Europe. The "yellow peril" of today is that massive eddy of millions of Asians, in nationalistic movement, where communism and democracy are in fateful conflict; fateful because of the hundreds of millions of people involved. The size of the Asian revolutions is portentous, compared with the conflicts in Europe. For the world's security, decisions on Asia must be made in Geneva.

Why A World News Agency?

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization has suggested the setting up of a world news agency under the U.N. The reason it thinks this would be a good idea is that, in its opinion, the present major news agencies are not "international" enough.

UNESCO explains that this does not necessarily mean that these agencies deliberately slant the news—with, of course, the exception of Tass, the Russian agency. The organization feels, however, that no matter how impartial these agencies may try to be, "they will inevitably judge and present news from the view point of the country of which they are citizens". And the organization would like to substitute for that the "international" viewpoint.

First of all, we'd like to know what the "international" viewpoint is and who defines it. Does it consist of presentation of news dispatches stripped of all national significance, containing nothing but an incident, its origin, and its probable effect internationally? Or does it consist of news presented as a group of "internationalists" thinks it should be presented, according to their views on international affairs?

We doubt that either presentation would be preferable in any way to the present system. We doubt, furthermore, that a world news agency would be of any practical value, except to the printers who do U.N. work. And the difficulties of operation would be tremendous, if a genuine world news agency is intended. Correlating and re-issuing the dispatches of seven national news agencies would be a colossal task, and the "international" version would reach everyone late and land in the wastebasket.

The U.N. would be well advised to stay out of the newspaper business. Its previous attempt to intervene by introducing a so-called world press freedom pact was rejected as unworkable. The new idea is also unworkable. Worse than that, however, it would be an infringement of freedom of the press in those countries where that right and privilege has been established. Freedom of the press does not mean submission to the editing of an international organization, which is what UNESCO apparently would like. The organization would do well to drop the idea and get on with the good work it does in its proper fields.

Secret R.C.M.P. Files

An R.C.M.P. officer in Victoria, British Columbia, is said to have turned over to unauthorized persons the contents of an R.C.M.P. file on a left-winger in that Province. This is a very serious matter. It is one which the Minister of Justice should be required to report to the House of Commons. An investigation has been made.

The R.C.M.P., for all their openness of scarlet glory and daring deeds, are also Canada's secret police. They have private information on file about thousands of persons in this country who have done, as far as the world knows, nothing more heinous than sing songs to the Spring sunrise or quote a paragraph from Das Kapital in the midst of a theological discussion. For purposes of their own, connected perhaps with "national preparedness" the R.C.M.P. have investigated thousands of apparently blameless and worthy people who have in some way or another or at one time or another come into the public eye or the inquiring mind of a sleuth. Unbeknownst to you and even to him, the R.C.M.P. may have a dossier on your next-door neighbour.

This being the nature of these files —investigation without any charges, personal information quietly gleaned by snoopers, and items of a private nature tabulated—these R.C.M.P. files must be kept private and not be allowed to fall into anybody's hands until a court order or the cause of justice and national safety require that they be produced.

It is lamentable that such dossiers have to be kept at all, for secret police files the world over are always potential instruments for a demagogue or dictator to misuse. Since they are being kept, even in democratic Canada, their secrecy must be guarded, otherwise the private rights of individuals are violated, and personal freedom vitiated.

The Smile Of Mr. Molotov

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW
(In Berlin)

THERE was no fraternising, at the Berlin conference of Foreign Ministers, between East and West. On the other hand, there have been no tangible barriers. If the Russians had really wanted to throw off their reserve and meet their opposite numbers of the West as man to man, the conference provided them with a natural and perfect opportunity. The opportunity was not seized. The two sides remained at arm's length — although smiling politely, not snarling, which makes a change.

ON THE SURFACE it has all been extremely companionable. At official receptions Soviet diplomats and officials have circulated freely and unself-consciously, as though they were on their home ground instead of in the middle of a hostile city. The Soviet Foreign Minister, Mr. Molotov, has gone unguarded; looking very grey and rather frail, a cross between a gruff maiden aunt with a heart of gold and a schoolmaster of uncertain temper, he has moved freely in the crush, talking away quite happily to the men who that very day, at the square conference table, were separated from him by an apparently impassible gulf of mutual incomprehension.

He has done nothing when off duty to make comprehension any easier. And as the little man passed by, smiling moderately behind his glasses, distinctly thin on top, the living embodiment of fifty years of revolutionary struggle, it was uncanny to reflect that he carried with him, as he moved, stored in that vulnerable and unremarkable head, secret calculations which the Western Foreign Ministers have sought to compass in vain, and which bears with the force of half the power in the world on the lives of us all.

✧ ✧ ✧

CONSIDERING the magnitude and the almost infinite complexity of the task of wielding and balancing global power, it is impossible not to wonder whether behind that bland, assured, deceptive mask, Mr. Molotov is not as fundamentally blank and bewildered as his co-arbiters from the West. He, like them — although he is helped by a species of political science which has the attributes of a dogma — is engaged in muddling through.

In Berlin the muddling through has been conducted in polite tones and with the semblance of reasonableness. There has been little recrimination and practically no name-calling.

MR. MOLOTOV has refrained from gross indulgence in the customary anti-Western tirades, and has been very business-like. Indeed, for rhetoric at this conference we have had to go to Mr. John Foster Dulles, the United States Secretary of State, who in demanding deeds and not words, has more than once embarrassed at least some onlookers by the pertinacity of his high moral tone at a conference which has been notable for its unabashed concern with expediency.

Mr. Molotov has certainly approached reality more closely than is customary at these gatherings. He has paid his lip service to the eternal verities, but has made it increasingly clear that he came to Berlin to talk about high strategy and nothing else. And his message on that score seems to be that on no account will the Soviet Union abandon its existing position in Europe as long as the United States is actively operating on that continent. He has also made it clear by his contemptuous relegation of Washington, with Peking, to the role of "observer" in his proposed security pact, that he recognises America's interests in Europe to be no more valid than China's.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE FINAL details of this attitude have not yet been clarified. Mr. Molotov has said categorically that his proposed European treaty is aimed at the European Defence Community and German rearmament. But at the time of writing he has markedly refused to commit himself on his final attitude towards the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — on whether he regards Nato, as well as E.D.C., as being incompatible with his treaty.

✧ ✧ ✧

HE HAS SAID enough, however, to make it clear that the Soviet Government is hag-ridden by the fear of a reunited and resurgent Germany, and that for the time being it is less concerned with appeasing America than with keeping America at arm's length. To establish these points beyond all doubt, Mr. Molotov has been prepared to accept a hardening of opinion against the Soviet Union in Germany; and, by his brutal attitude towards the Austrian treaty, to lose not only the goodwill of Austria (and to undo the good achieved by the more flexible relations established between Moscow and Vienna during the past year), but to throw away the immense propaganda value in the West of an Austrian settlement. He has, finally, been prepared to risk the accelerated creation of E.D.C.

IT IS HARD to guess why he has not sought, by a more conciliatory attitude, to throw the blame for the failure of the Berlin conference squarely on the shoulders of the Western statesmen, thus encouraging disunity in the West, and, especially, French opposition to the United States.

There seem to be two possible answers. The first is that the Kremlin is now calculating that Western Communism will gain most from an apparently unbreakable stalemate between East and West, in the belief that the tensions within the Western system which tend towards disintegration will be accelerated by a mood of despair. The second is that Russia is so preoccupied with its own vast problems at home, and with the even vaster problems of Asia, that for the time being it really does not care what happens in the West, short of the creation of a unified and rearmed Germany.

THESE ANSWERS may in fact be closely inter-connected. And they may also be conditioned by strong disagreements inside the Kremlin itself as to the proper course to pursue, ending in a stalemate at home which is reflected in a stalemate abroad.

The theory of conflict, indeed, is supported by the marked change of attitude which occurred in the second week of the conference. At first there were signs that Mr. Molotov was genuinely preparing to negotiate. Then, suddenly, these signs were contradicted by events. This could well have been caused by conflict within the Kremlin.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN THOSE early days in Berlin, the stage appeared to be set for fraternisation; but the stage was never used and the promise was unfulfilled. And for the greater part of the conference, instead of seeking to negotiate, Mr. Molotov gave the impression of shying away from any possibility of negotiation, as though seeking to avoid at all costs any interruption of the existing unhappy balance.

Since Western policy appears to be ruled by much the same idea, nobody should complain that there is no sudden change of the Soviet front to throw everything into confusion.

An American Opinion: 'HOPE WE'RE NOT TOO CONSPICUOUS'

Letters To The Editor

NAVY LEAGUE SAYS ITS SAY

SIR: We have read with interest your published statement in "The Peterborough Examiner" of Wednesday, January 6th, 1954, under the caption "Community Fund drops Navy League."

Knowing of your desire to keep the public informed of the facts, we thought we should advise you that the statement "the RCSCC received most of its subsidization from the Naval Division of the Department of Defence" is not correct.

The Navy League of Canada operate their Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps by voluntary contributions which they collect. No grants are received from the Federal Government. Our revenue comes from Community Chest funds, County Council grants, tag days and financial campaigns — and many loyal supporters.

The Navy League of Canada provides Ship's Quarters and, out of the funds which they raise, they pay all bills for maintenance and operation of these buildings, for such expenditures as rent, heat, light, insurance and capital and running repairs. We also provide and maintain sporting and band equipment. It is necessary for us to carry insurance against injury to officers and cadets while on duty.

The Navy League of Canada provide the Department of National Defence with a bond of indemnity against loss of equipment on loan from Naval Service. Once a year an annual inspection is made of all kit, gear and equipment on loan by Naval Service and all deficiencies are paid for out of Navy League funds.

We believe that sea training is the best possible training for youth. While we are cognizant of the benefit of that training in the national interest, bearing in mind that all our western civilization is based and dependent upon seapower for its economic development, our interest is primarily in good youth training for our teen-age youth. No young man who joins the Sea Cadet Corps is beholden in any way to join the Navy, the Merchant Marine or anything else. Our Sea Cadet Corps are definitely a service to provide an interesting and worthwhile outlet for the natural energies of our youth in any community where they have been established.

The seamen who man our ships are drawn from all our communities in this province. Their lives, spent in our service in the movement and protection of our seaborne commerce — forty per cent of our national income comes from our exports — are of necessity away from their homes and their kin for a great part of their lives.

These are the men whom the Navy League serves with Ditty Bags and comforts at sea; with clubs and hostels in our seaports and whom the members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Navy League visit when they are in our hospitals. This too is a service, on behalf of each of our communities, that is being done for our men of the sea day in and day out.

Since 1896 the Navy League has operated continuously its youth training programme and many thousands of Canada's youth have benefitted and become better citizens because of it.

We hope the above statement of facts will clear up the misstatement which was published. We also express our sincere appreciation for the support we have received from the citizens of Peterborough during the past years. The Sea Cadet Corps of Peterborough is growing steadily and much work has been accomplished for your boys.

Yours very truly,

THE NAVY LEAGUE OF CANADA
(Ontario Division)

CHARLES SHAW,
Managing Secretary.

PLEA FOR MODERN MARKET

SIR: For some time we have been reading about great industries starting from small beginnings but in a short time developing into great profits, with great expansion made both in buildings, equipment and extensive business contacts We are so grateful that Peterborough county has been so enriched but there is one industry in Peterborough county, that in ways involves people mostly within the county and most assuredly, not world-wide expansion, as has been developed by the few industries having been so boosted in the newspaper publications. This last, oldest and limited industry is that of the "Market Merchants."

When the first settlers began having their produce sold in the section now known as Peterborough, the first Lieutenant Governor of Ontario gave the section known as the "Old Market Square" to the market gardeners of the section to be used for that purpose from that time throughout the years to follow. During some years the square had a cover.

In 1934 I came here from the States and having been accustomed to seeing the market gardeners treated as human beings and not as beasts of the barnyard and unsheltered I could not resist writing articles and working in different ways to try to get protection, at least equal to the sheltered dogs and cats snatched from the streets in the city, and could not understand why the Humane Society members would busy themselves to go into the country and investigate how farmers treated their beasts, yet we had none who seemed to care how the marketers were exposed to all kinds of hazards in order to sell their produce. I always have thought the county has needed a Human Society to protect the people more than the dumb animals. A bill of rights might help the situation.

I have never ceased to take deep interest in those gardeners and visited all markets in every large city, wherever I have travelled and never once have I seen more honorable, clean, honest, loyal and accommodating citizens, than we have always had the great privilege to have serve our needs as marketers faithful to their industry in Peterborough county and never have I seen marketers been more unjustly shoved off the premises granted for that purpose by our forefathers and left on such uncertain windswept, muddy, rocky, unsheltered open space without toilet, rest or heating facilities such as the marketers have been forced to endure when their rights and property fell to the mercy of just a few officials put in authority by the voters themselves.

Not many times I have read of the great sums of money the city has made off that old Market quare by citizens parking. By rights, how should that money be spent? To answer this, many would do as I am asking, that a decent, honorable and just act of mercy be made to help overcome the destruction done to those market gardeners by using the necessary funds taken from the market meter proceeds and build at the earliest convenience a modernly built ground floor market and put this, the oldest industry known in the county of Peterborough, on a higher level of consideration and sheltered foundation than the cats and dogs grabbed as undesirables off the streets of this city, now have with shelter and warmth that is not provided for our marketers and their children.

According to their prices, profits and labor, along with never an hour to call time off with pay, I have found those marketers the most faithful and uncomplaining group of industrial workers we have, working in the interest of making this county, its people, a most healthful place in which to live. Food is the staff of life.

You may be proud of the great flourishing industries but I am ashamed and humiliated at the way our oldest industry of Peterborough county, namely that of the market gardeners, producing food and selling it to support all of us, with the staples of life and that done with so little thought or profit, for their own time and labors endured for the sake of all, have been frustrated in their aims to carry on their labors without cooperation deserved. May Mayor Graham with the co-operation of the council and the faithfulness and co-operation of citizens of Peterborough county and city act immediately to help support, preserve and readjust the necessary and deserved facilities to aid these market gardeners preserve and make profitable this oldest industry of Peterborough county and city.

A BRITISH OPINION

"Grandma—whatever's making you take so long to put pussy out on a cold night like this?"

STRETCHING ARMS — Loose balls were invaluable Saturday night in the Collis-Hamilton Zions exhibition basketball game at the YWCA. Possession of the ball meant everything, especially in the last seconds of regulation play when the score was tied 26-all. But the intermediate Collis went on to defeat the senior Zions, last year's Ontario finalists, 39-34. Collis's Pauline Stewart (right, above) jumps up for a loose ball with opposition from the Zions.

Neat Hoop Win To Collis Over Hamilton

Warming up for their Ontario intermediate "B" playdowns this week, Buz Manbeck's Collis girls were forced into overtime Saturday night before they defeated Hamilton Zion seniors 39-34 at the YWCA gym. Last year's senior Ontario finalists, the Zions led until the last minute when Collis's tied the score at 26-all. The Peterborough team continued its rally into the five-minute overtime for the victory.

The exhibition win indicates the strength of the Collis girls and raises their hopes for an Ontario title this season in intermediate play. This Wednesday they will meet the Toronto winner (to be decided tonight) in Toronto, returning for the second game Friday night at the YWCA at 8.30.

Zions, rated as one of the top senior women's teams in Ontario, marvelled the Collis girls with their smooth ball-handling. But when it came to breaking fast and shooting, the Collis girls held a definite edge.

These fast breaks helped Collis's to take a one-point lead in a slow-scoring first quarter. Then Joan Dunk with three field baskets gave Collis's a 6-5 score as S. Collins and J. Smethurst counted for Hamilton.

But in the second quarter Zions, although troubled by the small court, matched the Collis girls. J. Brennan, S. Collins, J. Smethurst and J. Marshall all figured in Hamilton's seven points as the score was tied 12-all at the half. Shirley Bestard, Pauline Stewart and Dunk accounted for the Collis points.

The Zions continued their rally into the second half as Collins, Brennan and Marshall hit the basket fairly regularly. At the same time, they held Collis's to only four points, two baskets by Pauline Stewart.

Taking a six-point lead into the fourth, the Zions played cagey basketball, but Dunk, Gillen and Bestard with short set shots wiped out that lead and tied the score.

The overtime period was the best in the game as both teams fought for the victory. But the fast Collis lasses were too strong as Dunk, Bestard and Gillen dropped in points to edge past the Zions.

Dunk easily led the scoring with 17 points for Collis's while Hamilton's best was Collis with 11.

CITY CHAMPIONS—Armour Heights School juniors had nearly a perfect season this year in their first hunt for the junior city hockey championship. They didn't have a goal scored upon them until the playoffs and then there were only four scored, one a game, as they took the title. The school's first championship team includes: (back row), Al McNeil, principal, Harry Walsh, Jim Eakins, Jack Steen, Gary Patterson, Don Munro, Hugh Anderson, teacher-coach; (front row), Bruce Cullen, captain, Barry McIvor, Terry Bell, Jim Guppy, Ron James.

Harrison Rink Captures O'Keefe Trophy 'Spiel

Burritt Harrison's local rink, recently winners of the Canada Packers Trophy, came back again on Saturday and repeated, only this time they were winners of the O'Keefe Trophy. O. Price's rink was a close second; his rink had three wins, 30 points plus five, while the winning rink had three wins, 30 points plus eight. Bert Hollowell, playing his regular schedule rink, was another repeat winner. He finished third in this competition, and only 10 days ago this same rink took second honors in the Walker bonspiel. Harry Baptie's rink was the fourth three-game winner.

OUTPLAYED VISITORS

And once again did the local curlers outplay the visiting rinks so that all six prizes stayed right in Peterborough. That's the second time this season this has occurred.

With entries from Oshawa, Colborne, Cobourg, Keene, Unionville, Beaverton and Peterborough, the open bonspiel played Saturday was another successful event.

The O'Keefe Co. went a long way in making the bonspiel the success it was. Their generosity was greatly appreciated by the curling club.

In presenting the trophy to the club for annual competition, D. J. Delaney, on behalf of his company thanked the club for the opportunity and hoped that all had enjoyed the day's bonspiel.

Harley R. Carr presented the trophy and the radios to Mr. Harrison's rink and voiced the sentiments expressed by D. J. Delaney.

The 'spiel was concluded well before midnight.

Siren Disturbs City

NEW YORK (AP) — A short circuit in an air raid siren Sunday night caused a 21-minute "all clear" blast that shattered the Sabbath in Manhattan, Queens and the Bronx. The high-powered howl was traced to a switch relay failure on Welfare island. It brought hundreds of telephone calls to police and civilian defence offices.

Bisons Score Overtime Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons are pulling steadily away from the competition in the American Hockey League.

Ahead of second-place Cleveland Barons by 16 points, the Bisons came through Sunday with a 3-2 overtime victory over Pittsburgh Hornets. Cleveland lost 5-3 to Hershey Bears and Syracuse Warriors edged Providence Reds 3-2 in other Sunday games.

Trailing 3-1 in the last period on Cleveland goals by Eddie Olson, Steve Kraftcheck and Jackie Gordon, Hershey rattled in four counters in the last eight minutes to walk away with the victory. Two goals by Arnie Kullman and singles by Lorne Ferguson and George Sullivan provided the third-period power. Ferguson also tallied in the second stanza.

Defenceman Don Perry fired the winning goal at Providence to give Syracuse an early-overtime win. Al Baccari and Eric Pogue netted for Warriors, Tod Campeau and Jack McLeod for Providence.

Canadian Amateur Golfers In Commonwealth Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — The Royal Canadian Golf Association today looked back on one of its best years in its 55-year history and made ambitious plans for 1954.

Flush with a record bank balance, the annual meeting of the RCGA here Saturday announced that a team of amateur golfers would represent Canada in the British Commonwealth tournament June 1-4 at St. Andrews, Scotland. The tournament will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the Royal and Ancient Club.

"Your association finds itself in the best financial position in its history," A. J. Mylrea said in his presidential report. He warned, however, that the association should not "recklessly dissipate the hard-earned reserves that have been accumulated over the last six years—a period of unprecedented prosperity."

The association reported a surplus of $32,833 at Oct. 31, 1953, compared with $24,643 at the same 1952 period. Cash on hand represented $10,269 of the total.

NAME TEAM

The team going to St. Andrews will be made up of seven men, including a captain. Six were named Saturday and announcement of the seventh is expected shortly. The personnel:

Donald Doe of Granby, Que., finalist in the 1953 Canadian amateur championship at Montreal; Nick Weslock, Essex; Phil Farley, Toronto; Doug Silverberg, Red Deer, Alta.; Walter McElroy, Vancouver, and Bob Fleming, Victoria.

The association reported membership of 44,619 adult and intermediate male playing golfers at 316 clubs affiliated with the RCGA. J. Gordon Bowers of Vancouver, chairman of the membership committee, said there were another 182 clubs, with membership of 11,689 not affiliated with the association.

PLEA FOR JUNIORS

Charlie Watson of Toronto, tournament committee chairman the last five years who resigned his position Saturday due to pressure of business, made a strong plea on behalf of Canada's junior players. He recommended that the Canadian junior championships be match play instead of the present two rounds of medal play.

He recommended also that 32 youngsters should compete for the title instead of the present eight.

C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont., chairman of the junior promotion and development committee, reported receipts from National Golf Day in 1952 and 1953 turned over for development of junior golf totalled more than $11,000.

Dutchmen Edge Windsor 5-3; Near Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Owen Sound Mercurys have three chances to clinch first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A group. All they need is a tie in one of their three remaining games to give them sole possession of the lead spot.

Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen now trail by four points, having a total of 73. Dutchmen could tie Mercurys if they win their two remaining games.

In the three remaining games, Mercurys will come up against Hamilton Tigers, now tied with Windsor Bulldogs for third place, fourth-place Stratford Indians and their toughest rivals, the Dutchmen.

Kitchener's only other remaining game is with Niagara Falls Cataracts, now in the cellar.

The Dutchmen kept their first-place hopes alive during the weekend with a 5-3 victory over Windsor.

Owen Sound defeated Chatham Maroons 8-2 and in the third game Saturday, Stratford downed Hamilton 4-2.

In the Sunday game, Windsor whipped Niagara Falls Cataracts 8-1.

At Kitchener, Don Oberholtzer and Art Hurst scored two goals for the winners and Ken Laufman added the single. For the Bulldogs, Fred Hildebrand got two and Gary Gordon scored the third.

Mercurys were paced by Herb Carnegie who scored two goals. Javdee McArthur, Jerry Reid, Bill McComb, John Shedden, Moe Morris and Vern Gardiner accounted for the others.

Frank Bonello and Jim Campbell were the Chatham scorers.

At Stratford, the Indians' goals were netted by Mickey Roth, Bill Flick, George Aitkin and Herve DeJordy. Sam Kennedy and Gord McGinn scored for Hamilton.

In the Sunday game, the lowly Cataracts dressed only 12 players and were missing goalie Don Lockhart and centre Eric Unger who have left for Europe to join Canada's entry in the world amateur hockey championships.

BATTLE FOR THIRD

Windsor and Hamilton now have two games each in which to decide third place. They will meet in Windsor Tuesday.

Lyle Wiseman and Alec Birukow paced Bulldogs with two goals each and singles were scored by Gary Gordon, Ollie Haddon, Frank Bathgate and Fred Hildebrand. Nixon scored for Cataracts.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group, Sault Ste. Marie (Mich) Indians moved into a tie with North Bay Trappers for fourth spot by defeating Sudbury Wolves 6-2.

Bill McCracken and Laurie Peterson scored two each for Indians and Marcel Clements and Danny O'Connor got singles. Hub Beaudry and Peter Horeck scored for the Wolves.

In the only OHA game tonight, Owen Sound will visit Hamilton.

Tonight Pembroke Lumber Kings will meet Trappers at North Bay in the NOHA group.

Marlboros Work Hard To Hold Teepees To Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros worked hard during the week-end to boost themselves two points closer to league-leading St. Catharines TeePees.

In Hamilton Saturday night they had to come from behind to defeat Hamilton Cubs 4-3 in their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A group battle.

Sunday they met the pace-setters on home ice and gave 10,512 Toronto fans one of the best games of the season as they held TeePees to a scoreless tie.

In another Saturday game, Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts downed Trois Rivieres Reds 2-0 in an interlocking schedule game with the Quebec Junior Hockey League club at Trois Rivieres.

Toronto St. Michael's visited Galt and were edged 3-2 by the last-place Black Hawks who won their first game in their last seven starts.

In the other games Sunday, Kitchener defeated Montreal Royals 8-1, Guelph Biltmores fought to a 2-2 tie with Quebec Frontenacs and Hamilton downed St. Michael's 3-2.

REID GETS PAIR

At Hamilton Saturday, Dave Reid led Marlboros with two goals and Dave Jackson and Charley Burns added singles. Cummy Burton scored two for Cubs and Larry Hillman got the other.

Del Topall scored what proved to be Kitchener's winning goal early in the first period at Trois Rivieres. The other was scored by Glen Cressman.

St. Michael's scored two goals at Galt Saturday in the last three minutes of play after they pulled the goalie and played six men up.

Peter Kowalchuck, Ron Halstead and Neil McDonald scored for the Hawks and Paul Knox and Jim Logan scored for Toronto.

At Montreal, Vyon Tennant, Bruce Jones, Craig Hicks, Doug Vaughan, Howie Glover, Glen Cressman, Del Toppall and Gord Onotsky each scored singles for Kitchener while Scotty Bowman got Royals' lone goal.

In the doubleheader at Toronto Sunday, fans watched 80 minutes of play before seeing a goal scored.

After the scoreless St. Catharines-Marlboros game, St. Michael's and Hamilton battled through a scoreless first period before Brian Kilrea gave Hamilton a goal in the second period.

Other Hamilton scorers were Real Larouche and Ed Louttit. Ken Gribbons and Jim Logan scored for the collegians.

At Quebec, Guelph scorers were Bill McCreary and Bill Sweeney. Moe Mantha and Gilles Thibeault scored for Quebec.

Tonight, Guelph will visit Jonquiere, Canadiens will be at St. Catharines and Hamilton visits Barrie Flyers.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A packed committee room at the City Hall on Saturday afternoon was the response to Mayor Graham's invite to a public meeting to set up a new general committee to proceed with the Memorial Community Centre. Many women, prominent in civic affairs, attended, too, and some were on the general committee. The remodelled committee appears to be a good cross-section of citizens under the chairmanship of D. A. McGillis, and it will get down to business at another meeting there this Saturday aft.'' The private bill to permit erection of the aud. on city property in Morrow Park is expected to be passed shortly during the present Legislature sittings at Queen's Park. Mayor Graham and City Clerk Outram will attend to push it.

* * * * * *

Frank Buckland gave the Saturday meeting a comprehensive report on the original trust set up for the Centre, the history of the project to date, the plans, and a financial statement. He pointed out that the original purpose of the project and the basis for the 1944 financial drive was to erect a first unit in the nature of a modern arena, with other features to be included as the project progressed, and others added later. It is all clearly laid out and passed. More than a hockey arena, it is to be truly a community centre with cultural, social, agricultural, etc., facilities. The exact site in Morrow Park and the ultimate cost have not yet been settled. These things require early consideration when the bill passes.

* * * * * *

Little Matter Of Money

Two problems in the past held up a start (a) no site and (b) inadequate funds. We expect the site to be settled shortly, and then remain the big problem of raising sufficient money. Presently and promises. A little less than $1,000 a day for each day in the year and promises. A little less than $1,000 a day for day in the year—just for easy memory. There will be approximately $245,000 on hand when work actually starts, plus $75,000 in debentures to be issued by the city, and plus Dominion and Provincial grants each of $20,000 if it is tied in for agricultural purposes with the Exhibition Board in Morrow Park. When the bill passes, the committee (broken down into sub-committees) must settle on the exact site, the type of Centre to be erected, ask for tenders and try to raise what further money is required. Much work to be done yet, but a start is finally being made.

* * * * * *

But enough on that subject for now. Back to current sports' activities. Pro wrestlers return to the Brock this Wednesday eve with a rematch in the main bout, a tag team tangle between the Mills brothers and the pair of Fred Atkins and Hombre Montana. They drew in an hour here a week ago, so the titular bout will have a time limit this week of an hour and a half in an attempt to settle it one way or the other. City and district fans expect one of the roughest mat free-for-alls ever seen up this way, and that's for sure. Semi-final pits Nanjo Singh against Jack Bence, while Earl McCready and Pat Flanagan go in the prelim.

The Petes Receive $90

OLA had a huddle Saturday but not a great deal came out of it — that is, of interest up this way. The senior clubs meet this Saturday and the framework of a group for 1954 should be known then. Right now it rather looks like five clubs in: Peterborough, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Fergus and Mimico. The Petes squared their account with the OLA and then asked for reinbursement for three games not played here which should have been last season, including two when Brampton folded. So the big-hearted OLA coughed up with $90! That's to make up for three home gates, plus travelling expenses away — boyoboyoboy. Bob Curtin tells us he expects a local meeting next weekend when it is likely that a Petes' coach and manager will be named.

* * * * * *

COBL was re-organized at a Quinte meeting yesterday with Oshawa, Kingston and Belleville definite entries. Petes are interested but weren't represented. Smiths Falls and Watertown, N.Y., are also reported interested, so the closing date was set for entries at another huddle in Belleville on March 6. Clubs put up a $100 bond to ensure finishing the schedule. Jack Devine of Belleville was re-elected president, Harry (Yip) Radley of Kingston the vice-prexy, and George Carver of Belleville secretary-treasurer. Committee consists of a representative of each club in. Oshawa was quite enthused about a return to the COBL, and we trust Peterborough baseball interests get busy right away and plan a return to this senior circuit.

Paul Murphy stood out with his checking work and in killing off penalties in the rugged tilt. Aces drew eight of the 15 penalties handed out.

Kane counted first in the second period, while James tallied two minutes later for Oshawa. Ferren put Aces in front shortly after and then Brooks banged in McFadyen's pass. New York Rangers ended a string of 19 consecutive winless games by beating Montreal Canadiens 6-1 at Madison Square Garden, 11 years ago Sunday night. But Rangers a year later compiled the present NHL record of 25 straight games without a win, showing 21 losses and four ties between January and November of 1944.

Lakefield And Port Hope Tie 2-2 In Overtime In Second Playoff Game

Lakefield Lumbermen and Port Hope battled to a 2-2 overtime draw at Civic Arena Saturday night, in a sizzling OHA intermediate "A" lakeshore group semi-final struggle, before over 600 excited fans. It was the second of a best-of-five set and enables Ned Vitarelli's boys to retain a one-game advantage as a result of a 2-1 decision in the opening struggle. The third game is slated for Port Hope tonight.

Lakefield opened impressively in the first by outscoring the lakeshore men 2-0, holding a fair edge in play; but their rivals fought back to equalize the score with a marker in each of the second and third stanzas; then battled on even terms through a scoreless overtime session, in a fine contest.

LAKEFIELD LEADS

Play started in typical play-off style, and an early burst by Lumbermen paid off with Jim Freeman off for roughing. Speedy Dean Wasson, defence ace, potted the disc from a close-in scramble, with Doug Hunter assisting on the play. Action steamed up as one thrill followed another, and the veteran Ray Harding, with his younger rival, former Oddfellow goalie Red Wasson, had many close calls. Dean Wasson and Bud Downey drew roughing miscues but no damage came; then, later, with Hopkins away, Lumbermen held by virtue of good defence work. Finally near the three-quarter mark, the "Skipper" Bean-Cam Wasson crew, tallied their second marker on a sparkling play engineered by Dean Wasson, Cam Wassan, Hopkins and Birch. The former screamed for the puck at the right attacking blue line on a wild skirmish, fired it goalwards through a maze of players, and Birch sank it in a mad scramble.

Coon Medhurst, versatile Port Hope athletic star, tallied his team's first goal in the mid-frame when he combined with fleet Bud Downey seconds before the return of Richlark, serving an interference penalty. Lumbermen had held well during the double shortage of Richlark and Dean Wasson, but at 3.38 the "Coon" fired past Harding on a gang attack to put the Hopers back in the game. It was fine two-way hockey thereafter.

PORTS TIE IT

The final regulation frame saw terrific action renewed with neither team able to penetrate the enemy twine in the first half. Despite two home penalties early, Doug Hunter, Johnny Richlark, Tom Birch, Ken Floyd and Dick McCracken held off every rival thrust in a great display, and Birch almost tallied with two shy. Finally, at 12.26 Port Hope tied the game on a rush by the Lintner brothers Tod and Al, with Harvey Gordon. The trio sped down on a three-way attack and Tod Lintner fired a high 20-footer from short right wing that beat Harding as the crowd roared.

The overtime session proved equally well-fought from every standpoint as the preceding sessions. Both teams tried every plan of attack possible to gain the vital tally but to no avail, and thus a great game ended. The game saw many stars on either squad and in addition featured the four fine athletic Wasson brothers in action at one time, Cam, Dean and Neil for Lumbermen, and Bob (Red) Wasson in the mesh for Port Hope. The boys on both teams gave it all they had.

Port Hope: goal, R. Wasson; defence, Fennell, Hogan; centre, McKeen; wings, Freeman, Buckton; alts.: Downey, Gordon, Turner, Evans, Douglas, Medhurst, T. Lintner, A. Lintner.

STILL BRILLIANT—Ray Harding continues his brilliant goaltending with Lakefield Lumbermen in intermediate play this season. The former Petes' star (above) keeps his eye on the puck while defenceman John Richlark guards a loose Port Hope Redman in front of the Lakefield goal. Harding's starry play helped the Lumbermen to hold the Redmen to a two-all tie at the Civic Arena.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Eaton's Execs Take Win Over PCVS Srs.

It took University of Toronto intermediate star, Vic Kurouak, to give Eaton's junior Executives an exhibition victory Saturday night over PCVS senior Garnet and Greys. The lanky pivot player scored 25 points, mostly from the key, to lead the Execs, an all-star quintet from Toronto high schools, to a 68-52 victory. In the preliminary game PCVS juniors eked out a slim 30-27 score over St. Peter's High.

After keeping the reins on the Execs 11-all in the first quarter, PCVS faltered in the second quarter, allowing the strong Toronto five to take a 10-point lead, 32-22 at half-time. After that the Execs stayed fairly well ahead, 48-33 at three-quarters. PCVS did whittle their lead down twice to six points in the last quarter but Kurouak finished strong.

All the Toronto players took part in the scoring but it was Kurouak's points which made the difference. In the second quarter it was his high scoring, 10, points which gave the Execs a wide margin. In the fourth quarter it was Kurouak again when PCVS came close.

Despite the loss by 16 points, the PCVS quintet weren't too unhappy about the loss to one of the province's most powerful high school-age teams. The Execs have been known to defeat the best.

Terry Roberts once again led the Garnet and Grey, playing a good game defensively and offensively. Roberts topped the PCVS scoring with 16 points, followed by Doug Ash (who made quite an impression on the Toronto team) with 13, and Neil Courneya with 11.

In the junior game the Garnet and Grey started off well leading 4-2 in the first quarter and then 15-6 at half-time. But the Saints' Ron Board sparked a rally in the third which saw the PCVS lead wiped out and a one-point, 24-23 lead taken by the Saints at three-quarters. But PCVS finished slightly stronger for the small-margin victory.

Paul Davis, junior star from PCVS, scored more than half PCVS' points with 17 to lead the scoring. Ron Board was best for the Saints with 12.

Landlocked Winner Of Widener Handicap

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—James Cox Brady's Landlocked, rank outsider at 34 to 1, was first out of the gate and first across the finish line Saturday to win the $139,400 Widener Handicap at Hialeah Park before a crowd of 31,699.

Landlocked had to battle Apheim Stable's Quiet Step all the way, but the speedy four-year-old gelding had enough left to win by a head from Quiet Step.

Time for the mile-and-a-quarter was 2:03 1-5 over a fast track.

River Divide Farm's Andre was third, a length and a quarter behind Quiet Step and a neck ahead of Hasty House Farms' Ruhe, a surprise starter in the field of 14.

Greentree Stable's Straight Face and Mrs. J. R. H. Thouron's Royal Vale, co-favorites in the race, never threatened and finished out of the money.

Truckmen Get Win Over The Petes In Keen Senior Tilt

Oshawa Truckmen jerked out a 3-2 OHA senior "B" victory over the TPT Petes on Saturday night before a good sized crowd in the Bowmanville arena. It was their last meeting during the schedule, which runs out this week. Orillia defeated Belleville 6-1 the same night to clinch a playoff spot and oust the Memos. The present standing:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Oshawa	21	16	0	42
Petes	19	16	3	41
Orillia	18	17	2	38
Kingston	18	19	1	37
Belleville	15	23	0	30

As in previous meetings of these clubs all season, this was a fine fixture with both sides playing hurry-up hockey, showing smart passing plays and checking closely. The goaltending by Les Colvin of the Truckmen and Jack Donlevy of the Petes was outstanding from start to finish. It was a bit rugged in spots but not too rough as the rivals fought fiercely to get the win and take over sole possession of first place. The opposing playing coaches, Ernie Dickens and Eddie Redmond, shone with classy two-way performances, Dickens helping his cause considerably on the attack.

The win was important inasmuch as first place was at stake and the group semi-final playoff setup calls for the first-place team at schedule's end to playoff with the fourth, while the second and third meet. Both the Petes and Oshawa, fighting it out for weeks now for first place, want to finish on top and get first crack at the club which ends up in fourth position.

TOOK THE LEAD

Truckmen took a 2-1 lead in the first period with the Petes sewing it up in the middle heat. Dickens' screened shot at 11.14 of the third went in for what proved the winning marker. The shot was from the blue-line, picking the left side of the twine, and Donlevy didn't see the flying disc in time to block it. It was a tough break after the terrific netminding of both goalies from the start.

Shortly after the minute mark of the initial inning, Jerry Scott scored unassisted from 15 feet out at a sharp angle, his bullet drive catching a net corner after a quick rush down the side. Petes pressed hard to get it back and finally equalized at 8.05 on a nifty play by hard-working Ted Collins and canny Bert Hill. It was hard going then and generally even but Oshawa went ahead at 18:57 when Thaler combined neatly in close to score from Samanski and Dickens. Penalties of the period went to Samolenko, Berwick, Fryia, Hill and Greenlaw.

SEWED IT UP

More than half of the rougher second period had passed without a score, though both sides tested the goalies often and hard, when Petes tied it up at 2-all. Fryia blasted the rubber home on a smart thrust inside with Greenlaw. McBeth, McMaster, Scott Sinden and Thaler drew penalties in this period and the checking was stiffer throughout.

The opponents went at it hammer-and-tongs in a sizzling third stanza with play moving in on the rival net-guardians to pile up and both sides bumping plenty. Yet no penalties were drawn. Dickens got the winner finally with his screened drive, Samanski drawing an assist on the play. Petes threw the works at Oshawa the final seven or eight minutes but were checked closely and found Colvin impossible to beat the rest of the way. Teams:

Petes—Goal, Donlevy; defence, Redmond and Montgomery; centre, Hill; wings, Collins and Crowley; alternates, Munroe, McMaster, Belisle, Prentice, Peterson, Leonard, Fryia, Greenlaw and Armstrong.

Oshawa—Goal, Colvin; defence, Dickens and Peters; centre, Scott, wings, Samolenko and Hooper; alternates, Sinden, McBeth, Samanski, Thaler, Etcher, Holden, Yourth, Berwick and Wilson.

Referees—Holmshaw and Heffering.

Lindsay Gains A 4-2 Fray Over Cobourg

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Lindsay Muskies dominated play in the second game of their Lakeshore League semi-final series with Cobourg Comets on Saturday night, and skated away with a 4-2 win to tie the series at one game each. The set continues at Cobourg tonight.

Peppering the Cobourg net with over 50 shots, the Muskies were in control throughout the game, as they forged into a one-goal lead in the first period, increased it in the second and maintained the edge in the final frame.

Goalie Clark Somerville, of the visitors was the only factor that kept them in the game, as he turned aside drive after drive by the Muskies, who suddenly hit their top stride. Clare O'Connell, at the other end, had less than 30 shots to handle, though some of them tested him to the limit.

AN EARLY LEAD

The Muskie got an early lead when Bill Burns, a junior player, advanced to the Muskies near the end of the season, skated behind Somerville, who was out of his net and pushed in a short shot. Dave Casey got it back for Cobourg, late in the period, but Grant Green put the Muskies in front to stay with a long shot seconds from the end of the frame. The teams played their best hockey in the second, when both goalies was great, but the Muskies failed to score until the last second of the period, Crawford finishing off the prettiest play of the night with Parker and Packer. The Comets protested vigorously the goal had been scored after the period ended. But referee Payne allowed the tally, and ejected coach Cliff Maundrell when he stepped on the ice to add his voice to the storm.

In the third, the teams split a pair of goals. Tommy Hutton, another junior player, moved up for the playdowns, got one when he was cut loose by Vic Corley, and Jack Reeves answered for Cobourg on a fast break. Referees Payne and B. Kingdon, both of Peterborough, handled the game in good style, keeping the penalties to a minimum, 13, with eight going to the winners.

Mills Stake Title Against Hombre-Atkins

After staging the speediest, roughest, action-packed team match ever presented here, the Mills Brothers return Wednesday to the Brock against Hombre and Fred Atkins. It will be the feature event for the Canadian Open Tag Team title, and there will be an extended time limit, the bout going an hour and a half. Atkins and Montana demanded the extra time, figuring they had last week's match in the bag when time ran out. And how right they were! The Mills boys were in a bad way when the gong sounded, ending one of the wildest, roughest matches ever seen here.

Fred Atkins

Although the Mills agreed to the extra time, no comment has been heard from that corner regarding their plans. Wrestling fans would be well advised not to miss this return title match.

The semi-final will see the return of the tempestuous Hindu, Nanjo Singh, who will battle Jack Bence. This is Singh's first appearance here in quite a spell and he will meet tough opposition in the popular Bence.

Earl McCready and Pat Flanagan open proceedings in a potential mat classic.

Rangers Wallop Maple Leafs In 6-1 Victory

By JIM BASTABLE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Coach Muzz Patrick may be right. A few weeks ago he told National Hockey League fans he had "all the confidence in the world" that his New York Rangers would get into the Stanley Cup playoffs. The Rangers were in fifth place and and faltering then. They're still there but at least 16,000 followers figure the Rangers are a cinch to make fourth place for the championship serier, particularly after Sunday night when they walloped the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs 6-1.

The victory left the Rangers within one point of overhauling the fourth-place Boston Bruins. The Bruins, meanwhile, stayed a step in front when they came from behind to defeat the last-place Black Hawks 4-3 in Chicago.

In Saturday's games, Boston took a 3-2 setback from the Leafs and Montreal Canadiens remained in a second-place deadlock with Toronto by beating the league-leading Detroit Red Wings 2-0.

SPOTLIGHT GAMES

Sunday night's games took most of the spotlight. The Rangers were hitting their stride and getting plenty of mileage out of such veterans as Max and Doug Bentley, two key men in the late-season Ranger comeback.

The Rangers, with 24 wins and eight ties for a total of 56 points, have 12 games left in the regular 70-game schedule and have one game in hand over the Bruins. Two of those tilts are against Boston.

The crowd of 15,925 at New York's Madison Square Garden, the second sellout this year and all allowed in the garden by New York law, cheered when the Rangers barged through the Leafs. They nearly went whacky when the public address system announced that the Hawks were leading Boston 3-1 in the first period. But they had to settle with the New York win.

Eddie Kullman led the Rangers with two goals. Nick Mickoski, defenceman Ivan Irwin, Dean Prentice and Bob Chrystal beat Toronto netminder Harry Lumley for the others. Tod Sloan scored the Leaf goal in the second period.

LEAD ASSAULT

At Chicago, leftwinger Dave Creighton and centre Fleming Mackell led the Bruins' second-period assault. Creighton scored twice and Mackell put the Bruins into a lead they never gave up. Ed Sandford beat netminder Al Rollins for the other Boston marker. Bill Mosienko, Bill Gadsby and Lou Jankowski tallied for the Hawks.

The Hawks were shorthanded when the tying and winning goals were scored.

Saturday, team-captain Ted Kennedy scored the winning goal at 10:03 of the third period in Toronto. Rookie Bob Bailey and leftwinger Sid Smith got the other Toronto goals. Leo Labine and Joe Klukay got the Boston goals.

Canadiens whipped the Red Wings with two goals in the second period at Montreal. Defenceman Doug Harvey and leftwinger Bert Olmstead rammed the goals past Terry Sawchuk.

One game is scheduled for tonight. The Canadiens are at Detroit.

CATS SIGN NFL STAR

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats have signed John R. (Rock) Ryan, No. 2 draft choice of Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

Ryan is an all-American offensive end from the University of Illinois.

Carl Voyles, coach of Hamilton's Big Four entry, said he first got in touch with Ryan at Mobile, Ala., and signed the six-foot, two-inch, 200-pound end at his home town, Tolono, Ill.

Voyles said Ryan is an excellent defensive halfback. He expected Ryan will be called for military service, but not until after the football season.

BROTHERS TAKE TITLE

SASKATOON (CP)—The Campbell brothers of Avonlea won the Saskatchewan curling championship Saturday with a one-point margin from a measured rock, giving them a 10-9 decision over Glenn Richardson of Saskatoon in the final game of a best-of-three series.

It was the same Campbell family that won the Saskatchewan title in 1947 when Sandy Campbell skipped for sons Garnet, Lloyd and Glen. This year, Garnet was skip for brothers Glen, Don and Gordon.

The Campbells will represent Saskatchewan in the Dominion finals in Edmonton starting March 1.

WIN FOUR TITLES

FALUN, Sweden (AP)—Russia made a clean sweep in the final two events of the world's ski championships Sunday when Vladimir Kusin won the 50-kilometre cross country marathon and Lubov Kosyreva won the ladies 10-kilometre race.

For Kusin it was the second world championship in eight days. His time of three hours two minutes and 58 seconds Sunday in the 50-kilometre was a fine follow-up for his victory in the 30-kilometre last Sunday.

Lubov Kosyreva's time was 40 minutes and 15 seconds.

The two Russian victories gave the Soviets four worlds championships in the first world ski meet they ever entered. Such a record astonished Swedish ski experts.

Finland won three world titles and Norway one.

RUSS SWEEP SKATING

OSTERSUND, Sweden (CP) — Russian skaters took the first five places Sunday in the 1,000-metre event of the women's world speed skating championships here.

World champion is Sofia Kondakova who was clocked in 1:40.2. Mrs. Pat Underhill of Edmonton, only entry from abroad, placed 17th in 1:54.4.

Woolworth Poor Salesman When He Opened 1st Store

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Seventy-five years ago today, February 22, a lean, blue-eyed young man not long off a farm borrowed $350 and opened a store in Utica, N.Y.

With the help of two clerks, he laid out on cambric-covered plank counters a variety of threads, buttons, needles, yarn, small fire shovels and trinkets priced at five cents each. At 6 p.m. an unidentified woman paused outside and looked up at the freshly - painted sign which read "Great 5c Store." Then she went in, selected a small fire shovel and paid for it in the fractional paper currency of the day.

Thus did Frank Winfield Woolworth open his first store. Thus, too, he began the cultivation of an idea that would harvest him a fortune, grow into the present chain of about 2,000 stores bearing his name, revolutionize retail merchandising and — incidentally — introduced a new phrase into the language.

"The five-and-dime . . . the 10-cent store." It's doubtful if you can find a child who hasn't wandered wide-eyed through its corridors, buying with hard-won nickels and dimes the toys, candies, crayons, tablets and trinkets that furnish a kid's kingdom. To his elders the five-and-dime means the place which specializes in the little things. It means cash and carry.

Woolworth was born April 13, 1852, in a cottage in Jefferson county, N.Y., the son of a poor farmer. He died April 8, 1919, in the baroque splendor of his mansion at Glen Cove, Long Island.

He got a job in a Watertown, N.Y., store at the age of 21, working 84 hours a week for three months as janitor and relief clerk —for nothing. Forty years later President Woodrow Wilson pressed a button in the White House, thereby lighting the world's tallest building which Woolworth had built in New York with $13,500,000 of his own money. The building was called Woolworth—naturally.

POOR SALESMAN

He was such a poor salesman personally that his first employer was not especially sorry to see him leave. Yet when he died his organization of 1,081 stores had annual sales of $119,000,000.

When Woolworth opened his store in Utica in 1879 it was the age of the peddlers—salesmen who travelled by wagon with a line of "notions." Woolworth's new merchandising idea was one of the chief causes of their demise. When he opened his first store, the merchants in the larger towns did not display their wares; clerks stood at attention before drawers of goods and customers had to ask for what they wanted. Woolworth put his goods on the counter for the customers to see. The old merchants extended credit. Woolworth demanded cash.

His first venture in Utica was a failure. The location was poor, Woolworth decided, and he closed its doors on June 14. Meanwhile, he had picked a new location in Lancaster, Pa. Four weeks later he opened another store in Harrisburg.

In the 30 years from 1879 to 1909 the golden diamond and cherry and carmine colors which symbolize the F. W. Woolworth Co., spread from two to 238 stores. In 1909, Woolworth, weighing 237 pounds and his moustache streaked with white, made one of his frequent trips abroad and in England launched F. W. Woolworth, Ltd.

Two years previously one of his daughters, Edna, had married a young stockbroker named Franklyn Laws Hutton. Nov. 14, 1912, a daughter was born to them. Her name: Barbara. Her mother died when she was four and when Barbara Hutton came of age she inherited $40,000,000. She now is married to her fifth husband, Dominican diplomat Porfirio Rubirosa.

BLUE CHIP

The year Barbara Hutton was born also was the year when F. W. Woolworth common stock first was listed on the New York stock exchange. Today it's a blue chip stock with about 90,000 harehold ers. Last year F. W. Woolworth sales in the United States, Canada and Cuba alone were more than $713,000,000.

In Woolworth's time the chain did not advertise in newspapers but recently it has begun to do so.

When Woolworth died in 1919 the New York Sun said in an editorial: "He won a fortune, not in showing how little could be sold for much, but how much could be sold for little."

Steelworkers Request Action On Employment

OSHAWA (CP)—The eastern Ontario area council of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) has decided to ask the federal and provincial governments to take immediate action to assure Canadians of full employment.

Michael Fenwick, Oshawa district representative, said Sunday unemployment in the steel industry is growing and many plants are operating on a reduced work week.

The delegates, representing 26 locals, were told 3,500 persons are unemployed in the Oshawa district and 10 per cent of the population of Renfrew also is out of work.

Walked 20 Miles To Check Pipeline, 30 Below Zero

CALGARY (CP)—Joseph Masson of Calgary is perhaps the coldest man in Alberta.

Mason, 26, is a line-walker for a natural gas company. He walks at least 10 miles a day. His job is to track every foot of gas line between Calgary and Stavely, about 85 miles south, to detect leaks or breaks. One complete circuit of the pipe network takes him about 200 miles.

Regardless of weather, walking has been found the only efficient method to maintain the check. The line passes through rolling prairie, and innumerable fences of farms and ranches prevent the use of a jeep or a horse.

It takes Masson about one month to inspect all the lines, and when the circuit is completed, he starts all over again.

DEEP FREEZE

During the "deep freeze" in Alberta in January, Masson walked 20 miles along the line from Nanton to High River, and the next day trudged another 10 miles to Okotoks. Temperature was about 30 below zero.

The steady flow of natural gas into Calgary may depend on Masson's daily strolls. Some of the pipe he checks was laid as early as 1911, and with increasing pressure of gas from the fields, weak points in the line are liable to rupture.

His main tool is a good sense of smell. Once gas escapes from a pipe it is quickly forced to the surface by the tremendous pressure in the line, and the strong odor of gas lingers in the area of the leak.

Masson likes his job, whether winter or summer. "I was born and raised in Saskatchewan," he says, "and I guess I've kind of grown used to cold weather."

CABINS ON TRAIL

Although the task is cold and sometimes lonely, it is not a dangerous one. The gas company has established cabins at intervals along its line, and these are outfitted with stoves, cooking utensils and telephones for the line-walker's use.

Masson has to phone in periodically to report on his progress and location. If he ever misses a phone check, a search party is immediately organized.

In southern Alberta two men are employed as line - walkers. One walks the southernmost half of the system while Masson is responsible for the northern part. About 400 miles of pipe are covered by the two men.

Some line-walkers have used skis to travel in winter, and others have done a little hunting along the way to break the monotony. But Masson is satisfied to trek along on his snowshoes.

Wet Pavement Causes Car To Flip In Ditch

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS) — Only one minor accident was reported to the Campbellford OPP detachment over the weekend.

On Saturday evening, a car driven by Forrest W. Credecott, 20, of Havelock was travelling west on Highway 7 about two miles east of Havelock. The driver made a turn and come up behind a slower moving vehicle. He applied his brakes, but the pavement was wet. One front wheel grabbed and the car flipped around and came to rest in the south ditch, with the left side damaged to the extent of about $100. There were no injuries.

Opp Constable Archie Eady of Campbellford investigated.

A "WRECKED" 10-TON MACK TRUCK is pulled through a small bush and out of a swamp on the old rifle range (above) as the 28th Technical Squadron held recovery manoeuvres Sunday. As the climax to a six-week course the squadron was tested Sunday when two 10-ton trucks were dumped into a gravel pit and a bog east of the city. The reserve army soldiers had to find the trucks, pull them out and return them to the armouries. The scheme plan is inspected by Lt. John Sullivan, officer in charge RCEME team, central command, Major E. J. Harvey, area electrical-mechanical engineer, Capt. Thomas Duffield, officer commanding the squadron, and WO1 F. H. Leach, course instructor. —(Examiner Staff Photos)

Group Work Cut $4,200 Out Of Cost Of House

More generous financing encouragement to co-operative housing groups was suggested to the banking and commerce committee of the House of Commons by R. S. Staples of Ottawa, president of the Co-Operative Union of Canada, Thursday.

Rev. F. A. Marrocco, formerly of Peterborough, told the committee the story of the 34 civil servants who expect to have completed by June the houses which they are building by joint effort. Estimated value of the houses averages $10,300 but the cost to the owner is reduced to around $6,300 by the group work that is done.

A contractor is engaged to supervise the whole project and some subcontracting is let for plumbing and part of the carpentry detail.

ASK LOW INTEREST

Mr. Staples proposed that co-operative groups should be afforded the same low interest long-term financing as that which is provided under the housing act to limited dividend companies.

Families with incomes as low as $2,450 can participate in the housing scheme that is under way five miles north of Ottawa and still meet the Central Mortgage and Housing rule that carrying charges on a house must not exceed 23 per cent of the owner's income. This would be about $47 a month.

Group members obligate themselves to contribute 25 hours of work each week. Acquisition of land and the construction was financed out of their savings until the first joists went up. Then Central Mortgage moved in with progress payments.

It is understood that one of these groups was being organized in Peterborough last fall engaging in a study period that brings out all the information required, and also enlists a strong spirit of co-operation.

Two 10-Ton Army Trucks Are Recovered From Bog

Mired in mud, loose gravel, water, ice and snow, two 10-ton army trucks were recovered from the rugged terrain near the old rifle range, east of the city, Sunday by the 28th technical squadron. The "wrecked" trucks then were towed into the city. These two recoveries were all part of the finale of a six weeks course, conducted by an instructional and administrative cadre from the army's central command, for the squadron.

FIRST IN ONTARIO

This is the first time in Ontario that such a course, on the recovery of "wrecked" or "ditched" vehicles, has been given a reserve force unit. The inspecting officers were pleased with the excellent results.

The squadron was given two locations early Sunday morning where army trucks, property of the 50th HAA regiment, were supposedly wrecked. These locations were spotted on a map and the reserve engineers had to find them, pull the trucks out and bring them back to the armouries.

When one team arrived at its destination, a half-mile north of Highway 7, five miles east of the city, they found a 10 - ton "wrecked" Mack nose-down in a large gravel pit.

They were faced with pulling the heavy truck up the 40-foot steep slope, using pulleys, winches and yards of thick wire. At the same time they must remember the truck had a bent front axle, broken tie rods, front wheels and wings.

After an hour-and-a-quarter the team had gradually brought the Mack to ground level. Then, working in cramped spaces, they eventually suspended the Mack on the tow truck and reported back to the armouries.

Meanwhile on the old rifle range a second team was also having its difficulties. After travelling down a small icy country road, through several swollen creeks and finally through a muddy field, they found their truck had rolled down a steeper slope through a small bush and was resting mired in a bog.

Under the eye of Major E. J. Harvey, area electrical-mechanical engineer, and Lt. John K. Sullivan, officer in charge of RCEME, central command I and A cadre, the team raised the 10-ton truck in two hours.

Course instructor WO1 F. H. Leach reported the scheme as "very well, full of enthusiasm."

ASSIZES CONTINUE

Rail Bill Passes

The bill in the House of Commons to permit building a railway spur line from Havelock to Nephton passed in committee early today and comes up for a third and final reading on Friday. Completion of the railway line will be a major step toward expanding production of nepheline syenite by the American Nepheline Ltd.

Butter Escaped Loblaw Blaze Thieves Busy

Besides bringing lots of water and slush, the melting snow is also bring out rather bad traits in some people. As the ice recedes from around the twisted framework of the Loblaw block, police have had a full-time job to keep human scavengers at bay.

Already detectives have in their office a vast collection of small goods taken from a galaxy of small boys and adults who have been digging in the burnt-out remains of the three stores.

In the cellar at Loblaws there are many boxes of butter that somehow escaped the blaze. Sunday, police relieved a man of several pounds that he had taken. People have ripped open cases to get at the butter.

DISCOVER TIRES

Searchers also discovered a quantity of second-hand tires in the debris at Western Tire and Auto. It is likely that many have disappeared in spite of police viligance.

Small boys have taken a fancy to many types of bicycle accessories which are to be found in the ruins.

So far police have dismissed the petty thieves with warnings, but it is probable that persons may be charged if this nuisance continues.

Canada's Gossip Columnist Started Reporting In City

A former Peterborough resident and Examiner reporter is the subject of a picture-story profile in this week's issue of Time newsmagazine.

He is Gerald (Fitz) Fitzgerald, 41-year-old author of the daily "On and Off the Record" column in the Montreal Gazette. He recently celebrated the fifth anniversary of his column, the most widely read daily feature in a Montreal newspaper.

Mr. Fitzgerald is reputed to be Canada's only gossip columnist. His beats include the story that Fred Rose, convicted in the spy-ring case, had gone behind the Iron Curtain; and the prediction that Vincent Massey would become Governor-General of Canada.

In the main, however, his column is on less substantial matters; rumors and doings about Montreal that wouldn't merit a straight news story.

"I think of my column as the newspaper successor to the rural party-line telephone, where everybody listened in," he says.

Mr. Fitzgerald was born and raised in Peterborough, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Fitzgerald. The family used to live in a large brick house on Parkhill road, just west of Benson Ave. His wife is a member of the Cahill family.

3 Hit-And-Run Cases Reported

It would appear that Magistrate W. R. Philp's warning that he would "get tough" with hit-and-run drivers has gone unheeded. In any event three more hit and run cases were reported to city police over the weekend.

Louis Ronco, a taxi-driver for Allied Cabs was driving south on Monaghan Rd. when he was sideswiped by a car proceeding north. He told police that the car failed to stop, and left him nursing a bruised fender.

Keith Minaker, a truck-driver for Miller Auto Parts, was parked briefly outside 494 Park St. calling on a house in the neighbourhood when he heard a "loud crash." When he got outside he found $45 damege caused to his car by a hit-and-run driver.

Leonard Vyse, 172½ Hunter St., told police that he was parked at a parking meter on Hunter St. Saturday beside a truck. When he returned to his car he found the truck had gone and the car scraped. The owner of the truck is questioning his drivers to see if one of his men was responsible for the accident.

Seek To Make Brotherhood Man Reality

Brotherhood Week Now Comes Under Official Sponsorship

This is Brotherhood Week.

Sponsored by the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, Brotherhood Week is designed to foster greater understanding between all races and religions.

Brotherhood Week is a world-wide movement and, in the words of Peterborough's co-chairman, Fred Overend, a movement "to which practically all Canada's leading citizens belong."

Both labor and industry benefit from Brotherhood Week, said Mr. Overend, because its purpose "is to promote the best of relationships between all classes and groups."

"We're trying to make the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man a reality," said W. L. Graff, secretary-treasurer of the local organization. He said that the stability of the world depends on greater tolerance and understanding and that the purpose of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews is to break down non-existent barriers.

THREE CO-CHAIRMEN

Brotherhood Week is being organized here by three co-chairmen, Isidore Black, William J. Hamilton and Mr. Overend. Mr. Graff got Brotherhood Week under way this noon with an address to the Peterborough Rotary Club.

A start was made on Brotherhood Week in Peterborough several years ago, and it has since been sponsored by unofficial groups of citizens. This year the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews becomes officially organized on charter night, March 3.

Guest speaker at the charter night banquet to be held in the Kawartha Room of the Empress hotel is the Hon. George Drew. This, says Mr. Overend, will be a "momentous occasion" for not only will there be an "exceptionally good speaker" but Brotherhood Week will henceforth have official sponsorship here.

Nationally, Brotherhood Week is sponsored by the Canada-wide branch of the council with headquarters in Ottawa. Honorary chairman is Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

Committee Named To Form Plans Memorial Centre

Donald A. McGillis Elected Chairman As Citizens Crowd City Hall Room To Hear Plans of Centre Discussed

Don McGillis was named general chairman of the reorganized Peterborough Memorial Community Centre general committee at a stormy public meeting in city hall Saturday afternoon. Robert Hamilton, assistant manager of the chamber of commerce, was named secretary. Purpose of the new committee is to lend effective support to the private bill, due to be presented to the Ontario legislature this session allowing the city to have land in Morrow park for the centre.

The new committee, presently composed of 45 members, will break itself down into a smaller group and will name a building committee to get the centre built as soon as possible.

Nearly 200 citizens were on hand with ideas to make the community centre a reality. Until Mr. McGillis was named chairman Mayor Norman Graham was in the chair. Mr. Graham said, "I do hope that this time we will go through with our plans."

Plans for the centre, according to Frank Buckland, a member of the original building committee, call for a rink seating 4,500 persons. The idea is that some seats will be removable in order to provide a stage.

Cash on hand to start the centre is approximately $244,000. Ratepayers also approved of $75,000 debenture sale.

BUILD AFTER EXHIBITION

Several citizens felt the sooner the centre is built the better, but as chairman Don McGillis pointed out, this may be difficult. He felt it unlikely anything could be done until after the Exhibition, because work might interfere with Conklin Canadian Shows at the exhibition in August. Building a centre where the midway will be might constitute a breach of contract, although the Conklin contract is for only one year.

The question of where the rest of the money is coming from, assuming the private bill will be passed was discussed at length. Some wanted to launch an intensive fund-raising campaign, while others echoed the view of Bud LaBranche that "if we have a campaign before we have definite building plans, we won't raise a plugged nickel."

Not the least of the difficulties Saturday was the question of what a community centre is or should be. Wilf Langan, of the recreation commission, was dubious about plans for an arena, saying "it is completely ridiculous" to have an arena and theatre combined. He felt that if the centre were to be used for cultural events, and it is expected that it will be, people would rattle around like peas in the auditorium.

Mr. Langan also suggested that some who donated money to the community centre didn't really know what they were giving their money to, and that they should be given an opportunity to earmark their funds for cultural or for sports purposes.

At this point, Jack Russelle declared: "This fellow is all wet." He said that the community centre would gradually evolve to include a small theatre among other things. "We must, however, build the theatre around the arena, not the other way around."

Mayor Graham pointed out that even with the present plans, the first unit of the community centre "isn't just a rink." He said that the building would be used for all purposes, including agricultural ones.

City clerk E. A. Outram pointed out that there has to be some provision for having the building used for agricultural purposes, if the centre is to get federal and provincial grants. Tentative plans are to have an entrance from the inside of the exhibition grounds during exhibition week, so that the building can be used by the exhibition board as a show-ring or for whatever purposes required.

Mr. Outram stressed, however, that the building, if built in Morrow park, will not be the property of the exhibition board or the Morrow Trust. Purpose of the private bill is to ensure that the city of Peterborough will own non-taxable property in the park on which the centre will be constructed.

"Don't we need some sort of policy before our next meeting?" (February 27) asked Edward Humphrey, vice-president of the Peterborough and district labor council. Frank Buckland answered that policy divides into three parts, thus:

"Now we have a general committee. You people will form a building committee, which will lay plans for actual construction and the general committee will cease to be. Then, when the building is finished, a board of trustees will be set up to manage the centre."

There were some suggestions that this still did not answer the question of when the centre will be built, what it will ultimately contain, where the money is coming from and who will make the ultimate decisions.

Best plan for getting things under way expeditiously, said Charles Ray, is for the city, with the vote of the people, to float a debenture issue. There was considerable applause for this suggestion, but it was pointed out that the city could not very well sell debentures until the building is actually ready to be built. But, said Mayor Graham, "if we all work together, the money will come."

Five women were named to the 45-man general committee, citizen of the year Mrs. Pansy Forbes, Mrs. James McClenaghan from the local council of women, Miss Margaret White, Mrs. Weldon Fanning and Mrs. T. J. Carley.

On the motion of Mrs. Fanning, the group passed a vote of appreciation to the previous committee led by Clarence B. Neal and Joseph Jebson.

There was no election for the post of general chairman. Former mayor M. H. Swanston and Donald Loucks were both nominated, but they did not choose to run. The position thus went to Mr. McGillis by acclamation.

Manitoba Boy Receives Award Posthumously

OTTAWA (CP)—A Scots lord and a 14-year-old Manitoba youth who died rescuing his sisters from a fire share honors today in a new list of Boy Scout awards.

Governor-General Vincent Massey, in his capacity as chief scout for Canada, announced the awards by the Boy Scouts Association of Canada on this anniversary of the birthday of Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scouts movement.

Lord Rowallan, county commissioner of scouting at Kilmarnock, Ayrshire, Scotland, is the first recipient of the silver fox award, recently set up by the Boy Scouts Association for "services of exceptional character to scouting" by non-residents of Canada.

Lord Rowallan's place of honor on the list is shared by Ernest Villeneuve, 14-year-old member of the 3rd Scout Troop at The Pas, Man. The youth was awarded the bronze cross posthumously "for gallantry with special heroism." He died after rescuing his sisters from their burning home.

WORKED FOR SCOUTS

The citation for Lord Rowallan said he was first appointed district commissioner of scouting for north east Ayrshire in 1922 and three years later became county commissioner. It said he has since travelled "upwards of 200,000 miles in the interests of scouting, despite the handicap of a leg severely damaged by a shell in 1917 which at times caused intense pain."

The silver acorn "for distinguished service" was awarded to Lt.-Col. H. J. Heasley of Waterloo, Ont., and formerly of Montreal, and to Arthur M. Ward, assistant district commissioner of scouting in Ottawa.

Two scouts were awarded the silver cross "for gallantry with considerable risk." They were Peter Smith of the 10th Scouting Troop in Toronto "for his presence of mind" in rescuing a boy from Georgian bay, near Meaford, Ont., and Alastair Watson of the 1st troop in Three Rivers, Que., for rescuing a woman and her son from the St. Maurice river.

Name Dr. Harry Sheffer Laboratory Superintendent

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Harry Sheffer, 37, formerly of Toronto, has been named superintendent of the defence research chemical laboratories at nearby Shirley Bay.

The Defence Research Board announced the appointment of Dr. Sheffer, who has been senior scientific staff officer at DRB headquarters for the last 18 months, today.

Dr. Sheffer has been responsible for co-ordinating DRB's scientific research in the defensive aspects of the special weapons field, which includes atomic, biological and chemical warfare. He succeeds Dr. John C. Arnell, 36, formerly of Halifax. Dr. Arnell, who was appointed superintendent in 1950, will take over Dr. Sheffer's duties at DRB headquarters.

Organized in the late 1930s by the Canadian Army with the assistance of the National Research Council, the chemical laboratories became a DRB establishment in 1947.

Their first objectives were the development of chemical warfare equipment and improvements to anti-gas measures, but their post-war accomplishments include the development of nylon pile fabric for use in making cold-weather clothing and a carbon monoxide detector that interests mine operators as well as the military.

Both Dr. Sheffer and Dr. Arnell have published scientific papers on physical chemical research and both are fellows of the Chemical Institute of Canada and members of the American Chemical Society.

Seek Ex-Convict In Slaying Of Guelph Nurse

NEW YORK (AP) — Detectives concentrated on the Miami, Fla., area today in their search for Anthony Kacinski, 54-year-old ex-convict, who is wanted in connection with the slaying of Canadian-born nurse.

The body of Norma Rennie, 49, formerly of Guelph, Ont., was found by a chambermaid Saturday in her west-side hotel room. The woman, who wore only a lacy brassiere, apparently had been dead for two days. A "Don't Disturb" sign on the door had kept hotel employees from entering.

Police said Kacinski had occupied a room next to Miss Rennie's, and was known to have had dates with her.

The nurse was stabbed in the head and chest. A blood-stained kitchen knife was found in the bathroom.

"CRIME OF PASSION"

Deputy chief inspector James B. Leggett said the slaying looked "very much like a crime of passion."

On a table was a dinner sent from a restaurant, it was untouched except for two coffee containers which were empty.

Miss Rennie had lived at the hotel since October.

Police officials assigned more than 60 detectives to the case, including two who were in Florida on other business. An inter-state alarm for Kacinski was dispatched from here late Saturday night. The search for Kacinski was concentrated on the Miami area after police learned that he had told employees of a restaurant where he ate frequently that he was going to Miami to open his own restaurant.

Detectives also paid attention to Lexington, Mass., Kacinski's home town, and to Providence, R. I., where he has relatives.

ARRESTED MANY TIMES

New York police said Providence police supplied details on Kacinski, said to have a 23-year criminal record, which were reported to include these items:

Most of his arrests have been on larceny charges, in Boston, Providence and New York City. He received a three-month sentence in Boston in December, 1937, for assault, battery and robbery.

Kacinski's latest trouble was last Jan. 30 when he was fined in Providence for giving a wrong name to police. Providence police said he has used the aliases James Mason, James Hardy, James Doyle and Anthony Paul.

MOTHER GOES TO N.Y.

Miss Rennie's mother, Mrs. B. S. Rennie, left Guelph Sunday night for New York to claim the nurse's body.

Mrs. Rennie told reporters at Guelph that she had returned home two weeks ago after spending two months in New York with her daughter.

"I came home because Norma was thinking of going to Florida," Mrs. Rennie said. "She was thinking of marrying a Polish man in the fall."

She said she did not meet the man and did not know his name.

Norma Rennie was born at Palmerston, Ont., and educated at Guelph Collegiate. She was graduated as a nurse from New York's Roosevelt training school in 1927. Her father is a retired railroad engineer.

McCarthy, Army Secretary Meet Face To Face On TV

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army secretary Robert Stevens and Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.), fresh from a running clash over McCarthy's interrogation of army officers, meet face to face on the issue Tuesday before a country-wide audience.

Turned down twice in two days on demands on the army, McCarthy has summoned its civilian head to appear before his Senate investigations sub-committee here Tuesday.

He said Stevens would be asked to explain what the senator termed an attempt by the army "to coddle and promote Communists."

Stevens said he received no official notification, but would be glad to appear. That was after he had ordered two generals not to comply with calls for their appearance before McCarthy's sub-committee.

Objecting to the humiliation he said was inflicted on one of them at a hearing by McCarthy last week, Stevens said, "I cannot permit the loyal officers of our armed forces to be subjected to such unwarranted treatment."

"UNFAIR ATTACKS"

The secretary, who himself served as an army officer in both world wars, said he was afraid the "prestige and morale" of the military would be weakened by "unfair attacks on our officer corps."

Friday the army let pass a deadline McCarthy had set for it to produce the names of all personnel connected with the promotion and honorable discharge of a reserve officer who had declined to say whether he was ever a Communist. The information has not yet been given the senator.

McCarthy said in New York Sunday that the reserve major involved, Dr. Irving Peress, a dentist, was "commissioned, promoted, saved from overseas orders and awarded an honorable discharge, all despite an open record of active membership in the Communist conspiracy."

In his investigation of the Peress case, McCarthy last week summoned to a closed hearing in New York Brig.-Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, commanding officer of camp Kilmer, N.J., where Peress was stationed.

Later, McCarthy, who conducted the hearing without any of his sub-committee colleagues, said the general had acknowledged knowing about the sub-committee's purported evidence against Peress. But Zwicker told reporters McCarthy "gave a colored and slanted version of my testimony, twisting everything he could."

McCarthy subsequently called Zwicker and Maj.-Gen. William Bergin, army adjutant general, to a hearing.

Then Stevens stepped in, forbidding their appearance and charging that Zwicker "suffered humiliating treatment" when he carried out the orders of his superiors.

McCarthy said in New York, "Stevens is a loyal man, but apparently is being made a dupe by holdovers from the previous administration."

Supersonic Fighters For RAF

By PATRICK GREGORY

LONDON — (Special) — The Supermarine Swift, the first British swept-wing, supersonic fighter to be ordered for the Royal Air Force, is due to go into squadron service with Fighter Command almost immediately. Evaluation trials on the aircraft by RAF test pilots are now practically completed and its final acceptance, after a rigouous and searching programme of test flying, is unlikely to be long delayed.

Deliveries here, it is true, been held up slightly because of minor teething troubles which are inevitable in any new, ultra high-speed machine, and a fatal accident during acceptance trials on the prototype caused some further delay.

The chief designer, J. Smith, has pointed out, however, that the Swift has encountered no more technical trouble than was to be expected with an aircraft of its type, and the aircraft should be in service with the RAF well within the 12 months period that was promised by Lord De L'Isle and Dudley, V.C., the air minister, when he introduced the air estimates for the current financial year last spring.

To cover the defence gap until Swifts become available in quantity, an "umbrella" of supersonic Sabres has been supplied to the RAF and placed almost entirely in "front line" service with squadrons of the Second Tactical Air Force based in Germany. This move has been a striking example of the commond unity of purpose among nations of the English-speaking world in matters of mutual defence. Designed in America, and built under licence in Canada, approximately 400 Sabres have been ferried by RAF pilots across the North Atlantic to England and finally despatched to squadrons working in close liaison with neighbouring NATO air force on the Continent of Europe.

This has always been recognized as a temporary measure, and now the imminent formation of the first Swift-equipped squadrons marks an important step in the post-war development of Britain's air defences. It heralds the transition of Fighter Command into a supersonic force.

Language Strike Held

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP)—A general strike was in effect Sunday in memory of those who died in the 1952 "language riots". "Martyrs' Day" is observed Feb. 21, the date when several demonstrators who demanded the inclusion of Benghali as a Pakistan state language died when police opened fire. A big public meeting, followed by a procession, was held to reiterate the demand for inclusion of Banghali.

Art Director Claims He's Misquoted

WINNIPEG (CP)—Dr. Ferdinand Eckhardt, Winnipeg art gallery director, says reports on his criticism of the gallery's permanent collection did not give an entirely correct picture of his views.

Dr. Eckhardt had been quoted in an interview as saying the permanent collection contains "nothing really worthwhile," includes "a great deal of phony art," and that private citizens who have contributed works to the gallery have been "imposed upon" by dealers.

Dr. Eckhardt, who came to Winnipeg from Vienna last fall, said he did not even know the meaning of the word phony and that he would substitute the following: "Many of the local gallery's most expensive paintings are copies or not by important masters."

Instead of "nothing really worthwhile," in the permanent collection he meant "not much which is really worthwhile."

He also denied saying that dealers have imposed upon collectors here. Dealers were "very careful individuals" who would not claim that a painting was something it wasn't.

What Norway Needs

OSLO (Reuters) — Dr. Reidar Eker, director of the radium hospital, Oslo, which specializes in cancer treatment, says people who smoke should use cigars. "Nothing has been discovered to relate cancer to cigar-smoking," he says. The specialist recommended that Norwegian tobacco firms—with the help of a government tax cut — should try to produce a cheap "people's cigar" costing about five cents. Cigars at present cost almost 20 cents.

Indian Scouts Leading Defence Forces

By BOB JOYCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SEPT ILES, Que. (CP)—Indian Ranger scouts today led Canadian defence forces into action against theoretical invaders in the vital Sept Iles area as exercise Loup Garou entered its fourth day.

The scouts pointed the way to paratroop forces striving to knock out a tightly-moulded invading force represented by the first battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment from London, Ont.

They are the remnants of a local Canadian Rangers outfit made up of Indians, woodsmen and trappers who now are emerging as the heroes of this fast-paced arctic exercise.

For days before the paratroopers hurtled into the Sept Iles salient to box in the northern attacking force, Rangers scoured the ground, dodging the invaders but closely watching their movements as they set up defence positions along the fringes of Sept Iles airport.

AIRPORT CAPTURED

Only lack of radio facilities prevented the Rangers from channeling information to the defending air and ground forces building up strength at the huge Goose Bay airbase in Labrador. The invaders took over the airport Thursday afternoon with resistance as the Rangers, a civilian commando outfit, faded into the surrounding woods as they had been told to do if the enemy struck at this strategic iron-ore port and railhead.

They bided their time. Sunday they struck only a few hours before the battle-hardened Royal 22nd Regiment and supporting arms were parachuted into the area in a surprise attack.

The Rangers knocked out one of the enemy's two medium machine-gun posts, shot up a light machine-gun outfit and captured a mortar position "with the loss of only one man."

Early Sunday, as the C-119 flying boxcars of the counter-attacking force followed in the bombers to drop their load of men and equipment by parachute, the Rangers emerged from their bush hideouts, donned red identification arm-bands and linked up with the airborne troops.

The counter-attackers struck in three waves, the first shortly after 8:30 a.m. AST., bringing in the initial drop of men and equipment, the second-called a re-supply, sending additional ammunition, food, sleds and other arctic equipment floating earthwards, and the third, laid down at 1:40 p.m., placing battalion commander Lt.-Col. Trudeau and his headquarters alongside the rest of the airborne assault force.

ENEMY CONCEALED

With weather closing in and rain threatening, the assault commander decided to push on and harass the invaders. But although the alien forces "killed" seven of his men in the first few minutes after the initial drop, the enemy withdrew to concealed positions which the airborne troops failed to find.

During the night Col. Trudeau sent out probing patrols aided by Indian rangers. The rest of the local force was "wiped out" when they ran into an enemy ambush while on patrol. Night operations were restricted by the Indians' inability to read maps.

At dawn, the airborne troops prepared to sound out enemy defences between them and their objective—the airfield three miles to the south on the town borders.

The drop Sunday nearly ended in disaster when the first "stick" of paratroopers was jettisoned above timber and floated into tree-tops on the fringe of the landing area.

Despite use of an RCAF drop computer being tested for the first time under simulated wartime conditions, 10 of the assaulters fell short of the drop area.

Fights Weakness Babe Wins Serbin Tourney

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Babe Zaharias had a "knocking headache" and her muscles were weak from exhaustion, but she was happy.

She was trodding slowly away from the 18th green at the Bayshore golf course Sunday and her spirit was high in spite of the nagging ache in her bones. She had just won a golf tournament—the $5,000 Serbin women's invitational.

Over the years, the Babe had won many tournaments, including all of the world's important championships, but this was the big one.

It was the victory she needed to know that she could come back after conquering the toughest enemy of her fabulous sports career—cancer.

"I guess I'll have to call this the biggest thrill of my life," the Babe said. "I didn't think I would ever win another one."

Tied for first with Patty Berg at the start of the fourth and last 18-hole round, the Babe whipped the tough Chicago veteran by one stroke in a thrilling battle down the home stretch.

They fought on even terms for 13 holes. Then the Babe jumped into the lead with two straight birdies and hung on against growing weariness. She was two under women's par for the 72-hole grind with 294.

It was her first tournament triumph since the cancer operation 10 months ago.

As she walked off the last green the Babe was asked about rumors that she would give up golf.

"You know I can't quit," she said. "When I was lying back there in that hospital bed, thousands of people wrote me letters asking me if I felt I could ever come back.

"I want those people to know that I am back and I am going to play better than ever. I had to win one to know for sure that I could do it. Now I know."

'Caygeon Rink Wins

LINDSAY (ENS)—The second last one-day bonspiel of the year at the Lindsay Curling Club, the Central Ontario Credit Exchange event, was held on Saturday with 24 entries representing Peterborough, Unionville, Janetville, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, Beaverton and Sunderland rinks.

The winner in three-win class was Tom Martin, of Bobcaygeon, with a score of 33 plus 6. Second, with a count of 33 plus 5, was Dick Butler's rink, from the Lindsay club. Third was Tom Dutton, of Peterborough. Charlie Millage, of Lindsay, was fourth with two wins, and high in the one-win class was Wallace Thurston, of Bobcaygeon.

Today 64 mixed rinks from centres all across the province will begin the five-day Gruen-Arden spiel, one of the largest mixed curling events held in Canada. The entry list for the event was filled almost two months ago, according to chairman Lou Walker.

ANOTHER STEP TOWARDS THE MEMORIAL CENTRE was taken Saturday when a general committee was nominated to replace the old committee. Peterborough citizens filled the board room at the city hall to capacity (top left, right, lower right) to hear plans for the centre, its financial basis, and the private bill which will be introduced soon in the provincial legislature. D. A. McGillis (centre, lower left), who was elected chairman of the new committee, chats about future plans with Frank Buckland (left) and Ray Tanner (right). —(Examiner Staff Photos).

Four Imports Continues ORFU Limit

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Rugby Football Union will continue its league limit of four United States imports for each team, it was decided at the union's annual meeting Saturday.

The champion Toronto Balmy Beach club, which suggested a one-man import limit, probably will use only one American, officials said. Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and Sarnia Imperial decided to use the maximum number of imports.

Brantford Redskins, who had financial troubles last season, were admitted to the league conditionally. They must file proof of financial responsibility within 30 days.

Deadline for entries is April 30 when the schedule will be drawn up.

OKAY WIFU PLAN

The meeting approved a suggestion from the Western Interprovincial Football Union that the ORFU winner play the Grey Cup semi-final in western Canada. This was done for the first time last year.

Delegates turned down a suggested rule under which blocking by all halfbacks would be permitted from any point up to 10 yards in advance of the line of scrimmage.

Limitation of signed players to 40 men was approved.

Harold Bailey, Sam Shefsky and Len Taylor were named to a committee to investigate the possibility of increasing league publicity. Taylor suggested appointment of official statisticians by each club and a league statistician to make regular releases on statistical data.

Angry Lyndhusrts Humble Swedish Team By 12-3 Win

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Toronto Lyndhursts, angered by a referee's call that sent them off the ice in protest in the first period, Sunday returned to hand a 12-3 trouncing to the same Swedish B team that defeated them 3-2 Friday.

The Lyndhursts, Canada's representatives in the world hockey championships which begin here Friday, attracted 2,800 customers as they sought to vindicate themselves after a blast of unfavorable newspaper comment following their defeat.

The team left the rink when centre Red Spragge and defenceman Doug Chapman were penalized 10 seconds apart for charging at the eight-minute mark of the first period. The Lyndhursts claimed the puck was dead, automatically halting play, as soon as the whistle was blown for Chapman's penalty.

The teams were tied 1-1 when the argument occurred with Sweden taking the lead 10 seconds after the opening whistle and defenceman Russ Robertson evening the count on a long shot a minute later.

Taking the ice after a 15-minute conference between the team captains, the Swedes took the lead again, but three quick goals by Vic Sluce, Bob Kennedy and John Petro put the Canadians ahead by the end of the first period.

The Lyndhursts made a runaway of the game in the last two periods, right-winger Moe Galand ramming home five goals, and Sluce adding two more. Spragge and John Scott got the others. The Swedes countered with a single tally late in the second frame.

After the first game, the Liberal paper Aftonbladet said "we will understand the feeling of the Russian national team, who smiled widely and eloquently as they watched . . . the poor performance put up by their forthcoming competitors."

40 Schoolboys Begin Race

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP)—Forty schoolboy curlers prepared today to start the 1954 Canadian school curling championship competition at the Thistle Curling Club.

Each of the 10 rinks, representing nine provinces, hoped to win the Canadian school curling title and the Sifton Trophy held at present by Oshawa Collegiate and Vocational Institute.

Two draws were scheduled for today, the first at 3 p.m. and the other at 8 p.m.

Only two curlers came here with experience gained in last year's bonspiel at Saskatoon. Roger Partridge, 17, skip of the Prince Edward Island rink, was lead stone on the 1953 P.E.I. rink, while his third stone, 16-year-old David Ferguson, was second stone on last year's Charlottetown rink.

29 SUPPORTERS COME

The Alberta rink comes from Milo, a village with a population of 135. But when it arrived here yesterday, 29 supporters including 12 women were on hand.

Alberta's curlers wore buckskin jackets and white cowboy hats.

The first draw: Saskatchewan vs. New Brunswick, Nova Scotia vs. Ontario, northern Ontario vs. British Columbia, Prince Edward Island vs. Manitoba, and Quebec vs. Alberta.

The second draw: Quebec vs. Nova Scotia, British Columbia vs. Alberta, Saskatchewan vs. Prince Edward Island, northern Ontario vs. New Brunswick, and Ontario vs. Manitoba.

Canadian Skier, 15, Captures Gold Medal In Norway Race

OPPDAL, Norway (CP) — Anne Heegtveit of Ottawa, at 15 the youngest skier ever to win the ladies' giant slalom race at the Holmenkollen ski festival here, today is the happy holder of the coveted Holmenkollen gold medal.

Anne Sunday gained her spectacular victory over 36 outstanding women competitors of seven countries, flashing down the 46-gate, 1,300-metre course at tremendous speed to finish in two minutes, 7.5 seconds—three seconds ahead of Borghild Neskin, Norway's best woman skier, whose time was 2:10.5.

Eighteen - year - old Lucille Wheeler, of St. Jovite, Que., was in 12th place at 2:14.

Anne was greeted with a thunderous ovation when she received her medal after the event was over and fellow Canadian skiers swung her to their shoulders for a triumphant march through the crowd. She also received the 13th prize for the women's downhill race and the 14th prize in the regular slalom event.

The young Canadian said she was overjoyed and that "the course was fine." "It wasn't too easy," she added, "but I liked it and my skis were well waxed." She used some Austrian wax, she said.

At home in Ottawa, Anne's father was pleased but not too surprised to learn that his daughter had scored her sensational victory.

"I knew it would come," Halvor Heggtveit said in an interview, "but I didn't know it would come so soon."

SHOWED PROMISE

Heggtveit, who has also been Anne's chief instructor and coach, said she "showed an indication of what she might do" and a promise of successes to come when she won the Canadian junior women's downhill and slalom championships last year.

Anne, who has been skiing since she was two years old, has also won every senior and junior competition in the Ottawa district.

Her next major challenge will be in the alpine world championships at Are, Sweden, later this month. After her outstanding showing here she will likely be a favorite for that meet, and a good bet to swell Canada's pride at the Winter Olympics at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, in 1956.

Harper Takes First Place

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Chandler Harper, the tournament old-timer from Chattanooga, Tenn, shot his third straight eight-under-par 63 Sunday to tie the all-time United States Professional Golfers Association record for 72 holes at 259 and win first money in the $12,500 Texas Open.

Starting the final round five strokes behind Johnny Palmer of Charlotte, N.C., Harper made it up with some to spare with his blazing finish that saw him shoot 31-32. In fact, Harper had nothing except 31 and 32 on each nine after the opening nine of the tournament when he took a 39. He won $2,200.

The 259 bettered the Texas Open record of 260 set by Jack Burke Jr., in 1952, equalled the U.S. PGA record of 259 set by Byron Nelson at Seattle in 1945, and tied by Ben Hogan at Greenbrier Course, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., six years later.

IN SECOND PLACE

Palmer shot a one-under-par 70 to wind up in second place at 261 and to win $1,500. Lionel Hebert of Erie, Pa., had a closing 67 to take third money of $1,170 with 263.

Par 71 took an unmerciful beating throughout the tournament, Rudy Horvath of Windsor, Ont., an early leader with a first-round 61, had to settle for a three-way tie for 23rd place and $110 even though the worst round in his 272 total was an even par the second time around. He shot 70s for the last two rounds.

Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener had 273 on rounds of 65, 66, 71, 71.

Urge Goal Judges Named Like Linesmen

KITCHENER (CP) — The Ontario Arenas Association Sunday urged that goal judges for Ontario Hockey Association games be appointed on the same basis as linesmen.

The resolution said goal judges should be 21 years or older and not directly connected with either participating team.

A second resolution asked the OHA to seek permission from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to allow all Ontario teams to play semi-final and final CAHA playoffs on home ice.

A spokesman said that as long as certain financial requirements are met teams now are sure of the second game on home ice.

ICE WRECKS COTTAGE — Mr. and Mrs. William Darst, of Detroit, ruefully survey the damage to their cottage on Lake St. Clair near Belle River, Ont., from the top of an ice pile in their living room. A strong north wind drove the ice from the lake, piling it as high as 15 feet and smashing the fronts of about 40 lakeside cottages.

Two Cars Meet Head-on, Driver Charged

A charge of driving without due care and attention may be laid against Ronald J. Walsh, 25, of 332 Juliet St., as a result of an accident Saturday. Const. Cec. Bowyer who investigated the accident recommended that the charge be laid.

Walsh was driving south on George St. near McDonnel when he attempted to cut out of the line of traffic and pass the car in front of him. He then came in collision with a car proceeding north on George. This vehicle was driven by Charles Hartnett, 45, of 4 McClennan St.

The two cars met head-on. Damage to the Hartnett vehicle was estimated between $200 and $250. Walsh's car suffered $100 damages.

Damage estimated at $150 was caused to a car at the corner of Charlotte and Reid Sts., while waiting for a green light. A car driven by Herbert Stinson of 755 Donegal St., was facing west on Charlotte at the intersection when another car skidded into the rear end. The second car, driven by James Godfrey, 25, of Millbrook was unable to stop. It suffered minor damages. Constable W. G. Scott investigated.

An unusual accident took place near the corner of Reid and Parkhill road when Mrs. Dorothy Lacey, RR 1, Peterborough, was in collision with a parked truck. Mrs. Lacey, travelling south on Reid, was passing between the truck and another car parked on the other side of the road when she noticed a third car approaching. Seeking to avoid a collision with the oncoming car, she braked, skidded and hit the right side of the truck.

The truck was unoccupied at the time of the accident. Driver was Jerry Moloney, 29, of 148 Park St. Damages to the truck were $25, to Mrs. Lacey's car $140.

Another passing accident took place late Saturday afternoon on Park St. between Perry and Lake. Earl W. Garvey, 36, 691 McKellar was driving south on Park when he was passed and overtaken by a car driven by Ernest E. Youngman of Bethany. The pass was incomplete for the right rear fender of the Youngman car was in collision with the front of the other vehicle. Damage to the Garvey car was $32, to the Youngman car, $25. Constable Menzies investigated.

Canadian Base In England Supply 4 Sabre Jet Wings

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Twelve miles north of Nottingham, England, not far from famed Sherwood forest a small band of Canadian airmen is making Canadian military history.

The "forgotten men" of Canada's 12-squadron air contribution to the NATO forces in Europe, they form the first all-Canadian supply base for Canadian forces in the field.

Some 300 personnel, including 15 airwomen, make up the RCAF's air materiel base at Langar, a former RAF bomber station. They have a job of supplying and servicing four Sabre jet wings in three countries with everything from from clothing and jet engines to cotter pins and 10-ton trucks.

The Canadian air division, which forms the strongest striking unit of the Allied air forces, has nearly 7,000 personnel.

It's the first time a Canadian force in the field has been able to rely on its own logistics—supply and maintenance—and the boss of AMB at Langar, Group Capt. Gerald McCormick of Vankleek Hill, Ont., finds it refreshing.

Group Capt. McCormick, 41, had experience in overseas supply when he set up the station in the summer of 1952. He served overseas with the RCAF from 1943 until the end of the Second World War as director of equipment.

"I was not much more than a glorified liaison officer," Group Capt. McCormick recalled during a recent visit to headquarters. "I had no control over any of the equipment.

Canadian airmen were supplied mainly from RAF stores, allocated to Canadian units as the RAF saw fit.

Similarly, Canadian soldiers and sailors have never operated abroad on their own supply system. The In Korea, the Canadian 25th Brigade has been American-supplied Canada has found it more convenient to use supply services of other countries and pay them for it.

ENTERTAIN AIRMEN—A radio station, operated by station personnel, helps entertain Canadian airmen at the RCAF's air-material base at Langar, England, a former bomber station. FO. F. G. Bolan, whose mother, Mrs. J. F. Bolan, lives at Denholm, Sask., takes his turn as disc jockey. Langar is the first all-Canadian supply base for Canadian forces in the field associated with Canada's 12-squadron air contribution to the NATO forces in Europe.
—(CP from National Defence).

Langar supplies everything from food to the Sabre squadrons at North Luffenham, England, Grostenquin, France, and Zweibrucket and Soellingen, Germany. The division comes under the Allied powers 4th Tactical Air Force which supplies rations.

This time, since the RAF was not equipped to do the job, the Canadians at Langar are handling their own show. They stock about 50,000 different items of equipment, Group Capt. McCormick said.

These include spare Sabre jet planes, engines and airframe parts, clothing, and a whole range of Canadian-made motor vehicles which must be kept in running order—staff cars, station wagons, ambulances, crash and fire trucks, power cranes, aircraft tow tractors, transports and 40-passenger buses.

The AMB, which gets most of its equipment from Canada by sea, assists the RAF in Sabre aircraft supplies and sublets repair contracts to British industries.

Langar does the job with 300 airmen plus about 250 British civilian hired hands, with only two large warehouses at the airfield. The base relies on quick supply and dispatch of materials and a mechanized accounting system.

"The essence of the operation," Group. Capt. McCormick said, "is quick supply."

Three Bristol freighters, each capable of carrying four or five tons, run a shuttle service to the four Canadian bases. They fly new parts to the stations and load up with unserviceable items which go back to Langar for replacement or repair.

CIL Concern Will Be Divided Into 2 Distinct Companies

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Industries Ltd., big chemical concern with operations across Can, plans to split itself into two distinct companies.

The plan has been drawn up by CIL's two principal shareholders, Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd., of the United Kingdom, and E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company of the United States.

It follows a 1952 anti-trust judgment in the United States, which directed Imperial Chemical and du Pont to separate their joint interests in a number of companies in North and South America.

The proposal, unanimously recommended by directors, will be submitted to preferred and common shareholders at special general meetings in Montreal April 27 and, if approved, will go into effect July 1.

OPERATIONS CONTINUED

Operations of the present CIL would be continued in one or other of the new companies.

One, with Imperial Chemical as the principal shareholder, would be called Canadian Industries (1954) Ltd., or CIL 54 for short, and would be headed by H. Greville Smith, now president of CIL.

This company would take over the manufacture of agricultural chemicals, with plants at Halifax, Beloeil, Que., Montreal, Chatham, Ont., and Hamilton; chemicals, with plants at Shawinigan Falls, Que., and Cornwall, Hamilton, Windsor and Copper Cliff in Ontario; explosives, with plants at Beloeil, Que., Nobel, Ont., Brainerd, Man., Calgary, and James Island, B.C.; ammunition, with plant at Brownsburg, Que.; plastics (including the business of polythene resin flake), with plant at Edmonton; paints and coated fabrics, with plants at Montreal, Toronto and New Toronto.

The other new operating company would be Du Pont of Canada, Ltd., with du Pont of the United States its chief shareholder, and would be headed by Herbert H. Lank, now a CIL vice-president.

It would take over the films department, with plant at Shawinigan Falls, Que., and the textile fibres department comprising the business of nylon and cellophane (including the conversion of polythene resin flake into sheeting and lay-flat tubing), with plants at Kingston and Maitland in Ontario.

Of the present CIL's total balance sheet assets of $175,111,000, the proposed division would give $101,104,000 to CIL 54 and $74,007,000 to Du Pont, with adjustments provided in other parts of the transaction.

BECOME HOLDING COMPANY

The present CIL corporate entity would be retained as a holding company and half of its capital represented by the business transferred to CIL 54 would be cancelled, and its name changed to Du Pont of Canada Securities.

Existing shareholders of CIL (except Imperial Chemical) would hold their interest in Du Pont of Canada through du Pont securities. This arrangement is to remove "major disadvantages from application of technical requirements of tax laws."

Common stock in the present CIL is held 41.8 per cent by Imperial Chemical and 41.8 per cent by du Pont of the United States, while minority shareholders, most of them Canadian residents, hold the remaining 16.4 per cent.

The plan provides for an increase in rate of dividend on preferred shares, publicly held, and an increase in the proportionate equity of minority common shareholders.

OBITUARY

ROBERT WALTER PRICE

BETHANY (ENS) — Robert Walter Price, 68, well known Bethany business and sportsman, died at his home in the village on Wednesday, following a lingering illness. He was a son of the late George Price and Martha Cunnings and with the exception of a few years spent in Niagara and Merritton, he had lived his entire life in Bethany. He was a prominent and public spirited citizen, helping in every worthwhile project and the village suffers a real loss in his passing.

As a young man he was a clerk in Ryley & Son's general store. Later he owned his own grocery and meat market, which he sold to Reg. Edmunds in 1946. He was a great sportsman, a charter member of the Bethany athletic association and contributed much to it's success. Older folk will remember him as captain of the famed Bethany football team, who were champions of the Midland league. He played centre field for the baseball team for a number of years. He was also a member of the hockey club. After his active participation in sports came to an end he remained a strong supporter of local teams and organized the first girls' softball club and was coach and manager of each team in successive four years ago. He was a member of the Bethany United church; of the Loyal Orange lodge No. 1022; of the Independent Order of Foresters and of the Merritton Masonic lodge, holding offices in each of these organizations.

A masonic service was held at his late residence on Thursday evening with members from Millbrook and Peterborough officiating.

On Friday a service was held in the United church, which was filled to capacity with friends who came from Peterborough, Lindsay, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Toronto, Pontypool, Millbrook, Bailieboro, Cavan, Warkworth and Hastings. Rev. Lawrence Norman and Rev. T. S Gault of St Paul's Anglican church shared in the service with Mrs. Clarence Rowan presiding at the organ and a choir composed of members from both churches were in attendance.

Pallbearers were six nephews: Clifford Vincent, Beverly Dawe, Everett Dawe of Peterborough, Earl Davis and Murray Price of Toronto; Harry Bigelow, Bethany.

The many beautiful floral tributes were carried by William Bigelow, Allan Bigelow, Charles Kincaide, Victor Kincaide, Thomas Staples, William Rowan, Verne Mulligan, George Timms, John Payne, Delbert Bowin, Alfred Johnston, Clifford Curtis and Herbert Allan.

Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery and the graveside service was conducted by member of the Orange order.

Immediately surviving is his wife, the former Mabel Blake and one sister, Mrs. Ethel Byers of Toronto.

Newlyweds Honored At Millbrook Hall

MILLBROOK (ENS)—A crowd filled Millbrook town hall for a presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Fallis (ne Gwendolyn Bebee) whose marriage took place last month.

Miss Lois Lord read the address and Murray Armstrong and Allan Hutchison removed the covers from the three-piece bedroom suite, which was already on the platform to be presented to the young couple.

There was a musical program, consisting of vocal solos by Clarence Eagleson, Miss Carol Challice and Miss Yvonne Richards, and a trumpet solo by George Patton, accompanied by Miss Beverley Patton. Mrs. Lawrence Winslow was Miss Richard's accompanist. The others accompanied themselves on guitars.

Texas Politicians Resuming Battle to Make Pipelines Pay

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Texas politicians are resuming a battle they had hoped was won in 1951 to make pipelines pay for the privilege of carrying Texas natural gas to homes and factories in some 38 other states.

The U.S. Supreme Court set the stage for another knockdown fight on this question when it struck down Texas' natural gas gathering tax two weeks ago.

The court said in effect the tax was unconstitutional because it could be pyramided by every state the gas passes through, thereby creating such a tax burden as to impede interstate commerce.

That decision and what the Texas legislature does next month in light of it will be important not only to Texans but also to more than 50,000,000 people in other states who use gas from Texas.

Of 475 billion cubic feet of gas produced in Texas in December, latest month of record, 203 billion went to other states.

PROCESSING PLANTS

Governor Allan Shivers hasn't said what kind of substitute tax he will propose, but several considerations make natural gas processors a highly probable target. For one thing, the unanimous Supreme Court decision on the levy hinted a processing tax on natural gas might be sustained.

But a tax on the processing plants would not affect a majority of the transmission companies. An estimated 90 per cent of the gas taken by exporters is processed by somone else.

A processing tax would hit companies like Phillips Petroleum and Humble Oil and Refining, who are big processors as well as pipeliners.

Some legislators might urge a processing tax on the theory that such a levy would be passed on from processor to pipeline to ultimate consumer. However, pipeline lawyers say many present contracts between processor and pipeline companies would not allow the tax to be passed forward.

Elect Cranston President Class A Papers

MONTREAL (CP) — William H. Cranston, publisher of the Midland Free Press Herald, was elected president of class A newspapers at the second annual meeting here Saturday. He succeeds John Eedy publisher of the Journal-Argus of St. Marys.

New vice-president of the organization of 58 tri-weekly, semi-weekly and weekly newspapers is Sam N. Wynn, publisher of the Yorkton (Sask.). Enterprise.

Other members of the 1954-55 executive are Cecil Bond, New Liskeard Speaker secretary-treasurer; George Baker, Kentville (N.S.) Advertiser; Louis McKenna, Sussex (N.B.) King's County Record; Albert Wallot, Valleyfield (Que.) Le Progres; Nolan Sisson, Trenton Courier-Advocate; George Fatham, Listowel Banner, and Roy MacLean Kelowna (B.C.) Courier.

DISCUSS PLANS

The 30 publishers present from all across Canada discussed plans for further increasing national advertising linage, which in 1953 reached a record peak of 18,000,000 lines.

"National advertising in class A newspapers increased 1,500,000 lines last year and local advertising showed a healthy upturn," said Mr. Cranston. More and more manufacturers are recognizing that newspaper advertising at the local level is the most effective possible means of meeting increasingly competitive sales conditions."

Do You Cheat Traffic Laws?

You would not cheat at cards and you would resent anyone suggesting that you might cheat in business. But how about cheating just a bit on traffic laws?

If you are like a great many drivers, you will have to admit that there have been occasions when you have disregarded a traffic sign, exceeded the speed limit or broken one or other of the minor traffic regulations.

Traffic constable Don Mackay of the city force considers that almost everyone, everyday commits some minor breach.

He thinks that they would not dream of doing these things if they considered any danger was involved.

DANGER INVOLVED

But there is always danger involved. The very fact that it is not apparent often makes it more treacherous.

For instance, a person may come upon a "School—Slow Down" sign on a clear stretch of road. No children are in sight, but that does not excuse the motorists from the obligation of slowing down.

Children have an uncanny way of seeming to materialize from nowhere. The fact that a driver thought it was safe to disregard the warning sign would not help much if a child was killed.

Traffic safety authorities consider that it is never safe to cheat a little when in charge of a vehicle. The only way to stay safe on traffic is to know the laws and to obey them.

Remember, it might not always be the other fellow who ends up in hospital.

Soldier Arrested

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Pte. Harry Douglas Saker, 23, of Kingston was arrested Saturday on a charge of assaulting Kenneth Meadows, an usher in a downtown theatre. Meadows was taken to hospital with a broken nose and other injuries after a fight.

HAMILTON (CP)— Two Guelph men were injured in an accident near Clappison's Corners Saturday night when their automobile crashed into a tow truck Ronald French, 20, was admitted to hospital with face cuts. Bruce Atkins, 19, suffered minor cuts and was released after treatment.

HAMILTON (CP) — A set of silverware, stolen from the home of John Kachur Saturday night, was returned by police Sunday shortly before the family sat down to supper. Also taken was $11 in cash, a radio and an electric shaver. The silverware, only article recovered, was found in a truck near the home.

British Shipowners Charge U.S. Shadows U.K. Merchantmen Trading In Far East

LONDON (AP) — British shipowners accused the United States Sunday of imposing "almost incredible" restrictions on British merchant ships trading to Far Eastern Communist ports.

They said U.S. authorities had detailed naval cutters to "shadow" these ships from one American port to another.

The Chamber of Shipping of the United Kingdom, a private association, complained that British ships were "subjected to interference by a friendly power" and singled out particularly for criticism by Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.).

The accusations were made in the chamber's report which will be put before the annual meeting next Thursday. It gave no details of the "shadowing."

But a spokesman for the organization said shipowner members had reported at least two cases of "shadowing" to the chamber meeting last October. He could not immediately give the exact dates. In each case, he said, the members reported an armed guard was put aboard British ships and U.S. naval cutters escorted them along the U.S. coast.

SUFFERED INDIGNITY

Donald Anderson, president of the chamber, issued a statement last Oct. 15 saying British ships had "suffered the indignity of having an armed guard on board while in American waters."

The annual report declared:

"It is almost incredible that in peacetime the U.S.A. should place armed guards on British merchant ships while in port and detail naval cutters to 'shadow' them from one U.S. port to another. But this happened."

Just how the "shadowing" worked was not explained in the report but it said:

"The drama was lightened by a comic touch when a British ship obligingly reduced speed to enable her U.S. crew to keep station."

In Washington, spokesmen for both the U.S. Navy and the state department said they knew nothing of any such activity and doubted the report.

The navy spokesman said the U.S. has no small ships in that area, although he said some small former navy vessels have been turned over to the Nationalist Chinese on Formosa. The state department said the U.S. and Britain are in complete agreement on trade policies in the Far East.

Denies Business Colleges Doing Slipshod Work

TORONTO (CP)—R. E. Clemens president of the Business Educators Association of Canada, said Saturday that Ontario business colleges answer a need for well-trained personnel and are not guilty of "extremely slipshod" operations.

Mr. Clemens, in a statement issued after an association directors meeting, was commenting on charges made last Wednesday during sessions of an Ontario legislature committee on education.

Albert Wren, Liberal-Labor member from Kenora, said then: "There is a positive lack of discipline in the colleges and an absence of order."

Mr. Wren advocated a standard course for business colleges in the province and supervision of final examinations by the department of education.

RELIABLE STANDARDS

Mr. Clemens said association schools provide "uniform and reliable standards" of business and education and examination in Ontario.

He added:

'Some 15,000 examination papers —set and marked by an examination board—are written on throughout each year by business college students attending the B. E. A. schools across Canada, setting a uniform standard.

"The aim of these examinations is to give the student a recognized certificate which can be relied upon by employers in any province.

"The majority of these business colleges have been serving in their respective communities for over 50 years. The reason that they have continued to remain in operation and expand is due to the high standard of training their graduates receive. Business firms would not continue to employ and ask for graduates of these schools if they felt the training was inadequate."

Film Council Plans Festival

The Peterborough Film Council will present its fourth film festival to local audiences in the Queen Mary Auditorium on February 25, 26 and 27. During 1953 the council had 1,235 showings of 2,616 films to a total audience of 128,880 people in the city and surrounding area.

A total of 24 films during the festival will tell of life in over 20 countries. Some are in color and others in black and white. As well as travel and generally educational films, the audiences will also be treated to some first class shots of winter sports in Europe's highlands.

The local film council supports the Canadian council of Christians and Jews in promoting world brotherhood during Brotherhood Week, February 21-28.

They consider that audio-visual aids (sound films) are basic tools in the teaching of facts about peoples of the world, their customs and lands. These aids can also create better understanding of our own country, the various social and religious groups and problems confronting the Canadian people.

This is an opportunity for the people of Peterborough to see a large collection of first class educational (and entertaining) films —an opportunity that should not be missed.

Wants Stronger Sermons On Sin

TORONTO (CP) — The United Church of Canada has too much preaching of the "you-can-master-life" variety, according to one of its most prominent clergymen.

Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the board of evangelism and social service, has called on ministers to preach more and stronger sermons on sin, denunciation of drunkenness, highway "murders" gambling and sexual promiscuity.

"Canada needs badly more pulpit thunder," he said in a report prepared for delivery today to the annual meeting of his board.

"There should be more sermon's on God's judgment, more preaching on social righteousness," he said.

"The United Church and the country it serves needs today more preachers who will fearlessly attack civic corruption, financial greed, totalitarian governments and the irresponsible use of power by management, labor and farm federations."

Knights Of Columbus Spend Five Million In Land Deals

By CARL F. BISSELL

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A series of real estate deals has focused attention on the investment program of the Knights of Columbus.

In the last 18 months the Roman Catholic fraternity has spent $5,785,000 in acquiring land on which stand such diversified enterprises as the Yankee Stadium in New York and a Bridgeport (Conn.) rolling mill.

Supreme Knight Luke E. Hart, executive head of the order, says the deals are "a routine operation in good business," involving only slightly more than 10 per cent of the fraternity's investment portfolio.

"They certainly aren't evidence of any intention to operate any of the businesses involved," he said.

What has been done, he explained, is to trade about 25 per cent of the organization's original $16,000,000 holdings in United States government bonds for higher income producers.

INSURANCE COMPANY

Since the Knights of Columbus is an insurance company as well as a fraternity, the move, suggested by Hart, was undertaken in support of the three-per-cent interest assumption called for in the policies.

Hart said the Knights of Columbus has $435,000,000 insurance in force among the 325,000 insured of its 800,000-plus members. The realty investments were made to strengthen this phase of the K. of C. structure, since U. S. bonds yield but 2½ per cent.

In the organization's portfolio of $55,524,000 in securities, U. S. bonds now total $11,228,000. The portfolio also includes $7,222,000 in Dominion of Canada Victory Loan bonds; $2,262,000 in debentures of the provinces of Nova Scotia, Ontario and Quebec; $4,788,000 in railroads; $18,053,000 in public utilities and $11,971,000 in industrial and miscellaneous securities.

The organization's latest realty purchases number seven, not including the former general office building here of the New Haven Railroad which cost $450,000 and into which the fraternal headquarters were recently moved.

First of the Knights of Columbus realty purchases, made in August, 1952, gave the organization title to the Schrafft Building in New York City for $850,000.

SET A PATTERN

This was immediately leased back to the Shattuck Co., which operates the Schrafft candy store and restaurant chain. The deal set the pattern for those which followed. The purchased properties were leased back for terms ranging from 20 to 99 years, Hart said.

The Yankee Stadium deal involved an expenditure of $2,500,000 in which the Knights of Columbus took title to the land on which the big baseball plant stands, together with adjacent parking lots. It is leased for 28 years to the Yankee organization, as is the stadium, itself, which was bought by the Arnold Johnson Corp. of Chicago for $6,500,000.

The other transactions:

A Crucible Steel Co. warehouse in Detroit, Mich., for $435,000.

The Gilbert Hall of Science building, New York City, sales and display rooms of the A. C. Gilbert Co., New Haven, Conn., for $250,000.

Brunswick - Balke - Collander Co. building, Chicago, $950,000.

The proposed new $5,000,000 Sheraton Hotel to be built here, $2,500,000.

A new steel tube mill at the Bridgeport Brass Co. plant in Bridgeport, $1,800,000.

Presbyterian Church Unfrocks Detroit Minister For Heresy

DETROIT (AP)—The Presbyterian Church, in an unusual action, Saturday unfrocked a 59-year-old minister on a charge of heresy.

Rev. Claude Williams was convicted of heresy by a special commission of five ministers and four laymen of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America.

The commission tried Williams on charges of "heresy and the teaching and preaching of communism" but it dismissed the charge involving communism.

Williams, who served as wartime industrial chaplain of the presbytery of Detroit, now lives in Helena Ala.

Williams had been named by Representative Harold Velde (Rep. Ill.), chairman of the House of Representatives committee on un-American activities, as one of a half-dozen ministers who were trying to infiltrate the ministry with Communist ideas.

Rev. Henry Walch, chairman of the judicial commission, said the heresy charge involved Williams' "beliefs about the deity of Christ." He said the commission found Williams "evasive" on the subject and concluded that the minister's views opposed the authoried doctrines of the church.

UNESCO Proposes Plan For News Gathering Agency

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—A world-wide co-operative news gathering agency has been proposed in a report by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, which declares the six leading world news agencies are "not truly international."

A 232-page report on "news agencies, their structure and operation," released by UNESCO this week, also made the alternative proposal of a telegraphic news agency attached to the UN and staffed by specialists from all member states.

The report said the six "world" agencies are not truly international because the financial support, directors and most of the staff are drawn from a single country—from the United States in the case of The Associated Press, United Press and International News Service, or from Britain, France and Russia in the case of Reuters, Agence France-Presse and Tass.

"However impartial they may be however strictly they may comply with the professional code of ethics they will inevitably judge and present news from the viewpoint of the country of which they are citizens," the report added.

The report acknowledged that a news agency under the UN would run into opposition from those who would refuse to use a service even indirectly under government control.

Church Secretary Criticizes Modern Marriages

TORONTO (CP) — The growing practice of newly-married Canadian women to continue working was criticized today by a spokesman of the United Church of Canada.

Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the United Church's board of evangelism and social service said an increasing number of men and women "find it to their advantage, generally selfish advantage, to team up, (with) both partners working." He added:

"This joint arrangement scarcely to be dignified by the name marriage, makes it easier to pay the rent, purchase stylish fur garments, buy the TV, operate the car, pay for the cocktail parties and generally to 'go modern.'"

Dr. Mutchmore listed increasing "marriages of convenience" as one of five "bad signs" in Canadian home life in a report prepared for delivery to his board's annual meeting here.

The other four: A high divorce rate; more than four per cent of all live births are illegitimate; the size of families is falling; the "father-mother-son-daughter" family is on the way out.

State Parliament Opened By Queen

HOBART, Tasmania (CP)—Queen Elizabeth today opened the Tasmanian state parliament in the most intimate official ceremony thus far on her royal tour of the Commonwealth.

It was an impressive and colorful ceremony despite the overcast sky and the rain which stopped temporarily just before the Queen arrived.

She made her way through flower gardens in full bloom to the tiny legislative council chamber. The Queen sat in a chair carved by convict labor when Australia still was a convict settlement.

Opposite her was a painting of the young Queen Victoria which had hung in the same place since soon after Tasmania started governing itself in 1855.

Spectators sat within six feet of the sovereign as she read a brief, four-minute speech which outlined the government's program for the coming session.

The Queen said she felt it a happy coincidence to visit Tasmania during the celebrations of the first British occupation of the island 150 years ago.

"The Pacific members of my realm are taking an increasingly important part in the affairs of the Commonwealth and of the world, and I am deeply interested in your progress and continued prosperity," she said.

Woman Serves As Secretary For 53 Years

TORONTO (CP)—Eva M. Gardiner, a legal secretary here for 53 years, is a survival of the era when boater hats and bobble skirts were the height of fashion

The erect, white-haired office worker, who has passed 78, has many proud memories. In all her years of working she can't recall ever being late. She was employed by the same man throughout, and except for vacations has been absent through illness on only two occasions.

Cherishing her laurels, Miss Gardener is retiring this month, after winding up the affairs of her employer, the late Casey Wood, QC, who died at 83.

SOLE EMPLOYER

Lawyer and secretary worked together through half a century. She became his secretary when he was taken in as a junior partner in his firm in 1901. She says "He was a wonderful man to work for. He was a gentleman, tolerant, never demanding and very, very pleasant."

She likes to recall the carefree days of the early century when Sir William Mulock and other lawyers and business men were driven downtown behind liveried drivers and prancing horses. Stenographers then enjoyed ice boating and skating on Toronto harbor or went on bobsledding an snowshoeing parties in winter months.

Born at Brockville, Miss Gardiner attended high school and business college there before moving to Toronto with her parents. Her first job had been with a Brockville legal firm.

Her career parallels that of a Hamilton woman, Mrs. Maud Tobey, who at 81 is still working in a real estate office.

Both women attribute their good health and vitality to constant attention to their jobs.

Couple Married At Bride's Home

WARKWORTH (ENS) — At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hermiston in Warkworth, on Saturday afternoon, the marriage took place of their daughter Wylanne Elizabeth to Mr. Donald M. Weatherson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Weatherson. The Rev. T. E. Kennedy performed the ceremony.

Setting was an arch decorated with bells, flanked with baskets of pink and white carnations and ferns. The wedding march was played by the bride's sister, Mary Lou Hermiston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a suit of blue grey gabardine and navy accessories and wore a blue feather headdress and corsage of red roses. Attendant was her aunt Miss Jacqueline Potter who was wearing an air force blue suit and also had a light blue feather hat Her corsage was pink carnations.

The groom's attendant was his brother Mr. John Weatherson, and the only usher was the bride's uncle, Mr. J. C. Potter.

Miss Charlotte Ross, a great great aunt of the bride, answered the door before the wedding ceremony.

For this occasion the bride's mother wore a pale blue wool dress with a navy hat and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother was dressed in navy crepe and a matching hat and wore pink roses.

Guests were present from Warkworth, Campbellford, Brighton, Buckhorn, Odessa, Toronto, Brampton and Huntsville.

The bridal couple will live in Odessa.

"Guides Own" Marked By Full Attendance

A complete turn-out of all 12 Guide and Brownie Packs in Peterborough was registered for the "Guides Own" meeting on Sunday afternoon at St. Peter's auditorium. Nearly all the girls had previously taken part in church parades as part of the celebration of Scout-Guide Sunday.

Today, February 22nd, the Guides and Brownies are observing "Thinking Day" and their thoughts are on their counterparts in all countries of the world with the idea of promoting friendship between them. This is the way it has been decided to commemorate the birthday of the founder, the late Lord Baden-Powell, and of his wife, Chief Guide Lady Baden-Powell, both born February 22nd.

The girls wore their uniforms to school today and their flag is to fly from City Hall throughout this week, as further celebrations and special programs take place at their regular meetings.

After the parading of the colors to the service Sunday afternoon, one guide gave a talk on what Thinking Day is, and there followed talks by representatives of each company on guiding in other countries with some statistics about the country itself.

A penny was collected from each girl to be sent to a fund that will help send trained Guides into the countries where the movement is being re-established after war, such as Korea, Germany, Austria and Haiti.

Re-affirmation of the Guide Promise concluded the ceremony. In this it was emphasised that Guides of Canada, United States, England, Norway, Holland, France, Italy, Germany, Israel, Africa, India and South America, in fact in all countries of the world, take at their enrollment the very same Promise, and are trying to live up to the same Guide Laws.

The Guide's Own program was arranged by the Commissioner for Girl Guides in Peterborough, Mrs. John R. Epping.

Mrs. R. Williams Auxiliary Hostess

HAVELOCK (ENS) — Mrs. Russell Williams was the hostess Wednesday evening for the meeting of the evening auxiliary of Havelock United church when 11 members and one visitor were present.

Mrs. A. L. Parnall, the president, was in charge of the devotional period with Mrs. Williams reading the scripture lesson. Mrs. R. G. Newman gave the study about China.

The secretary was authorized to write to a returned missionary from China, with a view of securing her services as guest speaker at the March meeting which will be held in the church.

Mrs. Gerald Whitneny was in charge of the program consisting of a sing song and a contest "Famous Names," which was won by Mrs. James Watson.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

Natural Rounded Shoulder Indicated In Fur Styles

TORONTO—There are indications that this year's fur styles will feature a natural rounded shoulder line, with a casually draped back, whilst the flat back silhouette is being shown in new fur collections, it is expected that fur coats with four soft folds will still be most popular.

New styles and predictions for the fur season were made to the 25th annual convention of the Retail Furriers Guild of Canada, held in Toronto last week.

Exciting in the new furs for fall is the iridescent brown Persian lamb. This entirely new process on a normal Persion lamb skin produces a high lustre coat in a rich uniform brown shade, and also lightens the weight of the pelt.

Furriers from all over the country were enthusiastic about the new brown Hudson seal, which has arrived at last in practical form. Two thrilling shades of brown are available in this loft silky fur. A combination of the well known durability of Hudson seal (dyed muskrat), the extreme lightness of the sheared muskrat skins, and the soft warm colors in which brown Hudson seal is now available, will make this fur tremendously important for next fall. The price of this new production is slightly higher than dyed muskrat, but is less expensive than similar skins in black.

Denis White, Toronto, was elected president for 1954. W. C. McBride, William Lech & Sons, Peterborough, was elected second vice-president. Mr. McBride has been a guild director for several years.

DOROTHY DIX

Well-Groomed Wife Warns Against Too Much Dress

DEAR MISS DIX: There is so much being said about wives keeping attractive in order to hold their husbands, that I wonder if it may be giving the wrong impression to some of the younger wives.

I am 45, look my age and am an old-fashioned housewife who likes to cook, keep house and look after my family. I have a good figure, naturally I try to keep well-groomed, dress fairly well, but don't make these things the chief aim of existence. I think a family appreciates a properly cooked meal at night more than a well-manicured wife and mother. I enjoy music, shows, like pretty things, am interested in the glamorous actresses on TV, but have no desire to be like them. I have a friend, slightly younger than myself, who is a devotee of this "keep young for your husband" school. She never has time to help anyone, or to take care of her house, since she is constantly following new glamor fads, and turning on the charm for everyone in sight — preferably some other woman's husband. Perhaps I sound catty, but that's exactly the way some of these women affect me. My man didn't marry me because I was glamorous; why should he be led to expect glamor now?

SLIGHTLY BEFUDDLED.

KEEP TO HAPPY MEDIUM

ANSWER: You have a point, but it must be stated with two stipulations. First is the possibility, which you have advanced ,that you may be catty about your younger, attractive friend and, second, while I thoroughly agree that a good deal of emphasis is put on this problem, some of it is really necessary. Unless some women were reminded frequently, they'd let themselves go to the point where theyd lose interest, not only in their appearance, but also in their homes. You seem to have nothing to regret in the way you've treated the passing years, and so can expect the same happiness in the future that you've had in the past.

A wife can either devote all her time and energy to keeping the floors polished, neglecting herself and the people around her, or she can give every minute of the day, and every cent she can lay her hands on, to clothing and glamorizing. Neither course is desirable. As usual, it's the happy medium that proves wisest. True, a family certainly does appreciate a good meal, but they love an attractive Mom, too. Keep both ideas in mind and don't let either run your whole life.

DEAR MISS DIX: With spring not so far off, a recurrent annoyance will be in my life. I have a steady boy friend, who is devoted during the winter, but as soon as the fishing season opens, that's all he thinks about. I wouldn't mind an occasional fishing trip, but he goes every week-end. ROSALIE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Be thankful (1) that fishing is a seasonal sport, and (2) that his interest doesn't turn to girls, which is not a seasonal activity. You might try getting interested in the sport, yourself, so that you could accompany him on some of these trips.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend and I had an argument last Sunday. Though I wrote him a letter of apology, and tried to call twice, he has ignored me. How often should I apologize? H. P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Apologizing once is enough. Only a most boorish person refuses to accept a sincere apology. Of course, young love can be easily, and deeply, hurt, so your young man may brood a bit longer. Your duty, however, is done. Wait for him to recover.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Substantial Lunches For 20 Persons

At Pete's fraternity house it is Mrs. B.'s important job to feed anywhere from fifteen to thirty or more hungry young men.

I know from the look of Pete when he comes home weekends that Mrs. B is doing a magnificent job.

Pete writes Me:

". . . Mrs. B. asked me if I would ask you for suggestions for economical meals. She is particularly interested in the noon meals—one lunch hour at 12 noon, one at 1 p.m.—when there are usually approximately 30 of us to be served over the two meals. These meals are as elaborate as the evening dinners, and she serves something like this usually: (1) Pork and Beans, weiners, baked potato, small amount of salad; dessert might be chocolate cake and whipped cream, tea and milk, bread. (2) Spaghetti with sauce containing ground meat; dessert of plums, tea, milk, bread. (3) Shepherd's Pie, catsup; dessert —peaches, cookies, tea, milk, bread.

"She wants to know of some things that are different and that everyone will like . . . she makes all things in quantities, but she might have a different thing for the 12 noon meal than she serves at 1 o'clock . . ."

As I read through those sample menus I wondered if Mrs. B. fitted soup—rich thick nourishing soup—into those noon meals.

If I were tackling the job I'd think of all the rib-sticking soups, and serve them in big bowls for the noon meal, with hot breads and generous salads and a filling type dessert such as cottage pudding with butterscotch or chocolate sauce.

But Mrs. B. wants concrete suggestions so I have chosen my favorites. The amounts will serve twenty so that if the boys are allowed "seconds" the quantities will stretch, since there are probably an average of 15 fellows at each noonday shift.

MAIN COURSE
SPLIT PEA SOUP

Five cups (approximately 2½ lbs.) yellow split peas, 1½ Imperial quarts cold water, 1 cup each finely chopped onion and celery (including tops), 1 ham bone with some meat left on or ¾ lb. ground or chopped fat salt pork or side bacon, 1 bay leaf, 1 2/3 tablespoons salt, ½ to ½ teaspoon pepper. Pick over and wash peas in strainer. Cover with the cold water and soak overnight, in cool place. In morning drain peas and add 3 Imperial quarts boiling water, the onions, celery, ham bone or salt pork or bacon, bay leaf, salt and pepper and simmer gently until peas are very tender—at least 2 hours, stirring occasionally. Taste. The soup may need more salt. Lift out ham bone if used, and bay leaf. I prefer this soup unstrained, but it may be strained if desired. Serve with sliced rye bread or bran muffins.

CORNED BEEF HASH

(The size of each serving is about 8 oz.) Use 3½ lbs, canned corned beef or same amount of home cooked corned beef. Put through medium knife of food chopper. Gently fry 1¼ cups chopped onions in 4 or 5 tablespoons butter or margine until tender but not brown. Cook and mash enough potatoes to make 3 quarts (15 cups). Add onions and ground corned beef to potatoes and stir in 2/3 tablespoon salt, 1 teaspoon pepper. Spread in greased baking pan. Brush top with 3 tablespoons butter or margarine or pour over ¾ cup table cream. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. until heated through well, and lightly browned.

LUNCHEON BAKED POTATOES

Select 20 large uniform-sized potatoes. Wash and scrub well and trim out any defects. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. until tender. Slice. Cut a ¼-inch slice from broad side. Scoop out centres. To the centres add 2 cups boiling hot milk, ½ cup butter or margarine, 1 tablespoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, and beat until well mixed. Refill potato skins. On top place thick slice of cheese, or cover generously with grated cheese. On top of each potato sprinkle ½ slice side bacon which has been chopped. Return to very hot oven, for potatoes to heat through, cheese to melt and bacon to cook. These make a very satisfactory lunch when accompanied with a generous salad such as cole slaw or lettuce with sliced tomatoes and French Dressing.

Wrote Popular Joke Book

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY

CHICAGO (AP)—A funny thing happened to Tom Jackson on a train one day. He got the urge to write a joke book.

He did write it. And one of the funniest things, a half - century later, is that it is still selling—even in the TV era when a new gag lasts no longer than a lighted cigar.

The title: "On a Slow Train through Arkansaw."

Grandpa read the book in 1904. One of the first stories he came to was this one about a snail-paced train:

"A lady handed the conductor two tickets, one whole ticket and a half ticket. He said, 'Who is the half ticket for?' She said, 'My boy.' The conductor said, 'He's not a boy; he's a man. Under 12 half fare, over 12 full fare.' She said, 'He was under 12 when we started.'"

MORE RAILWAY JOKES

Farther along in the paper-back volume this one will slay you:

"When the train stopped we all rushed for the dining room. I ordered two soft-boiled eggs. When the waitress brought them in ,she opened one and said, 'Shall I open the other?' I said, 'No, open the window.'"

Dad browsed through the same text on a troop train during the First World War. Maybe he remembers:

"At one place we stopped, a fellow ran up to the conductor and said, 'Is this my train?' He said, 'I don't think so. The company has their name on it.'"

Dad, like grandpa, picked up the book at a newsstand in a railroad depot. Dad's son can buy one there or at a bus station. He will find a homespun epigram about a bride:

"Before marriage a man catches her in his arms, after marriage he catches her in his pockets."

BRAKEMAN TURNED AUTHOR

The author of this perennial publication, which has sold 7,000,000 copies, was Thomas W. Jackson. He worked as a brakeman on trains in Texas, Arkansas, Missouri and the Pacific Northwest.

Jackson was a natural story teller. He s stories with drummers, as the travelling salesmen of that era were called.

When he was working for the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Co. he read a joke book. He told Jim Burns, conductor:

"I think I can beat that."

"Why don't you try it?" Burns retorted.

Jackson did. He wrote out the jokes and took his sheaf of notes to the Inland Printing Co., in Spokane, Wash. The first editions of "Slow Train" were printed there in 1903.

That fall Jackson moved to Chicago and founded his own publishing house. The next year, in 1904, he brought out a second volume, "Through Missouri on a Mule."

THEY STILL SELL WELL

He produced, in all, 12 joke books. His son and successor, Harry, wrote one. When Tom Jackson died in 1934, Harry took over the firm, which is doing business at the same Chicago address.

The 13 books, with illustrations added and some minor updating, are still being published and sold at a rate of about 300,000 a year. Total sales of all the books is estimated at 13,000,000.

Harry has his own theory:

"People buy 'em to kill time. There's nothing any better to kill time with."

McCleery Sees More TV In Hollywood

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Producer Albert McCleery forecasts a further swing to Hollywood by U. S. television programs such as his Hall of Fame Theatre on NBC-TV that moved out last September.

The trend, he says, will be stimulated by the overcrowding of New York studios and other facilities, the big pool of talent and props in Hollywood, and better living conditions for performers and production staffs.

McCleery by no means expects a wholesale migration of TV from New York to the west coast, but he forecasts that the ratio for network shows will end up about 40 per cent Hollywood and 60 per cent from New York.

That would be a considerable shift from the present situation in which, according to Ross Reports on Television, 141 hours a week of network shows originate in New York against 37½ on the west coast. The percentage is even heavier for dramatic shows, with Hall of Fame and Video Theatre now the only ones out of Hollywood on a live basis.

Though many other producers disagree, McCleery contends the appeal of California slowly but surely will win converts. One of the big advantages on the west coast, he says, is being able to work in roomy, new facilities built especially for TV.

TRUCKING COSTS IN N.Y.

"One tremendous economic advantage at Burbank," he says, "is in having your necessary departments all on one floor in one building. Paint racks, carpenter shops and warehouses are side by side.

"In 'new York it's 20 blocks to the warehouse. At times I wished I were in the trucking business—that's where much of our money went."

As for props, "The film industry in Hollywood has assembled the world's finest collection — armor, spears, cannon, silverware, vases, lamps, beds, canopies, thrones—you name it and the prop houses have it."

Whatever benefit California derives from shows that move from New York, it doesn't include seeing many of them live. Most of the big TV shows originating there live, in order to reach the huge audience in the eastern half of the United States, are telecast at an hour too early for west coast viewers and are re-broadcast there from film recordings.

Jap Women Standing In New World

By RELMAN MORIN

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese woman, deserted by her husband, went to the new family relations court recently, and won the equivalent of more than $3,000 in a lump sum for support of her family.

A total of 24 women hold seats in the present Japanese Parliament.

On a panel-type radio program in Tokyo, three of four wives admitted that they now ask their husbands to help with the housework, and occasionally with the marketing.

The head of a woman's organization, who lost her son in the Japanese Air Force during the war, told this correspondent: "Never again will we give up our men so easily to the army."

All this has come since the end of the Pacific war.

The traditional Japanese woman —meek, obedient, wordless—began to change. She suddenly found herself possessing legal and property rights unknown in the Orient since the beginning of time. She was given the vote and encouraged to run for Parliament.

Her status in business and industry was changed—on paper, if not entirely in fact.

RADICAL CHANGE

She may be almost as well informed on questions of domestic and foreign policy now as the average North American woman.

Today, in all the basics of her life—marriage, divorce, relationship to her children, the education of her daughters, protection under the law—her position has been altered so radically that she has by no means grasped the full meaning of it.

Moreover, in a fairly direct connection, she is having an effect on the world balance of power.

The Japanese constitution, written after the war, legally prevents the creation of another armed force. Article nine specifically forbids this.

So, in the majority view, full rearmament by Japan so that she can carry the burden of her own defence must be preceded by a revision of article nine.

To do this requires a national referendum. That's where the Japanese woman, who has a vote and has used it, enters the picture.

68 PER CENT VOTED

Most political observers here believe the women would vote against a proposition which would make it possible for the Japanese government to conscript their men.

Two questions touch this point. Do the women use the vote? And do they exercise independent judgment, or take their husbands' opinions?

Statistics answer the first. Nearly 68 per cent have voted in electing members of Parliament. In local elections, percentages have run from 73 to 85 of all those eligible.

As to whether they do their own thinking, there is of course, no definitive answer possible.

You hear both answers. Some Japanese husbands told this correspondent they do not know how their wives and daughters voted, and do not try to influence their decisions.

One of the most famous women in Japan, Mrs. Shizue Kato, takes a more restrained view. She thinks the majority of women vote the way their husbands vote. She says they know more about the major issues than they ever knew, but still are "considerably confused."

Mrs. Kato is the former baroness Ishimoto.

She has spent most of her life writing and speaking about women's rights in Japan. She saw a bill granting them the vote reach Parliament, and die there, in 1931.

Thus, was a thorn in the side of the old Japanese Army. She went to prison several times.

HARD TO BELIEVE

Today, she is a member of Parliament. She ran sixth out of several hundred candidates who are elected on a nationwide basis, in total votes received.

She said: "Even now, sometimes, I sit in the Diet and look around and see women members in their seats, and hear the debates, and I ask myself if this is a dream.

"The changes in women's position are so great that it is hard to believe."

She says, however, it is going to take a long time, at least another generation, before anything resembling equality is achieved between men and women in Japan. In the farm areas, particularly, she finds the same "feudalistic" tendencies that are apparent in many political and economic fields.

But the Japanese woman, the gentle butterfly, is changing. The process may take a long time. But as Mrs. Kato says: "When men are deciding the big questions of policy and law today, they have to listen to the murmurs in the kitchen."

WACKY TAXI—Latest in Hawaii's transportation is the thatched-roof "shaxi." Mamo Howell, left, of Honolulu, and Carol Haverfield, of the U.S., are pleased passengers as they take a motorized shaxi cruise along the shore of Waikiki beach.

Miner, Union Official Tried On 3 Charges

COCHRANE (CP)—Trial of a Timmins district miner and an official of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) on charges of attempted murder, attempted arson, and possession of offensive weapons, began at the opening of Ontario Supreme Court sittings here today.

Charged are Pat Walsh, 26, union official, and Alphonse Norkum, 32, former Paymaster miner. They were arrested last September after police got a tip someone would try to burn down the headframe of the Broulan Reef gold mine in the Porcupine district.

Trial of Adelard Latarte, 65, of Cochrane, on a charge of murdering Henri Deschene, 61, Jan. 13, will follow.

Two manslaughter charges will also be heard. They are against Staff Sergeant William G. Villiard, 26, of the United States air force base at Ramore, and Adeobat Gauvin, 52, of Kirkland Lake. Both were charged after traffic deaths last Thanksgiving.

Woman Power Behind Throne, Tried In Egypt

By ZEIN NAGATI

CAIRO (AP)—Described as too ill to appear in court, the queen bee of Egypt's once dominant Wafdist party pleaded innocent in absentia today to corruption charges.

After a packed courtroom had waited for two hours, a medical commission reported to the three-man military court that plump, 49-year-old Mrs. Zeinab el Wakil Nahas, wife of former premier Mustapha el Nahas, was suffering from a nervous breakdown, diabetes and high blood pressure.

The court president, Wing Cmdr. Abdel Latif Baghdady, ruled she would be tried in absentia until her health permitted her to appear.

After submission of her plea of innocence by her lawyer, Ahmed Rushdy, the court adjourned until Thursday.

AGAINST TRADITION

The lawyer later told reporters that both the Aga Khan and King Saud of Saudi Arabia had complained to the Egyptian government that the trial of a woman by a military court was against Arab tradition.

Mrs. Nahas, who piled up a considerable fortune while her husband was premier during the Second World War and again in 1951, is being tried on three charges of corruption.

She faces two accusations that she used her position as the premier's wife to profit from government dealings. She and her two brothers, Ahmad and Abdul el Wakil, also are charged with using government pressure to make a killing in the cotton market in 1950.

Her husband, the former premier, also faces charges growing out of the revolutionary government's drive against officials under ex-king Farouk but officials say he is too ill to be tried.

With her husband for a front man, she was a major power in the party and often was referred to as Egypt's "real queen."

Man Loses $1,500 Returned Hour Later

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Lynn Jackson, tobacco grower, missed a roll of $1,500 in bills as he walked on a street here Saturday. He reported the loss to city police.

Less than an hour later Frank Mulvaney, retired railway conductor, came to police headquarters with the missing roll. He'd found it on the sidewalk in a busy section of this city's main street.

GLUM—"Curtis," the boxer, seems upset after being told that the London, England, dog show in which he was to have appeared was called off. He was all dressed up for the gathering only to have an electrician's strike ruin his chance to show off his party clothes.

Standard Broken During Snow Removal

CAMPBELLFORD —(ENS) — One metal light standard was the only casualty of a snow removal program in Campbellford planned for Sunday. The post, about 12 feet long, was knocked down when a snow laden truck driven by Clifford Cassan, of Campbellford, backed into it.

The post narrowly missed a plate glass window of a store, as well as two small children who were playing nearby. PUC workmen replaced the post today, at a cost of $140.

Boxing Championship To Be In London

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A meeting of the zone committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada Sunday decided on London for the southwestern Ontario boxing championships in April.

Jack Miller of Hamilton said zone finals will be held here in the first week of April and branch championships the last week in April. Winners from the branch bouts will compete in Toronto for the Ontario championships May 13, 14 and 15.

Reconstructed After Fire Arena Officially Opened

COBOURG (ENS) — Rebuilt after last summer's disastrous fire, Cobourg's Recreational and Memorial Arena was officially opened Saturday night.

Financed by grants, public subscriptions and various fund-raising projects, the recreational centre was built in 1949 and was ready for use by January of 1950. Cost was around $100,000 for the building and $36,000 for the ice-making plant.

Last August fire broke out in the canteen during the night and rapidly spread through the huge building, defeating the combined efforts of Cobourg and Port Hope fire departments to extinguish it. Only the walls, the hard surface floor over the refrigeration pipes and the building housing the ice plant remained.

LOSS COVERED

There was ample insurance to cover the loss and work on rebuilding started last fall. The arena was ready for skating by Christmas. Finishing touches to the building were made during the past few weeks.

Several speakers during the opening ceremonies Saturday night paid tribute to the late Joe Smith, mayor in 1948, who spent so much time and effort in the work of financing the building of the new recreational centre back in 1949 and 1950. He also devoted a great deal of his time to details in connection with the construction of the building. His two sons, Cecil and John, were chosen to sever the ribbon and officialy declare the rink open.

Col. Gordon King, chairman of the rink board, was chairman of Saturday night's program. He said that great credit was due to the many who helped clean up after the fire, including some who came down from Port Hope to lend a hand. 'The Centre was a fitting memorial, he said, to those who had sacrificed their lives in two wars. By their financial contributions back in 1949 and 1950, the people of Cobourg were the real builders of the recreational centre.

Col. King drew attention to the special arches of the roof, which were of Swedish design and manufactured at Burlington. They were of a type which gave a very high clearance and unobstructed view for the spectators, he said.

More fire-resistant than the building which had burned down, it was still not fire-proof and he urged that care be exercised at all times.

MINISTER SPEAKS

The Hon. W. A. Goodfellow lauded the work done on behalf of the recreational centre by the late Joe Smith. He said that it was fitting that his two sons had been chosen to officially declare the recreational centre open.

The centre was a credit to the community and would play an important part in the life of the town, he predicted.

Dr. Fred Robertson, MP for Northumberland and parliamentary assistant to the minister of health and welfare, recalled the shock he experienced when he heard of the loss of the building last year by fire. It was therefore a great pleasure to take part in the opening ceremonies of the new recreational centre, he said.

Mayor Jack Burnet also referred to the late Joe Smith and declared that the recreational centre was a monument to the "energy and dynamic leadership" of Mr. Smith, who had played a very prominent part in the erection of the building.

He also stressed the debt owed by the town to the chairman and members of the board, who pitched in without reserve to see that a new building rose on the ashes of the older one.

Other speakers were the Rev. H. Bedford-Jones and the Rev. P. J. Collins, who dedicated the building; F. A. Lashley of the department of Agriculture and Lyle Willson, chairman of the program committee.

Performers from the local figure skating club and from Toronto gave demonstrations of figure skating.

Urges Smokers Have X-Ray Twice Yearly

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Cancer Society's statistical research director said today a heavy smoker "is very foolish if he does not have a chest x-ray taken twice a year"—although there is no proof that smoking causes cancer.

Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond, the director, gave the advice in a copyrighted interview with the magazine U. S. News and World Report.

The magazine described him as smoking during the interview.

Dr. Hammond said a heavy smoker should take the recommended precaiun " so long as there is even a strong suspicion that smoking causes lung cancer."

NEED ANNUAL X-RAY

But he also said everyone, especially over 45, should have an x-ray at least once a year, and he added:

"If you are a timid soul, then you should also give up smoking at least until the facts are known."

He said his "personal guess right now" is that there is a relationship between smoking and lung cancer, but he does not know whether the smoking effect is "trivial" or so important that cigaret manufacture should be stopped "until we find what's in them that is bad and remove it."

Policeman Chases Car, Arrests Four

TORONTO (CP)—A fleet-footed Toronto policeman chased a car on foot early today in a "furious sprint," drew his gun and arrested four youths.

They are charged with having burglar tools and with breaking into a Woodbridge theatre, 10 miles north of Toronto. Police say 7,000 cigarettes were found in the car.

Works Program Opposed By Construction Industry

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's construction industry today opposed an expanded federal public works program for relieving unemployment.

The Canadian Construction Association, in its annual brief to the cabinet, said it doubts such a program would affect seasonal unemployment or help particular industries in which workers are out of jobs.

The association, chief spokesman for the $4,000,000,000-a-year construction industry, took the opposite view from major labor bodies, which recently have urged a stepped-up public works policy to absorb jobless.

It said construction is desirable in times of general decline in business activity, but this year Canada will have a high volume of construction anyway.

EFFECT DOUBTFUL

"It is very doubtful," the brief said, "that a substantial increase in the public works program would affect the present seasonal unemployment. . . or help the textile, marine, agricultural implement and other industries currently beset with serious unemployment problems."

The CCA submission was presented to a cabinet committee by a delegation headed by president Raymond Brunet of Hull, Que., and vice-presidents W. G. Malcom of Winnipeg and A. Turner Bone of Montreal.

On housing, the association recommended federal measures to facilitate an annual program of at least 125,000 dwellings, compared with the record of 104,000 starts in 1953.

OTHER MEASURES

Other measures include:

1. Higher amounts on which home-builders can borrow 90 per cent of a dwelling's value under the National Housing Act.

2. Extension of NHA loans to cover older homes bought for rehabilitation.

3. Creation of "open end" mortgages that would enable owners to enlarge homes without the expense of a new mortgage.

For highways, the association recommended further federal aid to provinces beyond the assistance on the trans-Canada highway project.

Funds should be made available to the provinces for improving main road networks, to be administered by the provinces. Also, a federal-provincial program should be undertaken on such highways as those leading into undeveloped areas.

Dealing with labor relations, the CCA urged legislation to require secret ballots among workers before strikes could be called.

The association opposed any legislation to make the voluntary revocable checkoff of union dues a legal right. Under this checkoff, the employee authorizes the employer to pay the union his dues out of earnings but can revoke the authorization at any time.

3 Canadian Soldiers Held In Assault

WERL, Germany (Reuters) — Canadian military police arrested three Canadian soldiers here Sunday on suspicion of having beaten up a German civilian and tried to rape his wife.

German police, disclosing this, said the alleged incident occurred outside the home of the couple, who were returning from a carnival ball.

Soon afterwards German police seized one soldier and handed him over to Canadian military police. He gave the names of the other two.

They were being held under temporary arrest pending completion of the joint German-Canadian investigation, police said.

Red-Led Invaders Abandon Positions

SAIGON, Indo-China (Reuters)—Communist-led invaders of Luangprabang, capital of Laos, have abandoned some of their positions northwest of the city, the French high command announced today.

Officers in Saigon said there had been a noticeable easing in rebel pressure on Luangprabang but there is no definite news that the Vietminh 380th Division is abandoning its positions 50 miles north of the city.

French bombers and fighters today launched heavy attacks on these positions along the valley of the Nambac, a tributary of the Namhou river.

China Extends Rail Network, Grandiose Plan

By ROBERT FRANKLIN

HONG KONG (OFNS)—China is pushing ahead with the contruction of an inland railway network which will have great strategic as well as economic significance. It is an ambitious and grandiose plan, that will see the laying of rails in areas where today — as always — the only means of cargo transportation is provided by plodding camel caravans.

Top priority project is the building of a railway from Lanchow, in Kansu, to the far-distant city of Thiwa, capital of the Central Asian province of Sinkiang. From there, presumably, the line is to be extended to join up with the Turksib railway at or near the Soviet border city of Alma Ata. The difficulties here are enormous; at best it is believed that it will take seven or eight years to complete the project.

The line has now been pushed about a hundred miles north-east of Lanchow. The immediate problem is the spanning of the precipitous Wu Hsiao Ling mountains. Beyond them lie the Black Gobi desert, where the desert road is milestoned with the whitened skeletons of camels long dead; the other deserts and steppelands, and the formidable barrier of the Heavenly mountains.

Of more immediate importance, strategic as well as economic, is China's present effort to build a north-south network one thousand miles inland and linked with the coast. The first stage of this plan, completed in June 1952, was the contruction of a railway joining Chungking and Chengtu, the two principal cities of the rich and populous south-western province of Szechwan. From Chengtu the line is being pushed northeast, over rough mountainous terrain, to join the line that now connects Lanchow with the east. South from Chungking, surveys have now been completed for building a line to Kunming, capital of the Indo-China border province of Yunnan.

OPEN UP NEW AREAS

This north-south interior system, will, when completed, give Szechwan much readier access to markets for its rice, coal, tung oil, sugar and timber. It will also open up areas hitherto undeveloped or only partially developed.

Strategically, it will provide a system of communication in an area far from the coast, which, in the event of a general war, would probably become the principal Chinese base, as it was in the war with Japan. From Szechwan, too, a motor road to Lhasa, the Tibetan capital, is under construction.

The other important link, at present in the survey stage, would connect Paotow, now at the end of the railway from Peking into Inner Mongolia, with Lanchow. With Soviet help the Chinese Communists are building Paotow into an industrial centre (this was also planned by the Japanese) concentrating on iron and steel; and they also have industrialization plans for Lanchow.

China now has about 15,000 miles of railways, of which some 370 miles were built during 1953. Since coming into power, however, the Chinese Communists' principal task has been the reconstruction of damaged or destroyed lines—some six thousand miles in all.

The Communists are proud of all this; but it is evident from numerous reports that in their eagerness to set records or to go beyond their targets they have built hastily rather than well. It is reported that they did not reach their target for 1953 mainly because of the amount of repair work necesary, much of it on lines built in the last two or three years.

TWO LEADERS OF SCOUTING in Peterborough were today among the Canadians who received awards on the anniversary of the birth of Lord Baden Powell. George Groombridge, above, is former district commissioner and he receives a bar to his Medal of Merit while Wilfred Shiner receives a Medal of Merit.

Awards Of Merit Are Given 2 Scout Leaders

Two Peterborough men are among those receiving awards from Governor General Vincent Massey, Canada's chief scout, for their services to the Canadian Boy Scouts Association.

George Groombridge, past district commissioner, gets a bar to his Medal of Merit; and Wilfred Shiner, secretary of the Peterborough local association, gets the Medal of Merit.

Their names were listed in a roll of Canadian honors and awards published on the birthday of the late Lord Baden-Powell of Gilwell, founder of the Boy Scouts.

The Medal of Merit, and the Bar that goes with it, are reserved for some unusual contribution to scouting: something beyond the call of duty.

Mr. Groombridge was district commissioner in 1951, and a former cubmaster with St. Luke's. He is now assistant cubmaster at St. John's. Altogether he has been in scouting for more than 35 years, 30 years in Peterborough.

Examiner readers will recall him as the author of the weekly column on scouting.

Mr. Shiner has been secretary of the Peterborough local association for the past 14 years. In that time he has been a devoted worker in the association, doing more than his position required.

He was also connected with the group committees at Murray St. Baptist church.

A local award committee, in the light of their services, forwarded their names to Scout headquarters for the honors. Today Ed Cotton, district commissioner, called on the two men and personally handed them letters formally announcing the awards.

Presentation of the medal to Mr. Shiner and the bar to Mr. Groombridge will be made at a future date.

Seek To Break Deadlock In Negotiations

William Dunn, conciliation officer with the Ontario Department of labor, has called a meeting for Tuesday to try and break the deadlock in negotiations between the hospital employees and the Civic Hospital board of governors.

The meeting is expected to be a one-day affair with the session beginning in the public library at 10 a.m.

Local 19 of the National Union of Public Service Employees (CCL) are the bargaining agents for more than 100 non-medical hospital employees.

Chief demands are:

1. Union security. A modified version of the Rand formula that requires all employees to pay union dues whether they belong to the union or not.

2. Off-shift-differential. Extra money to compensate those working on other than the day shift, 7 a.m. to 3.30 p.m. (They want an extra seven cents an hour for workers on the 3.30 p.m. to 11 p.m. shift and extra 10 cents for those on the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift.)

3. A substantial wage increase.

No change is being asked in the present 44-hour work week. A pension plan offered by the board of governors was turned down.

The two parties have been negotiating for four months.

PC Will Make New Appeal Widen Industrial Research

OTTAWA (CP)—An Ontario Progressive Conservative soon is expected to make a new attempt to persuade the government to take the initiative in expanding industrial research in Canada.

J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West) likely will launch a research debate in the Commons by presenting an amendment to a government motion to place departmental expenditures before the House. Such a motion would permit members to discuss all aspects of industrial research now being conducted by all levels of government and industry.

Early in the session, Mr. Murphy placed a resolution on the Commons order paper urging establishment of a non-partisan committee to study methods to stimulate research. At that time he said the committee should be part of a comprehensive program to encourage the production of new products for sale abroad and to meet foreign competition in the domestic market.

However, time allotted for private members' resolutions ran out before Mr. Murphy's proposal could be discussed. He withdrew the resolution from the order paper to enable him to place his suggestions before the House at a later stage in the proceedings.

SAYS DEAL MADE

George Hees (PC—Toronto Broadview) said in a speech at London, Ont., that a "senior member of the government" made a deal with the CCF to prevent Mr. Murphy's resolution being debated. On the day that time for private members' resolutions expired, the Commons debated a resolution proposed by Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver Kingsway) until the adjournment hour. The resolution urged greater Canadian aid to underdeveloped countries.

Mr. MacInnis denied in the House Friday that he had made any deal with a member of the cabinet to block debate on Mr. Murphy's resolution.

Mr. Hees said he had heard from a reliable source that there had been such an agreement.

"If I am wrong, I withdraw the remark and apologize," he said.

Television Going To Work In Pittsburgh Steel Mills

By JOHN MOODY

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Television, which has entertained millions, is going to work in steel mills.

The toughest job steel men have handed TV so far is gazing into the red hot interior of slab reheating furnaces. The furnaces are used to bring steel slabs to a glowing temperature so they can be rolled into sheets only a fraction of an inch thick. To do this the cameras must be mounted in strategic spots far enough out of range to prevent melting or even clouding of the lens.

The worker controlling the rolling mill sits in confort far away from the furnace, looking at pictures on his receiving set and making needed adjustments by pressing buttons.

The big slabs—they weigh tons—frequently slam into the side of the furnace causing damage which may even cause a shutdown for repair. This is costly.

QUUICK ADJUSTMENT

With TV cameras watching the slab's every move in the furnace, the control man can make a quick adjustment to keep it from gouging into the side.

At U.S. Steel's Gary, Ind., works, the TV camera is focused on the hot roll mill table. On this job TV follows the strip the full length of the rolling mill, watching the red hot steel sheets sail over the table rollers to the coiling machine where they are wrapped for shipment.

Along the mill table are many pitfalls where the fast travelling sheets can strike the side or run into other trouble and clobber—a steel term which means the sheets buckle and fly off the mill table.

With the TV eye following the sheet, the control man can see trouble coming and again make needed adjustments.

SPANNING THE STRAITS—Ranking with the world's largest spans, the proposed Mackinac Straits bridge will link Michigan's two peninsulas, as shown in sketch, above. Financed by the sale of revenue bonds, the $80 million bridge is scheduled for completion in November, 1957. When finished, it will be 26,444 feet (over five miles) in length, and will have a 48-foot roadway. With a central span of 3,800 feet, it will rank second only to the Golden Gate bridge with its span of 4,200 feet. Towers, 522 feet high, will support the suspension cables. Minimum clear height above water at the centre will measure 148 feet.

Opera Festival Opens In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—A first night audience in evening dress and white tie turned out Saturday night for the Toronto opera festival production of "The Consul," first of four operas to be presented here from Feb. 20 to March 6.

Rudolph Bing, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera in New York, on hand to open the festival's fifth season found the production "most impressive vocally and dramatically."

"No operatic culture can be cultivated by visiting companies alone," he said. "It is good that a movement should come from within the country itself."

"The Consul," a contemporary story of tragedy and frustration by Gian-Carlo Menotti was repeated this year because of favorable criticism of its first appearance in 1953.

OTHER OPERAS

Other operas included in this year's season are "La Boheme," "Rigoletto," and "School for Fathers." The festival is presented by the Opera Festival Association of Toronto, in collaboration with the Royal Conservatory Opera Company.

Following the Toronto engagement the company will go on tour for the first time. "The Consul" and "Rigoletto" will be sung in Hamilton March 8 and 9; "La Boheme" will be presented at Kitchener March 10 and "The Consul" and "Rigoletto" will be repeated in London March 12 and 13.

He says development of idle farmland on the reservations would give economic security to the Indians, while saving money for Canadian taxpayers.—(CP Photo).

Houston Scientists Work To Help Tame Cancer Cells

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — One of nature's secrets is being explored here, with the goal of taming cancer cells.

The secret is why some cells of your body become skin cells or liver or nerves, hair, glands or teeth.

They all started from one single fertilized cell. Then something made them take up special duties, somewhat as humans become lawyers, clerks, doctors, taxi-drivers or schoolteachers.

The secret of their specializing is something called organizers. The organizers went to work at certain times as the single cell kept dividing to become billions of cells.

No one is sure yet whether the organizers are chemicals, or mysterious forces, perhaps like electricity or magnetism.

But if science could learn what the organizers are, then it might be possible to control cancers.

For cancers are thought of as cells which have gone wild, no longer doing specialized jobs. The cancer cell does no useful work, simply keeps dividing, robbing civilized cells of food and living space, causing pain, weakness and death.

STUDY WITH CHICKS

Could the cancer outlaws be reformed if the mysterious organizers were isolated, and applied to the cancer cells to turn them back into specialists again.

These are questions that Dr. Jack Trunnell, head of experimental medicine at M. D. Anderson Hospital, University of Texas, has posed himself.

He and associates are trying to crack the secrets of the organizers. They began with a study of a single living fertilized cell which would become a chicken.

Within 21 days, a group of cells springing from this single cell has been organized into the chick's thyroid gland.

At the end of the first five days, the researchers find, the future thyroid cells have become different from all other cells in the growing embryo. They can trap iodine, other cells can't. But as yet, this group of cells can't do anything with the iodine.

At the end of 8¾ days, these cells suddenly are able to turn the iodicine into thyroid hormone. The organizer which did its miracle at five days disappeared. So did the organizer which appeared at 8¾ days. By 14 days, another organizer has made the same group of cells become irreversibly thyroid gland cells.

A thyroid cancer cell very possibly may be a thyroid cell which later escapes from its controlled destiny. But if it were treated in the right sequence with organizers again, might it reform?

The search for organizers is extremely difficult. Two years ago nothing was known about this one set of organizers, Dr. Trunnell said. Now one fact has been learned. It is known when they go to work. The what, why and how must still be answered.

And if one set of organizers worked to tame thyroid cancer cells other sets would be needed to take other types of cancer.

Sharp-Eyed Subway Riders Make Life Hard For Artist

By RON EVANS

LONDON (CP)— Pity the poor artist beset by sharp-eyed subway riders.

Sympathize, for instance, with the painter who set Lord Nelson riding the underground trains. The worthy sea lord (minus his Lady Hamilton) was pictured in an advertisement lecturing sailors on wrapping up warmly in "woollies."

The hero of Trafalgar Bay rattled along the rails peacefully enough until one perceptive "tube" traveller jerked to attention. Shiver my timbers, the ad's admiral had lost his left eye and left arm!

The startled strap-hanger wrote to the newspapers protesting "this disfigurement of our most celebrated national hero."

One movie-going kibitzer said she was sure it was the right arm that was missing. She "distinctly remembered" Lord Nelson putting his good left arm around Vivien Leigh (in a film biography).

CRITICS CONFIRMED

The admiralty's official historian, tut-tutting gravely, confirmed the critics. Lord Nelson, said the navy, suffered damages to starboard, not to port.

Then a doctor joined the fray. He noted that the four sailors listening to Nelson were supported—by nine feet!

Not only that, the doctor said, all the sailors had their big toes—presumably including the one on the extra foot—turned up.

Most people, he said, do this only in moments of stress and it pleased him to see that "on what might well have been a stressing occasion—an address by Nelson—the sailors were given a proper indication of their emotions."

Now the wool officials who sponsored the advertisement say it will be scuttled shortly.

Predicts Employment To Pick Up In March

CHATHAM (CP)—Health Minister Martin Saturday predicted a "resurgence" of employment in March and charged the Progressive Conservative opposition in Parliament with sounding "the old Tory cry of blue ruin."

He told a Liberal convention here that the total number of unemployed in Canada now is "only slightly larger" than it was a year ago at this time and 1954 would see a continued high level of prosperity.

Developing Idle Farmland Gives Economic Stability To Many Canadian Indians

REGINA (CP)—Development of idle farmland on reserves would give economic security to Indians while saving money for Canadian taxpayers.

That's the plan urged by Dan Kennedy of Montmartre, Sask., in an article contributed to the Regina Leader-Post. An Indian himself, his native name is Ochankugahe.

Canadian Indians once were more progressive than their American cousins, he says, "but in the intervening years they have outstripped us. Whilst we Canadians are marking time, they have forged ahead."

Kennedy, university - educated and long experienced in Indian problems is a venerable counsellor of the Assiniboine tribe.

He says the reason for the progress in the United States was the revision in Indian policy of the U.S. government after the First World War. Reservations then were surveyed, subdivided and allotted to individual members of the tribe—"thus giving them economic security and pride of property ownership."

PROSPEROUS INDIANS

Kennedy had worked in 1896 and 1897 in the head office—staffed by Indians—of the Fort Peck Indian reservation in Montana. He visited this reservation a few months ago, he writes, "and I could hardly believe my eyes at what I saw.

"Every Indian home had modern facilities of electric lights, refrigerators, washing machines and other electrical appliances Most of the Indians lived comfortably from the revenue derived from the proceeds of the crop share lease of their allotments. Others operate their own farms."

In Canada, agriculture is the major industry of the western provinces, "but in the midst of all this scientific and mechanical progress in agriculture, why are the large areas on the Indian reserves left undeveloped," he asks.

"The only logical course to assure economic security to the Indian is to develop the idle lands on the reserves and bring them under cultivation."

VETERAN SPOKESMAN

Kennedy is about 84 years old, but doesn't know his exact age. He figures he was 12 years old when he and other Indians walked every foot of the 500 miles from the Cypress hills to their present reserve at Montmartre, and that was 1882.

"We had no calendars in those days, and how were we to know our exact age," he says in a letter accompanying his article. "But don't classify me as a Methuselah—far from it—I still feel buoyant as a kid.

"I am a product of the buffalo days and the warpath, but have also acquired a college education and have learned to love your culture, your arts, your classics, literature and music," his letter adds.

But he says "The public is not well enough informed on the Indian question. The Indian reserves could be made self-supporting and lighten the burden of the taxpayer."

COLOMBO PLAN THEME

His article praises the Colombo Plan for capital development of Southeast Asia, and notes that Canada's contribution to the plan has reached a total of $75,000,000. "Canada may justly be proud" of this contribution, he says.

But closer to home, he asks "Have we the right approach to give economic security to the Indians? Have we a constructive program to rehabilitate the wards of the country?"

To illustrate his theme of agricultural development of the reserves, he uses his home reserve—the Assiniboine reserve.

"We have 40,320 acres and the population is roughly 400 members," he writes. "From this total acreage, supposing 30,000 acres was turned over for a community farm project, under the supervision of an agronomist, the initial capital investment for equipment in machinery and cost of operation would be in the neighborhood of $250,000 but the revenue derived from the project should be self-liquidating and the loan paid off in 15 years.

FERTILE SOIL

"The soil type is considered to be oxbow loam. These fertile soils are well suited to growing wheat, coarse grains and forage crops where the topography is fairly level. The precipitation record of the district is excellent.

"Assuming that the prevailing rotation system of two-thirds in crop and one-third summerfallow is adopted, the annual acreage under crop would be 20,000 acres. This type of soil should produce a 20-bushel crop of wheat per acre annually."

"To maintain soil fertility, all available land not suitable for grain raising should be utilized for livestock. From the surplus revenue $10,000 per year should be allocated for the purchase of young breeding stock until a substantial herd of 1,000 head is built up for a community herd."

In his accompanying letter, Kennedy says promising young Indians should be trained in the science of agriculture as technicians, to be sent back to the reserves to instruct their people—"as we now are doing with the underdeveloped and under privileged countries.

"We owe this debt to ourselves and to the original owners of the country."

Calls Housing Plan Just 'Cruel Hoax'

TORONTO (CP)—Colin Cameron CCF member of Parliament for Nanaimo, B.C., said Saturday night the federal government's new housing legislation now before a parliamentary committee is a "cruel hoax by the government on the Canadian people to deceive them that the Liberals are doing all they can in the field of housing."

Addressing a Toronto and District CCF Council convention, he said the proposal to enable chartered banks to enter the mortgage field had already been "torpedoed" by the banks.

"The life insurance companies are moving out of the housing field and the banks don't want to move in," he said.

Shot By Thief, Salesman May Recover

TORONTO (CP) — Alexander Simms, a Toronto brewery salesman was reported in critical condition following a brain operation to remove two bullets from his head.

Simms was shot twice in the head Saturday in the hallway of a west Toronto home by a man police said was trying to rob him. Simms threw a case of beer at the man when he accosted him.

Hospital officials said Simms had a fair chance to recover following the three-hour operation.

Sees Late Shipping

SARNIA (CP) — Capt. F. C. Smith predicted Saturday that big masses of ice in the upper lakes will delay the opening of navigation until early April. Last year navigation opened March 25. The marine superintendent of Imperial Oil Limited said some of the company's tankers may start short runs to Goderich and Windsor March 22 but no regular trips will be made to until April.

LAKEFIELD MAN KILLED IN TRUCK CRASH

FATALLY HURT, Hec Edwards, 43, of Lakefield, is lifted to a stretcher (above) after his light truck hit a hydro pole on Highway 28, opposite the Kawartha garage. Although police, Nisbett's ambulance and a doctor were on the scene within minutes, Edwards died from extensive head, arm, leg and internal injuries. His truck hit the pole broadside, and crumpled about the pole on the driver's side. —(Examiner Staff Photos)

Swings Out Of Control On Water St.

Hector Edwards Dies In Minutes After Smash-Up

Hector (Hec) Edwards, 43, of Nassau St., Lakefield, was killed about 8:30 p.m. Monday when his half-ton panel truck went out of control opposite Kawartha Garage on Water St. north and crashed sideways into a hydro pole.

Edwards suffered a fractured skull, a broken left arm, a broken leg and other injuries. He lived only a few minutes at the most.

City police saw him drive into the city from Lakefield at a high rate of speed in his 1951-model truck. Two minutes later, while continuing on patrol, they found the vehicle partly wrapped around the hydro pole and Edwards fatally injured.

It is believed that the truck, while still speeding, struck a fringe of ice and snow on the west lane of the road and veered out of control.

HECTOR EDWARDS

The impact bent the truck around the 15-inch-in-diameter hydro pole which was wedged into the left side of the cab. A tow truck had considerable difficulty pulling it free from the giant pole which was only scraped.

Ask Uniform Closing

TORONTO (CP) — A uniform closing hour for all establishments holding liquor licences in Ontario was suggested today by members of the legislature's committee on government commissions. Judge W. T. Robb, chairman of the liquor licence board, said he personally favored closing off dining lounges at midnight instead of 2 a.m. The committee made no recommendations. Closing hours are governed by the board.

110-Man Lobby Sent By UAW To Federal Gov't

OTTAWA (CP)—The big United Automobile Workers of America (CIO-CCL) is sending a 110-man lobby to Ottawa Wednesday to tell Parliament there are "danger spots" in the economy and to outline a program for full employment.

The delegation from the 70,000-members union, Canada's second largest, will meet a cabinet delegation Wednesday and will circulate among members of Parliament for the next two or three days with the union's employment program.

It will be about the largest mass lobby to storm Parliament Hill. Other delegations have been bigger but these have been confined to formal presentations to the government rather than to individual members.

PROGRAM OUTLINED

The UAW program, aimed at increasing buying power, calls for federal action to boost housing construction, expand public works, spread taxes "more equitably," bring in a national health program, and increase payments on family allowances, old age pensions and unemployment insurance benefits.

The union asks for the convening of a "broad conference on full employment." This would take in representatives of industry, labor, agriculture, consumers and government.

It would try to "draft a practical worksheet for full employment and full production."

"Signs are all too abundant at the present time," the UAW submission says, "that danger spots are developing and spreading in our economy."

LOWER STANDARDS

Farmers were being forced to lower living standards. Employment was "faltering" in many areas of industry.

The UAW said it does not share "defeatist" views that even a little recession is inevitable, but it recognizes that "the danger exists."

"Nothing is to be gained and everything is to be lost if we follow ostrich-like policies of the past, stick our heads in the sand and refuse to look the facts in the face. . . .

St. Laurent Savs Asia, West "Interdependent"

NEW DELHI (CP)—Canada's prime minister, addressing both houses of India's parliament, said tonight that Asia inevitably is concerned with what happens in the West "just as we are concerned with what happens here." "Canada's growing interest in Asia and Asian problems reflects the contraction of the modern world and the fundamental changes which have taken place in recent years in Asia's relations with the West," Prime Minister St. Laurent said.

"To the extent we have come to realize that the welfare of all parts of the world is interdependent, a new concept of world-wide partnership has evolved.

"You in Asia are inevitably concerned with what happens in Europe and North America just as we are concerned with what happens here."

FOLLOWS NEHRU SPEECH

The Canadian leader's hour-long speech was prepared for delivery to the men and women of India's House of Peoples and the council of States—the lower and upper houses respectively. He spoke a day after India's Prime Minister Nehru addressed the lower house on India's neutralism in the cold war, with the Canadian leader an interested spectator.

"We Canadians have a deep distaste for the disruptive tactics which those with totalitarian ambitions often employ, and we abhor aggression from whatever quarter it may arise," St. Laurent said in tonight's speech.

"We realize that many Asian countries, though old in the arts of civilization, are young as independent states of the 20th-century model and are faced with staggering problems as they strive to build stable societies for hundreds of millions of people, many of whom have been all to familiar with distress and want.

Parents Guilty In Baby's Death; Boy 4 In Charge

COLLINGWOOD — A young married couple who left their four-year-old boy to take care of two younger children while they spent five hours in beverage rooms, Monday were convicted of criminal negligence in the death of an eight-month-old son.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bradman, of Oakview Beach, lost their infant son when fire destroyed their tiny frame dwelling, February 12.

They were remanded one week for sentence. Maximum sentence is three years.

Magistrate Gordon Foster and Crown Attorney William Thompson were scathing in their comments on the behavior of the parents. The 25-year-old mother fainted on the witness stand while being questioned by the Crown, causing a brief court recess.

RIDICULES CLAIM

The magistrate ridiculed Bradman's claim that four-year-old Stephen was capable of taking care of the house and the two other children.

"That is ridiculous," the bench said sharply. "On a cold winter day, in a frame house, isolated from others, you leave a four-year-old boy to look after the household while you go to a beverage room. He should have had someone looking after him."

Turning to Mrs. Bradman, Magistrate Foster said: "If your husband had a mind to leave the children, you, as a mother, should have been well aware your son was not capable of looking after the other two."

Bradman said Stephen had often taken care of the younger children, could wash dishes and put them away, clean his own shoes, feed the baby and operate the bottle warmer.

Reds Have New Weapons

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia's military leaders today marked the 36th anniversary of the Red Army with new blasts at the United States and repeated assurances that Soviet armed forces are sharpening their skill with the "newest weapons." The army chief of staff, Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, charged in Izvestia that "American imperialists are preparing a new war against the Soviet Union and the people's democracies." He warned that Soviet forces are preparing for combat in the atomic age. Defence Minister Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, in a special order of the day, called on the armed forces for increased vigilance, military preparedness and competence in using the most modern weapons.

Admiral Nikolai Kuznetsov also spotlighted new weapons, writing in Izvestia that the Soviet army and navy have received new arms and equipment "which are greatly superior to the arms and equipment of the Second World War."

HUGE FESTIVAL

It was one of the biggest Armed Forces Day celebrations ever held in the Soviet Union, marked by mass sporting events, special meetings and speeches throughout the country, and special radio and television programs. A 20-gun salute was ordered in Moscow.

Sokolovsky's three-column article in the government organ charged that "reactionary circles" in the United States at the end of the Second World War had "rejected the policy agreed upon by the allies . . . aimed at strengthening the peace and security of all peoples."

"Setting themselves the goal of establishing world rule," the marshal continued, "The United States imperialists . . . are creating new aggressive blocs and building numerous military bases, conducting a mad armaments race and remilitarizing West Germany and Japan."

Sokolovsky claimed the Soviet Union is pursuing a persistent policy of peace but he said the Russian armed forces at their manoeuvres last fall had proved their adeptness with the latest weapons.

Sending Delegation

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—A four-man delegation from city council, headed by Mayor C. H. Smale, leaves for Ottawa today to ask the government to help find jobs for Sault unemployed. The Ottawa meeting, scheduled for Wednesday with Labor Minister Gregg, is to be followed by talks with Ontario government officials Thursday. The delegation will ask the province for financial help in building a proposed $3,000,000 sewage disposal system in the Sault.

Wants Ottawa Take On Jobless

TORONTO (CP)—Public Welfare Minister Goodfellow Monday recommended that the federal government assume full responsibility for unemployed persons unable to maintain themselves.

In an address prepared for delivery over a province-wide CBC network, the minister said "Our municipalities are neither willing or able under present conditions to share in the costs of unemployment relief."

Mr. Goodfellow said he was in agreement with a unanimous resolution of the Ontario Municipal Association urging the federal government to assume "full responsibility for the complete cost of relief to unemployed, employable persons.

NO PROGRAM

The minister said there is no public welfare program to take care of persons whose unemployment insurance allowances run out after a long period of time.

The minister said he will introduce a new Child Welfare Act at the present session of the legislature. "It will mark an earnest attempt to consolidate the best we can discover in child welfare practices."

Royal Navy Has New Weapons

LONDON (Reuters)—The Royal Navy is making major strides on new weapons to combat submarines, sea mines and attacking planes, it was disclosed today.

J. P. L. Thomas, first lord of the admiralty, did not specify in his report the lines the research is taking.

Thomas said that in the naval production program for the coming year, 1954-55, emphasis will remain on the expansion of minesweeper and anti-submarine forces, and on completing aircraft carriers already under construction.

The fleet carrier Ark Royal and two light fleet carriers, Albion and Bulwark, would be completed during the coming year.

Progress on building frigates, minesweepers, sea defence boats and patrol boats had been less rapid than was hoped. This was due partly to production difficulties—which were being overcome—and partly to problems "inevitable with ships of new design."

The report accompanied the annual navy estimates for the coming year. The net estimate is £353,000,000, an increase of about £25,000,000 over the current year.

BULLETIN

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Chevrier announced today he is calling a conference of provincial highways ministers to discuss the question of federal-provincial jurisdiction over highway transport.

Cold Snap Ends Troop Exercise

SEPT ILES, Que. (CP) — The army and air force today called off Exercise Loup Garou to protect troops from further hardships.

Maj.-Gen. J. P. E. Bernatchez, general officer commanding, Quebec army command, announced ending of Canada's Arctic war games at 11:45 a. m., AST, after a sudden cold snap had turned water-logged snow in the exercise area into treacherous sheets of ice.

The air force director of the exercise—Air Commodore S. Coleman—said the exercise proved successful. Both the army and air force were satisfied with results.

WORK OUT PROCEDURE

Air Commodore Coleman said the tactical air command now had worked out a procedure to hit enemy-invading forces 24 hours earlier than they had thought possible.

"We changed our operating procedure and it worked," he said.

RCAF bombers on their way east from Edmonton sent one strike element into Mont Joli airport, nearest field to Sept Iles, to clobber the enemy while the main force flew on to the forward base at Goose Bay, Labrador.

Maj.-Gen. Bernatchez said the Royal 22nd Regiment, spearhead of Canadian defence forces trying to dislodge a mythical northern enemy dug in on the air field at this strategic iron ore centre, had to all intents succeeded in its task.

Injured Player Given £2,062

PAISLEY, Scotland (CP) — A cheque for £2,062 has been presented to Angus (Gus) Galbraith, hockey player from South Porcupine, Ont., whose right leg was amputated above the knee after a freak accident in a game last Oct. 2.

Galbraith, formerly with Paisley Pirates, was handed the cheque in a centre-ice ceremony at Paisley rink. The money was raised in a joint English-Scottish campaign.

Galbraith, 21 and married, has a job with Imperial Chemical Industries at Steveston, Ayrshire, and hopes to work for associated companies in Canada later. He has been fitted with an artificial leg and plans to take up golf.

Own Pocketbook Thinner Abbott Declares Since Handling Federal Government's Purse

OTTAWA (CP) — The guardian of the government's purse since 1946 says his own pocketbook has grown thinner since that time.

Finance Minister Abbott Monday talked about his personal financial problems as the Commons considered legislation increasing cabinet salaries to $15,000 from $10,000.

"I live fairly modestly, as those of you know me know," said Mr. Abbott, an MP since 1940 and cabinet member since 1945.

"I have gone behind just a little bit every year since I have been here, and I have had to use such other modest resources as I might have. I do not think that is a good thing for public life. . . ."

Mr. Abbott, 54-year-old Montreal lawyer, has said this year's budget is the last he will present.

Queen Mother's Trip Not Yet Arranged

LONDON (CP)—A Buckingham Palace spokesman said today that the Queen Mother hopes to visit Canada as part of her United States tour in November, but the "whole program is in such a preliminary state" that no other details can be given.

The spokesman added that the trip concerns only the Queen Mother, and any suggestion that Princess Margaret might accompany her is purely speculation.

It was announced earlier that the Queen Mother would be in the United States about 10 days, spend ing three days as guest of President Eisenhower starting Nov. 4. Canadian officials then said it could be taken for granted that she would accept an invitation to go to Canada at some stage in the United States visit.

Never Liked UN Form-Churchill

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today the organizational form of the United Nations had never pleased him.

He told the House of Commons: "I certainly would not have made the United Nations in its present shape or form.

"I always considered it should be based on regional organization which should aim at drawing the largest and most important minds from the largest groups of nations and bringing them to a sort of super assembly at the summit. This view I was not able to put into force at the time and I have not had any opportunity since."

U. S. State Secretary Dulles said last year the UN charter was obsolete and recommended changes in the organization. The UN General Assembly currently is studying the possible need for reorganization.

Young Woman Falls Off Ferry

TORONTO (CP) — Police recovered the body of a young woman in Toronto harbor today after about 10 hours of dragging. Officers said the body will be examined to determine cause of death.

Police said the woman, believed to have fallen from a tugboat ferry in pre-dawn darkness, still is not officially identified.

Passengers on the tugboat said earlier a woman who fell overboard was Mrs. Doreen Beatty, about 25, a telephone company employee who lived on Toronto island.

Report Pope Pius Experiencing Relapse

VATICAN CITY (CP) — Pope Pius today was reported experiencing renewed difficulty in taking food, and anxiety increased over his health.

Vatican sources said that the 77-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church has had more difficulty during the last two or three days in taking food.

The pontiff has been suffering for more than a month from a gastric ailment whose nature has never been definitely disclosed.

A reliable source said there was a threat last night of a return of the hiccups which a month ago gravely weakened the Pope.

Says Chinese Reds Killed 15,000,000 Of Own People

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter S. Robertson, assistant secretary of state, has told the United States Congress that the Chinese Reds, in "just about the bloodiest pattern that the Communists have followed in any country in the world," have killed about 15,000,000 of their own people since 1949.

Robertson, whose province is Far Eastern affairs, attributed this huge death toll to liquidations and government - ignored starvation.

In testimony on the state department's budget request, made public today by the House appropriations committee, Robertson said the department anticipates in Asia for the foreseeable future "emergencies, crises and problems of the greatest importance and magnitude."

He made these other main points:

1. A basic U.S. strategy is to keep powerful Chinese national forces on Formosa as a constant threat of U.S.-supported military action against Red China.

2. On the mainland "there is a deep undercurrent of unrest and resentments that would be glad to follow some other leadership if it had the chance."

3. For an indefinite period "we must make a contribution toward keeping our allies strong." In Formosa and Korea we have an army of just about 1,000,000 men . . . a big reserve against trouble in Asia" but a financial drain too heavy for these countries to handle alone.

Robertson, who once served as President Eisenhower's personal envoy to South Korea, gave this sketch of China:

The mainland had one of its worst famines in history in 1950. "Throughout that period the Communist government was exporting food, with thousands of people dying of starvation, to Soviet Russia in exchange for industrial equipment and military supplies."

The best estimate is "that including the deaths from starvation plus the liquidations, the liquidations in public squares, where they just lined them up and turned the machine-guns on them; the liquidations of the political opposition, the land owners, business people and the classes that they want to exterminate, that the Communists have liquidated about 15,000,000 people since 1949."

Yankees Sell Raschi To Cards

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—New York Yankees of the American League today announced the sale of right-handed pitcher Vic Raschi to St. Louis Cardinals of the National League for cash and several minor league players.

George Weiss, general manager of the Yankees, said the deal involved "considerable cash." The exact figure was not announced and the names of the minor league players involved were not made public immediately.

Raschi has a record of 120 wins and 50 defeats during the years he has been with the Yankees. He had 13 wins and six defeats last year and a 16-6 record the year before. From 1949 through 1951, he won 21 games a year.

Rail Commuter Service Urged

TORONTO (CP)—Highways Minister Doucett of Ontario suggested today that Canadian railways could take a "very heavy load off our highways" by operating commuter services to the larger centres.

"Thousands of our people living within 50 or 60 miles of our larger centres would welcome such services," he said, "and would be more than happy to utilize rail transportation in coming and going to and from their daily tasks."

However, the railways did not favor commuter traffic, claiming such services operate at a loss, Mr. Doucett said in an address prepared for delivery at the 60th annual meeting of the Ontario Good Roads Association.

"I wonder whether some radical developments in equipment and operating procedures might not enable our railroads to develop an important and paying commuter business," he said.

Many people employed in the Toronto metropolitan area lived at points as far distant as Owen Sound, more than 100 miles northwest.

Settlements Not Good

Mine Strikes Cost Union $2,000,000

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Brodie, international representative of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) said Monday night the strikes at mines in northern Ontario and northwestern Quebec cost the union and its supporters $2,000,000.

Addressing the Toronto and Lakeshore Labor Council (CIO-CCL), he said the miners are back at work or preparing to go back at mines near Timmins and Noranda, Que., still more money is needed to pay bills the miners have accumulated since the first of the strikes began last summer.

"The settlements were not good," he said. "They don't do justice to the miners. But the miners are convinced that this struggle is not over yet. They realized the need, due to circumstances, to retrench and get those agreements signed for 18 months and then these battles will have to start again."

The union won various wage increases but lost out on its demand for the checkoff of union dues.

"Who is deserving more of the 40-hour week than those miners still working 48 hours, with still only four statutory holidays, with surface men working for 99 cents an hour and miners for $1.13?"

The strikes, Brodie said, had been a life and death struggle for existence of the union. He had been "amazed" at the way mine management negotiated with union representatives, it was much different than negotiating with employers in Toronto. "There was no desire to sit down and negotiate through the proper methods of collective bargaining."

"I am sure," he said, "that after they study the situation the miners will rise again and not be second-class citizens. They have been second-class citizens since Harry Oakes and his ilk found those mines."

Of the $2,000,000 used to bolster miners on strike, the largest proportion came, he said, from the international offices of the Steelworkers Union. "The miners are grateful for the support given them."

LENDERS ANXIOUS

Of the effect of the strike on the miners, Brodie said:

"After months of strike the loan sharks are hounding them for back debts and rent is piling up." But, he said, not one miner went hungry during the strike.

"Some of them have had a holiday for the first time in years because they couldn't afford one. Some have gained 25 to 30 pounds because they were getting fresh air instead of silica dust."

Brodie said it will be three to four weeks before mills can begin operations and bring all the strikers back to work. If they start work on the first of the month it will be the 25th before they are paid.

Brodie appealed to union members to continue their contributions to the middle or end of March."

Judge Orders Agency Head To Appear

Must Show Cause Why Not Cited For Court Contempt

CORNWALL (CP) — Chief Justice J. C. McRuer, presiding at the murder trial of Lieut. Peter Balcombe, today ordered E. C. Bryan, proprietor of the Bryan News Agency of Cornwall, to appear in court Friday to show cause why he should not be cited for contempt of court.

At the opening Monday of Balcombe's trial on a charge of fatally stabbing Marie Anne Carrier, attractive CWAC reserve army sergeant from Bienville, Que., defence counsel J. P. Kelly of Ottawa showed the chief justice copies of three magazines which published stories on the slaying near here last October.

One story was headed "The Riddle of Canada's Nude WAAC." Another "His Alibi Came Too Soon." The third was "The Nude and the Ring."

ALL U. S. MAGAZINES

Crown attorney R. P. Milligan said today the magazines True Detective, True Police and Official Detective Stories—were all published in the United States and have no provincial or national distribution in Canada. They were sold direct from the publishers to district distributors.

Mr. Milligan said Mr. Bryan was ready to appear voluntarily. He understood a representative of the publishers was also ready to appear although this could not be guaranteed.

Chief Justice McRuer said Mr. Bryan certainly would have to appear but the publishers were beyond the jurisdiction of the court. If they appeared they too would have to show cause why they should not be cited for contempt.

The chief justice said Monday he was "not concerned where these magazines are published if they are distributed in Ontario.

"An indictable offence has been drawn to my attention. There is a heavy responsibility of the crown to see that the laws of this country are observed. Contempt of court is of very great importance."

Mr. Kelly said that two years ago similar stories were written in similar magazines during the murder trial of Elias Meek, a farmhand accused of killing his employer's wife and later sent to penitentiary for life. The court in that case fined the publisher of the magazines.

Chief Justice McRuer halted today's proceedings briefly to admonish spectators for an outburst of laughter during testimony by Dale Hutt, 14, who told of finding Miss Carrier's body last Oct. 15.

Returning home at four o'clock in the afternoon, he saw something white in a shallow ditch by the side of the road.

"It was the body of a woman . . . she was naked," he said. Asked if the body was white or dark, the boy said: "It wasn't black . . . I guess it was pretty white."

There was some laughter then from some of the 200 spectators, mostly women, who jammed the courtroom here.

"There are some here who seem to have come for amusement," the chief justice said. "If so, I will give them the privilege of leaving now. If there are any more signs of amusement I will have the offenders removed by the sheriff at once."

Shortly after a grand jury returned a true bill requiring Balcombe to stand trial, 12 jurors for the trial were selected from a panel of 40 men and one woman.

Mr. Milligan, outlining to the jury the crown's case, said the nude body of the girl from the Quebec City district was found in a ditch 35 miles west of here the afternoon of last Oct. 15.

After the body was identified, police discovered that Balcombe was known to the girl and that he, although married and the father of two young children, had given her a ring and asked her to marry him.

The crown attorney said a pathologist will show the girl died from stab wounds about 2 a.m. Oct. 15 and that she was almost dead when she was placed in the ditch where 14-year-old Dale Hutt, bicycling to his father's farm, found her. The wounds were said to have been inflicted with a thin, double-edged knife.

Mr. Milligan said Balcombe carried a stiletto while on army exercises in western Canada a short time before being transferred to the army camp near Quebec City.

"The stiletto has not been found," Mr. Milligan added.

Mr. Milligan said items of women's clothing were found in a cabin near Woodstock that had been rented by a soldier. He said a witness will identify the soldier as Balcombe.

Police witnesses would also testify that fingerprints found on a chair in the cabin were Balcombe's.

The crown will try to prove that Balcombe was in Quebec City the night of Oct. 14 and that on the same night the girl left her home, the last time friends and relatives saw her alive.

Five days after the discovery of the body on a country road north of Highway No. 2 in the Iroquois district, Balcombe was arrested as he sat at dinner in his father-in-law's home near London and charged with murder.

McCarthy Has New Broadside

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former FBI undercover informant testified today that she had known as a dues - paying, card - carrying Communist a woman who Senator Joseph McCarthy said now is handling "top-secret messages" as an army code room employee.

Mrs. Mary Markward, the FBI informer, named the army employee as Annie Lee Moss.

Mrs. Markward testified at a public hearing called by McCarthy's Senate investigations subcommittee.

McCarthy is embroiled in controversy with Army Secretary Robert Stevens over McCarthy's charge the army has "coddled Communists."

DEFERS SESSION

Stevens was scheduled for a face-to-face meeting with the committee today on the issue, but McCarthy deferred the session until Thursday.

Convening the hearing, McCarthy said the testimony he was about to take should come as "no surprise" to the army because "the army had the same information months ago."

McCarthy said today's inquiry has nothing to do with his blasts at the army for honorably discharging Maj. Irving Peress, now a practising dentist in New York. McCarthy has called Peress a "fifth amendment Communist." Peress termed the McCarthy charges "sheer nonsense."

French Storm 2 Rebel Posts

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—French Union forces stormed down today on two Vietminh posts west and southeast of Hanoi and claimed they inflicted "heavy losses" on the Communist-led rebels.

French army headquarters here said one French force hit the Vietminh in the village of Buc Tap, 12 miles west of Hanoi, and drove them from pillboxes and entrenchments.

Fighters and bombers joined in the attack. An army spokesman said Vietminh casualties were heavy.

A similar attack was reported in a village near Nam Dinh, 55 miles southeast of Hanoi. The French said nine rebels were killed and 28 captured.

Employees Return To Work At Cave-in

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Canadian Salt Company went back into full production Monday and all employees of the Canadian Industries Limited chemical plant returned to work. Officials said the sudden cave-in which claimed four buildings at the CIO plant was over.

The CIL plant production was halted Friday when buildings began to sink along with a railroad spur. Water spurted from the ground to form a 27-foot-deep lake as a warehouse almost disappeared and other buildings sank to ceiling level.

Officials estimated damage in the warehouse and plant pumphouse at more than $500,000 and said lost production may jump the total before the chemical plant goes back to work. The salt plant supplies brine to the chemical plant which turns it into chlorine, caustic and other products.

Sanitary Cap On Bottles Not Popular

TORONTO (CP) — The sanitary cap on milk bottles has not proved popular with Ontario consumers, J. N. Alan (PC—Haldimand-Norfolk) said today.

Mr. Allan, a southwestern Ontario dairy operator, told the legislature's committee on government commissions that some dairies which introduced the sanitary cap to gain more customers "didn't get the desired effect."

"Strange as it may seem, the cap hasn't had popular appeal," he said.

The committe met to hear a report by judge A. B. Currey, chairman of the milk control board.

Committee chairman Robert MacAulay (PC—Riverdale) said he couldn't understand why dairies spent thousands of dollars on pasteurization then placed an ordinary stopper on the bottle on which another crate of bottles is set for delivery.

Judge Currey said the milk control board has no jurisdiction over bottle caps; they are regulated under the Health Act.

C. G. MacOdrum (PC—Leeds) said the sanitary cap is popular in the Brockville and Ottawa areas.

Judge Currey said that since the one-cent differential was set on the price of a quart of milk sold in stores, the cash-and-carry business has increased.

Judge Currey said there was a tendency for some Toronto distributors to move into nearby centres. It was the duty of the board to protect the local distributors in those areas.

Dulles Begins Second Round

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles today planned the second round in his fight to win Congress to his view that the United States more than held its own at the Big Four meeting in Berlin.

Dulles arranged to meet with the House of Representatives foreign affairs committee (3 p.m. EST) and presumably planned to take the same line he adopted in briefing key Democratic and Republican congressional leaders Monday: That U.S. agreement to seat Red Chinese delegates at an April conference in Geneva on Asiatic peace problems does not mean that U.S. recognition of China is in the offing.

Meanwhile, there was one indication that Dulles had failed to quiet all the doubts in the minds of the legislators.

Senator William F. Knowland of California, the Republican Senate leader, said in a New York speech Monday night that he has "substantial" misgivings about the decision of the Big Four foreign ministers to invite the Chinese Reds to the Geneva conference, despite Dulles' assurance about recognition.

The Californian also objected to discussion of Indo-China unless representatives of the affected states are on hand and enjoying an "equal voice."

Threaten To Stop Mortgage Payments

WEXFORD, Ont. (CP)—About 30 homeowners said today they'll quit making monthly mortgage payments unless Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation puts a stop to basement flooding.

Residents of the eight-months-old homes in this community near Toronto complain that water has floated basement furniture and sunk driveways.

Bob Fallis, spokesman for the group, has told the crown company that backs their mortgages:

"Make the builder regrade our properties and repair flood damage, or we don't pay our mortgage payments."

"Are you seriously suggesting that a young boy like that could put coal on the fire, bank it and operate the draft?" asked the Crown.

"I don't see why not," the father replied. Later Bradman said he had not read the newspapers for several years and had not heard of incidents in which children were burned.

LINDSAY (ENS). — Only one of 14 Lindsay rinks, entered in the first round of the annual Gruen-Arden mixed bonspiel, survived the second rounds play Monday. Out-of-town rinks dominated the action in the main event with seven of them entering the third round today.

Two winners in each of the six events will be declared at the end of today's play and a second group of 32 rinks will begin on Wednesday to decide contestants for the finals on Friday.

Dog's Barking Saves Family

DUTTON, Ont. (CP) — A little black dog barked the alarm which saved Mr. and Mrs. John J. Eberle and their son Jack from a fire in their apartment today but the dog died in the flames.

John J. Eberle, 49, proprietor of a Dutton bowling alley, is in hospital in St. Thomas with severe burns. His condition is satisfactory. Mrs. Eberle and Jack, 20, were burned less seriously escaping the fire.

The fire broke out in the building which housed the bowling alley and spread to the Eberle apartment on the second floor. The frenzied dog only succeeded in awakening the Eberles after the fire had made great headway.

Damage has not been estimated. Flames gutted the building which contained three new bowling lanes, a lunch counter and the apartment above.

Dutton is 15 miles west of St. Thomas.

Policeman Dies At Banquet

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Sgt. Harry H. Peel, 52, with the Ontario Provincial Police 26 years, collapsed and died Monday night at a father-and-son banquet held by Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs.

He started with the force at Welland and was promoted to corporal in 1940. In 1946 he was made sergeant and took charge of the Barrie detachment. Two years later he returned to this area to become district desk sergeant.

Surviving besides his widow are a son, Sandy; a daughter, Nancy; and a brother, Jack, of Guelph.

Ice Breaks On Pond Youngster 5, Drowns

PICTON (CP)—Colin Kraglund, 5, was drowned Monday after breaking through the ice on a pond at nearby Bloomfield. A clergyman and a 16-year-old high school girl tried vainly to save him.

Rev. Joseph Patterson of Bloomfield Standard church saw his own son, David, 7, who had been with the Kraglund boy, clamber onto firm ice by his own efforts. The younger boy was swept under the ice.

Mr. Patterson, in his 40s, ran out onto the ice which broke under him, plunging him in water up to his neck. He managed to crawl to firm ice just as his own boy reached safety.

Marilyn Fraleith heard Mr. Patterson's cries for help, jumped into the icy water and searched frantically for the Kraglund boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. Kraglund.

CONSTRUCTIVE ACTION

"A depression, or even a 'little recession,' can be avoided, but positive, constructive action must be taken to avoid it.

"Sufficient buying power in the hands of those who will spend is, and always has been, the key to Canadian prosperity."

Its first proposal was for parliamentary legislation to ensure the building of 200,000 homes a year for sale or rent at costs that wage earners could afford.

(Canada started a record 104,000 dwelling units last year. The Canadian Construction Association Monday suggested to the cabinet a target of 125,000.)

The UAW said the federal government should take responsibility for building the additional homes, above what private enterprise could produce, to meet the goal.

There should be a federal school construction program, the union said.

HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION

The auto union said the federal and provincial governments should take immediate steps to launch a comprehensive program of construction to meet Canada's growing traffic problem and provide more transportation.

It also called for public ownership of the proposed natural gas pipeline between the Alberta fields and central Canada, a $300,000,000 project on which the federal government and the provincial governments concerned have given their blessing to private ownership.

The UAW said that on the pipeline Canada is "missing a golden opportunity."

For farmers, the union asked for the establishment of a "federal farm program" to provide "full equity" to farmers in meeting their credit problems, improving their markets and taking other measures necessary to boost their living standards.

Town Asks Board To Modify Plans

LINDSAY (ENS)—Town council decided Monday night, to ask the school board to present a modified plan for future expansion of school facilities rather than the $280,000 project previously outlined by the board.

After a lengthy discussion in which members of council almost totally expressed their disapproval of the board's plan, which provided for the building of two new schools, they decided to ask the school board to draw up estimates and plans for the expansion of present school facilities.

Council, with the exception of Aldermen J. McQuarrie and W. Breese, expressed disapproval of the plan for dividing the public school student body into junior and senior sections.

Should the school board wish to continue with the present plan, council decided that a public vote would be necessary.

"While we do not presume to prescribe a political or economic philosophy for Asians, we are particularly attracted by the Indian approach which seeks material progress through the free effort of the people.

PRAISES INDIA'S VISION

"We applaud India's vision and courage in making this splendid effort, and we watch with sympahty the fine efforts of many other Asian governments to work out satisfactory solutions to their problems. When we think of Asia we have a great hope that the new nations which have lately emerged out of the ancient civilizations of the East will again flourish and enrich the world."

Prime Minister St. Laurent, on his round-the-world tour during which he hopes to improve East-West understanding, heard Prime Minister Nehru's speech from the president's gallery in the semi-circular House of Peoples.

Nehru, wearing a white Gandhi cap and a red rose in his buttonhole, and clad in the traditional Indian white jodphurs, addressed the Indian House of Commons in the equivalent of a throne-speech debate in the Canadian parliament.

Nehru was in the House, sitting at the speaker's right, when the Canadian prime minister drove up to the huge yellow sandstone Parliament buildings which form part of a great cluster of government edifices here.

Nehru darted from the House to greet his Canadian opposite number when the car drew up.

When the Canadian had been seated in the president's box to the speaker's left, Nehru rose to speak.

Clutching a handkerchief in his right hand and occasionally putting on his spectacles, he reviewed for the House of some 470 members his dominant Congress party's policies for the new India.

The news in the speech was the "very earnest appeal in all humility" for a cease-fire in French Indo-China pending the April big-power conference in Geneva.

Part of his speech, in clipped English in a soft, husky voice, concerned the domestic future of India.

He drew laughter when he chided the opposition, and showed emotion only when he discussed the possibility of U.S. aid to Pakistan.

HEARD CRASH

"I was just coming out of the house when I heard the crash," said Armson Weeks whose home is 75 feet southeast of where the truck hit the pole. "I was the first one there but I couldn't pull him out; he was wedged under the steering wheel.

"He didn't show any signs of life when I touched him. He probably never knew what happened."

Constable William G. Scott, who was on cruiser patrol with Constable Gerald Emmons, arrived while several volunteers were trying to free the fatally-injured man. Constable Scott finally worked Edwards loose but he died in a couple of minutes, before he could be taken to hospital.

Dr. John A. McNeill pronounced him dead. Shortly afterwards Coroner Dr. Harry G. Carleton arrived and the body was taken to the Nisbett funeral home for examination. Cause of the death, said Dr. Carleton, was the fractured skull.

No autopsy was performed but there may be an inquest.

NEARLY CUT IN HALF

The fatal accident occurred across the road from the Kawartha Garage, and directly in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Daniels. Apparently the careening vehicle slewed sideways into the hydro pole and was nearly cut in half. The box at the rear was partly separated from the cab which was completely crushed in on the driver's side.

The roof of the cab was buckled up and all the windshield glass was knocked out.

Mrs. Daniels at first thought the truck had hit her house.

"I heard the crash and it sounded as though he had struck our place," she said. "But I suppose it was some chunks of frozen snow that were thrown against the house as the truck piled into the snowbank."

Edwards was a Canadian Army veteran, serving with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. At one time he worked in the shipping department of the Quaker Oats Co., but he is best known locally as the proprietor of Hec's bait shop on the southern outskirts of Lakefield.

He was a member of St. John the Baptist church, IOOF 358 and the Peterborough Red Patch Club.

His father, John Edwards, predeceased him. He is survived by his mother, the former Christina King, two sisters, Mrs. Emerson Gaskin (Eleanor) Frenchman's Bay, Mrs. Olive Emery, of Sudbury, and a brother, Percy, at home.

Funeral service will be conducted Thursday, at 2 p.m., at the Hendren funeral home, with the Rev. L. J. Delaney, of St. John the Baptist church officiating. An Odd Fellow service will be held at the funeral home at 7 p.m. Wednesday. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

New Vaccine For Polio Being Injected

FITTSBURGH (AP) — The first batch of Pittsburgh school youngsters today received injections of Salk's vaccine—science's hope of conquering polio.

Dr. Jonas Salk, who developed the vaccine, administered the injections personally, as he will to all 5,000 first, second and third grade pupils between now and June in 19 Pittsburgh schools.

Under terms laid down by Dr. Salk, the names of the children receiving inoculations were withheld. They were given no prior warning of the injections.

The University of Pittsburgh scientist said he wanted the children to approach the tests in a completely normal frame of mind, without the chance to build up mental tensions and fears beforehand.

Blood tests will be given with the injections—which may number as many as three for each child—to record the progress of the vaccine in building up immunization to the crippling polio virus.

DOCTOR CONFIDENT

So confident is Dr. Salk that the vaccine cannot harm those receiving it that he, his wife and their two children were among the first to be inoculated.

The vaccine itself is a combination of the three paralysis-producing strains of polio known to science. It is cultured in laboratories and safety-tested before it is administered.

The vaccine is quite different from gamma globulin, used widely last summer in attempts to prevent polio.

A vaccine stimulates the human body to produce its own anti-bodies, the natural soldiers against a disease germ.

Gamma globulin is a dose of borrowed antibodies, which remain in the blood only a few weeks.

At Ottawa, health department officials said the federal government plans to expand its gamma globulin inoculation program this year.

Gamma globulin was used on a large scale last summer for the first time in Canada. About 25,000 persons were inoculated and plans are to increase this number to 100,000 or 140,000 this year.

A study of the results of last year's program has not been completed.

Parliament, Public Not Entitled To See Every Government Document—Pickersgill

OTTAWA (CP)—A cabinet member says parliament and the public are not entitled to see every document the government possesses.

State Secretary Pickersgill said Monday night in a speech prepared for delivery to the semi-annual meeting of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association that such a policy would "upset the whole British concept of responsible parliamentary government."

Certain opposition members of Parliament took the position that Parliament was entitled to any official document.

". . . This notion that Parliament and the public are entitled to see every document in the possession of a government department is wrong," said Mr. Pickersgill. It was contrary to the constitution and "subversive in the proper meaning of that word. . . ."

The constitution guaranteed freedom of the press. However, he added:

"But freedom of the press to publish what newspaper men are able to learn for themselves, I contend, does not and should not include the right of the opposition in Parliament or of the public or the press to be given through Parliament records of deliberations in the cabinet or of official or confidential advice given to cabinet ministers."

SECRECY NECESSARY

Mr. Pickersgill, former clerk of the Privy Council, said council deliberations must be secret because cabinet members sometimes have differences of opinion. Government would be impossible if differences among ministers were not kept secret.

If ministers were to serve the country well they must have the benefit of the best and frankest advice from the ablest people in the public service. But if the system was to work and civil servants were not to become identified with any particular government the advice they give to ministers must not be made public.

The advice of civil servants was sometimes taken and sometimes rejected. Under the Canadian system these public servants "are not entitled to explain themselves or defend themselves or their opinions or advice in public."

RAZED BY FIRE last year, when all but the ice plant and permanent floor were destroyed, the Cobourg Community Centre and Memorial Arena was officially opened on Saturday night by the two sons of the late Joe Smith, a former mayor, who was instrumental in having the original building erected. The fire loss was completely covered with insurance so that is was possible to begin reconstruction immediately after the fire. It was ready for skating at Christmas. Although not fireproof, the new building is fire-resistant. Specially-constructed wooden arches permit an unobstructed view of the ice surface by spectators.—(Murray Smith Photos).

Mutchmor Fires Criticism Of Husband, Wife Working To Pay Rent, Buy TV

TORONTO — Increasing numbers of Canadians are embarking on what he terms "marriages of convenience," Dr. James R. Mutchmor says in his secretarial report to the United Church Board of Evangelism and Social Service.

"These men and women find it to their advantage, generally selfish advantage, to team up, both partners working. This joint arrangement, scarcely to be dignified by the name marriage, makes it easier to pay the rent, purchase stylish fur garments, buy the TV, operate the car, pay for the cocktail parties and generally to 'go modern'," he adds.

GOOD SIGN

In his report which will be presented to the board at its annual meeting today, Dr. Mutchmor lists the good and bad signs in Canadian life.

Under the "good signs" heading he gives:

A steady faith in the place and purpose of family life.

The marriage rate continues high and the birth rate at a near record level.

Canada has never had so many young children.

Health is good and home building, while still inadequate for the poor, is much improved.

Ninety-one per cent of Canadian homes have electricity; nearly 2,000,000 have central heating units. There are 2,244,000 showers and baths, 2,985,000 washing machines, 2,415,000 refrigerators, 3,511,000 radios, more than 500,000 TV sets, 1,899,000 cars and 2,500,000 telephones.

BAD POINTS

And the bad signs.

A high divorce rate.

Illegitimate births continue to be over 4 per cent of all live births.

The size of families has fallen from an average of five a century ago to just over three today. The "father - mother - son - daughter" family is on the way out, says Dr. Mutchmor. Inflated building costs are a factor but so also to blame is the desire for freedom and a good time.

His report added: "We are spending too much for pleasure-driving cars, almost as much for cars and their operation as for food. Our instalment buying is dangerously high at a near $2,000,000,000. We are putting too many billions into luxury offices, homes, hotels, clubs and holidays."

All this had produced a billionaire pschology in Canada. "We feel good. We are sure of ourselves. We are tackling bigger talsks, building bigger barns. Much of this feeling and effort is commendable, some is dangerous. It's a time for more thought and wisdom—here is a missionary area for the Christian Church."

Ice Cause Floods But Situation Controlled

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Residents of homes near the banks of Trout creek, a small waterway flowing through the western section of the town, watched with anxious eyes as the creek, swollen by recent thaws, began to rise steadily.

Chunks of ice, large and small, began to pile up on Sunday as they were washed down by the swiftly moving water. The water rose to within three inches of the cement retaining wall, but the jam was finally broken and the ice moved out into the Trent canal.

Town workmen and department of transport employees worked on Sunday and Monday breaking up the jam.

RIVER FLOODS BANK

At Edgewater park pavilion, ice jams caused the river to flood its banks and for a time a small bridge was in danger of being washed away. The proprietor, Charles Wickens, spent an entire day breaking up dams of ice and debris at the eastern end of his property, but the property surrounding the pavilion was flooded to a depth of several feet in spots. A small amusement park was under several feet of water.

In previous years, town workmen have had to use dynamite to move the ice jam which piled up at a bridge on Highway 30, but it is not believed this will become necessary this year. By Monday night, the situation was under control.

Council To Discuss Grant For Registry At Meeting

City council will decide in committee after next Monday night's formal meeting whether or not to grant $1,000 to the Peterborough Community Nursing Registry.

And the final decision may rest on the broad shoulders of Mayor Norman Graham, with the possibility of a tie council vote in the offing.

The controversial question has been bugging the 1954 council almost since its inception. Even the question of when it should be discussed led to frayed tempers at Monday night's four-hour meeting of the board of works.

Ald. Gordon Powell told the board that he had some additional information from Civic Hospital board chairman Max Swanston that if the registry ceased to function it would add $2,000 a year to the hospital's operating costs, as it would mean they would have to hire extra staff to telephone for nurses when they were needed.

"That is without reference to St. Joseph's Hospital," Ald. Powell said. "With that information in hand, it would seem to me it would make it a little more palatable."

"I move that the question be left over until we consider all the grants," said Ald. Harold Rehill abruptly. His motion was seconded by Ald. Pat Anglesey.

"I'll move an amendment that it be dealt with some afternoon this week," said Mayor Norman Graham. "I'm not going to be bulled down all the time."

MANY MEETINGS

"I'll go along with the mayor in that the matter should be disposed of," said Ald. Gordon Farquharson. "But we have a lot of meetings right now with the budget to prepare and I think we should be able to deal with this in the course of a normal meeting."

"I agree with you," said His Worship. "But we could argue here all night and I think we should get it over with."

"If the grant would mean a saving to the taxpayers, I think it's a simple matter of dollars and cents," said Ald. Stan McBride.

"By calling a special meeting, you'll run the chance of some of the members not being able to attend," Ald. Bill Beggs suggested.

"That's what I'm getting at," said His Worship. "Dewart will be here. There'll be a split vote and I don't want to have to do the dirty work."

(When the grant was last voted on two weeks ago, it was voted down 5-4, with Ald. John Dewart absent. The matter was renewed last week when a delegation from the registry asked council to reconsider it.)

"When will the grants be discussed?" Ald. Alene Holt asked.

"I was hoping the tax rate would be discussed by March 7, or the fifteenth at the latest," said City Clerk E. A. Outram.

Mayor Graham's suggestion that the meeting be held at 10 a.m. met with disfavor from most council members. The board carried Ald. Powell's suggestion to have the grant discussed next Monday night.

Find Report Inconclusive On Use Of Gamma Globulin

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The reaction of the United States medical profession, particularly state and local health officers, to a somewhat inconclusive report on the use of gamma globulin against polio may determine the extent to which it is used this year.

A group of 17 polio experts appointed by the United States public health service reported Monday night that:

1. It had found no evidence that gamma globulin, a blood derivative, prevented or mitigated paralytic polio when given in mass inoculation programs to all children in the 23 areas in 13 states which had epidemics last summer.

2. It had found no evidence that gamma globulin was effective when given to family contacts of persons stricken.

However, the committee qualified its statement about the mass inoculation program by saying that observations did not provide enough information to permit it to conclude whether gamma globulin had an effect in preventing or alleviating the disease when used in this way.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis had announced that it would make available for use this summer 3,000,000 doses of gamma globulin, worth $19,000,000. It reaffirmed those plans in commenting on the committee's report.

Foundation president Basil O'Connor said the finding in the case of family contacts "was to be expected" and that the foundation, foreseeing that, had urged unsuccessfully last year that "by far the lesser amount of GG to be used that way."

O'Connor said the report on the use of the product in mass inoculation programs does not rule out the possibility that it may be used effectively in such programs.

How To Plant, Develop Good Lawns Outlined

A good lawn just doesn't happen it is the culmination of hard work, proper knowledge of grasses and ground structure and patience.

So said Professor R. James Bryden, of the Soils department, Ontario Agricultural College, when he addressed members of the Peterborough Horticultural Society at the YWCA Monday evening.

In the professor's opinion there is much lacking to a fine home if it does not have a good lawn. Again, a lawn can transfigure even the most lowly abode. Most people appeared to want nice lawns, but either through lack of foresight or knowledge, they fail.

Peterborough district was fairly fortunate in having good soil structure, although there were some difficulties to surmount. First, if a person was having trouble with his lawn, specimens of soil could be annalized and then appropriate treatment given to the earth. In this way mineral deficiencies would be overcome and many harmful properties eliminated.

ORGANIC MATTER

Most important was the proper amount of organic matter in the soil. Besides holding the earth together, it assisted aeration and held moisture content.

The professor said it was a bad mistake to burn old leaves and dead vegetation. By using these as compost, valuable organic matter could be given back to a lawn with the assistance of bacteria which broke down the compost.

If a soil was too light and sandy, well rotted manure, sawdust and dead vegetation would help to improve it. However, gardeners should be careful not to overdo the treatment.

The choosing of good grasses for lawns always presented a problem. Clover, for instance, was handy during a dry season, but it was inclined to lie flatt. Professor Bryden preferred a good mixture of seed sown in a criss-cross fashion.

He advocated the following mixture: 1 pounds of Kentucky blue grass, ½ pound red top, ½ pound creeping red fesque and 1 pound colonial bent.

"If you have a shady lawn you could substitute rough blue grass for colonial bent," added the professor.

The best time to seed a lawn was in late August or early September. Many gardeners sowed grass in Spring, but he considered that fall sowing was much more satisfactory. A certain amount of fertilizer could be used when sowing.

WATERING

It was also important to pay careful attention to watering the young grass. First see that the lawn needed water and then make sure it got sufficient. It was no use to just sprinkle it often. The moisture only penetrated about two inches and with the heat of the sun, formed a hard crust on top. It was better to give the lawn plenty of water once or twice a week.

Also, gardeners should make it a point of watering in the morning and not in the night.

Light was very necessary in the growing of a good lawn, and all leaves should be raked off the grass as soon as possible. Too much shade was not helpful.

During a question period which followed his talk, the professor was asked the best method to treat a lawn that was lacking in compost and was about two-thirds gravel. The questioner did not want to have to dig up the lawn.

Professor Bryden agreed such a lawn would need particularly good management. The gardener should be careful not to cut the grass too short. This would prevent hot sun from drying out the soil. Clippings should be allowed to remain on the lawn and this would be the first step towards increasing organic matter. Next nitrogen and phosphate should be fed to the grass to build up root accumulation.

SPIKE LAWNS

A new experiment, which was proving successful, was the spiking of the lawn to assist aeration. Also, black- muck soil could be raked over and the lawn given a good soaking. The area could be given small doses of fertilizer at regular intervals.

The professor also advised the questioner to send samples of soil for analysis and expert technical inforamtion so gained would be of great assistance.

The speaker was introduced by the society president, Mrs. G. K. Fraser. Prior to the address members were shown a film dealing with the problems of gardening in heavy clay soil.

Claims Youths Need Licenses

COBOURG (ENS)—Philip Fisher and Darrell Douglas, two 'teen age Cobourg boys who were remanded on charges of dangerous driving after police chased them about town two weeks ago, were remanded out of custody for three weeks in police court Monday. Douglas drives a grocery delivery truck and Fisher requires his license in order to drive his invalid father about. Magistrate R. B. Baxter deferred sentence in order that the two boys could ascertain if they could obtain a restricted license from the department.

Probation Officer Harold Bigelow told the court that he had made enquiries and found that both boys had good reputations in the town. The employer of Douglas said he was industrious and was one of a family of 10 children. Fisher was also a lad of good reputation, Mr. Bigelow found.

"I hope you two boys do not consider this whole affair as a tempest in a teapot. The way you were driving, you might easily have killed someone, or the police might have been injured chasing you. Furthermore you might have been hurt yourselves. I am going to defer this matter in order to give you an opportunity to learn if the department will issue you a restricted license. Failing that you face suspension of your licenses for two years. Even at that it might be a cheap lesson," said the magistrate.

Drifted 450 Miles

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—Viktors Zvejnieks, 28, staggered ashore north of Cairns, Australia Monday after a 48-day trip in an open 12-foot dinghy all the way from Thursday island. Zvejnieks, who was born in Latvia, is too weak to tell the full story of his 450-mile drift, but it is known he left Thursday island Jan. 6 in the dinghy. A storm came up and he lost his paddles. He said he caught rain water in a cup and a plate, and lived largely on seaweed.

Former MP Dies

CALGARY (CP)—Dr. George D. Stanley, 78, Conservative member of Parliament for Calgary East from 1930 to 1935, died here Monday following a heart attack about two weeks ago. He was born in Exeter, Ont., and educated in St. Marys. He was president of the Alberta College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1920. Dr. Stanley was also a member of the Alberta legislature from 1913 to 1921.

Rents Spark Strike Call

LIMASSOL, Cyprus (AP)—Members of Communist and non-Communist trade unions were ordered today to stage a 24-hour strike in protest against the government's new rent control bill. The bill authorizes rent increases on shops and dwellings ranging from 150 to 350 per cent. Shop owners have also been called on to strike, and no newspapers will appear Wednesday.

Soldier Fined

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Pte. Harry Douglas Saker, 23, of Kingston, was fined $20 Monday because he objected to being disturbed while watching a movie Saturday night and punched an usher on the nose. Saker said he punched Kenneth Meadows, 16, because the usher was disturbing him by arguing with an ice cream sales girl in the theatre. Saker was charged with assault.

Selling A Baby Is Not A Crime

The Minister of Justice, the Hon. Stewart Garson, says that there is nothing in the present Criminal Code, and no provision in the amended Criminal Code which is before Parliament, which makes it a crime to sell a baby. Revelation of a group of people who are doing a brisk business in babies in Montreal make it plain that we need something in the Criminal Code to prevent this traffic.

* * *

Two men have been arrested in Montreal on charges of falsifying birth certificates, and apparently anyone who sells a baby may be charged with this offense, or with forgery or conspiracy. But it is never satisfactory to be forced to charge a man with one offense, when it is really for a greater offense that the law wants him. The offense with which he is charged may very probably carry a penalty which is not proportionate to his real crime.

* * *

Of course the likelihood is that there is no law against selling babies because it has never occurred to our lawmakers that anybody does sell babies. We presume that there is no law forbidding the sale of adults, for the same reason. But it appears that babies are sold, and the trade must be stopped for not only is it repugnant to many of our beliefs, but it is an obvious field for racketeering.

* * *

The desire of many people to adopt infants is a fine and civilized one, and certainly nobody should make money from it. It appears that in many areas, if not generally, there are more people who want to adopt babies than there are babies to be adopted, and a shortage has created a crooked and detestable trade. There are agencies equipped to control adoptions on the high level which such transactions require, but there are also reasons why not all prospective adoptive parents go to such agencies. Certainly we need a law which makes trade in babies a crime, with a sharp penalty.

* * *

Luckily our Criminal Code is undergoing revision now, and it should not be a complicated matter to put laws on the books which would make the trade in babies too dangerous to be attractive.

New Forestry Plan Before It Is Too Late

There is a bad, bad story behind the proposals in the White Paper put before the Ontario Legislature yesterday. It is a sorry story of years of robbery, and people in this Kawartha district ought to know from their own history how shocking the pillage has been.

Seventy-five years and more ago Peterborough was the centre of a great lumbering industry. And now, how little remains of it all. From the time of first settlement until this very day, the forests here and elsewhere have been abominably treated. Pioneers burned the trees to clear land. Lumber merchants chopped everything before them, for quick profits. They cared not at all if there were any trees left for future generations. Today, in this area (except in the far north of the county and in Haliburton where there is useful scrub and a few good stands of second and third growth), a forest is a thing of the past, and not even woodlots have survived the ravages of the short-sighted axe-slingers.

True, some notable steps in preservation and reforestation have been taken in Peterborough, Durham and neighbouring counties, demonstration woodlots reserved, a county forest planned and planted. But the old ruthless independent be-damned-to-anybody-else spirit still survives, even here, and despite the sorry story of our woods. When an attempt was made a couple of years ago to bring Peterborough county under provisions already set up in Queen's Park, regulations restricting cutting, there was a howl of protest. Why should a farmer not be able to do as he pleases with trees that are on his own property? The plain answer, evident in local history and in Durham-Northumberland, was not accepted. Woods are still cut over, without care for replacement, and covered land still is made barren, open to erosion of winds and rains.

The s[illegible]ion in southern Ontario was well covered by the Select Committee on Conservation, of 1950. The White Paper tabled yesterday is primarily concerned with the forest areas to the north, the depleted great pineries of the Ottawa-Huron area. The Paper presents the case—that within the next twenty years there will be no red and white pine stands at all, and the sawmill industry will be a thing of the past, unless action to rectify the condition is taken. It presents the remedy, in several forms, under a comprehensive forest management plan, together with a ten-year concentrated development, to stop ruthless cutting, and to replenish the stands. New techniques in reforestation and new methods of cutting and the use of different woods (to spare the pine), are suggested.

The matter is very important. Is the once-great and lucrative lumbering industry of Ontario to wither completely, in an age when most other industries are flourishing as never before? Previous statements from the industry and the Department of Lands and Forests had led us to believe that over-cutting was a thing of the past. The White Paper by implication indicates that it is still being done. It is a lamentable thing that in this day and age, Ontario's commercially valuable forests are not under a modern system of sustained-yield management, that there is still no over-all, enforced, system to ensure perpetual supply, and perpetual forests.

One item in the White Paper should raise eyebrows: That all provisions of the Crown Timber Act and regulations concerning management plans be fully enforced. This means that they have not been fully enforced. Why not? Why has the Ontario Government, or its officers, allowed operators in the forests to side-step or ignore the regulations already made which, in a limited way attempt to protect Ontario's forests from the robbery which has razed so many of them in the last century? It seems apparent that not only new regulatio but the will to enforce them are necessary.

If a sensible forest management policy results from this session of the Ontario Legislature that only will be enough to mark it as a valuable session, and se it down in history as an important one.

A Matter Of Definition

Although many people use words carelessly, there has probably never been a time in history when there has been so much fuss about the use of certain words as the present. Particularly on the North American continent we are experts at finding innocuous words for disagreeable things. For instance, a Liberal M.P., Charles Henry of Rosedale-Toronto, has complained that a film made by the Film Board, called Farewell, Oak Street is 'deeply offensive to the human dignity of many Canadians'; the film shows the clearance of an area in Toronto in order that a new housing development may be put in, and the area before clearing was referred to as a 'slum'. Apparently 'slum' is a very offensive word in Mr. Henry's lexicon.

'Slum' is not, of course, a pretty word, but it does not describe a pretty thing. Is it really better to call a slum a 'low-rental area' or something of that kind? Should a slum tenement be called a 'multiple family dwelling unit', and is human dignity any better served by such a sweet-tasting mouthful? We cannot agree that this is so. We believe in plain words for plain things. If a slum exists, let us call it a slum and get rid of it. Call it 'a low-cost housing area' and it is much too easy to forget about it.

We find that there are many people who do not believe that slums, re slums, exist in Canada. Of course, your opinion depends on what your definition of a slum is; Canada can produce some bad living conditions, and we have seen them, although we do not think that we have seen the worst. Even in Peterborough there are people living in conditions which are certainly offensive t human dignity. A slum is any dirty, run-down, crowded place where people live. We cannot banish slums by insisting that they be called something else.

Railways, Pave Up

The condition of the road surface at nearly every railway crossing in Peterborough is atrocious. A foot on either side of the tracks, and between the tracks, there are humps, dips, cracks, holes and gouges that would give a Model-T the heeby-jeebies. More sensitively-sprung cars crack up—at least their springs do. So do the drivers and their passengers. Even big trucks, tough as they make 'em, are taking to pussy-footing across railway tracks in town, because even they cannot stand the wrenching and listing the paving at the tracks puts them to.

We cannot name all the bad crossings, there are too many of them. But it is indeed shocking—every way—that the C.P.R. crossing at George Street should be left as it is, that the crossings at Park Street below the C.G.E. should be bad, that Reid Street C.N.R. crossing is worse than a field of dragons' teeth. These are crossings on main thoroughfares. Bad examples of lesser crossings are everywhere about town—for instance, the Bethune Street line at Hunter.

The responsibility for maintaining the paved surface at these crossings smooth and even is the railways'. It is railway property impinging on public thoroughfares. The public has a right to demand that the railway companies get busy and repair the crossings. The city officials should see to it that the C.P.R. and the C.N.R. know that Peterborough people are as agitated by the railway's neglect as their bones are by the shaking-up they get at every crossing.

A Grievance On Fleet Street

By KENNETH HARRIS

RECENTLY the editor of the "Daily Sketch," a tabloid newspaper under new management, and with a circulation of about three quarters of a million, commissioned a film criticism from a well-known British journalist called Tom Hopkinson. Hopkinson was once editor of Britain's "Picture Post," which was the nearest thing Britain has ever had to the "American Life". Hopkinson wrote the criticism and gave this film a caning. The editor of the "Sketch" made several alterations in the piece, and added a paragraph of favourable comment which he wrote himself; and the revised piece appeared in the newspaper.

When Mr. Hopkinson read this review, appearing under his own name, he wrote a letter of protest to the editor. The editor wrote back saying that he had given instructions that the revised review was to appear without Mr. Hopkinson's name on it, and he apologised for the mistake. He added he thought Mr. Hopkinson's criticisms had not done justice to the film, and mentioned that he, the editor, and his paper had been associated with the making of the film.

MR. HOPKINSON made several attempts to get this matter ventilated, but several newspapers and periodicals which he tackled declined to act as ventilators. Eventually he consulted Mr. Randolph Churchill, only son of Sir Winston, who is writing a column for another daily newspaper, the recently-founded "Recorder." Mr. Randolph Churchill, who has often complained bitterly about what he calls the unhealthy "Dog don't eat dog" behaviour of the British Press, agreed to ventilate the matter. He gave a complete account of the business in his column, together with copies of the letters which Mr. Hopkinson had written and received throughout the affair. Indeed, he acted less like a ventilator than a power-driven electric fan.

We are still waiting to see what happens next. Britain has a Press Council made up of people in the newspaper business, but nobody seems to know whether the Press Council does very much, or whether, if it does do anything, the newspapers report any of its transactions which reflect on any of their number.

✧ ✧ ✧

MANY PEOPLE here will want this matter further investigated. Britons are inclined to be smug about their achievements at times; but they are not smug enough to live with even the slightest suspicion that the British Press's reputation as the finest in the world could be due to the loyalty with which its members refuse to print anything which could be held to be critical of one another's newspapers.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE COMMUNIST daily newspaper, the "Daily Worker", is trying to arrest the decline in its circulation.

Its biggest drop was in the winter of 1952-53. At that time, people in this country were shocked by the trials in Czechoslovakia, from which it was clear that the Communists were using anti-Semitism as a political weapon. A friend of mine who follows British Communism closely believes the decline in "Daily Worker" sales were due to disgust with what was going on in Czechoslovakia on the part of many British Communists — people who had joined the Party in the mid-thirties, mainly to fight the anti-Semitism of the British Fascist movement led by Sir Oswald Moseley.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS OPINION is certainly fortified by the "Worker's" latest move to jack up its circulation, which is to appoint Mr. Phil Piratin as its circulation manager. Phil Paratin came into the public eye in the middle 'thirties when Communism was spreading in London's East End — it was mainly an answer to the spread of the anti-Semitic Fascist movement in the same area. Piratin, a brave, tough, pugnacious, cunning character, commanded the Communists in the great street fighting of October, 1936, by which the Blackshirts were prevented from making their much-threatened march through the East End streets.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE "Worker" is, of course, the Party's chief political weapon in this country. In 1947 its circulation reached more than 120,000. Last July it was around ninety-one thousand and at Christmas it had dropped to about eighty-eight thousand. This must be worrying the Party a lot; according to the Communists' own analysis, circulation should, in view of the strikes and wages conflicts, be distinctly on the up-grade. Party membership, too, continues to drop slightly. It is now about thirty-five thousand. Peak year was 1944, when it was 47,513.

ACTING as guide to visitors from abroad would not, one might think, be a very exacting vocation. That is not the opinion of the British Travel and Holidays Association. To win the association's "Registered Guide" badge — only seventeen men and nine women have won it this year — one has to take a stiff three months' course and pass an examination at the end of it.

There is a written paper calling for a wide knowledge of history and architecture and the topography of modern London. But much worse, I think, is the practical examination. This year, the entrants were asked among other things, how they would deal with (a) a persistent hawker who was trying to sell souvenirs to a group the guides were trying to hurry along to the next "sight"; (b) a member of the party who repeatedly contradicts what the guide tells and who, when he isn't contradicting, maintains a conversation in a loud voice, and (c) a member of the party who is always late rejoining the coach after it has made a stop. (c) seems to me to be the only question I could answer. Just leave the awkward so-and-so behind.

BRITAIN'S latest divorce figures are striking. In the five-year period 1946-50, the average number of petitions filed was 38,901. The previous five-year period saw 16,075 filed. In the period 1921-25, there were 2,848.

Many causes have contributed, but one prominent one is the much greater availability of advice about how to get divorced quickly, cheaply and quietly. Britain's Legal Aid Advice Act was not passed until 1949, but aid and advice, particularly from Army chaplains and welfare officers, became much more available as a result of the Second World War.

THE RECENT Government statement that there is a connection between smoking and lung cancer gives a certain added interest to the news of the death of Mrs. Mercy Coffee, who died in hospital after having been allowed to have a daily smoke of rough shag tobacco in a cob pipe for the last seven years. She had been smoking since the age of eighteen, normally consuming a little over an ounce a day. She died aged 101. Her mother lived to be 104; her grandmother to be one hundred.

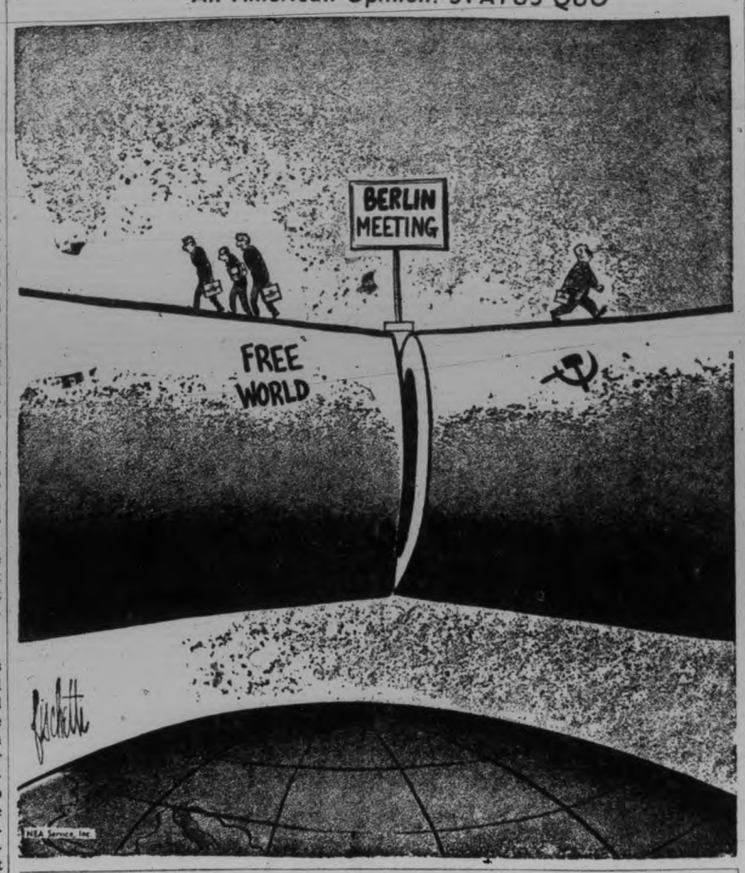
An American Opinion: STATUS QUO



Oddly Enough

By PAUL JENNINGS

THERE are moments in even the busiest urban life when our relationship with the city is suddenly changed. A meeting ends early, we have time off to see a doctor or solicitor—whatever it is, for a couple of hours we stroll, we are relaxed, we possess the city, instead of ourselves being held in the grip of its routine. In summer, light winds move through the warm streets, reminding us of our trade with the hot lands, the bales of calico, the boxes of spice. In winter, the afternoon sky goes a heavy pink, the lights come on, we are wrapped in a northern dream of gaiety under the chandeliers. The city has the irrationality of a flower, the power of a volcano.

But such a mood cannot be deliberately invoked. It must come by accident, although we do at least know that we must be on foot, for only thus can we emulate the casual, sideways motion of butterflies, or of bees, drinking the city's nectar. Wheeled things go in a straight line, to infinity; you cannot cover a city, or have any part of it, on wheels. . . .

I WAS ON FOOT. I was in Grosvenor-square, just after lunch, and my next date was in Lower Regent-street, at three-fifteen, when this delicious mood suddenly arrived. I walked past the great bulbous cars outside the American Embassy— cars with windscreen wipers at the back, cars which, if the wrong person opens the door, blow their horns and make lights come on, cars with strange peaks over the windscreen, for all the world like rather awful golfers' caps. Somehow the thought of America made me feel more autumnal and mellow than ever, and I had the absurd feeling that it was I, personally, who had invited them to park their cars in my Grosvenor-square. I felt so expansive, I would have liked to ask one of them large general questions about how they liked London, or to have an, amiable discussion about the beautiful, complementary balance between the Englishman's distrust of machinery and the American's faith in it. However, I didn't know anyone in the Embassy, and just then I found I was outside an advertising agency where I used to work; I went in and demanded, like an emperor, to see one of my friends there do his famous Joke.

How satisfactory it was, to see them all working, and to interrupt them! It was five years since I had seen my friend's Joke, and it was well worth waiting for. Briefly, what he does is to act his contention that the banquet scene in MacBeth, where Macbeth sees the ghost of the murdered Banquo, is the silliest scene ever written.

My friend, who is a deceptively solemn-looking character from North Wales, imitates all the people mouthing and smiling at each other over the banqueting table, quaffing cold tea from stage goblets, talking politely about Arsenal's chances, and then suddenly Macbeth goes absolutely mad, clawing at the air, seeing this ghost. Lady Macbeth kicks him under the table, hissing "Shut up, you fool!" under her breath, while she turns to the guests, with a frozen smile and says sweetly, "My lord is often thus, and hath been from his youth"— and they always just shrug their shoulders, as if to say mildly, "H'm what's eating him?" and get on with the stage eating. As I say, I had seen my friend do this before, but it had never seemed so funny as this time.

AFTER THAT, I tried stranger, more exotic blooms of the city. I went into odd little art galleries, where I was the only visitor, a piece of the Public blown like a leaf into these places where artists, with their alarmingly integrity and their veiled, secret way of look at you when you use words, shout out quietly that the world is not at all what it seems. The city also played up by presenting me with a beautiful street drama, a splendid row between the crossest kind of taxi-driver and a man who had merely done something that taxis themselves are always doing— making a U-turn in the street.

But, best of all, the city arranged that I should meet, one after the other, three more friends. It was like being in eighteenth-century London, with the illusion that we were all walking about gracefully saluting one another, like people in the early part of a ballet. And it was then that I thought what a good idea to apply the Famagusta plan to London.

For what they do, in this admirable town, every Sunday night from six to eight, is to prohibit all traffic from certain main streets, for the sole purpose of allowing people to walk up and down, meet their friends, and have Turkish coffee in the middle of the road. Why should we not do this in central London—not only on Sunday nights but all the time? Think of it, a wonderful quiet area from Park Lane to Charing Cross-road, from the Mall to Oxford-street, full of beautiful people, relaxed, shining, talking animatedly or gravely to one another. We had a hint of what it would be like on the nights preceding the Coronation, when the Mall was, simply a great promenade, a susurrus of strollers, a murmuration of mortals.

Is not this what cities are for? And do not think it would slow up business. A week later I had to do the same journey by car, and it took longer.

IGNORANT

A lion was out walking and decided to ask the other animals who was king.

After going round most of the animals, all of whom said, "You are king, O lion," he came to the elephant and asked, "Elephant, who is king?"

The elephant picked up the lion in his trunk and smashed him to the ground. The lion, getting up and walking away, said, "All right, there's no need to get mad because you don't know the answer."

Bible Message

(From The Authorized Version)

Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together she was found with child of the Holy Ghost. Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a public example, was minded to put her away privily.

But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins. Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us.

Then Joseph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife: and knew her not till she had brought forth her firstborn son: and he called his name JESUS. ((Matt. 1:18-25.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth, (as there be gods many, and lords many,) but to us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him. (I Cor. 8:5,6.)

Novarro Fans

(Winnipeg Free Press)

The films made by Ramon Novarro 30 years ago, today are museum pieces. Among those under 40 years of age only the film specialists would remember him. And to many over 40 years he would only be a name — dimly and uncertainly remembered.

Yet, Mr. Novarro was one of the great lovers of the early screen. He starred in such films as The Pagan, The Arab, Ben Hur, Scaramouche, Romance, Call of the Flesh, etc. etc. In his day, when he went abroad crowds of palpitating females followed him, obstructing traffic and otherwise behaving much as today's bobby-soxers behave over the present crooners and swooners.

The other day Mr. Novarro arrived at London, went to a hotel and registered without arousing so much as a flicker of interest. His purpose was to gather together at a private dinner the survivors of the Novarro Fan Club which 30 years ago numbered its members in the thousands. Nineteen survivors turned out to greet the greying film actor, now a plump 50 and still a bachelor. London scarcely noticed Mr. Novarro. Of such stuff is film popularity.

River Contamination

(The Brooks Bulletin (Alta.)

Prince Albert citizens are the latest to be up in arms over contaminated water. It seems that industrial concerns in Edmonton drain surplus fluids into the North Saskatchewan river, which is the source of Prince Albert's domestic water supply. The citizens of the latter city say that now the water tastes like "burned plastic laced with old oil." They want the contamination stopped.

The people in the towns along the Bow river below Calgary have had a similar complaint for long years. But they've never been able to rectify the situation. Calgary continues to dump sewage into the Bow river.

It would appear that the large cities have too much political power. If a small town followed such a practice to the menace to health of a large city drastic action would be taken forthwith.

Russian Doctors Practise Medicine At Age of 23 Years

By BILL BOSS

MOSCOW (CP) — Russian doctors, 60 per cent whom are women, begin practising medicine at the age of 23.

They start their medical studies at 17, on graduation from their 10-grade schools — equivalent of Canada's public and high schools but wrapped up in one system.

By 21, after the fourth year of their six year course, they are delivering babies, performing "routine" operations such as appendectomies, dressing injuries, excising cysts and lancing boils.

The system which gets doctors to work so early in life was described by Professor Victor B. Rachmanov, dean of the First Moscow (Order of Lenin) Medical Institute.

COMPARABLE STANDARDS

Dr. Rachmanov, who visited Montreal and Toronto in 1946 during a North American visit to study methods that might be incorporated into the Soviet pattern, said he found academic standards comparable between the two countries.

His institute, one of two in Moscow, is the oldest in Russia. It graduates about 700 doctors a year and present enrolment is 3,375. It admits between 600 and 900 students to the first year.

A fair-sized town in the heart of Moscow, the institute has 49 chairs, each with its own building. Moscow's Second Medical Institute, said Rachmanov, is as large and has as many students.

BIG MEDICAL SCHOOLS

He said there are 75 medical institutes throughout Russia, producing between 24,000 and 25,000 doctors annually. All the universities in Russia in 1913, he said, produced 1,000 doctors. He said associated nursing schools graduate between 200,000 and 300,000 nurses yearly.

Forty nationalities are represented in Rachmanov's student body, including Korean, Chinese and Viet-Minh. There are at least 16 nationalities in the U.S.S.R. alone.

The institute has 20 students from North Korea, trained at state expense and, like those from China and Viet-Nam, receiving double the usual students' stipend. "They are very capable," he said, "and a Korean was one of our top students last year."

Students are either graduates of 10-grade schools, graduates of seven-grade schools who later took technical training and had three years' practice, or transfers from universities elsewhere.

All candidates except medallists —who automatically qualify for admission—must try entrance examinations.

WOMEN PREDOMINATE

The 60-40 proportion of women to men is maintained through graduation to practice and in the still higher brackets.

"Women are pushing men from this profession," he said. "It is a field whose practitioners should be affectionate, sympathic and painstaking. These are psychological factors particular to women."

The six-year course approximately parallels Canada's except that students go into clinics during the third year instead of the fourth.

"After the fourth year they are sent to hospitals for their vacation periods and sometimes do 20 or 30 operations during that month. The students operate, the doctors as[illegible]to them assist."

Rachmanov delivered his first baby when he was 20, alone and at night.

Medical ethics as such are not taught. Throughout the course the students study the principles of Marxism and Leninism, and there is a course in the organization of the Soviet medical system. They must study one foreign language and Latin is obligatory.

For its clinical work the institute has 1,700 beds. In addition, 2,000 Moscow hospital and clinic beds are allocated for students' studies. There are 107 hospitals in Moscow and the nearby Tula area for the students to work in during summer.

There are as many more for the Second Institute.

Admit Doctor Failed Treat Injured Child

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for Toronto East General Hospital said today a doctor allowed a six-week-old child, brought into the hospital Saturday from a traffic accident, to be released without attending to the baby's broken leg.

He said the doctor had been working all night "and men are not machines." The doctor, whose name was not disclosed, was "very much upset" by the incident.

The infant and its parents, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Bradley, both 18, were brought to hospital early Saturday after the truck in which they were riding and another vehicle collided.

Mrs. Bradley said she and her husband were treated for cuts. She demanded "something should be done about the doctor who told me my baby could go home."

The apprenticeship clause will be submitted to arbitration.

Having Liquor

LINDSAY (ENS) — William Hoar, 25, of Lindsay, was fined $15 and $2.50 costs in police court Monday when he appeared on a charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence. He pleaded guilty through his lawyer M. J. Cunningham.

No evidence was offered by police, but Chief John Hunter told the court Hoar had a previous conviction under the same charge and also a conviction of supplying liquor to a minor within the last year.

Argo, 62, assistant vice-president of traffic for Canadian lines, is appointed deputy vice-president of traffic for the system, and Douglas I. Grant, secretary of the company, who has been closely associated with the management of the railway, moves up to the president's office as executive assistant. Robert H. Tarr, assistant secretary, succeeds to the position of secretary.

Family Of 20 Pays $60 Week For Food

LEDGES, N.B. (AP)—A placid mother who has had 25 children in her 26 years of married life says "every new baby is easier."

"After having so many it is easier to handle them," said Mrs. Marie Cyr, 42-year-old wife of farmer Heliodore Cyr.

The latest, Diane, was born recently in a Fort Kent, Maine, hospital, 12 miles from the border.

Her advent evened the score at nine boys and nine girls. Seven of the children have died. There are no Cyr twins or triplets. All were single births.

All but one live at home in the 11-room farmhouse. Aubert, 24, the eldest, is married and has a home of his own.

The other children range in age from five to 21.

Farmer Cyr raises beef, pork, poultry, cows for milk, buckwheat flour, oats, potatoes and hay.

WEEKLY FOOD BILL $60

Though they buy only 50 pounds of meat a year, food costs run to $50 or $60 a week. Most of the bread is home-baked, a lot of it for school lunches.

Mrs. Cyr serves 60 meals a day in the big kitchen. The family eats 15 pounds of butter a week, a case each of tomato juice, tomatoes and canned corn.

They go through 200 pounds of flour and 100 pounds of sugar a month.

The 400-acre farm has electricity but no luxuries. The family has a big deep freeze for food storage. There is a piano, which three girls play, and a guitar, which several can strum.

There are nine bedrooms, some with two beds.

Papa Cyr, 47, cuts timber as the financial mainstay of his big brood. He also makes 500 pounds of maple sugar each year, half of it for his own family.

GIVEN MANY CLOTHES

Many of the clothes are hand-me-downs given the Cyrs. Lillian, 18, who will be married in June, bought her first store coat last year, when she began to earn money.

"It takes a lot of shoes for weekdays and Sunday wear," said Mrs. Cyr. "And overshoes and rubbers. There is always someone in the family that needs some."

The Cyrs now get $75 a month in family allowance.

Baby Diane was the first of the Cyr children to be born in a hospital. All the other babies were born at home.

Car Motor Dead Driver Freed

LINDSAY (ENS) — Magistrate R. I. Moore Monday ruled in police court that a car would not be considered a "motor vehicle" under the law when it could not be operated by the driver. He therefore dismissed a charge of being in care and control of a motor vehicle while intoxicated against Clarence Thornberry of Woodville. Judgement in the case had been reserved for a week.

Thornberry was found behind the wheel of his car on February 7 by a police officer in Lindsay. The battery on the car was dead, and two of Thornberry's friends were attempting to start it by pushing it.

The officer arrested Thornberry, and had the car towed to the police parking lot, without trying to start it. Col. Moore in dismissing the charge, stated that if the officer had been able to start the car, either by pushing it with another vehicle, or having the youths push it, he would have been convicted. As it was, he held that the Crown had not proved the car would run, and that under a 1947 amendment to the criminal code, could not be classed as a motor vehicle under the law.

The magistrate then convicted Thornberry on a previous charge, of failing to remain at the scene of an accident on January 31. Defence Counsel A. T. Lacey argued that the summons for the charge had not been served in the 15-day period prescribed by law, but the magistrate held that he had granted an extension of the period when police officers could not locate Thornberry. The fact that Thornberry had been apprehended on the second charge and appeared in court since did not alter the magistrate's judgement.

Thornberry pleaded guilty to the charge. He had knocked over a parking meter on Kent street on January 31, according to police evidence. Damage to the meter was estimated at $8.

"I would have given you $50 on this charge," commented Magistrate Moore, "but when I heard that the town hadn't even repaired the meter before now I gathered they didn't care." He fined Thornberry $35 and costs of $15.50 or 30 days on the charge.

Pakistan Asks U.S. For Military Aid

KARACHI (Reuters) — Premier Mohammed Ali today announced Pakistan has asked the United States for military aid to strengthen her armed forces.

He said the request for military aid has been made under the U.S. mutual assistance program in the last two days. No amount was specified.

Pakistan has previously admitted to informal talks on the question of U.S. military aid. First reports several weeks ago on the talks brought outright condemnation from the Soviet press and expressions of deep concern from India's Premier Nehru.

Ali last month denied Russian allegations that the United States is planning to build military bases on Pakistan soil.

Hide Behind Counter Thieves Take Jewelry

OTTAWA (CP)—Thieves hiding behind a counter in view of passersby Sunday night lifted about $4,000 worth of jewelry from a shop less than 40 yards from the suburban Eastview police station.

The robbery in the lighted shop was discovered about 9 p. m. Police said the thieves must have reached from behind the counters to escape detection from people glancing in the windows on the busy street.

The thieves missed another $6,000 worth of jewelry and a safe containing valuable diamond rings.

Longest Strike Cracks In Kitchener

KITCHENER (CP)—The longest strike in Kitchener's history cracked slightly Monday when three employees of a striking force of 70 returned to work at the Canada Skate Manufacturing Company.

The three men were escorted through a picket line by police. There was no trouble.

The 70 employees, members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL), walked out last May 14 in demands for an eight-cent-an-hour wage increase, and union security.

R. C. Bauer, general manager, said production is to begin again in one line of skates. He said he couldn't use the 70 men if they wanted to return, because the company has lost most of its contracts to foreign markets.

Ask Bank Of Canada Given More Credit Control

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government Monday asked Parliament to give the Bank of Canada more control over credit issued by Canada's chartered banks.

Another provision in a series of amendments to the Bank of Canada Act, introduced in the Commons by Finance Minister Abbott, would tend to strengthen the central bank's influence over prices on the country's bond markets.

A third change—previously announced—would enable the Bank of Canada to make short-term loans to the chartered banks on the security of insured mortgages on which they will be allowed to lend home-building money for the first time under housing legislation now before Parliament.

The central organization's powers over bank credit would be bolstered by an amendment giving it authority to shift the ratio of cash reserves which each bank must maintain in relation to its total deposits.

At present, the banks must by statute keep on hand five per cent of the amount of deposits. In practice, they usually hold about 10 per cent.

Mr. Abbott's figure would set the minimum between eight and 12 per cent and allow the Bank of Canada to adjust the current figure within that range.

This could have the effect of increasing or reducing the flow of bank credit, by freeing more money for loans or causing the banks to call in money out on loan.

Russians Make Card Complaint

MOSCOW (AP) — How would you like to get 18 New Year's greeting cards from 18 different persons in 18 towns and find them all of the same design—whether from Minsk, Pinsk, or Vladivostok?

To make it worse, the card was rather simple and unimaginative.

This complaint was voiced by a Soviet citizen in a recent letter published in the Literary Gazette. The letter said there were only five designs for New Year's cards which the government printed to meet the needs of Russia's approximately 200,000,000 citizens. Even in Moscow many foreign residents found only two designs, and one of these was either quickly sold or withdrawn.

The complaining letter described the card received in such numbers:

"Two rosy-cheeked youngsters sitting on a sled and waving a red flag and a Grandfather Frost (Russian equivalent of Santa Claus) in blue with a red belt, waving his hand to them as he stands near fir trees."

Prepare Nets For Fishing

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Clear water on the lakes and the approach of Lent has spurred commercial fishermen in Lake Erie and Lake Huron ports to prepare their boats and nets for the fishing season which opens March 1.

Fishermen said only severe cold weather that would freeze the lake could delay the opening.

Most rivers and streams along the shore were reported flowing freely, having discharged their ice during recent floods. Ice fields were reported offshore in some areas but enough clear water was left for fishing.

Good prices are expected for the first catches because fish prices usually rise during lent when many persons give up eating meat.

Semi-Finals And The Finals Best-Of-Seven Sets In OHA Senior 'B' Grouping

Both the semi-final and the final series in the Central Ontario OHA senior "B" group will be best-of-seven sets staged in March, it was decided at a group meeting held here last night under Lorne Cook and Frank Buckland of the OHA. All five clubs were represented, though Belleville did not make playoffs. The finals between the two winners of the semi-final series will open March 17 and must declare a winner by March 27 to go into provincial playdowns. These two clubs will arrange their own dates for play. A financial claim by Belleville was settled before the discussion turned to playoff schedules, and a motion by Orillia to make clubs play on home ice or, if home ice is not available, either on the rival club's ice or on the nearest available, was defeated three to two.

START NEXT WEEK

Semi-finals will start early next week, the regular schedule concluding this Saturday. As it will not be known for several days yet how the clubs will finish in the standing, and the playoffs calling for first team vs. No. 4, while second team plays No. 3, various tentative tables had to be drawn up for the semi-final dates. But all clubs must be in action by next Wednesday, and efforts will be made to complete the best-of-seven semi-final sets in two weeks, even if four games have to be played in one week.

If the clubs finish according to the present standing, Oshawa will be meeting Kingston, and they play first in Bowmanville on March 2, alternating then between Kingston and Bowmanville on March 3-6-8-10-13 with a seventh, if necessary, on March 15. If it should be Petes vs. Kingston, they would open in Peterborough and go on March 3-6-8-10-12-13-15 if it went seven games. If such a series opened in Kingstond, the dates would be March 1-3-6-8-10-12-13.

IT ALL DEPENDS

Should it be Orillia vs. Kingston with Orillia finishing higher, they would open in Orillia and alternate on March 1-3-6-8-10-13-15. If it was Orillia vs. Petes, they would have a simliar schedule except Orillia would be at Peterborough March 12 instead of March 13, and they might stage a seventh if necessary on March 13, instead of March 15. But if Petes finished higher and played Orillia, they would open here and alternate on these dates: March 3-5-6-8-10-13-15. Provided Kingston finished ahead of Petes and played them, they would start in Kingston March 1 and go March 3-6-8-10-12-13.

Thus it can be seen that there are many angles and no definite announcements may be made till toward the end of this week. However, these tentative schedules will go into effect when the final standing is known. In case of a tie in the standing, the team with the best goal average is placed highest.

Norwood Loses To Brooklin; May Protest

Norwood midgets who lost their third-round midget "D" playoff with Brooklin oMnday night may protest the series on the grounds that regulation time wasn't played in the first game.

Brooklin won the two-game points-to-count series with two wins, defeating Norwood 12-9 Monday at the Civic arena, and winning the first game in Stouffville last week 9-4.

If the protest is lodged (it must be laid by today noon), it will be on the grounds that stop-time wasn't played in the first two periods of the first game.

Four playoff games were played that day at the Stouffville rink and to get all the games played the Norwood-Brooklin game had to be played in 70 minutes. Therefore the first and second periods were 15 minutes straight time and the last period stop time.

Also in that first game the Norwood team was weakened by the loss of Bob Hannivan, a star all season with the team. He broke his ankle early in the first period, leaving Norwood's first line weak.

John Herr and Wilf Smith scored in the first period for Norwood oMnday night as Brooklin took a 4-2 lead on goals by Neil Parco, Stu Jones, Ken Roberts and B. Baldwin.

Brooklin kept the lead throughout the second period as Parco scored twice and Paul Tran, Baldwin and Jones added singles. Neil Telford with two goals and Fred Morgan with one kept Norwood within striking distance as the period ended 9-5.

HAT TRICK

But the third period was Norwood's. Jim Byers sparked a rally with three goals for a hat trick as Smith scored again. This allowed Norwood to outscore Brooklin 4-3, as Parco, Jones and P. Tran scored three to keep Brooklin out in front to win the game and the round.

Unless Norwood's protest is good, Brooklin will now meet Nobleton, last year's champions. Norwood had previously eliminated Cooper and Minden.

Lineups:-

Norwood — Goal, Scott; defence, Telford, Heffernan; centre, Byers; wings, Smith Morgan; alternates, Thompson, Herr, Bland Millet, Mullan, McManus.

Brooklin — Goal, Johnston; defence, M. Jones, Roberts; centre, E. Tran; wings, H. Tran, P. Tran; alternates, Baldwin, Mulberry, McDuff, Parco, S. Jones and Grady.

Olive Downer Leads

In the last Wednesday afternoon bowling loop play by girls, Olive Downer had high single of 226 as Mary Young had 241 and 233 in her 629 total. Eager Beavers took three points from Wildcats, Rockets three from Bombers, Whizz Bangs three from Cisco Kids and Tornadoes three from Terrors. Two each were taken by Dinkies over Happy Gang, and Playfairs over Ramblers.

Better scores: O. Downer 584, M. Downer (211) 564, O. Watson (233) 561, P. Jackman 554, C. Pilling (247) 553, E. Roberts (227 and 221) 552, D. Martin (201) 548, K. Alcock (200) 526, H. Heckman (216) 524, F. Kokesh (206) 515, E. Ranesbottom 503 and a single of 211 by L. Woods.

249 Entries For Badminton Championships

By DON MATHESON

VANCOUVER (CP)—The annual Canadian battle of the birds starts here today with 149 individual competitors on hand for the Canadian badminton championships.

A total of 249 entries were in when the lists closed as the players doubled up in various competitions in the four-day event.

All the current titleholders will be in action on the six courts of the Vancouver Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club.

Past masters of the feather touch on hand are led by defending men's singles champion Don Smythe of Toronto, a former Balmy Beach football player, and at 29 Canada's top player.

Top-seeded Smythe was joined in the seedings by seven others, in order: Bev Wescott, Toronto, Ontario singles champ in 1953 and runner-up this year; Daryl Thompson, Vancouver, a former Canadian champion; Jack Muir, Toronto, Dave McTaggert, Vancouver, Tom Matthews, Winnipeg, John Bouck and Bruce Benham, both of Vancouver.

A belated Valentine to our Quinte columnist friend, whose hockey favorites are gasping their last with a playoff spot just out of reach:

No tax on imports, so 'tis said,
Where Quinte hockey's concerned:
But no playoffs to lift 'em out of the red,
So Bellevillians are burned.

But Belleville fame will rise again,
Scribe Carver says — or as much as —
And we agree, but it won't be
Till the Petes are all on crutches!

Actually, we're just kidding as the Memos made a gallant run of it in recent weeks before losing their last chance of catching the playoffs. They had tough luck in dropping a lot of close decisions after beating every club in the group from time to time. So now the scramble is on the final week of scheduled play for final berths. Oshawa and Petes are fighting hard to clinch first place, while Orillia and Kingston are both trying to get out of the fourth-place slot. Petes have Kingston here Friday and then end the schedule the next night in the Limestone City. Group semi-final playoffs in both brackets commence next week.

Most Valuable Player

The Drummond Memorial Trophy will be presented to the Petes' most valuable player of the schedule at Friday's fray. The trophy was put up three years ago by Mrs. Drummond in memory of her hockey-playing husband, who died several years ago. It was first won by Gus Leonard, with Keith Montgomery the runner-up... Last year saw Ray Harding the winning, Chum Fryia being runner-up. This year, who knows? Judges are the newspaper sports scribes and CHEX sportscaster here. Usually there is a merchandise gift for the winner, also, and sometimes a gift as well for the runner-up. Mrs. Drummond may be on hand Friday to make the presentation.

As February nears the end of its 28-day run, the Junior Petes must view with alarm. They'll have to pull up their sox in a hurry here tomorrow night or chances of surviving OHA group finals will be slimmer than a steamrollered skeleton. After leading their group race all season, they slipped to drop the first two games of the best-of-seven final sawoffs and the Oshawa boys out of Port Perry will be trying to rack up another win here Wednesday. It'll be a battle all the way. Our juvenile Aces take on Port Perry here Thursday and the local lads boast a four-goal lead in their OMHA round. No word yet on our bantam or midget Shamrocks' first provincial round.

To Revive The COBL

Senior ball delegates at Belleville on Sunday were pleasantly surprised at the interest shown in a revival of the oldtime COBL. Three clubs made definite entries: Oshawa, Kingston and Belleville. Word was sent that Peterborough, Smiths Falls and Watertown, N.Y., were interested, too, though the latter might create a problem unless they could work a few four-point weekend games in. If the Petes come in, the loop might settle for the old four-club system so popular in past years in Central Ontario, Oshawa, Belleville, Kingston and the Petes. Closing date for entries is March 6 at another session in Bella Villa, a bond for $100 being required from each. The loop won't affiliate with the OBA but teams may do so on their own.

Though he forgot himself once and pulled a "faux pas" on the air, Lefty Gomez stole the show in after-dinner speaking at the recent sports' celebrity dinner in Toronto. El Goofy proved as funny as ever, the former Yankee ace southpaw pitcher having the big audience in gales of laughter at his baseball stories. Batting against Lefty Grove one day, Gomez heard one whistle by him for strike two and he grumbled to the ump: "I thought that one sounded a little low." He got the thumb. One game the first four batters hit solid bingles off him and McCarthy came out to ask the catcher how was Lefty's stuff. "How do I know," Dickey retorted., "I haven't caught a pitch yet." Gomez once got as far as third and asked the coach should he try to steal home. "It's taken you 13 years to get this far," Fletcher snapped, "so why jeopardize your chances now?" Ruth bet El Goofy the latter wouldn't get five hits all season. Lefty got four one day halfway through the season and was ready to spend the $200. But he never got another hit that year. He has hundreds of funny diamond tales.

Montana And Atkins Plan To Take Title

NANJO SINGH

There will be an extended time limit of an hour and a half when the MILLS BROTHERS defend their Canadian Open Tag Team wrestling laurels against FRED ATKINS and HOMBRE MONTANA at the Brock Arena Wednesday. These two heavy-hitting teams battled to a one-hour saw-off here last week. Now, with a 90-minute limit, each side expressed confidence they'd come out on top. The Montana-Atkins combination figure on taking the title, saying the extra time is certainly in their favor. Fans who witnessed last week's match are of the same opinion. NANJO SINGH, the madcap Hindu terror, will meet clever JACK BENCE in the semi-final. The first match looks like a mat classic, with EARL McCREADY opposing speedy PAT FLANAGAN.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Lightning, that vagrant and unpredictable thing which isn't supposed, by theory, to strike twice in the same place, may fool the hockey folks this year.

At the end of the 1938-39 hockey season, Montreal Canadiens finished sixth in a 7-club league. They managed to scrape into the play-offs, but were quickly ousted. It was a bad year for the French-Canadian team, except in one instance: the League's leading point-maker, with 24 goals and 23 assists, was Hector "Toe" Blake, battling left winger. And for his services in out-pointing such greats as Apps, Schmidt, Cowley, Bauer, Schriner, Dillon and Drillon, he won the Hart Trophy, as the player most useful to his team.

As these lines are being penned, there seems to be developing a feeling, perhaps sentimental, that once again a member of the League's lowliest club should be very carefully considered for the coveted award this season. For it is believed that Elwin Ira (Al) Rollins of Vanguard, Sask., the "Thin Man" who guards the Chicago Black Hawks nets, has an excellent chance of winning the award.

Last season, Rollins was second only to Detroit's Gordie Howe in the voting for the "Most valuable player to his team". And if any player has filled that description this season the player is Rollins.

The Hawks have never been known as a defensive-minded team in the postwar years, and manning the nets for them has been too much to handle for several outstanding goalies, like Boston's Sugar Jim Henry, Harry Lumley, now with Toronto, and ex-Bruin Frank (Mr. Zero) Brimsek.

And when you discount the 24 goals scored against Chicago in four games Rollins missed earlier this season, you get a true picture of his value. Two other goalers, including former rookie award winner Jack Gelineau, tried to stem the tide, but in vain.

Tall, slim, poker-faced Rollins is lightning-fast with hands, feet and stick, has perfect reflexes, a keen eye. It was the goaling wizardy of Rollins that carried Hawks, last spring, to their first play-off berth in six years, and forced Canadiens, ultimate Cup winners, into seven games in the semi-finals.

The Hart Trophy award was made before this series, and Rollins might otherwise have won it. But lightning may strike twice, and a member of another lowly team may edge more prominent stars out of the "most valuable" award.

Wings Celebrate Return Home With 3-0 Victory

DETROIT (CP)—Detroit Red Wings celebrated their return home after a near-disastrous road trip Monday night by blanking the Montreal Canadiens, 3-0. Red Wings had scored only two goals in dropping two games to Montreal and tying one with Toronto on their road trip. Monday night they turned back the Canadiens' challenge on first place in the National Hockey League and stretched their margin over Montreal and Toronto to 10 points.

Detroit has only 11 more games to play in the regular schedule, while Montreal has 12 and Toronto 13.

STOPS 20 SHOTS

Terry Sawchuk turned back 20 shots in the Detroit nets in racking up his 12th shutout of the season, tops in the league. Ted Lindsay, Tony Leswick and Metro Prystai provided the scoring punch.

Lindsay opened the scoring for Detroit at 6:25 on a pass from Gordie Howe.

Howe again set up the second goal, by Prystai at 11:39. Jacques Plante, filling in for the injured Gerry McNeil in the Montreal nets, had little chance on the blazing 15-foot drive.

Leswick rounded out the scoring at the 24-second mark of the second period when he poked in a pass from Glen Skov and Red Kelly.

Wins Indoor Title

NEW YORK (AP)—A tall young son of Sweden with lightning reflexes, Sven Davidsson, won the national indoor tennis championship Monday by subduing Denmark's Kurt Nielsen, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4, in the first all-foreign final in 27 years.

The rout took just 67 minutes before a crowd of 1,500.

After a drab first set, the 25-year-old Stockholm volleying wizard took command of the Scandinavian rival he has beaten steadily for the last three years.

Cubs Crush Flyers; Stewart Bags 3 Goals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Five of the six teams in Ontario and Quebec junior hockey action Monday night were second-division clubs. The other one showed why it isn't.

It was visitors' night and home teams couldn't earn a point. Montreal Canadiens, league leaders in the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association Junior league, defeated Galt Black Hawks, cellar-dwellers of the Ontario Hockey Association 3-1 in Galt; Hamilton Cubs romped to a 9-2 victory over the Flyers in Barrie; and Guelph Biltmores defeated the Marquis, cellar-dwellers in the QAHA, 4-2 in Jonquiere, Que.

The Canadiens had a 2-1 margin with one minute left to play in Galt when the Hawks pulled netminder Les Binkley in favor of a sixth attacker. Henri Richard got a breakaway and clinched the game for Montreal. Claude Vinet and Claude Prevost scored the other goals for Canadiens. Eddie Switzer notched Galt's tally.

GAME DELAYED

The game was delayed several times in the first period. Ralph Markarian of the Hawks and Claude Boileau were penalized for roughing and then went at it again in the penalty box. Binkley was hit in the face by a deflected shot and the game was stopped while he took two stitches below the eye. Then Prevost crashed into the Galt goal post and was shaken up.

The Guelph victory in Jonquiere was led by Bill Pirie who scored three of the four goals for the Biltmores. Hillary Menard fired the other one. Jacques Gagne and Fred Carter were the Jonquiere marksmen.

Hamilton's victory over the Flyers at Barrie put the Cubs into a fourth-place tie with Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts. Barrie held a 1-0 lead in the first period but the Cubs went ahead 2-1 before the period ended and never looked back.

STEWART SCORES THREE

Bill Stewart, 19-year-old centre from Peterborough, bagged three goals for the Cubs. Ed Louttit and Joe Zorica added two each and Real Larouche and Marlin McAlendin rounded out the total. Cleland Mortson and John Robertson tallied for Barrie.

Toronto Marlboros play at Kitchener and Galt is at St. Catharines tonight.

Fine Brampton; $300 For Game

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Lacrosse Association has fined the Brampton senior lacrosse club $300 for failure to play a scheduled game at Peterborough last summer.

The OLA executive, at a weekend meeting, turned over the remaining $90 of the Brampton bond (the other $10 going for fees; to the Peterborough club and also ordered Brampton to send an additional $210 to Peterborough.

The OLA executive said Peterborough had not handed over $433 to the association, which was the association's part of senior playoff receipts. The executive told Peterborough nothing would be done with the Brampton claim until Peterborough turned in the $433.

Peterborough accepted the OLA decision, turned over the receipts, and the action against Brampton followed.

Mercurys Blank Tigers 2-0 To Clinch First Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Owen Sound Mercurys not only clinched first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series Monday night but they also decided second place.

The Mercurys, who shut out Hamilton Tigers 2-0 in Hamilton during the only league game, earned their 78th and 79th points with the victory. Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who will finish in second place, have 73 points and only two games remaining.

Since Chatham Maroons can't get any higher than sixth place, last playoff berth in the OHA, three places are yet to be decided before the schedule closes Wednesday night.

Those places could be determined tonight. The fifth-place Stratford Indians play the Mercurys at Owen Sound and if the Mercurys win Stratford will stay in fifth. Hamilton also plays the Bulldogs at Windsor and if either of the two wins Stratford will also stay in fifth. If Hamilton and Windsor, who are currently tied for third place, tie, Stratford still has a chance to catch them.

UNCERTAIN STANDING

If Hamilton loses Windsor is assured of third place but if the Bulldogs drop the game they still could tie for third by defeating the Indians in Stratford in their last game of the season Wednesday.

Elmer Skov shot the goal that clinched first place for the Mercurys. He also added the insurance marker in the third period.

In the only game of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association southern group North Bay Trappers shut out Pembroke Lumber Kings 5-0 in North Bay to move into a third-place tie with the Lumber Kings.

Besides the Stratford - Owen Sound and Hamilton-Windsor contests tonight Kitchener will play the last-place Cataracts in Niagara Falls.

In the NOHA Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Indians are at Pembroke.

32 Mixed Rinks In Lindsay 'Spiel

LINDSAY (CP) — Thirty-two mixed rinks began action Monday in the week-long Lindsay Curling Club's premier event of the season, the annual Gruen-Arden mixed bonspiel.

Rinks in each section will play through two days for winners in the six events, the finals to be held Friday in all events.

Red Sullivan Leading Pack

NEW YORK (CP) — Prosperity finally has come to Eddie Slowinski.

The 32-year-old husky currently leads American Hockey League marksmen with 33 tallies, just 12 more than his best previous total for a full season, compiled with the 1952-53 Rangers. And his sniping has had plenty to do with Buffalo Bisons' steady drive toward the AHL title.

George (Red) Sullivan continued to pull away from the pack in total points scored. The Hershey Bear centre added five points last week to run his total to 90, 15 more than runners-up Eddie Olson and Jack Gordon of Cleveland Barons. Sullivan also held his wide lead in assists with 65.

FIVE PENALTIES

Pittsburgh Hornet rookie Larry Cahan, picked up five minor penalties to increase his league-leading total to 147 minutes in the penalty box.

Jacques Plante of Buffalo was the leading goaltender with an average of 2.69 in 55 games, although he is still with Montreal on emergency duty, replacing injured Gerry McNeil.

Cleveland goaltender Emile Francis led the league in shutouts with four.

Approve Salary Increases For Prime Minister, 21 Cabinet Colleagues

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons has approved salary increases of $10,000 for the prime minister and $5,000 for each of his 21 cabinet colleagues. Two CCF members and the Social Credit group supported the Liberals Monday as the Commons voted 116 to 44 to give second reading, approval in principle, to legislation providing the cabinet its first pay increase since 1920. The bill boosts the prime minister's salary to $25,000 from $15,000 and cabinet salaries to $15,000 from $10,000 effective April 1.

The increases would be on top of a $4,000 increase in parliamentary indemnity, which became law last week, giving all members of the Commons and Senate $10,000 in indemnity and allowance. The two increases would raise over-all pay of the prime minister to $37,000 from $23,000 and cabinet pay to $27,000 from $18,000.

Cabinet members and Opposition Leader Drew receive a $2,000 non-taxable car allowance. Mr. Drew received a $5,000 pay increase along with the boost in indemnity and now gets $27,000, the same as the prime minister whose salary increase has not yet been passed.

BILL APPROVED

The measure Monday also was given clause-by-clause approval and needs only third and final reading before being sent to the Senate.

Second reading of the salaries bill was opposed by Progressive Conservatives, who wanted a select Commons committee or royal commission study of the matter, and by 19 of the 23-member CCF party, who felt the increase was too large.

However, Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) and Thomas Barnett (CCF—Comox Alberni) split from their party and voted for the increases.

Mr. Gillis, former coal miner and union leader, said they were "fair, reasonable and long overdue." Duties of cabinet ministers had increased 500 per cent since the last increase in 1920.

"I wouldn't accept a cabinet post for any money," he said. "There isn't enough money to compensate for the misery you've got to suffer."

Mr. Gillis said the arguments, made by other CCF members, that there should be no pay increase during the present unemployment situation, were not relevant. The only question was whether the cabinet was entitled to more money.

Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver Kingsway) said unemployment and the needs of pensioners are relevant. He had been sent to Parliament to improve the lot of the people, not to vote pay increases for the cabinet.

Acting Prime Minister Howe said that although the honor of a cabinet job means a lot, the pay isn't enough to provide security for a minister's family. The increases had been sought "by three or four older members who are not particularly concerned about their own salary and who no longer have dependents."

Opposition Leader Drew said a flat salary rate for all cabinet members does not recognize differences in individual experience and responsibility.

Finance Minister Abbott, opposed the suggestion of a pay differential among cabinet members. Each minister shared in the collective responsibility for government administration.

Calls McCarthy Sawdust Caesar In Legislature

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A member of the Saskatchewan legislature Monday called Joseph McCarthy, Communist - hunting United States senator, a "sawdust Caesar."

Walter Erb, CCF member for Milestone, said the government should back Premier T. C. Douglas on his stand against McCarthyism. He added:

"I suggest the American and Canadian people must clip the growing feathers of these incipient sawdust Caesars. We do not want an American Gestapo Reich to the south."

W. W. Wahl, CCF member for Qu'Appelle-Wolseley, said during the throne speech debate that social and economic barriers hold Canadian Indians in "concentration camps" in the midst of plenty. He said Indians in Saskatchewan have been forced on semi-relief and some live in mud huts.

DISCUSS COUNTY SYSTEM

At Edmonton, Municipal Affairs Minister C. E. Gerhart predicted that Alberta, organized as a province in 1905, will in time adopt the county system. He added that the proposed fixing of the same boundaries for rural municipal, school and hospital boards is not, however, a subtle way of forcing the county system on Alberta.

A government bill to increase salaries of members of the Manitoba legislature ran into criticism from an opposition member. George Renouf, Progressive Conservative member for Swan River, said the increase in indemnity and expense allowance to $3,000 a year from $2,500 is an "imposition" on the people of the province.

Never Been Tax On Sugar Beets

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott says to his knowledge there has never been a tax on sugar beets in Canada.

Mr. Abbott made the statement Monday in the Commons after E. Blake Huffman (L—Kent) asked him to comment on a story in the London Free Press Feb. 19. The story contained a reference by Opposition Leader Drew in a speech at St. Thomas to "taxes on sugar beets. . . "

Mr. Abbott said:

"There nas never been a tax on sugar beets so far as I am aware. In 1933 by predecessor, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, recommended a tax on sugar and that tax was finally repealed in 1947."

Arrest 3 At Gunpoint For Attempted Robbery

TORONTO (CP) — Three men were arrested at gunpoint Monday in simultaneous raids on their homes and have been charged with the attempted armed robbery two weeks ago of Walter Zazinsky, messenger for the Bradshaw Printing Company.

Police said the men also are being questioned about five recent city hold-ups involving almost $100,000.

One of them, Anthony Deluca, 26, escaped from police custody and was caught after a 10-minute chase. Detective Lloyd Anderson needed hospital treatment after being slugged in the chest.

The other men are Douglas Keist, 24, and Ernest Douglas Greco, 25.

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Women's Progressive Conservative Association Monday decided to ask Premier Frost to have the word "progressive" dropped from the name of the Progressive Conservative party. The Toronto group passed a resolution suggesting the change.

Industry Striving To Find Uses For Waste Woodpile Products

MONTREAL (CP)—Government, university and business research centres are trying to reduce waste in Canada's national woodpile.

Waste is a term that needs definition, says an article in a recent issue of The Oval, published by Canadian Industries Limited.

The pulpwood tree may be waste to the loggers seeking veneer, or fine timber, just as slabs are waste in a veneer mill, or shavings in a planing mill.

All waste cannot now be used because of transportation problems and costs. But research may provide the solution.

Some firms use waste as raw material and in three large Vancouver mills waste from sawmills forms 90 per cent of the material used in newsprint production.

The Hawkesbury, Ont., branch of the International Pulp and Paper Co., has discovered a process to make high-grade pulp for rayon manufacture, using a mixture of hard and soft woods.

The company also is taking steps to assure itself of raw material for the project. Most of the timber is obtained from farm wood lots close to the mills. To encourage the farmers to grow trees as crops the company has established a tree farm where they can learn the latest techniques.

DEMONSTRATE PROCEDURE

Company foresters also visit the wood lots and give demonstrations at county fairs to show correct harvesting procedure.

The magazine says much waste is used as fuel but financial returns are small. A number of minor industries make use of waste material to produce broom handles and lath, spoolwood and bobbins. Shavings also can be pressed into building boards.

Mill owners in British Columbia are using waste material more than ever. Eastern Canadian owners, however, convert only a small part because of the difficulties in handling and transportation.

In pulp mills, practically the only waste is bark and chemical liquid.

Industrial alcohol can also be obtained from the waste pulpwood liquid and one Quebec paper company is recovering nearly 4,000,000 gallons a year from this source.

Ontario Has No Say In Letting Contracts

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will have no control over the letting of contracts during the proposed construction of the natural gas pipe line from Alberta to Ontario, Attorney-General Porter said Monday.

Mr. Porter made the statement in the legislature in reply to a question by E. P. Morningstar (PC—Welland) who asked if the federal government will be in a position to place the order for pipe in Welland, thus relieving the unemployment situation there.

Mr. Morningstar said outside the house 2,500 workers are idle in the Welland area.

Quebec Man Invents Skimobile Defence Department Interested

ARNTFIELD, Que. (CP)—An invention of Sam Laporte of Arntfield, about 40 miles east of Kirkland Lake, may give this northwestern Quebec mining area a new industry.

Laporte is the inventor of the skimobile, a vehicle that automatically adjusts itself to different snow conditions. The department of national defence is conducting rugged tests with the skimobile in the Yukon and if it meets army specifications and standards it could probably mean a contract for more than the six that Laporte has already built.

GAINS TRACTION

Constructed from aluminium, the skimobile is powered by a 25-horsepower motor of German make and can attain a speed of 30-35 miles an hour. The revolutionary design of the vehicle is in its caterpillar tread which forces its way into soft snow to gain traction while the supporting skis rise.

Laporte said he built his first skimobile in 1948 and it is still being used by an Arntfield trapper. It is reported that this first model now has travelled 150,000 miles.

The skimobile weighs 1,200 pounds and is light enough to be carried aboard transport planes and parachuted to earth. The open platform on it can hold 10 or 12 men and can take a 1,500-pound load. It is driven in the same manner as a car.

Mills Still Closed

RENFREW (CP)—M. J. Murray, assistant general manager of M.J. O'Brien, Ltd., has announced that the Renfrew woollen mills of the company will not open again at least until next fall. The mill, which normally employs some 270 men and women, has been closed since last Dec. 18.

Library Board Estimates More For '54

$64,585 Required To Meet Cost Of Running Library

The total estimated expenditure for 1954 submitted to city council by the Public Library board is only slightly higher than the 1953 estimate. Total estimates in 1953 were $62,795, actual expenditures were $63,818.43, and this year's estimate is $64,585. Total increase over last year's estimate is $1,790, and over last year's actual expenditure, $766.57.

This year the board is estimating to use the bank balance, maintained in previous years, now standing at $2,093.84. This accounts for the low increase in estimate.

The actual increase of $766.57 occurs in the library and finance committee estimates. A decrease of $110 occurs in the property committee estimates compared with 1953. Library committee estimate is $1,600 higher than the 1953 estimate and $333.64 higher than the actual expenditures. Finance committee estimate is $300 higher than the 1953 estimate and $165.10 higher than the actual expenditures.

SALARIES UP

Actual increases include $800 in salaries, $528.09 for salaries and maintenance at the branch library and $537.04 for bookbinding.

The major cut in estimated expenditure is $1,000 for microfilming.

Increases of $150 for insurance, $100 for increased postage rates, and $50 for sundries account for the $300 increase in the finance committee estimate.

Many items on the committee estimates had to remain static due to the indecision concerning the proposed renovation of the library building and facilities.

WATCHING HELPLESSLY as this large barn burned with 40 head of cattle, 20 hogs, and two horses are neighbors of A. B. (Jack) Billen who suffered a loss of about $15,000 in the fire in Seymour township Monday night. The Campbellford fire department was powerless against the flames in the barn but prevented them from spreading to a granary and chicken houses. —(W. W. Reid Photo)

40 Cattle, 20 Hogs, 2 Horses Lost In $15,000 Barn Fire

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—A $15,000 fire swept through the barn of A. B. (Jack) Billen, former reeve of Seymour township, five miles east of Campbellford Monday night. Nothing but charred carcasses remained of 40 head of Holstein cattle, 20 hogs due to be shipped next week and two horses. Sixty tons of hay also was destroyed as well as hundreds of dollars worth of farm machinery tools, and equipment. Flames were first noticed at 11:25 p.m. by a neighbor, Harold Milne passing in his car. He had passed a few minutes earlier and noticed nothing. Sounding his horn, Mr. Milne wakened Mr. and Mrs. Billen and their sons William and Leslie. Another neighbor, Kenneth Hagerman, was one of the first on the scene but it was already too late to save very much from the barn.

SAW ANIMALS DIE

Standing by helplessly, Mr. Billen watched while flames blew out one door of the L-shaped barn silhouetting the suffering animals against the night sky. He was able to save only one of his three horses, but none of his other animals, before being forced back by the flames.

The Campbellford fire department was on hand promptly. They could not cope with the barn fire but they did succeed in preventing its spread to a granary and chicken houses nearby.

Neighbors and friends from miles around converged on the scene and formed a bucket brigade to augment the 80-gallon water supply in the Campbellford pumper.

The Billen house, 150 feet north of the barn, was in little danger because the wind was blowing south. Embers from the burning barn were scattered all over a nearby field.

Even after the fire, neighbors were kept busy rounding up 400 chickens, released earlier when the chicken house seemed in danger.

Mr. Billen estimates his total loss at $15,000. His stock was insured but there was only partial insurance on the building. The barn was an L-shaped structure measuring 75 x 30 feet along one side and 30 x 26 along the other. It is located in the 6th Concession of Seymour township.

Music Festival Receives Fewer Entries

The 8th annual Peterborough Kiwanis festival, March 7 to 19, will be held this year in three auditoriums, St. Peter's school, St. Andrew's church and Queen Mary school.

The number of entries has dropped 124 from last year, making for less repititions and therefore of more interest for the audience.

The program this year will include for the first time a piano quartette and a violin duette. The number of violin entries has increased from five in 1953 to 11 this year and while the piano entries are down to 68 (a decrease of 56 over last year), the range competency, if not more extensive, remains constant.

The syllabus, authorized by W. B. Rothwell of Stratford, dictates such piano solo selections as, (Fantasia) from Sonata in C minor (Mozart) and Grillen (Whims Op. 12, No. 4 (Schumann) to Fairy Bells (Dunhill) and Ring O' Roses (Baynon).

There are four choirs registered, all competing in the open category, an increase of one over last year. Solo vocal registrations are about equal to last year at 145. Operatic solos include, "Si, Mi Chiamano Mimi," from La Boheme (Puccini), "Flower Song," from faust (Gounod) and "Celeste Aida," (Verdi).

DISTRICT ENTRIES

A large percentage of registration is made up of pupils from the surrounding districts with applicants from as far away as Toronto. Other towns substantially represented are: Lindsay, Port Hope, Campbellford, Cobourg, Fenelon Falls, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Madoc, Kingston, Millbrook and Norwood.

The two musical adjudicators this year are Ronald Biggs and Frank Odell, both of England. Mrs. Michael Meiklejohn, of Ottawa will be the drama and verse-speaking adjudicator.

Mr. Biggs, making his second appearance here at the Kiwanis festival, is a member of the BBC audience panel and an examiner for the Associated board of Royal Schools of Music. Mr. Odell has the conductorship of the South West (London) Choral Society and has conducted in Belgium, France and Sweden. He is a member of the Royal Society of Musicians and on the central board of the British Federation of music festivals. Mrs. Meiklejohn has been active in the Ottawa Little Theatre group, and is well known throughout Canadian theatre circles.

In the non-musical field, adjudication will be made on Shakespearean and modern drama, public speaking and verse-speaking. Drama selections will include sections from "The Taming of the Shrew," "Romeo and Juliet," (Shakespeare); "The Apple Cart" (Shaw), and "Elizabeth the Queen" (Anderson).

St. Peter's auditorium will be used only March 9 and 10 with the addition of St. Andrew's on the 11th. All activities will again be centred at St. Peter's on the 12th and 13th, and the final three dates (evenings only) will be located at Queen Mary's auditorium.

This year's accompanists are Mrs. G. Wilson Craw and Norman Hurrle. The executive are, president, Bob Bastable, chairman, Norman Armstrong and secretary, Mrs. A. M. Rees.

Awards and scholarships include:

Piano, five scholarships, nine awards; vocal, five scholarships, seven awards; strings, one scholarship, two awards; woodwinds, one award; bands, one award; piano accordion, three awards; verse-speaking, one award; public speaking, one award; drama, one award for modern and Shakespearean.

There are also special cash awards and prizes for choirs and high aggregates for solo performances.

Car Sliced In Two Driver Unharmed

MONTREAL (CP) — Police reported today that Jean Taillefer, 39, of St. Eustache, escaped injury Monday when his car was sliced in two by a Canadian Pacific Railway train.

They said Taillefer was still holding the steering wheel after the rest of the car had been demolished at a crossing.

An automatic gate failed to lower across the road properly.

Defendant Says On Own Side Before Crash

Kenneth George Casselman, 26, of Marmora, went on the stand in his own defence against Ralph Empey's suit for damages against Casselman and his employees today.

Empey, who still walks with a limp, says he suffered a compound fracture of the thigh as a result of a collision between trucks driven by Casselman and Empey on a Hastings county road north of Malone, January 7, 1953. Empey is asking $5,065 specific damages —his out-of-pocket expenses—as well as general damages to compensate for what he claims, are permanent leg injuries.

At the time of the accident, 8:25 a.m., Casselman testified that he was driving west, "well over to the right." About 70 feet from the intersection where the accident occurred he said he noticed the Empey truck "already sliding straight towards me."

To avoid the impact Casselman testified, he pulled over onto the north-east triangle of the intersection but was struck on the left front of his truck. He said his truck ended up facing southeast, the Empey truck facing north.

Earlier the plaintiff's counsel, W. J. A. Fair, had based his case on Empey's testimony that Casselman was on the wrong side of the road, that Casselman had skidded and that Empey had crashed into the cab of the vehicle. Casselman testified that marks on the cab of his car were caused by an accident earlier that week.

DRIVING TRUCKS

Empey was driving north in a 1950 model half-ton pick-up truck while Casselman was driving west in a four-ton dump truck. Casselman was employed by the Stocklosar Marble Quarries of Eldorado also defendants in the action, which is counterclaiming for $107 damages to their truck. Also defending is Margaret Stocklosar as executrix of the estate of her husband, the late Charles Stocklosar, former owner of the firm, who died since the accident.

Mr. Fair closed his case this morning with the testimony of Ross Tandy who said that while Empey was back on the job, he was not able to carry on as well as before.

Mr. Fair also read from his pretrial examination of Casselman, showing that the road was 13 or 14 feet wide at the intersection, and Casselman's truck seven feet six inches.

Mr. Justice R. I. Ferguson, presiding over the case, adjourned the court at 1 p.m. while Mr. Casselman was on the stand. His testimony continued this afternoon.

Saving Of $1,200 By Changing City's Insurance

The board of works has asked the civic arena commission to submit to city council complete details to prove their contention that they can save $1,200 annually in insurance premiums by staying outside the city's blanket property insurance plan.

The startling announcement of the commission's estimated saving was made at the board of works meeting Monday night by Ald. Stan McBride, a member of the arena commission, who said they had felt for some time that they had been paying exorbitant rates.

At an arena meeting in Brantford, they had discovered that local rates were the highest of any arena in the province — so high in fact that other commissions had not believed they were paying that much in Peterborough.

The commission had subsequently asked a Toronto insurance brokerage to survey Civic Arena and it had been found the commission could save $1,200. This would give them the same coverage as under the city's blanket plan, plus a full replacement clause. Any agent in the city could have given them comparable rates, he said.

"I feel that if a saving of $1,200 could be made on a $100,000 coverage, a survey of all city property should be made by the same Toronto firm," Ald. McBride urged.

City Clerk E. A. Outram told the board that after he had heard of the estimated saving he had got in touch with T. C. Ephgrave who had gone to Toronto to see the underwriters but reported that no improvement could be made in the coverage of city property.

Mr. Outram said Mr. Ephgrave had served the city for many years as an advisor on insurance matters and was widely known as an insurance adjustor. The city's insurance is pooled on a point basis among local agents, with Davis-Thompson as brokers. The latter firm also had a high reputation, the clerk said.

Mr. Outram said he would certainly be interested in saving the city money on insurance premiums but he would like to see how the arena commission made out their own insurance before going ahead with a survey of all city property.

Ald. McBride said the Toronto insurance brokerage would make the survey for a percentage of what they could save the city. He pointed out that the commission owed the city about $5,000 and a savings in its annual insurance premium would help it to liquidate the debt.

"I'll go along with Ald. McBride," said Mayor Norman Graham. "There's something wrong with the insurance in this city, including automobile insurance."

Ald. McBride seconded Ald. Anglesey's motion to ask the arena commission to submit complete details of the estimated saving. The motion carried unanimously.

"I think that if the commission can prove the saving is open and above-board, the board of works would be justified in asking city council for a survey of all city property," Ald. McBride commented.

Fire Protection Is Offered On Temporary Basis Otonabee, North Monaghan

Two Townships Have Made Offer Await Proposal From City As To Protection Able To Provide

City council is prepared to give fire protection to Otonabee and North Monaghan townships on a temporary basis until long-term agreements are arrived at. The board of works Monday night authorized Fire Chief Bill Sorrie and Ald. Harold Rehill, chairman of the fire, water and light committee, to estimate how much the city should offer to charge the townships for each answer to an alarm. Meanwhile, discussions will continue on the details of long-term agreements.

Whether or not the municipalities are any closer than ever to either temporary or long-term agreements is a toss-up. So far, Ald. Rehill's committee have heard offers by delegations from both township councils. The townships have yet to hear a specific offer from the city.

At Monday afternoon's meeting between Ald. Rehill's committee and North Monaghan council, Reeve Willard Waterman opened with an offer to purchase a pumper for the city's use in return for a long-term contract for fire protection. The pumper would cost about $12,000.

Later, at the suggestion of Mayor Norman Graham, the reeve, with the vocal assent of Councillor Harold Matthews, added an offer to pay a fee for each alarm answered by the city department as well as to buy the pumper.

$250 A CALL

Mayor Graham urged Ald. Rehill to give serious consideration to this offer. Ald. Rehill, however, mentioned that the highest offer made so far for each call was $250. In contrast to this, he quoted some figures about the cost of running the city's fire department.

Operating costs at the north end substation last year were $2,350.27 without taking depreciation into account; last year's wages for one first-class fireman were $3,450; the average cost of each fire in the city last year was $2,840; the cost of running the department last year was $4.50 for each resident and would be closer to $5 this year.

It was not the original cost of equipment that was so high, Ald. Rehill pointed out; it was the cost of locating and manning the equipment. Wages were a particularly large item.

These figures, he told the township representatives, would not necessarily determine what the city would charge the township. But they were an important consideration.

If other neighboring townships made offers similar to North Monaghan's, the city might find that it had three pieces of equipment with nowhere to house them

100 Lost Jobs City Firm Closes Doors

An application for the company to go into bankruptcy was read on Monday afternoon at a meeting of the creditors held in Peterborough of Timber Structures Ltd. The meeting of the creditors was called on Friday. Rumors had been in circulation all week that the company which employs more than 100 was having financial troubles.

During the past two years on several occasions there were rumors that the company might pull out of Peterborough and centre all its manufacturing on the Pacific coast where the bulk of the raw material is grown.

GIVE NO REASON

Although no company official today would state the reason for the business failure, it is being assumed in several quarters that the collapse of the naval building at Shearwater, Nova Scotia on February 5 may have had something to do with it. The trusses of the building were made in Peterborough. However it is known there were at least two other contributing factors.

The failure of the company is a setback to the plans for the proposed memorial centre. Some time ago, the company prepared plans for the centre and they met with wide approval. The reorganized centre committee was expected to give the plans serious consideration.

Timber Structures of Canada Limited employs about 60 men in their plant and, with office help and engineers, brought the total up to about 100.

Mortgage Interest Rate Cut Urged In Gov't By CCL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Congress of Labor said today lenders will get a high rate on mortgage loans and suffer no risk under the government's new housing legislation.

The 375,000-member labor group said in a brief prepared for submission to the Commons banking committee that if the government is to insure mortgage-lenders it should cut the interest rate "substantially."

"To give them a rate of 5½ per cent or more and almost complete immunity against loss . . . is foolproof and completely-protected enterprise. A high interest rate is supposed to compensate the lender for risk. The lending institutions, under the bill, would get the high rate, without the risk."

The bill would allow the government to insure housing loans by banks.

LOWER INTEREST RATE

The brief said that if Parliament wants to bring home ownership within reach of lower-paid workers it must provide for a much lower interest rate.

It urged a lower interest to allow more persons in the low-income groups to meet income requirements of the National Housing Act. Under the act, a prospective home owner would be limited to 23 per cent of his annual income to pay back a mortgage and the carrying charges.

By dropping the interest rate to two per cent from 5½ per cent on a 25-year mortgage for a $10,000 home, it added, income requirements would be cut by $855.

MANY LOW EARNERS

Half urban wage and salary earners received incomes of less than $3,000 a year, the brief added. It quoted figures purporting to show that was not enough to buy a $9,000 house, the cheapest available under the act, with a 25-year mortgage at 5¼ or 5½ per cent.

The CCL estimated Canada's backlog of houses at 500,000 units. The replacement figure for substandard and slum dwellings was about 140,000.

Canada's record 105,000 housing starts in 1953 was "just about enough housing to keep pace with the current need, and making little or no impression on the backlog."

The current need of 100,000 homes was made up of 90,000 units for new families and 10,000 more for the number of houses destroyed each year.

EMPLOY 60,000

The 500,000-unit backlog, the CCL said, could be eliminated in about 20 years if the construction industry operated at capacity of 125,000 to 135,000 units annually. That construction schedule would give employment to between 60,000 and 65,000 men.

The CCL urged the government to consider direct loans to homeowners through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, and sought more government subsidies for low-rental housing under the government's federal - provincial-municipal slum clearance plan.

Want Unemployment Fund To Aid Jobless Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal and a CCF member of Parliament say the $1,000,000,000 unemployment insurance fund should be used to ease Canada's current unemployment problem.

James A. Byrne (L—Kootenay East) said Monday night in the Commons that increases in unemployment insurance benefits and extension of the period during which benefits may be paid will help solve the immediate problem. However, the only long-term solution was increased capital investment.

He urged members to expedite government business and make possible an early spring start on new public work projects. If the unemployment problem did not improve by summer Parliament could be recalled to take action.

PREVENT CATASTROPHE

Erhart Regier (CCF—Burnaby-Coquitlam) said the insurance fund would disappear during a major catastrophe. However, the money could be used to ease the present problem and to help prevent any catastrophe developing.

"We think the workers who own this money have a reasonable request when they ask that the period in which benefits are payable be extended. This is particularly necessary at the present time, when the cost of living is so high."

L. Elston Cardiff (PC—Huron) said the government's immigration policy is responsible for unemployment. Immigrants, who had agreed to work on farms for a year after their entry to Canada, had left farms within a few weeks for higher-paid city jobs and were among the first to be laid off by industry.

The government should have held immigrants to their one-year contracts to work on farms. It should reduce the flow of immigrants by extending the contract period to three or five years.

Mr. Cardiff, a farmer, said unemployment is due also to low farm prices, since farmers could not afford to maintain purchases of manufactured goods. The government could eliminate unemployment by stepping up farm prices.

Firemen Squelch Fire In House

MARMORA (ENS)—Speed of Marmora firemen in answering an early morning call prevented serious damage at the home of Mrs. William Knox of North Hastings Ave., Marmora, at 2:30 Monday morning.

Mrs. Knox had gone to bed when she noticed smoke and flames issuing from a rear bedroom of her bungalow home. Mr. Knox was working the night shift in Deloro at the time, and she was at home with her two children.

Firemen confined the blaze to this room. A day bed was destroyed and fire and water damage was causde to the bedroom. Cause of the fire was not determined.

Granted $12,000

MONTREAL (CP)—The Carnegie Corporation has granted $12,000 for a study of social welfare programs in Canada, it was announced Monday night by the national committee of Canadian Schools of Social Work.

Busy Planning Canadian Tour For Philip

OTTAWA (CP)—While the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh are just nicely settled in on their Australasian tour, Canadian officials already are getting down to brass tacks on arrangements for the duke's Canadian visit this summer.

An RCAF pre-tour flight has returned to Ottawa after calling at most of the duke's stopping places to line up preliminary arrangements. A second pre-tour flight will whiz around the course again in May.

Four points of call have been added to the original itinerary announced last fall. They are Whitehorse in the Yukon, Fort Simpson in the Northwest Territories and Knob Lake and Goose Bay in Labrador.

TRAVEL BY AIR

The duke will travel entirely by air on his 15,000-mile tour. The RCAF will pick him up in London in the C-5, the plane now carrying Prime Minister St. Laurent around the world, fly him across Canada and back and return him to London.

Philip is scheduled to arrive here July 29 and spend three days as the guest of governor-general Massey. He will attend church here Sunday, Aug. 1, and then leave for Victoria, arriving there the same day after a one-hour stop at Rivers, Man.

From Victoria, he will go to Kitimat, B.C., site of the Aluminum Company of Canada project, and then to Vancouver, where he will spend four days at the British Empire Games.

After that, the visit concentrates on the north country.

Jailed Two Years On Break-in Charges

KITCHENER (CP)—On charges arising from break-ins at three homes here Jan. 14, William G. Livingston, 22, and William Makarchuk, 24, both of Brantford, Monday were sentenced to two years. The terms will be concurrent with similar terms recently imposed on the men in Hamilton.

Livingston last week pleaded guilty to theft charges. Makarchuk pleaded guilty Monday to a charge of receiving stolen goods.

Companies Act Change Now Suggested

TORONTO (CP)—An amendment to the 1953 Companies Act designed to protect corporations from shareholders who would call and use shareholders' meetings as platforms on which to gain "needless publicity for defamatory matter," is proposed in a report of a select committee of the Ontario legislature.

The report, tabled Monday by committee chairman A. K. Roberts (PC—St. Patrick) recommended several revisions to the act.

The act lays down the conditions under which advance notices of meetings and resolutions to be moved shall be given shareholders. It requires that directors also circulate to shareholders a statement of not more than 1,000 words outlining the business to be dealt with.

The new clause, however, says the directors are not bound under this section to circulate any statement if, on application by the corporation, the court is satisfied that the rights are being abused.

The report also recommended that a $1 ceiling be placed on the amount a co-operative enterprise may deduct from patronage returns for educational work. The act now does not limit the amount.

Ministers Meet, Discuss Miracles

BANCROFT (ENS)—The February meeting of the North Hastings Ministerial Association was held at the United Church parsonage, St. Ola.

President, the Rev. Alan Borland, was in the chair and members present were the Rev. Herbert Gastmeier, Lutheran Church, Maynooth, the Rev. Leslie Hardy United Church, Coe Hill, the Rev. Theo. Smith, United Church, retired, the Rev. E. Owen Johnston, Anglican, North Hastings Mission, Mr. Sam Fuller, United Church, St. Ola.

The meeting was opened by the Rev. T. Smith.

Following the business session the Rev. Leslie Hardy addressed the gathering on "Miracles", a talk based largely upon a book of the same title by the English writer and lay-theologian, C. S. Lewis.

The speaker concurred with the author that miracles are not contrary to either the nature of God or the workings of nature. They are the local, speeded up applications of what God has been doing through the ages.

It was announced that the next meeting would be held at the United Church parsonage, Bancroft, on March 15 and the meeting closed with prayer led by Mr. Smith.

Wants Canada Take Orphans Of World

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF member of Parliament wants the government to open Canada's immigration doors to the orphan children of the world.

The proposal was made Monday in the Commons by Erhart Regier (CCF—Burnaby-Coquitlam) as a method to increase Canada's population.

"I can think of no finer way of helping Canada with many of her difficulties, and also in the matter of employment and the sale of our goods than by adding to the small population of Canada," Mr. Regier said.

Australia's Economy Has Rapid Expansion

MONTREAL (CP) — Australia's economy since the Second World War has expanded at as high a rate as that of any other western country except Canada, Sir Douglas Copland, Australian high commissioner, said Monday.

Addressing the Montreal Women's Club, Sir Douglas said some 726,000 persons have immigrated to Australia since 1947 and total population now is approaching 9,000,000, compared to 7,000,000 in 1939.

Sawmill Operators Worried About State Of Industry—MPP

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario sawmill operators generally have expressed "deep concern" over the state of the industry, Albert Wren, Liberal-Labor member of the legislature for Kenora said Monday.

Speaking in the house on a white paper calling for a long-range forest management and development program to bring back the province's exploited forest resources, Mr. Wren suggested the situation was not a problem of forest mismanagement "but one of economics."

He called for preferential freight rates for the industry and the construction and maintenance of access roads to timber stands.

TOOK LESS THAN CENTURY

The white paper, the first ever to be presented to an Ontario legislature, said it had taken less than a century of exploitation to deplete the once great pineries of the Ottawa-Huron region to the vanishing point.

"With the decline of white pine, distress has spread through the sawmilling industry at a time when the province is experiencing its greatest industrial prosperity."

In presenting the report, Lands and Forests Minister Gemmell said it was a "blueprint for the future."

ASSURE FUTURE

"With the carrying out of the program the future of the industry is assured."

The paper said a shift to other species of trees may be necessary for the sawmilling industry. It recommended a ban on the export of all softwoods and maple and yellow birch sawtimber in an unprocessed state and the closer utilization of the hardwoods now being cut.

In reply to a question by J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog.—St. Andrew) Premier Frost said the federal and Ontario governments agree that Canada is not only prepared but anxious to build the St. Lawrence seaway herself. However, Ontario's chief concern is the development of hydro-electric power; any U.S. participation in the seaway project is a question for the federal government, he said.

Today, CCF house leader W. J. Grummett will continue the throne speech debate.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—President Eisenhower won't hold a press conference this week, his vacation head quarters announced Monday. The president will leave here by plane tonight and arrive in Washington early Wednesday, his usual conference day. But James C. Detroit Team Step Near Sixth Straight NHL Title

MONTREAL (CP) — Detroit's mighty Red Wings appear headed for another clean sweep of the individual and team honors during the regular National Hockey League schedule.

The Wings moved a step nearer an unprecedented sixth straight league title Monday night when they turned back Montreal Canadiens, 3-0 in a crucial game at Detroit. The victory lengthened Detroit's lead to 10 points over Toronto and Montreal, their nearest challengers.

Right-winger Gordie Howe kept pace with his mates by stretching his edge in the individual scoring race to 10 points over Montreal's Maurice Richard with a pair of assists. Howe is trying for his fourth straight Art Ross trophy as the league's top scorer, and the $1,000 that goes with it from NHL headquarters.

Terry Sawchuk strengthened his bid for a third straight Vezina trophy as the loop's least-scored-on goalie by picking up his 12th shutout of the year. Sawchuk now has a goals-against average of 1.71. Harry Lumley of Toronto dropped into second place Sunday night with an average of 1.77 after a lengthy reign at the top of the heap.

RICHARD LEADING

In the individual scoring race, Richard was held to one goal during the week but still dominates that department with 33. He also has 24 assists for 57 points. Howe is the league's leading play-maker with 41 assists, and his 26 goals give him a 10-point bulge over the Rocket.

Ted Lindsay, Detroit captain, rapped in his 20th goal of the season Monday night to increase his point count to 49 and third place.

Detroit defenceman Red Kelly collected one goal and three assists during the past week's play to soar from sixth to fourth place with 15 goals and 32 assists for 47 points. He passed Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal, out with injuries, who has 25 goals and 21 assists.

Paul Ronty of New York collected one goal and four assists to jump from nine place to a tie for sixth. He has 13 goals and 31 assists for 44 points. Earl Reibel is tied with him with 15 goals and 29 assists.

Montrealers Bert Olmstead with 12 goals and 31 assists for 43 points and Ken Mosdell with 21 goals and 20 assists for 41 points, follow. Ed Sandford of Boston rounds out the top 10 with 14 goals and 26 assists for 40 points.

Richard is the league bad man with 110 minutes in penalties, 12 more than Bill Gadsby of Chicago. The Canadiens also are the most penalized team with 893 minutes in the box.

Raffle Stirs Up Row In B.C. Games Plans

VANCOUVER (CP) — A raffle stirred up a row Monday between Mayor Fred Hume and Jack Diamond, chairman of the special events committee of the British Empire Games.

Diamond threatened to "resign in disgust" unless he gets better co-operation.

He charged that Mayor Hume had given permission to "go as far as the women liked" in raising funds at a games-sponsored all-nations home cooking show.

Instead, police gambling detail detectives moved in and seized raffle tickets on a television set planned for a door prize. Police said that "somebody" had complained.

It was finally agreed that the raffle could proceed if something valued at less than $50 was the prize. A small radio was substituted for the TV set.

The show, staged Saturday, raised $8,000 for the games fund.

"We expected someone to say thank you, but we almost wound up in jail," said Diamond.

Mayor Hume had no comment. He said he plans to issue a statement today.

Diamond said he is ready to quit. He made the statement after being forced to "cool my heels" for two hours in an attempt to see city prosecutor Stewart McMorran.

NO PROSECUTION

Police Chief Walter Mulligan said there would be no prosecution against the special events committee.

Chief Mulligan said there was evidently a great deal of confusion in the minds of the officials responsible in respect to the law on lotteries.

"As a result of this situation and the committee's immediate willingness to return monies collected by sale of tickets for the raffle, it is not the intention of the police to prosecute," he said.

The committee has raised more than $150,000 for the games.

"Apparently no one in authority is greatly concerned about the work we are doing," said Diamond. "Under the circumstances I feel that the work of the committee should end now."

Plans for two days of racing at Lansdowne Park here in May to help the games fund may be cancelled.

"I am seriously thinking of calling them off," said Diamond.

Cancellation would mean a loss of about $100,000 to the fund.

TORONTO (CP)—Eddie Renick, assistant to Bob Gray at the Scarboro Golf Club for the last eight years, has accepte the job as professional at the Barrie Golf Club, Gray announced.

Gray said that Eddie Niziolek of Windsor Essex will replace Renick.

Western Rinks Holding Lead In School Curling Championships

HAMILTON (CP) — Rinks from Manitoba and Saskatchewan hold the lead as the Canadian school curling championships enter the second day.

Tied with one win and one defeat each are representatives from New Brunswick, British Columbia, Alberta, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Northern Ontario.

Ontario and Prince Edward Island trail, having been defeated in both their opening-day games.

The Gordon Bell High Rink of Winnipeg, and Saskatoon technical Collegiate posted no surprises in winning their games.

One of the upsets was the double defeat handed the Ontario provincial champions, Sarnia Collegiate Institute.

Saskatchewan took their afternoon draw with a 9-3 win over New Brunswick and later defeated Prince Edward Island 18-2.

Manitoba blasted P.E.I. 16-7 in the early draw and defeated Ontario 12-7 in the evening.

FAVORITES ALREADY CHOSEN

Spectators predicted the Saskatchewan rink, skipped by 18-year-old Bayne Secord, and the Winnipeg rink, skipped by 18-year-old Gene Walker, will be fighting it out for the Sifton Trophy, emblematic of the Canadian High school curling championship.

Monday night Quebec and Nova Scotia went into the 10th end tied at 8-8, a situation similar to one faced earlier by Nova Scotia when they put on the pressure in the 10th end and defeated Ontario 9-7.

The Queen Elizabeth high school rink of Halifax was unable to repeat the trick. The Quebec skip guided his team well in the 10th end to edge Nova Scotia 9-8.

In the British Columbia and Alberta night game the score was knotted 11-11 at the end of 10 ends. The John Oliver high school rink from Vancouver managed to gain one point on the 11th end to edge the Milo high school rink. The Alberta rink had come from behind to defeat Quebec 12-8 in a first round game, and British Columbia was defeated 8-4 by northern Ontario in the afternoon.

CAME FROM BEHIND

The Bathurst, N.B., rink was trailing 6-1 at the end of three ends with the Noranda rink, skipped by Terry Justice, 16, racking up a five-ender in the second end. The New Brunswick rink cut the northern Ontario lead to two points by the ninth end. On his last stone, the Bathurst skip got three points to win 10-9.

In today's afternoon round, Manitoba meets Alberta, New Brunswick is up against P.E.I., Ontario faces Quebec, B.C meets Saskatchewan, and Northern Ontario will meet Nova Scotia.

Tonight, New Brunswick meets Ontario, Northern Ontario will play Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia is up against Alberta, Manitoba meets Quebec, and P.E.I. will play British Columbia.

See Marlene Strong Threat

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Marlene Stewart, the 19-year-old British open champion from Fonthill, Ont., and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, the old Arkansas traveller of the professional golf fairways, stack up as one of the most formidable teams in the international mixed two-ball golf tournament which opens here today.

Miss Stewart, a sophomore at Rollins College, has finished second in two Florida golf tournaments this year. Harrison, one of the most consistent pros on the winter circuit, is rapidly rounding into form after a bad back kept him out of competition earlier this month.

Marlene was second in the Tampa women's open last month and was low amateur in the field. A week later in the Helen Lee Doherty tournament at Miami she battled her way into the finals before losing in an upset to Grace DeMoss Smith.

The top 32 teams in today's 18-hole qualifying round will go into match play Wednesday with the final 36-hole round scheduled for Sunday.

MONEY GOLFER — Rudy Horvath of Windsor, after setting a blistering pace at the outset, faded to end in a tie for 23rd place in the $12,500 Texas Open golf tournament at San Antonio. Horvath fired a near-record 61 on opening day. He earned $110 for his 272 in the open. He placed ahead of several other Canadian competitors. (CP Photo.)

Harness Racing In Ontario Less Profitable To Operators

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The rustics of the harness racing fraternity from the back concessions will have a fling this summer at Woodbine Park, the perennial home of haughty thoroughbreds. And it is likely they'll skin their city cousins.

A 35-day meet, from July 5 to Aug. 13, has been arranged by the Ontario Jockey Club and, based on figures of the last four years, the sulky drivers will be the only winners. They've received nearly $700,000 in purses since 1950.

And, since 1950 when a Toronto syndicate had grandiose plans of staging night meets with a totalizator for pari-mutuel betting, the operators lost more than $300,000 on the venture.

WINTER MEETINGS

Harness-race wagering at the 100-day winter meeting at Dufferin track in Toronto or at summer meetings in dozens of other centres is handled normally by books. The purses are small, the operators don't make a million but they don't need red ink for book-keeping purposes.

In 1950, a few men with stars in their eyes and fat bankrolls decided that the sport, as rural as a fencepost, needed big-league treatment.

Night racing had proved to be the salvation of harness racing in the United States—and a highly-profitable business for the operators. Why couldn't it be the same here?

Thorncliffe Park, on the fringe of northeast Toronto, was given a thorough face-lifting. Nearly $500,000 was spent on floodlights, the tote, stables and a new half-mile oval. A 42-day meet was arranged with purses totalling $210,000, including $15,000 for the Canadian Cup Pace equalling the largest purse ever offered for a horse race of any kind in Canada.

The stars left the operators' eyes and their bankrolls thinned out when the provincial government banned night racing in Ontario. Bettors stayed away from Thorncliffe's afternoon meets like mad and the first year the loss was $188,000.

FURTHER LOSSES

More bottles of red ink were bought in 1951—the operators lost $80,000. In 1952, their losses were $28,000 and the OJC, flush with record-breaking business at the tote on the thoroughbreds, bought the Thorncliffe charter and operated a trotting meet. The OJC lost only $14,000 in 1953.

"Maybe we can break even at the mutuels this year buf we've already spent $100,000 on improvements with erection of 250 permanent stalls for the exclusive use of the trotters and we've laid a new half-mile track for them," an OJC official said in an interview. The total purse for the trotters this year at Woodbine is $150,000 with the $8,500 Canadian Cup Pace the feature of the program.

The standardbreds are nothing new to Woodbine. Old-timers recall they were on the program in the 1890s for two or three years.

Woodbine has remained the stronghold of the thoroughbreds since then and a few caustic remarks probably will be made by the shedrow occupants next July 1. That's when the runners move out after a summer meeting to make way for the incoming standardbreds.

Allie Reynolds Comes To Terms With Yanks

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Allie Reynolds, the ace starter-reliever of New York Yankees' pitching staff, has come to terms with the club and probably will report here to begin spring training today as the highest paid pitcher in the history of the five-time world champions.

General manager George Weiss announced Monday night that he had called the Big Chief in his Oklahoma City home and made Allie an offer. Reynolds okayed it and that was that.

Weiss would not reveal what the Yankees are paying Reynolds, but observers in camp here were of the opinion that the club agreed to Allie's demands for a pact calling for $40,000. He received an estimated $37,500 last year when he won 13 games and lost seven.

Bad Weather Dogs Landy's Struggle

MELBOURNE (AP)—John Landy Australia's ace miler, turned in a 4:02.6 clocking tonight at Olympic Park, bucking a strong head wind on a track made heavy by a drizzling rain.

Landy's time for tonight's event —in weather conditions that kept up the run of bad luck in that department which has plagued the Australian's struggle for the first four-minute mile—was the fourth fastest in his career.

Dennis Johansson of Finland, who ran fourth in tonight's race, said afterward that Landy "is the greatest mile runner ever."

Landy was 70 yards ahead of the field at the finish. His lap times were :57.5 for the quarter, 1:59 at the half and 3:01 at the three-quarter pole.

Here And There In Sports

LYNDHURSTS BLASTED

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Canada's entry in the world hockey championships has taken another roasting in the Stockholm newspapers.

Toronto East Yorks, blasted when they dropped a 5-4 decision to a Swedish team Friday, were blasted again after whipping the same club 12-3 Sunday. Swedish hockey writers charged that the victory was the result of 'rough-house tactics."

Svenska Dagbladet, which counted out the Canadians after their Friday defeat, added this comment after Sunday's game:

"In this match the Canadians used real rough-house tactics, especially in the second period before they were sure of victory. Sweden's big defeat was partly due to this and on many occasions the Swedes gave in too easily."

Dagens Nyheter, Sweden's biggest newspaper, said the Canadians will have small chance of beating Russia, Czechoslovakia or Sweden in the world tournament beginning Friday if they try the same tactics. Continental referees were, if possible, even stricter in "punishing tackles and blows."

ARGOS SIGN NFL CENTRE

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four announced Monday that they have signed Louis Tepe, a centre and linebacker from Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League.

Frank Clair, coach of the Argonauts, said he tried to sign Tepe last year when he graduated from Duke University but said the player wanted "a whirl at NFL football."

Tepe, whose 210 pounds are spread over a six-foot, 1½-inch frame, was the 30th draft choice of the Steelers last year. He will try to beat out Keith Carpenter and Red Ettinger for the centre job with Argos.

Referring to Tepe's signing, Clair said that the National League teams apparently "have no intention of respecting Canadian contracts so there's not much sense in respecting theirs."

The Argo coach said "Other Canadian teams are digging into the NFL so we'd be at a disadvantage if we didn't do the same." Argos previously operated on a "hands-off" policy regarding NFL players.

NEW FAVORITE PICKED

LONDON (AP) — Irish Lizard moved into the favorite's role for the Grand National Steeplechase at odds of 10-1 in a callover of London bookmakers at the Victoria Club Monday.

Last year's winner, Early Mist, slumped to 33-1 after being the 100-9 joint favorite a week ago with Irish Lizard. The price on Early Mist was lengthened after the horse's trainer, Vic O'Brien, said the Irish jumper was a doubtful starter for the race March 27. O'Brien said the horse suffered an injury in training.

Coneyburrow now is second favorite at 100-9, with Queens Taste 100-6, Royal Tan 18-1 and Ordnance 20-1.

GAVILAN FAVORED

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan is a 10-1 choice with no takers to defeat Johnny Cunningham tonight in the next-to-last tuneup for his middleweight title shot against Bobo Olson.

Despite the tremendous odds in his favor, Gavilan said he is not taking Cunningham lightly. He remembers that Cunningham was a 15-1 underdog when he defeated lightweight champion Jimmy Carter here last year in one of the biggest fight upsets of 1953.

Cunningham, who took the Carter fight on 24 hours' notice, said "I think I've got a chance. I'm in good shape."

The fight will not be broadcast or telecast. A sellout crowd of 3,600 is expected to pay a gross gate of about $14,000.

LEAFS CALL UP FORWARD

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League announced Monday night that they have recalled leftwinger Earl Balfour from Pittsburgh Hornets.

The forward was called from the American Hockey League club of the Leafs under the "emergency recall" agreement betwen the two leagues. With Gordie Hannigan in hospital suffering a severe cold, Leafs have only nine forwards, making Balfour's recall legal.

LONDON (AP) — Germany and England will meet Nov. 24 in the first major soccer match between the two countries in 16 years the English Football Association announced. The game will be played in England but the site has not yet been picked. The last soccer match between the two countries was held in Berlin in 1938.

Five-Round Draw

Chest Seeks Plan To Raise Contributions

Ten key figures in the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund campaign, headed by chairman Alex Elliott, met at Community Chest headquarters in the Bradburn building, Monday. They reported that plans for the campaign, due to start March 5, are coming along well although there are still some loose ends to clean up.

One of the loose ends is the industrial section, presided over by chairman James Wharry. Said Mr. Elliott: "We need something different and original here. We can't push it over the top with a few routine letters."

The industrial section fell more than $4,000 short of its $41,800 objective last year. This year the objective has been raised to $43,500.

Key campaign workers should be assigned to each industry, said Mr. Elliott, to make sure that as many firms as possible adopt the payroll deduction scheme and all workers are exposed to Community Chest literature. As one chest worker pointed out, "you can't beat personal contacts."

Chairman of the industrial section, James Wharry, is due back today after a month-long business trip to the United Kingdom.

SET PACE

Pace-setting pledges might stimulate citizens in all groups to give more said public relations director R. Boer. He suggested that the man in charge of fund-raising in a store or firm could create "quite an effect by making his own contribution fairly substantial.

There was considerable discussion o fwhether or not Peterborough should join the Canadian Welfare Council. If the Community Chests joined the council they could have use of the copyrighted Red Feather symbol, national advertising technique of the C. W. C. and the benefit of the goods, services and public relations pamphlets of the Red Feather.

Although the national Red Feather appeal is in the fall, it was pointed out that several member organiaztions of the Canadian Welfare Council have their campaigns in the Spring. Price of joining the CWC is three quarters of one per cent of campaign funds raised, in Peterborough's case $750.

Discussion of the CWC got under way when Mr. Baer reported a letter received from this group forbidding use of a movie the Chest had hoped to run in local theatres advertising the campaign. The Peterbrough Community Chest has no films or film strips of its own available.

It would give the campaign "a shot in the arm," if the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign joined the Canadian Welfare Council said J. E. Girven. No decision was taken although it is possible that Peterborough may affiliate with the CWC next year.

DINNER PLANNED

Plans for the opening dinner March 5 are well in hand, Mr. Elliott reported. Speaker Donald Henshaw will broadcast over CHEX from 7 to 7.30. There will also be short speeches by each of the section chairmen.

Work in the retail section is coming along well, new chairman Mort Knox reported. Mr. Knox succeeds chamber of commerce manager James Fraser, who continues as one of the retail supervisors. Other key men in this section are supervisors Cliff Boate and James McClenaghan.

The retail section will also handle lawyers, these canvassed by Gordon Monkman, real eastte firms, by Frank Graystock, and Catholic institutions, by J. Claire Sullivan. Theer are also 15 subdivisional captains.

In addtion ten stores will carry special displays reflecting the work of the ten agencies thus: Red Cross (Neill's) St. Vincent Orphanage (Kingan Hardware) YMCA Cherney's), Children's Aid (Eaton's), Salvation Army (Walker's), CNIB (Grafton's), VON (Zeller's), Humane Society (Firestone store), YWCA (Kresge's), St. John Ambulance (Comstock Furniture).

The mounting number of hit-and-run accidents in the city is being considered in a serious light by police, said acting chief John Naples today. During the weekend three hit-and-run accidents were reported to police. So far no arrests have been made.

However, detectives were following "a likely lead" today following a weekend incident in which Allied cab-driver, Louis Ronco, was sideswiped by a passing vehicle on Monaghan Rd. The driver did not stop.

Schools Unable To Supply Office Staffs

TORONTO (CP) — Lewis, S. Beattie, superintendent of secondary education, said Monday that the demand for office help in Ontario is so great that last year 74 per cent of the pupils enrolled in business colleges left before completing the course.

Mr. Beattie, reporting on regulations governing business colleges, told the Ontario legislature's committee on education that last year's business college employment record was 100 per cent and the schools were unable to supply enough staff to fill office needs.

He said the colleges come under the Trade School Act and the regulations are strict.

INCREASED DEMAND

There was an increased demand for graduates from technical school at a time when the enrolment was at its lowest in years.

"We are now scraping the barrel for people," he said.

March Meeting Decides Fate

HAMILTON (CP)—Ivor Wynne, physical director of McMaster University, said in a statement today that whether McMaster will compete in the Intercollegiate Senior Football League next fall depends on outcome of a meeting of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union in Toronto March 20.

Wynne said that "contrary to reports emanating from the University of Toronto" McMaster has not been dropped from the league. In announcing that they would not compete against McMaster next fall Toronto, Queen's and Western "dealt a blow to the cause of intercollegiate athletics."

The intercollegiate executive announced after a meeting Jan. 16 it would recommend to the union that the Marauders be dropped from the league in 1954, after one reason of competition in 1953 when they didn't win a game. McGill dissented from the decision by Queen's, Toronto and Western.

Wynne's statement today said McMaster plans to field the strongest possible football team next fall to play the most attractive schedule obtainable, whether in the senior intercollegiate or some other league.

In 1952, the Marauders competed in the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series.

The new chairman of the retail section is Harry Cherney. He replacse grocer Don Lewis who pioneered the drive for Monday closing for grocery and fruit stores.

An appeal for better bus service in the north end of the city will be forwarded by the retail section. This is in answer to complaints from some merchants that customers have had difficulty in getting to their stores.

'Outmoded Laws' Affecting Wives' Share Of Estate

MONTREAL (CP) — Executive of the National Council of Jewish Women has criticized "the outmoded laws of Canada that refuse to regard wives as marriage partners and entitled to at least one-half of the marriage estate tax-free on the death of their husbands."

The annual executive meeting endorsed in priciple the stand taken by the Canadian Federation of University Women in asking the Federal Government to consider half of a deceased husband's estate as earned by the widow and therefore not subject to succession duty.

In presenting the motion, Mrs. G. Lauterman of Ottawa said severe hardship is caused many widows under present laws.

"Regardless of how hard a wife has worked to help build up her husband's savings, his business or his farm, she is not regarded as a marriage partner in the eyes of the law. No allowance is even made for the wife who works for her husband in his own business and thereby saves him the wages of an employee.

The council recommended that its members in the 15 cities having council locals make a detailed study of the problem and its effect on their particular province.

Mrs. Lauterman spoke highly of the work done by members of the Canadian Committee on the Status of Women.

"They have been studying this complicated subject for some years and they have worked to educate women generally to the injustices suffered under present outmoded legislation."

Mrs. Benjamin Robinson of National Council told of the organization's representative status and its increased role in Canadian life.

There has been much evidence of the last year that the council now is regarded as the representative group of Jewish women in Canada, she said in her report opening the two-day annual meeting.

In listing major contributions by the council during last year, Mrs. Robinson said a grant of $11,000 was completed to the Canadian Mental Health Association to spread understanding of mental hygiene.

Geriatric fellowships of $750 each were set up to permit a professor from a Canadian university each year to study the methods of other countries in meeting the problems of old age.

Mother Describes Memorial To Missing Airmen

Speaker at the meeting of the Silver Cross Mothers on Monday evening at the YWCA, was Mrs. F. A. Eason of Keene who made a trip to Runnymede, England, last October to be present at the unveiling of the Air Force Memorial to the missing.

Mrs. Eason described in detail the memorial erected to the memory of 20,456 Commonwealth airmen who fell in Europe during World War II and lie in unknown graves. Half of these are believed to have been trained in Canada, she said.

Names, including that of Mrs. Eason's son, are engraved on the memorial's narrow windows and light coming through illuminates them so that the appearance is that of a half-open stone book, she described.

Present for the unveiling were 27,000 next of kin and friends, and on the dais were the Queen, the Dukes of Edinburgh and Gloucester, the Archbishop of Canterbury and diplomatic and service representatives, Mrs. Eason told. She also narrated events of her voyage and impressions of places visited in the British Isles.

President Mrs. A. S. Williams paid warm tribute to Mrs. Eason for her contribution of information on the memorial.

It was announced that Sunday evening, May 9th, (Mother's Day) has been chosen for a memorial service to be held for Silver Cross wearers at Knox United church. Plans for the annual spring tea on April 7th were discussed.

Why does Pure Coffee cost 40¢ a Pound less when you buy it this way..... instead of this way.....

A pound of coffee makes more cups of coffee when we brew it our special way than when you brew it at home.

Scientific brewing methods, used in making Nescafé, get every precious drop of coffee richness from choice coffee beans.

No method of brewing coffee at home could possibly be as efficient. When you brew coffee yourself from ground coffee so much is wasted. You end up with fewer cups.

After we have brewed delicious Nescafé, we remove the water. All you do when you make Nescafé is put the water back.

Nescafé is so delicious, we guarantee you'll get better flavour, cup after cup, than with ground coffee.

With today's high prices, Nescafé saves you up to 40c a pound over ground coffee—and you enjoy better coffee flavour. Start today. Make Nescafé your family coffee.

Month after month, Canadians buy more Nescafé than all other brands of instant coffee combined

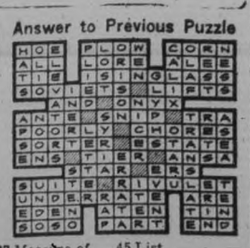
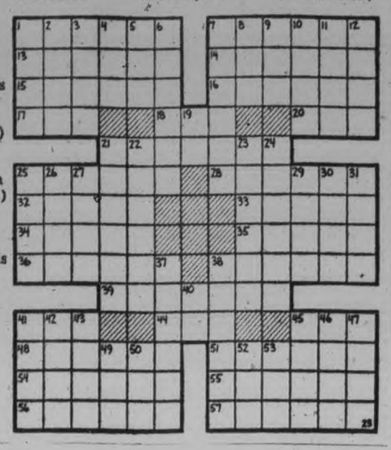
Answer to Previous Puzzle





MARY MOORE SAYS:

Jellied Chicken Salad

This is totally irrelevant. North American Champion of a South African Violet Culture — that's my new title — strictly intra-household, of course. It all came about because all of my violets are blooming at once — for once! I have dainty pink ones and double ones and long-stemmed single ones and scalloped leaves. Don't follow my method of tending them though, for I do it by the neglect treatment. I'll be passing their south window and poke a finger in one of their pots, and it's bone dry of course, so I flood them all with water. About once a month I baptize them with water in which a fertab is dissolved. It's against all the rules I know . . .

Anyway my title has been condensed to Naq-Sac and I'm not sure it's complimentary — sounds too much like old bag or sad sack. However I suppose it's something to be queen even if it is only of a blushing violet.

There is a simplicity and fortitude to the following letter that thrilled me to the backbone:

"Dear Mrs. Moore: I have long been a reader of your column and have used some of your simpler recipes in my bachelor establishment. Now I hope you will help me out for the most important occasion of my life.

"Following our informal evening wedding, we will have a party in our own house for about twenty guests, and I would appreciate suggestions as to what and how much to serve. Naturally it will have to be a cold meal and dishes that can be prepared well ahead of time as I will be making most of the preparations myself. Also, as we have not the facilities for seating that many guests at table, the meal will be served buffet style so will need to be things that can be easily eaten with just a fork.

"I have been thinking of individual jellied meat salads, potato salad, devilled eggs, buttered rolls and celery, pickles, etc. Would you suggest anything that might be preferable, and would you give me some ideas as to quantities of the various foods. Thanking you, . . . G."

Since "G." mentions "jellied meat salads" and since I have an excellent recipe for jellied chicken salad for 20 people, I will give the careful details for making it.

JELLIED CHICKEN SALAD
(For Twenty)

Four tablespoons plain gelatin, 6 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ cup cold water, 1 tablespoon each salt and MSG (Accent), 3½ cups hot strained liquil in which chicken is boiled (see note), 2 cups hot water, 1 cup best quality genuine mayonnaise, 1 cup cooked cold bright green peas, 1 cup very finely chopped inner celery, 4 or 5 cups diced cold cooked chicken. Soak gelatin in lemon juice and cold water 5 minutes. Add MSG and salt to boiling water (the 2 cups) and stir this into the soaked gelatin until gelatin is dissolved. Also add the chicken liquor which should have been strained, chilled and fat layer skimmed off. Let this cool until it just begins to set. Fold in mayonnaise, chicken, peas and celery. Pour into 20 individual moulds or into 4 medium-sized moulds to chill. Turn out on bed of lettuce and garnish with pickled pear or peach or crab-apple OR with gherkins and tomato wedges.

POTATO SALAD
(For Twenty)

To serve twenty you will need 5½ lbs. potatoes weighed after paring and cooked. Chill them and dice them. Add ¼ cup very finely chopped green onions (if desired), 1 cup each finely diced celery and hard-cooked egg, 2 tablespoons salt, 2-3 teaspoons pepper. Add about 1½ cups or more mayonnaise or good quality boiled dressing. It does this salad no harm to be made ahead of time if it stored in tightly covered bowl and kept cold. I think it improves it.

Provide 4 dozen small buttered rolls, 20 devilled eggs, 5 heads of celery cut into eighths; 1 gallon of coffee at least and a little more than 1 pint cream.

How I would love to meet the lucky man. The kindest of good wishes to you and him.

Nat. Ballet Wins Hearts Of Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (CP) — The National Ballet Company of Canada opened a United States tour here Monday night without an orchestra, but still won the hearts of ballet-goers in this Wisconsin city.

The company couldn't afford an orchestra for its current three-week tour of the United States, general manager Walter Homburger said, but will bring one on its next U.S. tour.

Edward Halline, critic for the Milwaukee Sentinel, said the company "danced into town . . . and won loud applause for a lively colorful performance of 'Coppelia.'"

STARVATION DIET

"The troupe worked under the extreme disadvantage of operating without an orchestra, and however mightily the two pianos in the pit storve to reproduce the Tschaikowsky score for 'Swan Lake' and the 'Delibes' music for 'Coppelia,' it was a starvation diet for the ears.

"The dancing, in fact, was rather mechanical and forced most of the way, except for the happy interlude of the swans.

"'Coppelia' fared much better. Orchestra or no, the brightly costumed company did the whole thing with an exuberance which was infectious."

Family Reunion Held In Bethany

BETHANY (ENS) — On Sunday, February 21, there was a family gathering at the home of Mrs. Ernest Beer, who was celebrating her seventy-third birthday.

Those present included: Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Beer and family of Brampton; Dr. N. D. Buchanan and Mrs. Buchanan, Allan Muir Patton, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnard and the Misses Faye and Glee Barnard of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stewart and family of Ida; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Davidson and family of Oakwood; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Beer and family and Mr. Allan Beer, all of Bethany.

Hold Euchre

BETHANY (ENS) — The Bethany LOBA No. 1207 held a very successful progressive euchre party in the Orange Hall on Friday evening, with eleven tables of players. Prizes for high score were received by Mrs. Ina Palmer and Emory Smith; consolation awards went to Ernest Lane and George Smith. Mrs. Lloyd Sutton of Cavan won the door prize.

The ladies intend holding a similar event on March 12.

WISHFUL THINKING — Mrs. Claude Tillinghast Porter, owner of a St. Louis, Mo., paint and wallpaper company, proudly shows off her new rose-colored automobile top. She claims the cover gives her as much a boost as a spring hat and hopes the wall-paper-style automobile top will catch on as a fad.

DOROTHY DIX

Girl, 19, Tells Of Her Beaux But Love Always One-Sided

DEAR MISS DIX: I was 19 last month, graduated from high school last year, and am now a model. From 15 to 18 I went steady with David, though I dated other boys while he was in college. I met Roger, and realized that I had long ago outgrown Da... I was madly in love with Roger and told him so but, unfortunately, he didn't feel the same way about me. Then last summer, my big romance came along. I worked as camp counselor, and Carl worked at the same camp. In two weeks I was in love with him; by midsummer we had become sweethearts and friends in the sense that we could tell each other anything, knowing the other would understand thoroughly. He was the sweetest man I had ever met. We continued dating when we returned to the city, but Carl warned me not to start dreaming about a future together, since he didn't love me. He never had declared his love, though he was sure of mine. He returned to school, and told me to go out with other boys and have a good time.

At a dance I attended, I encountered Roger, and the affection I had had for him returned. I wrote and told Carl, who replied that he was sure Roger wasn't the man for me. Since Carl has always been right in analyzing me, I wonder if I should follow his advice and discourage Roger from getting serious?

VELMA D.

HER HEART ON HER SLEEVE

ANSWER: You certainly aren't missing much in the romance department, but you may discover that the ease with which you bestow your love may be a big factor in keeping you from a happy future. You seem ready to fall into the arms of any available male, and though you make these sentimental sprees sound like those of a 19th century novel, they're still all evanescent. Your letter was too long to be printed in its entirety, but it was a marvelous saga of vacillating romance. The most significant angle was undoubtedly the fact that you've fallen so completely for all these men—but none has ever said he loved you! Hearts that can be won too easily are rarely appreciated. If you want to keep a man, let the next one do a little wooing himself. Don't throw your heart at him when he hasn't asked for it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm separted from my husband and have three small children. I'm tired of the same routine—caring for the children all day and staying alone every evening. How can I get to meet people after being out of circulation so long?

LONESOME

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If your children are too young for school, there's not much you can do but wait until they are a little older; then get into school activities, such as the P. T. A., scouting, etc. Through these groups you'll make many social contacts that will, I'm sure, alleviate your loneliness. You can't lose sight of the fact, however, that as a married woman with three youngsters your social life is bound to be restricted.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For the past year I've been very fond of a young man seven years older than I am. He's pleasant when I see him, but I'd like to know him better. How can this be accomplished?

TESSA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since the man notices you in a friendly fashion, your cause isn't hopeless. Try to have something interesting or amusing to say when you meet next, keep the conversation going as long as possible, without becoming boring or obviously trying to make an impression, and you may make progress.

Pansies Bloom Early In Bethany

BETHANY (ENS) — The weekend thaw brings reports of roads breaking up; flooded streams, etc., but the most unusual sign of Spring around the corner is the pansies blooming in the garden of Mr. Fred Thompson. They are quite perfect specimens and must be of an unusually hardy variety. The winter's frost and snow has not effected their lovely deep colors of purple and gold. On Monday Mr. Thompson picked enough of these lovely flowers for an indoor table decoration and they are being much admired by his neighbours.

Mayor Dissents As Board Refuses Request

The board of works Monday night, with Mayor Norman Graham dissenting, turned down a third application by the Percival Furniture Co. to erect a canopy over the entrance to their store on Hunter St. west.

The 1953 city council turned down two similar requests on the grounds that the canopy would interfere with street parking.

In their latest application, the company pointed out that there were parking facilities at the rear and side of the store. Moreover, a similar canopy on their Belleville store had drawn compliments from city council there.

The company said they were not asking to have any parking meters removed as they had done in Belleville.

IMPROVE APPEARANCE

"I don't see how you can turn this down and give it to the hotels," Mayor Norman Graham said. "It would improve the appearance of Hunter St. We all know Hunter St. is dead. This store is paying a big tax and we shouldn't discourage anything that will improve the appearance of the street."

"I question whether it would be an attraction," Ald Harold Rehill said. "Some cities are even doing away with overhead signs. If this went through, we could have George St. full of canopies."

Ald. Art Burrows went so far as to offer to do away with the signs on his store if the other merchants would do the same thing.

MUST BE SUSPENDED

City Engineer A. E. Chalmers said that the building bylaw permitted the erection of canopies but provided that they must be suspended from the building and not supported from the street. He had told the Percival company that they could erect the canopy if it was suspended from the store. He admitted council had permitted three hotels to support their canopies from the street.

City Solicitor W. F. Huycke explained that, under the Innkeepers Act, hotels were obligated to provide certain services to the public, which put them in a special category.

Fire Protection

and insufficient men to operate them, he said.

$5 OUT OF LINE

Asked by Ald. Art Burrows if he had any alternative proposal, Reeve Waterman said the township would consider any reasonable proposal but $5 per capita was "just out of line."

Reeve Waterman said North Monaghan was a small township with an assessment of only $844,551. The furthest point from the city was about nine miles. The bulk of the buildings were from Scott's Corners north along Highway 28 to Parkhill Rd.

Councillor Matthews estimated that about 80 per cent of the buildings were within a mile of the city. Councillor Roy Locke thought that a number of the buildings could be reached from city hydrants.

Ald. Burrows pointed ont that each township had different problems of fire protection. Otonabee was chiefly concerned with protection of the fringe area around the city and Keene and Lang. In Otonabee the built-up area consisted largely of a ribbon development along Highway 28 and there were no large villages.

On Ald. Burrows' suggestion, the townships are preparing maps of the built-up areas for joint study to decide on the areas to be protected by the long-term agreements.

REASONABLE PROTECTION

Chief Sorrie said that, as a general rule, buildings within three miles of the fire station could be given reasonable protection; if the fire were within 10 miles, surrounding buildings could be protected. He added that the pumpers carried 1,600 feet of hose.

Ald. Rehill cautioned that the city had also to consider what protection would be left for city property if a pumper was sent nine miles away. The furthest point in Otonabee is about 17 miles.

Reeve Waterman also suggested the township would consider establishing a volunteer company if the city would supply a couple of trained men. But Councillor Roy Locke estimated that 90 per cent of the men in the township worked in the city and so would not be available for daytime fires.

Urging some sort of temporary arrangement, Councillor Locke said there were places where three of four houses would be endangered if a fire got started. From time to time, the city had seemed to solve this problem by annexation, he said, but the built-up area kept stretching out into the township, although not sufficiently for the township to form a fire department of its own.

Ald. Bill Beggs said he thought they should concentrate on giving protection to the fringe area. But Councillor Matthews said protection for the entire township was desired.

EXTENDING BOUNDARIES

Township Clerk Bruce Johnston recalled that the city had approached the township a year ago about annexing property, which left the township with its total assessment that much lower.

Asked by Councillor Locke what proposal most interested him, Ald. Rehill replied: "My personal feeling is that there is only one proposal that would be of interest to the city, a flat annual fee whether there are any fires or not. We can have all kinds of equipment; but we still have to have the men to operate it."

"Would an agreement mean that we would have to call the mayor or the reeve if there was a fire?" asked Ald. Locke.

Ald. Rehill: "My thinking is that any alarm would be responded to directly."

Asked what the annual fee would be, Ald. Rehill said that suggestions had ranged from $1,000 to $5,000; "but it has never really been discussed and we don't know how much it would be."

Chief Sorrie said Kitchener was charging Waterloo township three mills for protection.

Convict Shot, Dies Trying Flee Prison

SPEIGNER, Ala. (AP)—A 20-year-old convict was shot to death and another wounded while trying to escape over the wall at Draper prison early today.

The dead convict was identified as Ronald Coleman of Birmingham, Ala., who had been in prison since June, 1953, and who also figured in an escape plot in January. The injured prisoner was listed as William Glover, 21, from Whigham, Ga.

Guards said the two men were caught in the cross-fire of two other guards using high-powered shotguns. The deputy warden said Glover did not appear to be critically injured.

City May Try To Clean Up Service Industrial Land

The city may dress up its industrial property east of Erskine Ave. this year in the hopes of making it more attractive to buyers.

The manufacturers committee of city council Monday recommended that the property committee set aside $2,000 for clearing and grading the industrial property. They also asked the board of works to consider providing the property with roads and other services.

Industrial Commissioner Bill Birnie told the committee he had been advised by prospective industrialists and real estate operators that the city had little chance of selling the property until it was serviced and cleaned up.

Ald. Harold Rehill, who chaired the committee in the absence of Ald. John Dewart, said he had suggested spending $1,000 last year to fix up the property but this had not been done.

"Potential buyers want to know how much services and roads are going to cost them," Mr. Birnie said. "I think the property committee should do something about water, sewers, roads and drainage. I also think that any hard fill available in the city should go there instead of to other properties."

"We shouldn't have bought that bog-hole," said Mayor Norman Graham. "That property behind Arnold Steele's will take yards to fill. We took sand out of his property for 20 years."

SURVEY PLANNED

"He's filling it up again now," Mr. Birnie said.

City Clerk E. A. Outram said that the 1953 council had arranged to have the property surveyed for subdivision, roads and drainage last year but the surveyor had been away.

"What has been done has been done in driblets," the clerk suggested. "Possibly the city should issue a debenture for doing a complete job."

"I've no objection to filling it in," the mayor said; "but here we've been giving load after load of fill away. If we're going to do a proper job, perhaps as the clerk says, it should be debentured."

Ald. Bill Beggs seconded Ald. Rehill's motion to suggest that the property committee clear and grade the cite with a bulldozer and have the board of works study the question of servicing it.

More Charges Against Lawyer

MONTREAL (CP)—George Hill, senior crown prosecutor, said Monday additional charges will be laid against Herman Buller, one of two Montreal lawyers charged as a result of an investigation into what police described as a $3,000,000 international racket in baby adoptions.

Buller has already been charged with falsifying entries in a birth certificate and with giving advice and counsel in connection with an indictable offence. His preliminary hearing is tentatively set for Wednesday.

Mr. Hill declined to indicate the nature of the new charges but said they will be somewhat similar to those already preferred against Louis Glazer, the second lawyer charged in the case.

Glazer, whose preliminary hearing started last week, faces five charges—two of conspiracy in connection with birth registration; two of falsification and forgery and one of uttering.

Indian General Leaves Korea

SEOUL (AP) — Indian Lt.-en. K. S. Thimayya, chairman of the controversial commission which handled Korean war-prisoner operations at Panmunjom, left today for home, his work finished.

Thimayya flew to Tokyo with Ellis Briggs and Kenneth Young, United States diplomats, for a short vacation.

The Indian general was chairman of the neutral nations repatriation commission whose work ended Sunday midnight under terms of the armistice agreement. He saw the last of his 6,000 Indian troops put aboard a ship today.

An 8th Army honor guard, composed of American, South Korean and other United Nations troops, put on a ceremony for the departing Indian. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, 8th Army commander, saw Thimayya off.

No South Korean official showed up at Seoul city air base for the Thimayya departure. But Mayor Kim Tae Son and other Korean officials pointedly waited until the Thimayya ceremony ended before biding Young goodbye.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Queen Elizabeth today sent a message of sympathy to Prime Minister R. G. Menzies following the disastrous floods in northern New South Wales in which 23 have died and three are missing.

Only 14 days ago the Queen and duke were travelling through that rich agriculture country and stayed overnight at Lismore, scene of the worst flooding.

Thousands of people in the rich farming districts on the north coast of New South Wales waded through receding floodwaters today in a grim trek back to their wrecked or badly damaged homes.

Threats of dysentery developed. Cases of pneumonia and gastro enteritis also were reported.

5-Pronged Assault Launched Against Huks

MANILA (AP) — A five-pronged, air-supported assault was launched today against Communist-led Huk rebels who ignored a Philippines government surrender ultimatum.

Five battalions equipped with armored cars and light artillery this morning moved up the eastern slopes of Mount Banahaw on the Quezon-Laguna provincial border southeast of Manila, but there were no reports of contact.

About 1,300 Huks remain unconquered throughout the Philippines.

Recession Talk Hurting U.S.-Charge

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Homer Ferguson (Rep. Mich.) says Democratic talk of a business recession is hurting the United States and ought to be stopped.

Ferguson, who heads the Senate Republican policy committee, spoke out today after former president Hoover had discounted the possibility of a depression and Stephen A. Mitchell, Democratic national chairman, had said reaction of the "pocketbook nerve" is likely to determine control of congress in November's elections.

"I don't think there is going to be any recession but I must say the propaganda for it is much more effective than I had anticipated it would be," Ferguson said in an interview.

"All this talk is persuading some people not to buy. And when they don't buy an article, somebody who is making it loses his job."

ONLY PASSING DIP

Hoover told the American Good Government Society here Monday night that as a man who had had one depression named for him he thought he could speak with good authority that there are no signs on the American landscape of any big depression now.

Observing that economic dips occur about every five or seven years in free-enterprise systems, Hoover added:

"You can have high confidence that this is only a passing dip, a slump, a readjustment or a recession, not a great depression."

Zoning Bylaw Under Fire From Mayor, 2 Aldermen

City planning and the city's forthcoming zoning bylaw withstood a volley of criticism Monday night when the board of works refused to go contrary to a decision of the planning board who had turned down an application from M. K. Reid to build a service station on the north-west corner of Park and Chamberlain streets, pending preparation of the zoning bylaw.

"Bylaw or no bylaw, I think any council member who knows the district will agree it is a commercial one," was the attitude of Ald. Gordon Powell, who supported Ald. McBride's contention that Mr. Reid should be granted the licence.

The appeal from the planning board's decision to city council was contained in a letter from George W. Carphin, public accountant, who stated that his client, Mr. Reid, wanted to purchase lots for the erection of a new service station opposite his present location on the south-east corner of Park and Perry streets.

The business had grown to the point where there was not enough room to handle it, it was said. The pumps were too close to the street.

Mr. Carphin admitted that the site was zoned as a residential one on Dr. Faludi's master plan, but contended that it had been reclassified as commercial by the the city on October 25, 1948, when a permit to erect a taxi stand there was granted to Perc Johnston.

Ald. Harold Rehill, a member of the planning board, explained that the board had told Mr. Reid they would not approve his request before city planning expert Gordon Culham had issued his report.

NOT RESIDENTIAL

"I don't see how the property can be classed as residential when there are so many commercial establishments in that area," Ald. McBride said, citing the fact that Civic Arena was near the spot. When the arena was built, he said, space had been left in front for a row of stores.

Asked by Ald. Art Burrows if he could inform the planning board of council's opinion, Ald. Rehill protested strongly. He said he didn't think all council members were aware of the complexity of the board's work. He admitted that "very few" permits had been granted contrary to the master plan. Mr. Culham had warned the board against "spot zoning."

City Solicitor W. F. Huycke supported Ald. Rehill's remarks on spot zoning. City planning had been studied for 40 years and spot zoning was one of the greatest hazards, he warned.

"In other words, planning doesn't take into account only the present situation but tries to provide for the future as well," Ald. Powell suggested.

"That's right," agreed Ald. Rehill.

Criticism also came from Mayor Graham, who said the planning board had already approved permission for a new laundry in the area.

'In other words, all Dr. Faludi's work has been wasted," His Worship said.

City Clerk E. A. Outram said he wouldn't want it to be thought that this was the case. There had been many advances in planning since the Fauldi report, as Mr. Culham had admitted. The bylaw was an attempt to simplify Dr. Fauldi's plan.

Ald. McBride pointed out that the site Mr. Reid had asked for was already occupied by a taxi stand, which indicated it was already in commercial use.

"NON-CONFORMING USER"

"Mr. Johnston is a non-conforming user," Mr. Outram said. "A controversial case in Kingston settled that. He can continue his business there but he can't extend it nor can any one else use it. If he stopped using it, the property would revert to residential use."

To the clerk's suggestion that council might send a letter to the planning board stating their opinion, Ald. Rehill again objected. He said that the board had asked Mr. Reid to petition residents of the area and the property-owner next to the proposed site had objected to a service station being erected there.

"I might advise you," Ald. Rehill said, "that unless some new material is brought in, the board will not change their minds."

Under persistent questioning, Ald. Rehill admitted that he knew Mr. Culham did not intend to change the oning of the property from residential to commercial.

"I don't want to reveal that but you have forced me to," Ald. Rehill said.

"Nevertheless, Mr. Reid should's be kicked around," Ald. Gordon Farquharson said. "I would hesitate to offend the planning board, but I feel we have already set a precedent in considering Imperial Oil's application at Parkhill Rd. and Water St."

"In that case too, we're waiting for Mr. Culham's report," Ald. Rehill said. "When it's ready, then council can go over it with a fine-tooth comb before it is presented to the public.

GET POT BOILING

"Just to get the pot boiling," Ald. Farquharson said, "I'll move Mr. Carphin be advised that the policy of this council is not to go contrary to the recommendation of the planning board, pending Mr. Culham's report."

Ald. Pat Anglesey said that, although he couldn't state when the report would be ready, Mr. Culham had said his work would take six months and had started in November. On that basis, the report should be ready by April.

Ald. Beggs seconded Ald. Farquharson's motion which was carried, with the votes of Aldermen Anglesey, Holt and Rehill.

And that was that.

Two Companies Negotiate Sugar Pact

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The Free Press said in a front-page story from Ottawa today that two Canadian sugar companies have negotiated a special agreement with Cuban sugar producers.

The story said: "Basically the deal was understood to turn on an agreement by the Canadian manufacturers to purchase Cuban raw sugar if Cuban exporters agreed not to ship quantities of Cuban refined."

It said W. J. McGregor of Chatham, president of Canada and Dominion Sugar Co. Ltd., and J. R. Crawford of Montreal, vice-president of St. Lawrence sugar refineries, made a trip to Cuba to work out the arrangement.

The Free Press story quoted official Ottawa sources as saying the agreement was not made under government auspices and a check-up was likely to be made.

Highway Deaths On Increase

TORONTO (CP) — C. W. Gilchrist, managing director of the Canadian Good Roads Association, said today highway accidents are increasing at such a rate that practically every Canadian during his or her lifetime will be directly affected by death or injury on the road.

At least one relative, friend or associate of every Canadian will be involved in a traffic accident if the present rate of increase is not checked, he said in an address prepared for delivery to the 60th annual meeting of the Ontario Good Roads Association.

He urged the association to support a demand for a Canada-wide traffic safety campaign. Last year more than 3,000 Canadians were killed in traffic accidents and more than $100,000,000 was lost in property damage.

Driving licence requirements permitted totally unqualified persons to "go their homicidal ways" wreaking havoc on the roads. Before progress could be made in curbing the traffic toll, testing for drivers' licences would have to be made compulsory in all provinces and traffic regulations would have to be strictly enforced.

Israel Has Accepted Call For Conference

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel has accepted UN Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold's call for an Israel-Jordan conference on Palestine border friction, official sources reported today.

Canadian Firm To Build 50 Britannias

MONTREAL (CP) — Some 50 aircraft, military versions of the huge Bristol Brittania transport, will be built by Canadair Limited, it was learned here Monday night.

A Canadair spokesman described it as a $185,000,000 order and said only licensing agreements with the plane's designers, the Bristol Aeroplane Company of England, remain to be worked out. This might take about four weeks.

The military version of the airliner would be a four-engined, 13,400-horsepower aircraft for use by maritime air commands.

T. N. Beaupre, deputy defence production minister, was quoted as saying the initial order will be for $85,000,000 to cover licence fees, tooling and engineering and the production of the first 20.

Mr. Beaupre said the plane, in the role of a submarine-hunter, will guard Canada's coastlines. To fill this role the Britannia will undergo extensive redesigning, he said.

CANADA'S BIGGEST

Canadair President Geoffrey Notman said the plane will be the largest ever constructed in Canada.

Mr. Notman said the commercial version's four turbo-prop engines will be replaced by 3,350-horsepower Wright compound engines to give the aircraft a longer range and slower speed for reconnaissance.

He said it will be about six months before Canadair begins to place orders for material but engineering work will begin immediately.

Mr. Notman said Canadair has also considered the possibility of building a commercial version of the plane.

Separate rights for this would have to be acquired from Bristol in England.

The Britannia, as a commercial aircraft, carries 100 persons and is twice as large as North Stars.

Youth Sentenced On 5 Charges

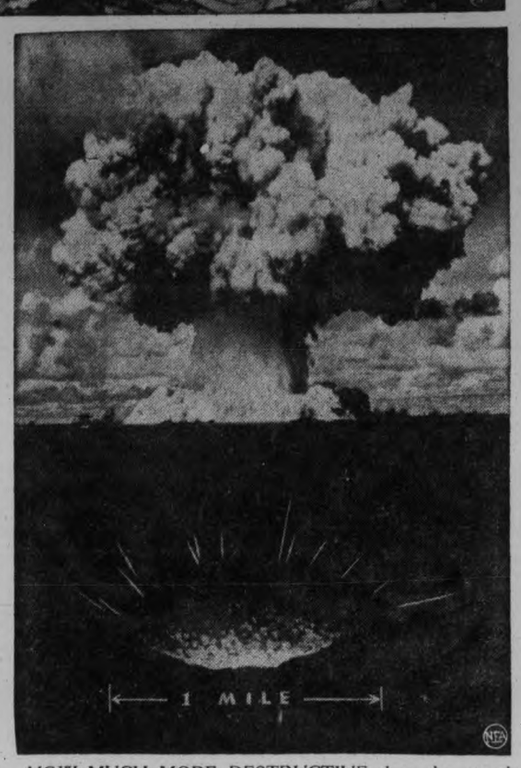
BANCROFT (ENS) — Garnett Redmond, 16, Bancroft, was found guilty on three charges of breaking and entering and two of receiving stolen goods.

Magistrate R. C. Jackson passed sentence of six months definite and six months indeterminate for breaking into Mullett's hardware store, Barker's dairy and Bierworth's garage. Six months was also imposed on each charge of receiving. All sentences are to run concurrently and will be served in an Ontario reformatory.

For shooting a female moose, C. J. Wilson, of Belleville, was fined $200 and costs.

Milton Spence, of Bancroft, paid $10 and costs for being drunk and Wilson Airhart, also of Bancroft, was fined a similar amount for having liquor at a place other than his residence.

Fines of $10 and costs were levied on John Johnson of Bells Rapids for failing to share the road, and George McCaw, of Coe Hill for using an unregistered vehicle.



HOW MUCH MORE DESTRUCTIVE than the atomic bomb the H-bomb can be was disclosed in the first detailed official public discussion of the world's first full-scale hydrogen bomb test at Eniwetok in 1952. The story is told graphically here, lower, in diagram and picture. The hydrogen bomb blasted a vast crater, a mile across and 175 feet deep, in the floor of the Pacific Ocean. The Eniwetok test island was blown off the face of the earth. The H-bomb would do the same within a circle six miles across in a large city. How terrific its force is can be gauged by the fact that A-bombs that destroyed Hiroshima (top) and Nagasaki in World War II achieved total destruction in an area only one mile in diameter.

Student Minister Tells Of Sask. Mission Field

MILLBROOK (ENS) — The inter-church Young People's group met following evening service on Saturday in St. Andrew's United church hall.

Special guests were the Young People's Unions from Fraserville and Bensfort.

The speaker for the evening was Jim Burn, of Emmanuel College, Toronto. Mr. Burn, who is studying to become a United church minister, told of his work last summer as a student missionary in southwestern Saskatchewan. He gave an account of the work at the four small western towns of Stone, Stonepile, Carnaugh and Battle.

To illustrate his talk, he showed colored films he had taken during the summer.

It was decided during Lent to change the Young People's meeting time to Wednesday evening rather than Sunday. After attending the regular midweek Lenten service for all three congregations of the village, the Young People plan to hold their own fellowship hour.

Don Kent, the president, was in the chair for the Sunday evening meeting. The worship service was taken by Fraserville Young People.

Miss Jean Smith conducted a sing-song at the beginning of the evening and a short game period at its close.

In charge of serving refreshments were Misses Beverley Patton, Irene Trick, Vaneta Chapman and Dorothy Ball.

The color party were Cubs, Terry Ruttle, Jimmy Armstrong, and Scouts Bertram Middleton and Donald Smith. Grant Hart and Charlie Evans were guards. Following the service the Scouts accepted donations for their current appeal.

Workers Laid Off

DETROIT (AP)—Three Chrysler Corporation divisions—Dodge, De Soto and Chrysler—were shut down Monday as a result of a short work week. The closings made idle some 25,000 workers. No reason for the shutdown was given, but it was believed designed to adjust production to the current lag in auto sales.

PCs Question Appointment Of Banks As Delegate

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservatives Monday questioned the appointment of Hal C. Banks of Montreal, Canadian director of the Seafarers' International Union (AFL-TLC) as Canadian delegate to an International Labor Organization meeting now going on at Geneva.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, spokesman for her party, described Mr. Banks as a citizen of the United States with a record of court convictions in that country and in Canada.

She asked Labor Minister Gregg in the Commons to explain why he was named to attend the meeting of the ILO's inland transportation committee.

Mr. Gregg said that in this case, as in others, the recommendations of national labor organizations are passed to the ILO.

(Mr. Banks was nominated by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.)

QUESTIONED BY DREW

Opposition Leader Drew asked if Mr. Gregg had taken note of representations made against Mr. Banks' suitability and sought information from the justice department as to his record.

Mr. Gregg said he did not confer with the justice department.

"Did the minister," Mr. Drew asked, "exercise his judgment . . . to determine that this man was a suitable man to send as the Canadian representative on this occasion?"

"Of course I exercised my judgment," the minister replied.

SENT TO CANADA

Banks, a burly young labor leader, was sent to Canada about five years ago by the strongly anti-Communist SIU when it decided to muscle in on the Red-led Canadian Seamen's Union, which then had a tight grip on most of the labor in Canada's inland and deep-sea shipping.

The Banks union, after a tough fight, ran the Communist group off the ships. The CSU went out of existence as such, though scattered remnants still exist under different names.

Music was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garham, Mrs. C. Rich, Mr. Art Pogue, Mr. Russell Brooks and Mr. Wilfred Wilson shared the calling for the squares. Refreshments were served by a committee headed by Mrs. Vic Gray.

Adjudicator Says Play Needs More Vividness

BROCKVILLE (CP)—The Brockville Theatre Guild Monday night opened the eastern Ontario drama festival here with its presentation "The Corn Is Green."

Graham Suter, English adjudicator, called the play "a decent performance." He said there was common sense in the approach in the play, the story was clear to follow and there was good contrast in the choice of characters. But he added that the Emlyn Williams play was a little underplayed theatrically.

Points could have been improved to make it more vivid, Mr. Suter said. All the cast was urged to play their parts bigger and with more punch, especially the emotional scenes, he added.

STRONGER PROJECTION

Mr. Suter emphasized the need for stronger voice projection from most of the players and asked for a bit of exaggeration, excitement and attack in putting over the presentation.

The festival will continue all week with groups from Kingston, Cobourg, Ottawa, Belleville and Kemptville staging performances.

Leading roles in Monday night's play were taken by Betty Alexander and William Rees. The performance was directed by Kay Fowler and produced by Dr. J. L. Carroll.

Bear Pops Out Of Log Killed By Axeman

BANCROFT (ENS) — A bear which objected to having its winter quarters disturbed was quickly despatched by two well aimed blows with an axe on Saturday morning, near here.

Twenty-three-year-old Lawrence Green of Bancroft, an axeman employed by Ontario land surveyor M. J. McAlpine, was cutting a survey line through the bush near Centre Lake uranium properties in Cardiff township. He rested one foot on a log and was much surprised when bruin popped out the other side.

Adhering to the old maxim that attack is the best method of defence, Green slipped off his snow shoes and swung his axe at the medium sized animal hitting it in the hind quarters. The second blow to the skull effectively finished off the bear.

Hauling Record Claimed

WEST YELLOWSTONE, Mont. (AP)—A sled dog pulled 2,100 pounds of freight 25 feet Monday and owner Al Holten of Santa Rosa, Calif., claimed a world's record. North American Dog Derby officials said the previous record was 1,800 pounds, set eight years ago in Nome, Alaska.

Spring Around Corner

WOODSTOCK (CP)—The sap is running! And 11-year-old Billy Bates is probably the first boy in Ontario to enjoy a drink of the 1954 run. He tipped the bucket Monday on the farm of Thomas Bates, just south of here. This year's run is several weeks early because of mild weather.

Make Spot Checks Of Car Trunks

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — United States immigration authorities have discontinued their practice of inspecting the trunks of every auto entering from Canada, begun in May, 1952, after two aliens were captured attempting to enter illegally at Niagara Falls.

Spot checks will continue at the Peace, Rainbow, Whirlpool and Lewiston bridges across the Niagara river.

1,600 Firemen Gather

Cubs, Scouts Dine With Dads

George Street United Church cubs and scouts held a father and son banquet Monday night in the Sunday school hall, with 110 attending.

The banquet was arranged under the convenership of Mrs. Arthur Black. Plans were made to organize a mothers' auxiliary to assist Scoutmaster Herb Reynolds and Cubmaster Quirt McKinney.

Grace was said by the Rev. Arnold A. Mathews, who later expressed his appreciation of the fine work the leaders have done with the boys.

Chairman for the evening was Art Bacon. To start the dinner, each boy introduced his father. Mr. McKinney led in group singing. Ed Cotton, district commissioner, and E. J. Walff, president of the Scout Association, both spoke briefly.

In a short program Alan Race, Ralph Gatfield and Barry Black played piano solos, and Terry Faiers tap danced and Stanley Dainard played a violin solo.

Rushed To Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — A police cruiser sped 10-month-old Jeremy Kent to hospital Monday night after his father found him unconscious in his suburban Etobicoke township home. However, the child could not be revived. Death was attributed to strangulation.

Healthy Diversity Of Opinion Leads To Better Understanding

The best way to fight McCarthyism "and all tpyes of intellectual straightjackets" is through organizations like the National Conference of Christians and Jews "which believe in basic freedoms," W. S. Graff, secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian council told the Rotary club Monday.

"We hear a lot about strength in unity," said Mr. Graff, but it is "no paradox that there is even greater strength in intelligent diversity." Different racial and religious classifications must enjoy a healthy diversity, and must understand the viewpoints of other groups, if they are to be strong in their own faith.

EMOTION IS CONTAGIOUS

The best way to combat intolerance and bigotry, said the speaker, is to demand rational reasons for prejudices. "Emotions control our reason on racial questions, and emotion is contagious." He said that Rotarians and all other citizens when they hear prejudiced remarks "from heads of state or from taxi-drivers" must insist on proof for sweeping generalizations.

All religions of the Judao-Christian heritage emphasize the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Differences between these groups "are not fundamental" and those who hope for a peaceful world should "look for common ground rather than for differences".

The whole idea of race is a fallacy in any case, said Mr. Graff. "We're all descended from the same stock,—from Adam". He cited as evidence the book "Fallacy of Race" by the noted anthropologist Dr. Ashley Montague. (Dr. Montague is also author of "The Natural Superiority of Women".

The race fallacy is not the only erroneous idea of "otherwise intelligent people". Mr. Graff questioned the often-heard theory that scientists are irreligious or anti-religious, asserting that most scientists by the very nature of their work are interested in brotherhood. He said that while scientists developed atomic energy, "it's the politicians who put this energy to wrong uses."

PROGRESS MADE

A great deal of progress has been made since the war in the field of race understanding in the United States, said Mr. Graff, describing the November meeting of the National (U.S.) Conference of Christians and Jews in Washington. The advance towards greater understanding is maknig good progress "but there's still a long way to go."

This conference was studded with big names in the U.S. — names of men backing the aims of brotherhood in their particular lines. Hotel-owner Conrad Hilton has banned all discrimination in his huge chain of hotels. AFL president George Meany refused to allow his stage workers to work in theatres where discrimination is practised. Tours of industry, sponsored by Benjamin Fairless of U.S. Steel, are being made to promote more brotherhood at all levels. Al Rosen of the Cleveland Indians reported that segregation in sports is "on the way out."

Nor is youth indifferent to the need for brotherhood, said Mr. Graff. One of the delegates to the conference from this country was Kelowna's Kathleen Archibald, Miss Canada of 1953. Chairing a panel on what youth could do to beat intolerance and misunderstanding was famed TV star Jinx Falkenburg McCrary.

The Conference of Christians and Jews got under way in the United States in 1928 when Al Smith was running for president and fighting not only the opposition parties "but people who proudly proclaimed their intolerance" of his Roman Catholic faith.

In 1947 the movement spread to Canada and has been endorsed by all major political parties, leaders of business and the professions, and the universities. First director was Dr. Richard Jones. Later it spread across the country, and projects allied to the aims of the Council are being sponsored by many Canadian universities.

The University of Montreal has instituted Canada's first school of human relations. Human relations workshops are also operative at the Banff school of fine arts, the University of British Columbia and the University of Manitoba.

Also speaking at the Rotary Club dinner was William J. Hamilton, one of three co-chairmen of the local branch of the council, due to be chartered March 3. Mr. Hamilton sketched the brotherhood work of Rotary over the past several years.

EASTER SEAL DRIVE

A plea for support for Rotary's annual Easter seal campaign for crippled children was made by Claire Collins. He called on Rotarians to volunteer their services to stamp and address envelopes to everybody on the voters' lists to send the campaign over the top. In charge of the Easter seals campaign is J. E. Girven.

Steve Evans, a director of the junior chamber of commerce, appealed to Rotarians to support the Community Chest campaign March 5 to 19, suggesting that it was unfortunate that the Easter seals campaign is on at the same time. "It's not a burden, not a duty, but a privilege" to support the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign.

Mr. Graff was thanked by the Rev. Ivan C. Morgan who said "Mr. Graff has shown us that prejudice is a disease we must fight." Rotary president Paul Irwin also expressed the club's appreciation to Mr. Graff observing that he "will probably be a future Peterborough citizen of the year."

Charges Railways Let Business Drift

OTTAWA (CP)—A former senior lawyer with the Canadian National Railways Monday accused the railways of letting rail business drift to competitors by keeping freight rates up.

A. K. Dysart of Vancouver said before the board of transport commissioners that the railways have a habit of "locking the barn door" after the traffic is lost to other carriers.

Mr. Dysart, who resigned about a year ago as senior commission counsel for the CNR, was before the board today seeking to have "hardboard" and "composite board" placed in the same category as lumber for freight rate purposes. These products, made out of waste from the manufacture of plywood, now are carried as "hardware" and take higher rail rates than lumber.

File 104 Complaints Under Unfair Pay Act

TORONTO (CP)—A total of 104 complaints were filed with the provincial department of labor under the female employees fair remuneration act between Jan. 1, 1952 and Feb. 16, last, Premier Frost said Monday.

Sixty-six cases were dealt with from Jan. 1, 1952, to Dec. 31 last, the premier said in reply to a question submitted by T. D. Thomas (CCF—Ontario).

A total of 38 cases, two of which involve employers, are currently under investigation and 52 were withdrawn. Fourteen were dismissed when investigation disclosed that the complainants were not doing the same work as male employees with whom they were comparing their work.

Separate School In Lindsay Costs $326,000

LINDSAY (ENS) — Due for completion in September, the new St. Mary's School for girls and boys is the culmination of many years of work and planning by the members of the Lindsay Separate School Board.

After watching, for years, the separate school population outgrow the facilities of St. Dominick's School for boys and St. Joseph's Academy for girls, plans were finally put into operation to build the new $326,000 structure. Work was begun last year.

The board issued debentures for $250,000 to finance the building. The balance was raised by private donation and reserve funds.

AUDITORIUM

The new building will have 12 rooms to accommodate Grades I to 8 and will also have an adjoining auditorium, which will also be used as a parish hall, seating between 550 and 600. Architects of the building were Servos and Cauley of Toronto, and the builders Bennett-Pratt of Weston.

The school will be staffed by the same teachers now in the separate schools system, with one or two additions. Chairman of the separate school board this year, who was also head of the group during the early planning for the school, is Leo Skipworth. Other members are Albert O'Neill, John Connolly, Albert Ashmore, Guy Gassien and Vince Cote. Secretary - treasurer is Felix Fox.

Youth 20, Suing $30,000 For Injuries

TORONTO (CP)—William Glandfield, 20, is suing for $30,000 for injuries he claims he suffered more than two years ago when a motor-car struck his legs while he was on a hayride.

Defendants are Donald Shropshire of Glenwood Beach, about 40 miles north of here, driver of a hay wagon tractor and Robert E. Degrey, a Cornwall milkman whom Glandfield says was driving the car which struck him.

The case is continuing.

Mr. Justice J. D. Kearney, chief commissioner, said it is expected hearings will open at Vancouver May 3. After that there would be sessions at Winnipeg and some points in the east still undetermined.

Drew Questions Pearson Speech

OTTAWA — (CP) — Opposition Leader Drew asked in the Commons Monday whether External Affairs Minister Pearson had made a new declaration of foreign policy.

He was referring to a speech by Mr. Pearson Sunday at Winter Park, Fla., in which he was reported to have "pledged Canada's help to the United States in the event of war."

Acting Prime Minister Howe said he had not seen the report but that perhaps Mr. Pearson could answer when he returned to Ottawa.

Mr. Pearson is due back here Wednesday after a two-week vacation in Florida. He spoke during a forum at Rollins College.

Won't Restrict Showing Toronto Film

OTTAWA (CP)—The government will allow unrestricted distribution of a movie entitled "Farewell Oak Street," a National Film Board production described as "deeply offensive to the human dignity of many Canadians."

The criticism of the movie, one of the board's "Canada Carries On" series, came from Charles Henry (L—Toronto Rosedale) for whom Citizenship Minister Harris tabled a parliamentary return Monday.

Mr. Harris said the government has not considered a restricted distribution for the film now being shown in three Toronto theatres. He said three complaints against the film have been received.

WIDELY SHOWN

In the normal course of events, he added, the film distributed for the board by Columbia Pictures, will be shown in a large number of Canadian theatres.

Film board officials said "Farewell Oak Street" deals with the low-rental Regent Park housing development built at a cost of about $15,500,000 to replace a former Toronto slum area.

British Army Being Given New Atomic-Guided Missiles

Ottawa May Give Provinces Highway Control

OTTAWA (CP)—The government, after fighting for years to obtain legal jurisdiction over road traffic crossing provincial borders, now is telling the provinces it doesn't want to use this power. Right after a Privy Council decision confirming this authority, the central government is calling a conference of provincial highways ministers to figure out ways to turn it over to the provinces. The announcement was made in the Commons Tuesday by Transport Minister Chevrier, in a carefully-worded statement saying he hopes a "common understanding" will enable the provinces to control all traffic on provincial highways.

This would include both traffic within provinces — unquestionably under provincial authority from away back—and that crossing provincial boundaries which had been under dispute in the courts up until Monday.

ISSUE SETTLED

The cross-border issue was settled Monday by the Privy Council—in the last Canadian constitutional case to go to the British body—in a decision laying down federal jurisdiction over commercial road operations from one province to another and from a province into the United States.

But Tuesday, the government made a quick shift by announcing the calling of the provincial ministers' meeting and saying it does not want "divided jurisdiction" on highway matters.

The federal government feels, Mr. Chevrier said, it would not be in the public interest to have a provincial board controlling within-the-province traffic and a federal body regulating the same carriers that might be running across provincial boundaries.

The minister declined, in the House and under latter questioning outside the chamber, to indicate what terms the federal government might ask from the provinces in return for handing over its jurisdiction to them.

MOVE APPROVED

While the federal government now has been saddled with the jurisdiction by the final authority, a legal view here is that it can dispose of it to the provinces constitutionally. This could be done by an act of Parliament constituting provincial highways boards as federal bodies for trans-border purposes.

The federal move met with immediate welcome from the Canadian Trucking Associations, national body speaking for the $70,-

Police Beat Innocent Man MP Charges

TORONTO (CP) — Robert MacAulay (PC — Toronto Riverdale) said Tuesday Paul Chachia, recently cleared by a new trial of a previous conviction of armed robbery, had a confession "beaten out of him with a rubber hose."

He charged the youth was jailed because the crown "desired more to have a conviction than to have justice done."

Mr. MacAulay said in the Ontario legislature that Cachia had been convicted because of the confession, although it was never introduced in court. He claimed the crown had shown the trial judge the confession during a recess called after the judge indicated there did not appear to be enough evidence to convict Cachia.

TWO LESSONS DRAWN

The member said the case taught two lessons:

1. It was improper that anyone should be tried on evidence that was not presented in court but was "sneaked out the back door in some way."

2. Innocent men like Cachia should be recompensed for their imprisonments.

He said the state hadn't even apologized to Cachia, let alone pay recompense.

Woman Able See Five Moons

LONDON (Reuters) — A keen-eyed British housewife who can see five moons with the naked eye makes her debut on television tonight.

Clifford Davis, TV editor of the London Daily Mirror, said today that Mrs. Janet Hitchman "can probably see farther and clearer than any other white person."

Without spectacles or a telescope she can spot the four major moons of the planet Jupiter, more than 390,000,000 miles away, he said. Counting the earth's moon, that makes five she can see.

DISCOVERED BY BBC

Davis reported that Mrs. Hitchman was discovered by the British Broadcasting Corporation, which had appealed for someone who could see Jupiter's moons to appear on a scientific program tonight.

"Last week Mrs. Hitchman's sight was tested by the British Optical Association in London," he said. "She astounded everyone by picking out two of Jupiter's moons straight off."

She couldn't spot the other two moons because they were behind the planet at the time.

Don't Like Plan Six Resign

KITCHENER (CP)—The Kitchener-Waterloo hospital commission Tuesday night approved a policy change in nursing education which has resulted in the resignation of the former director of education and five instructors.

The change will mean a more practical educational program which will result in a more economical operation of the nursing department, the commission was told.

M. J. Smith, vice-chairman of the board, said the new training program involved a shift in emphasis from "classroom study to patient room study." It would effect certain economies in pay and number of staff, he said.

Minister Criticizes Labor Organizations

TORONTO (CP) — A United Church minister Tuesday night criticized some labor organizations which he said "can become tyrannical towards their members."

The Rev. Arthur Organ, Hamilton chairman of the board of evangelism and social service, said certain labor groups are as "unconcerned about the public as some of their employers' associations used to be."

Says Canada To Endorse Cease-Fire

St. Laurent Agrees With Nehru On Far East Move

NEW DELHI —(Reuters)— Prime Minister St. Laurent said today that "without any doubt" Canada would endorse the appeal for a cease-fire in Indo-China issued by Prime Minister Nehru of India.

The Canadian leader, visiting India on his round-the-world goodwill tour, made the statement at a press conference.

He was commenting on the plea issued by Nehru in parliament two days ago for a cease-fire between the Communists and French Union forces in Indo-China pending the April conference in Geneva.

The Geneva meeting, agreed upon at the recent Berlin Big Four talks, will discuss the Indo-China war as well as Korea.

Nehru said it would be a shame if bloodshed continued in Indo-China while discussion of a possible end to the war was pending.

U.S. NOT HAPPY

The Nehru proposal was not so well-received in the United States. Diplomatic officials in Washington said they regard any Indian peacemaking role as impractical on the eve of the Geneva parley.

The Canadian leader said he thinks a cease-fire in Indo-China would be practical.

"In making the appeal India has done something that will have considerable influence," he said.

"Any public appeal by Mr. Nehru must be listened to with attention throughout the world."

Nehru's proposal was taken seriously by the French National Assembly which decided Tuesday to hold a debate March 5 on the plan.

GOES ON TOUR

Mr. St. Laurent drove today to the rural outskirts of this capital to see what is happening under India's five-year plan to modernize the lives of 300,000,000 people who live in primitive conditions in villages throughout the country.

The Canadian leader was taken through the little village of Zindipur, whose 200 people live in mud huts, sleep on mud floors and walk muddy streets. They cook in open mud ovens using as fuel the dung of cattle kept just outside their doors.

From Zindipur, which is scarcely 100 yards from one wall to another, the prime minister went half a mile to the improved larger vil-

HEADED FOR SCRAP—The former Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada lies on her side in Gladstone dock, Liverpool, England, as preparations are made to raise her. Sixteen winches will tighten nine-inch thick hawsers stretching across the dock to the vessel, in an effort to right her. Refloating the ship will take six to eight weeks before she can be moved to a suitable scrap yard. The ship burned about a year ago at the dockside.

Expect Units To Receive Arms Soon

Soldiers Prepared To Use Weapons For Offence, Defence

LONDON (Reuters)— Britain announced today that her army may soon be equipped with atomic guided missiles for "purposes of offence."

War Minister Antony Head said the army is "nearing a decision" on the introduction of the atomic weapons. Two days ago, Sir Winston Churchill's government announced it is equipping the RAF with atomic bombs from secret stores.

Britain exploded her first atomic weapon off the Australian coast Oct. 3, 1952, and further atomic tests were held on the Woomera rocket range in central Australia last October.

TRAINING DEFENDERS

Head, in a statement to Parliament on army estimates for the 1954-55 year, said:

"We have given a great deal of thought to the defensive and offensive aspect of the introduction of atomic weapons. Defensively, training has gone ahead in various methods of protection and detection. Radiac instruments for detection (of radioactivity after an atomic explosion) are now in production, and training versions are already in the hands of troops.

"We are nearing a decision on the introduction of an effective army weapon of offence. This will probably take the form of a ground - to - ground medium-range guided missile."

TAKE ALL STEPS

"All possible steps are being taken to insure that the introduction of atomic weapons will find the army well prepared in the offensive use and in methods of defence."

He revealed that a three-day indoor exercise held near London last August and attended by representatives of all Commonwealth countries made "a close study of the problems of supply, communication and movement under atomic attack and also of the tactical and strategic use of atomic weapons."

Firm Asks Workers Vote Pay Decrease

HESPELER (CP) — Dominion Woollen and Worsted Limited, one of Canada's largest wool textile mills, put before its employees Tuesday a proposal which, if accepted, will result in a "special depression deduction" at all levels in wages and salaries at the plant.

Employees heard the proposal at a general meeting following a preliminary discussion between the management and officials of the Woollen Workers' Union of Hespeler (Ind.).

Gordon Klager, managing director, told 630 employees that "the industry is involved in a grim struggle for survival against imported goods made by textile workers whose wages are, at best, less than one-half of yours."

The normal staff of the firm is 1,200.

8½ PER CENT OF PAY

The "special depression deduction" represents approximately 8½ per cent of the employees' take-home pay. The proposal, said to be designed to keep the mill in operation during the current textile crisis, was outlined by Charles Barrett, plant manager, who said that 16 Canadian textile mills in six provinces have closed to date as a result of adverse conditions in the industry.

The employees will vote today to determine whether to accept the proposal.

Wages at the plant have for years been reported to be above the average paid in the textile industry.

If the suggested wage cut is accepted an independent board, composed of the union, management and a neutral authority, will review conditions every month to determine whether the emergency measure should be removed."

$30,000,000 For Education

TORONTO (CP)—An annual expenditure of $30,000,000 for the expansion of elementary education in the province is seen for the next several years, George A. Pearson, superintendent of elementary education, said today. Speaking to the Ontario legislature's committee on education, Mr. Pearson said that last year provincial school boards had to provide 1,500 additional school rooms to meet the increase in the number of pupils. "Indications are that this problem will go on for several years. It means we will have to expand at the rate of $30,000,000 a year for elementary education."

A total of 610,441 public school pupils and 157,956 separate school students were enrolled last Sept. 1, an increase of 52,524 over 1952.

Mr. Pearson said schoolroom additions are mainly permanent construction, but in the suburbs where a surge of population has arisen, school boards are building two-thirds of the rooms on a permanent basis, on the realization that when the peak is reached the rate will drop to two-thirds.

ENOUGH GUIDANCE?

W. Murdoch (PC—Essex South) wondered if enough guidance is given boards on school construction.

Mr. Pearson said school boards are asked to plan ahead five years.

Mr. Pearson said the rate of provincial contributions towards school construction varies in the suburban and rural areas from 40 to 92 per cent, based on the equalized assessment per classroom. Mr. Beech suggested the federal government should contribute dollar for dollar.

PREER 35-PUPIL LIMIT

He said the department of education preferred an enrolment limit of 35 pupils per classroom.

Mr. Murdoch said the legislature's select committee on reforms institutions discovered that most of the inmates in provincial jails didn't get along in schools.

Man Shot At U.K. Airport By Airman Guarding Plane

LONDON (Reuters)—A man was shot at a London airport today after being challenged by an American airman guarding a U.S. transport plane. He was taken to hospital for treatment. The wounded man, Ted Nicholson, was a gardener at the airport. He suffered a bullet wound in the thigh.

U. S. air force headquarters named the sentry as Airman 2nd Class Anthony Grzymalski of New York.

Grzymalski was guarding U.S. planes at Northhold field near London. During the night, he had heard a noise and loaded his automatic —normally unloaded — to investigate, the air force statement said.

ACCIDENT LATER

Three hours later the gardener approached on his bicycle.

Grzymalski followed orders in drawing his automatic and calling out halt three times, the statement said.

The statement said the gun was accidentally discharged. It added that the two men knew each other well, having met frequently on their jobs.

Air force police and British civil police are investigating jointly.

Find Conference 'Worthwhile'

LONDON (CP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today summed up the recent conference of the Big Four foreign ministers in Berlin as "frustrating, disappointing and at times near tragedy but well worthwhile."

He was opening a two-day foreign policy debate in the House of Commons with his report on the four weeks he spent in Berlin meeting with State Secretary Dulles, France's Georges Bidault and Russia's Vyacheslav Molotov.

"It is an encouraging reflection that despite our differences—which were always firmly and sometimes sharply expressed—the conference certainly has not heightened international tension," Mr. Eden said.

"We did agree to call a Far East conference on Korea, the preparations for which had been deadlocked for many weary months at Panmunjom. It also made possible a discussion in Indo-China. These were modest gains."

Unemployment Still Rising

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian unemployment is still rising, labor leaders said today.

Percy Bengough, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, estimated it at 570,000 and going up.

Eugene Forsey, research director for the Canadian Congress of Labor, put the figure at about 580,000 and said probably one out of seven workers is out of a job.

The labor men were addressing a meeting of 125 members of the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO-CCL), here to stage a mass lobby on Parliament Hill seeking government action to halt unemployment.

U.S. Tourists Unhappy With Ontario Services

TORONTO (CP)—The American tourist, who spends millions of dollars annually in Ontario, is not happy with what he gets for his money. The annual report of the department of travel and publicity, tabled in the legislature Tuesday, said Americans generally complain of prices for accommodation and meals.

"This situation follows from the general level of commodity prices and other cost factors in Canada and no immediate amelioration can be foreseen."

Complaints over poor food have decreased in number and it is believed that food service in the province "can be said to be gradually improving in general."

UNMATCHED VALUE

The report said it was also believed that Ontario summer resorts and sportsmen's camps offer "value unmatched on this continent."

Americans also complain over the closing of retail shops on weekdays, the non-availability of gasoline at certain times and in certain areas, high charges for motor repairs, Sunday closing of theatres and lounges, the liquor control board permit and purchase-record system and other restrictive aspects of Ontario liquor laws.

A total of 132 formal complaints were lodged by tourists last year compared with 116 in the previous year. Topping the list was uncleanliness, bad maintenance and poor facilities. Rates and reservations were disputed. Some complained of misleading advertising and information. Five complaints of rudeness were registered.

Man Crushed To Death

MELBOURNE (AP) — A man was crushed to death when 10,000 excited Australians burst through a barrier of police and troops near Melbourne town hall to see Queen Elizabeth today.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh had just passed the spot when the crowd surged forward.

Otherwise the behaviour of the Melbourne crowds was orderly.

$300,000 Fire Rages In 2 Warehouses

HALIFAX (CP)—A three-alarm fire swept through two warehouses on Halifax's waterfront Tuesday night causing an estimated $300,000 damage.

More than 130 firemen battled the blaze in 30-degree weather for five hours before getting it under control. They were hampered by high winds that lashed them with rain.

Firemen and police kept an all-night vigil on the smouldering ruins of the Commercial Equipment and the Payzant and King warehouses on the Irving Oil Company's wharf.

Canadian Armed Forces Now Getting New And Deadly Arsenal Of Weapons

OTTAWA (CP)—New weapons far more deadly than anything known during the Second World War are being delivered to Canada's armed forces.

Even while this potent arsenal is being built up, the services and defence research board continue experiments in the ceaseless hunt for better equipment to give the fighting man every possible break in any future war.

New weapons now being delivered do not include atomic bombs or other nuclear weapons, which the Canadian services will get eventually.

In the cold war, there is no end to the problem of equipping the forces with the most modern destructive machines. Defence Minister Claxton said in a recent interview: "You reach one goal, but even before you get there, you know there'll be a new one beyond that and another beyond that again."

Here is a rundown of some of the new weapons being fed to the forces. Others are being considered, still others are secret.

NAVY

Anti-submarine escorts — Five launched, nine under construction.

Minesweepers — Four completed last year, 10 expected to be ready by the end of this year.

Aircraft carrier — the angled-deck Bonaventure, now a-building at Belfast, is expected to be launched in 1956.

Frigates — 21 are undergoing conversion.

Small craft, ranging from patrol vessels to floating derricks—43 completed or under construction.

Banshee all-weather jet fighters—About 40 are on order from the United States to replace Sea Fury fighters by 1956.

Grumman S2F anti-submarine aircraft—about 40 are on order to replace Avengers.

Sonobuoy—A new device for locating enemy submarines.

Squid — A new anti-submarine mortar with electronic fire control system, enabling detonation at pre-determined depths.

Torpedo—New models for use in both ships and aircraft.

Armament—New three-inch electronic gun.

ARMY

Rifle — Belgian Fabrique Nationale automatic .30-calibre probably will replace the Lee Enfield .303.

Tanks — Conversion to British Centurions from U.S. Shermans is almost complete. The army is considering whether to purchase later-model Centurions or monster British Caernarvons.

Anti-aircraft — Consideration is being given to purchase of the U.S. Nike, which fires guided missiles, or a similar weapon.

Vehicles—New road-building machines are being tested but are still secret.

AIR FORCE

Aircraft:

Home defence squadrons are being equipped with CF-100 all-weather jets, believed to be the most heavily armed fighters in the world.

The delta-winged CF-105 now is on the drawing boards.

So is the British Bristol Britannia, designed to replace the Lancaster bomber as an anti-submarine and patrol aircraft.

Some 25 U.S. Neptune bombers are on order for maritime reconniassance.

2nd Series Of Earth Tremors Damage Hundreds Of Homes In Pennsylvania

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—The second series of earth tremors in three days damaged hundreds of homes and broke up streets Tuesday night in an area where anthracite mines honeycomb the earth.

The shock sent hundreds of persons, many of them in nightclothes, fleeing to the streets shortly before midnight in this tremor-conscious city. Police reported no one was injured.

Several residents of the area reported hearing underground explosions at the time of the disturbance. The Woodward colliery of the Glen Alden Coal Co. has workings 400 feet under the surface of the area. The mines were closed after similar tremors Sunday.

The upheaval of the ground cracked foundations, walls and windows of homes and raised some sections of pavements as high as a foot or more.

There was no estimate of the total damage.

W. J. Clements, state mines secretary, blamed Sunday's tremors, which damaged 300 homes in a nearby area, on cave-ins in the underground workings. However, Francis O. Case, president of the coal company, said they "were not due to mining activities under that area."

The state, city and coal company have launched separate investigations of the tremors, but little is expected to be learned until the mines are cleared of gas caused by the earth movements.

Many residential areas in this northeastern Pennsylvania coal mining area are built over active or abandoned coal mines.

Sunday afternoon's tremors were the first of their kind ever experienced in this city of 86,000. They were several blocks from Tuesday night's shocks.

Similar earth movements rocked a residential area of Allentown, 76 miles to the south, several hours earlier. Allentown has no coal workings under the city.

Russia May Have Won Real Objective Conference Gives Red China Foot In Door

WASHINGTON (AP).—Senator Walter George, Dem. Ga., said today that Russia, by winning a seat for Red China at the forthcoming Geneva conference on Far Eastern problems, may have gained her only real objective of the Berlin Big Four talks.

George, ranking Democrat on the Senate foreign relations committee, said in an interview that he regards this action as giving the Chinese Communists "a foot in the door" toward eventual recognition by the United Nations and possibly by the United States.

State Secretary Dulles, who reports on the Berlin talks to the committee in a closed session later today and to the people by radio and television tonight, has contended that the U.S. got just what it wanted in arranging the Geneva meeting.

A number of Republicans have voiced scepticism at Dulles' action in agreeing to sit down with the Chinese Communists.

Danish Doctors Lend Nature Hand Again

By EIGIL ANDERSON

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Danish doctors have again lent nature a helping hand, and a young American who came here last winter as Charlie McLeod is almost ready to return to Louisiana as Charlotte McLeod.

After a series of hormone injections and operations at Copenhagen hospitals through the last year Miss McLeod has reached her goal after overcoming troubles that she called "just one year of hell."

The reason for all this trouble, 28-year-old Charlotte said, was "the bad publicity of a recent similar case."

Leaning heavily on a walking stick because her feet still are somewhat numb after the last operation, Charlotte said she wants to go back to the United States but she lacks the money.

Charlotte said her home is in New Orleans. She said she had planned for a long time to come to Copenhagen, making that decision long before the Christine Jorgensen case developed.

But when she came here she discovered that Danish doctors were tied by a 1953 law that permitted them to make "the initial operation" only on Scandinavians.

"UNOFICIAL" OPERATION

"The thought of having come all this way in vain and of returning as the Charlie I hated was unbearable," she said. "So I managed to have this first operation made unofficially. It happened on a kitchen table at midnight and that's all I want to say about that, but the operation almose killed me."

It took Charlotte months to recover but then the Danish doctors could take care of her according to the law. Injections and operations followed. She spent months in hospitals and clinics. Famous professors and plastic surgeons worked on her, mostly free of charge because she could not afford to pay the bills.

Miss McLeod said she was in the army for three months in 1948 and got an honorable discharge for medical reasons.

"Everyone could see that I was no soldier and that it was all a mistake," she said.

Copenhagen hospital authorities confirmed that the operations were performed but refused to give the names of the doctors who were active in the treatment.

Since the Jorgensen case, Danish doctors have shunned publicity in such cases.

Family Made Homeless By Fire

HALL'S GLEN (ENS)—A fire in the roof spotted by a neighbor burned the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Lowery on the Nephton road, Tuesday afternoon, but not before the occupants and all of their belongings had been removed.

Arthur Taylor who lives across the road from the Lowerys in the Murphy settlement about five miles south of the Nepheline mines gave the warning. He saw flames leaping out of the roof about 12.30 p.m.

Four young Lowery children were sleeping upstairs taking their early afternoon nap.

Neighbors from some 15 houses of the settlement quickly gathered to give help. There was no water supply nearby, to help them fight the flames, but they started carrying furniture out.

In the meantime, Mrs. Lowery, after seeing that the children were safe, drove to the mine where her husband works to give the alarm. About 20 to 25 men rushed to the burning home to help.

It is believed that the fire started near the top of the chimney. The two-storey frame house was owned by Stewart Murphy. The Lowerys rented it from him.

Until they can get another home, the Lowerys have moved in with Mr. Lowery's mother, Mrs. Earl Lowery who lives on the Nepheline mine road about a half miles north of the Murphy settlement.

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — The newspaper still leads as the best media for selling merchandise, Robert B. Adam, president of the Buffalo, N. Y., retail merchants association, said Tuesday night.

"It is estimated that about five per cent of all merchandise in the larger retail establishments is sold through advertising," he told Fort Erie chamber of commerce. "The ratio is newspapers three per cent, TV and radio one per cent, mail one per cent."

Fire Destroys Warkworth Barn

WARKWORTH (ENS). — A four-year-old barn on the farm of Wesley Rogers, one-quarter of a mile north of the village was destroyed by a fire of unknown origin Monday afternoon.

The stock was outside at the time and farm machinery was stored elsewhere, but the upper part of the structure was filled with baled hay and some 300 bushels of grain.

Though the Warkworth fire department was called, it was too late for them to be of any great help.

Two Rogers children, Barbara and Kathleen, were at home with the hired man, Clifford Brough, and a pensioner, Herbert Zufelt. Five other Rogers children were at school.

The parents had left for Toronto by car in the morning and did not return until late in the evening. They knew nothing of their loss until they arrived home.

Brough noticed smoke from the house about 2:30 p.m. and went out to find the fire well under way; it appeared to have started in one of the hay mows.

Owners were unable to estimate the loss of the building, and said that it was partially covered by insurance.

The barn replaced one that was burned on the same site four years ago. The Rogers home was not endangered at any time because the wind was blowing from the house toward the barn.

Born in Belleville, he was a son of the late William McCaskie and Elizabeth Stewart. He had lived in Belleville where he was a foreman in a canning factory and then in Brooklin.

Before he retired eight years ago, he was for 14 years a guard in the legislature buildings in Toronto. He moved to the Apsley district six years ago, where he was a member of Glen Alda United church.

Mr. McCaskie's wife, the former Agnes McPherson, died in 1948. Wren Candidate For Leadership Of Liberal Party

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Albert Wren, Liberal-Labor member of the Ontario legislature for Kenora, announced Tuesday night that he is a candidate for the ladership of the Liberal party in Ontario.

Speaking at the meeting of the St. Catharines Young Liberals Association, Mr. Wren labelled as ridiculous reports that he had turned down all thoughts of entering the leadership field.

"I have never said or indicated that I wouldn't contest the Ontario leadership," said Mr. Wren.

He said that he wouldn't deny that the Liberal position in Ontario is serious.

About 1,400 Ontario Liberals will meet in Toronto April 8-9 to choose a provincial leader. The party has been without a leader since the resignation of Walter C. Thomson following the 1951 provincial election. Farquhar Oliver leads the party's seven members in the legislature, including Mr. Wren who supports the Liberals.

CRITICIZES METHOD

Mr. Wren criticized the leadership committee which is touring Ontario in search of a man to become leader of the party.

"That is one of the things wrong with the Liberal party in Ontario," said Mr. Wren.

He charged that the selection committee had violated its power in hand-picking possible successors.

"Whoever is chosen, the only foundation of authority and success he will have is the spontaneous eruption of confidence from the Liberal party at the convention," said Mr. Wren.

"If this doesn't happen, we might as well forget about everything and turn over the reins to the CCF. We must not allow the selection committee to pick out who is in and who is not in."

Stevens Hero At Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert Stevens, whom Senator Joseph McCarthy has called "the finest dupe I've ever met," is pretty much of a hero around the Pentagon, United States defence headquarters, these days.

Stevens, s ecretary of the army, stepped between McCarthy and a pair of generals in the row over the senator's investigation of what he terms a pattern of "coddling Communists" by the army.

Stevens accused the Wisconsin Republican of unfair tactics and of abusing uniformed officers and ordered his two generals to ignore any further summons from the senator. He said if McCarthy wanted any questions answered he would appear himself.

Their meeting, with network television cameras covering the proceedings, is scheduled for Thursday.

A colonel, long concerned with the whole morale problem inside the armed forces, said that when Stevens' stand became known, morale didn't just climb, "it zoomed."

The squabble between McCarthy and Stevens began over the senator's investigation of the promotion and honorable discharge of a New York dentist and reserve major, Irving Peress. Peress disputes as "sheer nonsense" McCarthy's contention that he is a Communist. The senator has demanded that the army provide him with the names of all those responsible for granting an honorable discharge to Peress, and the names of those responsible for his promotion.

"The youngster who is a little behind is the youngster the teacher should concentrate on."

Col. S. A. Watson, assistant superintendent of elementary education, said some thought was given to the introduction of conversational French as early as Grade 7 but it was not advocated unless the teacher was able to speak the language competently.

NOT BEING TAUGHT

Col. Watson also said British history is not being taught in Toronto public schools.

He said the Toronto school board ruled that Grade 8 pupils be given a course on Canada and the Americas and Grade 9 (high school) students a course on Canada and the British Commonwealth.

"This reverses the department's recommendations," Col. Watson said.

The forces would be armed eventually with such weapons. But the immediate concern was to obtain from Britain and the United States more information on tactical uses of atomic weapons.

Not Known Yet If Will Ask Workers Take Cut

Robert Merrett, manager of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds mill in Peterborough, today had "no comment" to make on whether or not a proposal of voluntary pay reductions for textile workers in the Hespeler Dominion Woollens plant would apply to Peterborough.

In Hespeler a voluntary wage decrease of eight and a half cents an hour of present take home pay has been proposed by management. The average hourly wage at the Hespeler plant is $1.11.

Mr. Merrett said that he plans to confer with Gordon Klager, manager of the company's head office plant in Hespeler, before making any announcement about Peterborough.

Mr. Klager, told Hespeler employees that the textile industry is engaged in a "grim struggle for survival". He said that the only alternative to wage cuts was a general shut-down.

The reason for the textile recession in this country, said Mr. Klager, is cheap competition from abroad. Textile wages in other countries "are at best less than half of yours."

If employees endorse the Hespeler plan, an independent board composed of labor (represented by Woollen workers union) management and a neutral authority, will be set up. This board will review conditions each month to see if operating results justify removal of the emergency pay cuts.

Sixteen Canadian textile mills in six provinces have been forced to close as a result of adverse post-war conditions in the tetile industry.

Labor Party Split On Issue

LONDON (Reuters) — Aneurin Bevan, left-wing Socialist leader, today told the Labor party's moderate leaders that their decision to support German rearmament was nullified by a 113-104 party caucus vote on the issue Tuesday night.

Bevan and five left-wing associates made their blunt statement to the parliamentary party's governing committee, the national executive, before Parliament began debate this afternoon on the results of the four-power foreign ministers' conference at Berlin.

This caught the Labor MPs split on the German question. Bevan told the national executive's moderate leaders that they could claim no party mandate for rearming Germany on the basis of the thin nine-vote margin of support in he vote Tuesday night.

He and his supporters added that they now feel free to open a public campaign against the majority's German policy.

lage of Mukhmelpur, where the streets have been paved with bricks and mud walls of homes are painted with white or colored wash. The dung cakes have been moved to pits at the edge of a new outer village road for use on the flat fields as fertilizer.

PLOWS STEEL-POINTED

College students have come from the city to teach the children of illiterate parents. Public latrines have been built. A community reading room and library has been set up and steel points have been added to the wooden plows.

The prime minister, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Hugh O'Donnel of Quebec, rode out to the village sites at the head of a motorcade of 14 automobiles. When he arrived, the villagers were digging holes for tree planting, eventually to produce wood for fuel.

The villagers, who heaped flower wreaths around the Canadian prime minister's neck, crowded around him when he took a hoe and worked at a hole, offering his encouragement to the project.

Later the villagers squatted in a sunny square to hear his brief talk about the goodwill purpose of his half-completed six-week world tour.

His English words were translated into Hindi a sentence at a time by Chief Minister Shri Brahm Perkash of New Delhi state.

TO AID MILLIONS

Village development all through India's million-odd square miles of territory was started in October, 1952, and now is in progress in 23,000 villages with 21,000,000 people.

A preliminary stage of improvement, which does not involve works, is going ahead in another 23,000 villages with a further population of 15,000,000.

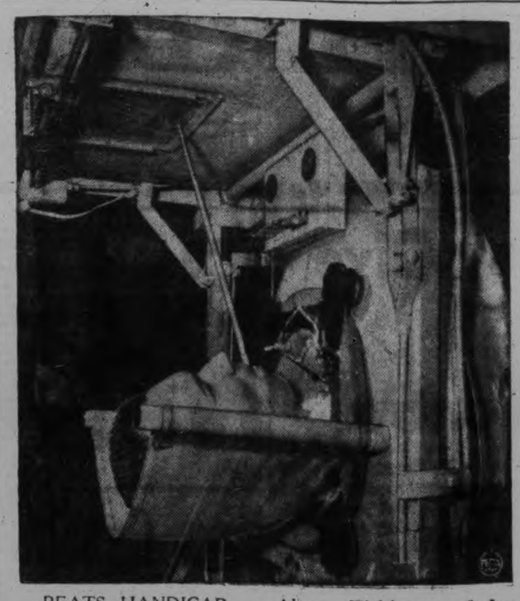
The five-year program will apply to 120,000 villages with 84,000,000 people. The government has estimated the five-year cost at $250,000,000.

SYMBOL OF UNITY

Speaking to a rural audience in Mukhmelpur, St. Laurent said: "This community development program is a symbol of the unity of the interests of the world community at large."

Tuesday night the prime minister spent an hour visiting historic spots about this city, the eighth Indian capital to bear the name Delhi.

He saw the towering Qutab Minareo, built 800 years ago, the nearby Myboerious iron pillar which has defied rust for centuries, and the brown granite forts of the Tughlags and Tughlakabad, associated with earlier Delhis.



BEATS HANDICAP — Alonzo Welshman, of Los Angeles, Calif., has been in an iron lung for 13 months, but it hasn't stopped him from practicing his drawing. His father built this contraption so his son, a polio victim, could keep up with his art. A system of micro-switches and motor-driven drafting instruments is arranged so that Welshman can perform his drawing with a mouth-held pencil.

Sault Delegation Meets Gregg

OTTAWA (CP)—A civic delegation concerned over unemployment at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., today conferred with Labor Minister Gregg.

Mr. Gregg said later the delegation asked for no cash aid from the federal government but discussed with the minister and officials means of utilizing existing federal provisions such as vocational training and unemployment insurance.

The group, headed by Mayor G H. Smale, expressed fears that Sault Ste. Marie's unemployed would level off at about 1,000 after the end of normal winter unemployment, because of layoffs at its steel plant in connection with a modernization plan.

The delegation will meet with Ontario government officials at Toronto Thursday.

Plane Compass Splinters On Missile Mile

LONDON (Reuters) — A plane compass splintered unaccountably 1,000 feet above Missile Mile Tuesday and spread into the heavens the mystery of the "self-shattering" windshields.

Since 1951 nearly 100 automobile windshields have mysteriously disintegrated along a mile-long stretch of highway in Surrey.

Nobody has yet come up with a good clue to the cause.

Tuesday fighter pilot Douglas Gilbert, 35, flew over the susceptible area and "the glass of my compass splintered as if it had been hit by something dead in the centre."

First Gilbert thought the incident had ben caused by a nearby plane diving through the sound barrier.

"But the only plane near was a transport plane," he said. "When I landed I examined the plane carefully for signs of a puncture. There was nothing."

Scotland Yard and civil aviation minstry officials promptly dragged out their old files on the mystery.

The first windshield disintegrated on Missile Mile, near London, in 1951, and nearly 100 motorists have had the shattering experience since.

MANY THEORIES

Here are the theories brought forward earlier:

1. That small stones on the road got thrown up by the cars. (So the road was swept every day—but the windshields went on splintering.)

2. That small boys with air pistols were to blame. (But police never found any mischief-makers.)

3. That expert marksmen did it, from the Surrey hills. (Police cars and police dogs scanned the area, in vain. One police car's windshield was "victimized.")

One Briton even suggested bringing in a priest to exorcise the "evil spirit" of Missile Mile.

Winnipeg Girl Hoaxes Students

WINNIPEG (CP)—A young Winnipeg actress told today how she hoaxed students and faculty at the University of Saskatchewan, press, radio and residents of Saskatoon in a whirlwind visit to Saskatoon last week posing as Hollywood starlet "Dawn Sommers."

Merle-Ann Meyers of the Winnipeg Little Theatre admitted the hoax to a Winnipeg Tribune reporter when shown copies of the University of Saskatchewan student newspaper, The Sheaf, describing her visit to Saskatoon to promote a blood donor drive.

The reporter noticed the similarity of Miss Meyers to the picture of "Dawn Sommers" in the student newspaper.

Miss Meyers said five University of Saskatchewan students, two University of Manitoba students and one or two others were "co-conspirators" in the stunt.

She was flown to Saskatoon and royally entertained. She addressed 2,000 students at a pep rally. She stayed at Saskatoon's Bessborough Hotel with all expenses paid.

Council Orders Installation Traffic Light

COBOURG (ENS)—Council Monday night authorized Councillor Jeff Rolph, chairman of the police committee, to purchase a traffic light for the University Ave. and Division St. intersection. Cost of the light will be around $2,000 and it will be of the latest design. Proximity of this intersection to a school and the fact that traffic is very heavy when school is getting out at noon, along with a general increase in traffic at that point, is behind the move to instal the light.

The parent-teacher association has been campaigning for traffic control at this intersection and the drive was accelerated by an accident last fall in which a school child was hit by a car. The matter of a traffic light at the intersection was held up for several weeks in the belief that the highway department would have to sanction it because of the fact that Division St. is a provincial highway. Later the council was advised that the highway was not concerned.

REPAIR STREETS

Councillor Louis Caine told the council meeting that Tremaine and Margaret Sts. were a mess. The town had held back part of the payment to the McFarland Construction Co. and he felt that the roads should be put in proper shape and paid out of what was being held back. Council finally decided to contact the company and ask them to fix up the roads. Should the company refuse the town can affect the repairs and deduct it from the payment, it was pointed out.

At letter from the health unit asked for twice weekly, instead of the present once per week, collection of garbage on east Division St. from Chapel St. to the lake. The other side of the street in the same area already has two collections of garbage per week. The matter was referred to the health and sanitation committee.

Council was asked to set a tag day for the newly-formed Humane Society and to make a grant of $250. The tag day was granted but the request for a contribution was referred to the finance committee.

Gerald Towns asks council why his trailer camp could not be continued. He had been advised by Chief Constable H. Pearse that it was contrary to the bylaw. Mr. Towns said that he had fixed it up in a manner that he considered satisfactory and he didn't see why it should be ruled as contrary to the bylaw. On motion council decided to look into the matter before coming to any decision.

Newspapers Set Record For Circulation

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Daily newspaper circulation in the United States set an all-time record in 1953, an authoritative periodical says.

The 86th annual edition of N. W. Ayer and Son's Directory of Newspapers and Periodicals and combined circulation of English-language dailies by the end of 1953 was 54,048,953, marking the first time that circulation has topped 54,000,000.

"The increase proves the continuing healthy growth of newspapers in spite of greater competition from other news media, including television," the directory said. It added:

"The nation's evening newspapers had a daily circulation of 32,402,000. This was down a few thousand from the preceding year, but only because two newspapers formerly published in the evening field switched to all-day (morning and evening) operation.

"Except for this change, evening newspapers would have kept up their record of increasing their circulation in every year since World War II ended.

LARGEST INCREASE

"Morning newspapers had the largest increase in several years, jumping to 20,662,000 circulation. The nation's six all-day dailies neared the million-mark, with 980,000 circulation. Sunday newspapers had a combined total of 45,642,000. All types of papers have shown steady increases since the end of World War II."

The directory said that 1953 showed a slight drop in number of morning and evening daily newspapers published in the United States, matched by an almost equal rise in the number of Sunday papers.

Award $19,300 For Accident

TORONTO (CP) — An award of $19,300 to Frank Glandfield and his son William, 20, of Toronto, was made Tuesday by Mr. Justice D.C. Wells against Robert E. DeGrey, a Cornwall milkman.

The son was given $16,600 as the result of injuries suffered more than two years ago when a motor car struck his legs while he was on a hayride.

De Grey was the driver of the car which struck Glandfield's right leg as the auto veered into the hay wagon near Jackson's Point on Lake Simcoe.

Medical evidence showed Glandfield has had six operations on his leg, will probably undergo a seventh and will suffer 20 per cent permanent disability.

Besides the $16,000, Mr. Justice Wells awarded the Gladfields $2,700 to cover expenses by the father.

Offers Outstanding Nursing Service to the Citizens of Peterborough

Miss McGeary gives home nursing care to a Peterborough patient.

V.O.N. VICTORIAN ORDER OF NURSES

The nation-wide Victorian Order of Nurses, with Headquarters in Ottawa, offers skilled nursing service to sick and injured.

The Nurses are all graduates of accredited training schools, with additional post-graduate training in public health.

The number of visits to a patient depends on the needs of the patient and the physician's orders. It is especially useful for those who do not need or cannot afford to go into hospital.

A part of the great work is supported by your donations to the Community Fund.

No one within the city boundaries is refused nursing care by the V.O.N. because of their inability to pay.

The V.O.N. will . . .

1. Call at the home of anyone in the city and working under the direction of a physician, give bedside nursing care and dressings — compresses and irrigations if ordered.
2. Give nursing care to those returned from hospital after acute illness, by daily visits.
3. Help the chronically ill and aged who are often happier in their own homes.
4. Instruct the expectant mother before the baby arrives, and give care to both the mother and the baby on return from hospital.

$1 To Fish

What's a dollar to a fisherman? The Department of Lands and Forests presumes that it is nothing much. It recommends in the White Paper tabled this week in the Ontario Legislature that a one-dollar seasonal fee be charged to residents of the Province if they fish. Since there are hundreds of thousands of fishermen in Ontario, a tidy sum could be got to help pay the bills of the Department resulting from its attempt to restock the lakes and rivers. The fishermen benefit; they should pay. That is the argument.

* * *

It is sound enough, from one angle. But as a matter of principle it does not appeal to us. Have to pay for the right to hold a rod over a pond? And what about the barefoot boy with cheek of tan and a can of worms? And the ladies who of a lazy summer afternoon like to dangle a hook with one hand and a romantic novel with the other; or who merely go out in the boat with their husbands under protest, an extra line for the fish-hungry fellow? To tax fishing seems an interference with an inherited right. Tax outsiders, yes, but these are our waters.

* * *

Is it the majority of fishermen—the people who would pay the majority of the dollars in tax—who deplete the lakes and rivers? What about these people who live all year round by the lakes and rivers, fish whenever they take the notion and the game inspector is not around, and who would be hard to find, anyway, when it came time to collect the $1 licence fee? As for the cost of re-stocking, perhaps developing science in managing fishing waters will produce better results at less cost. And stricter adherence to fishing regulations, seasonal limits, maximum catches, minimum lengths, will do more than any $1 tax could to preserve the fish.

* * *

Our final question: How is the $1 tax going to be collected? What army of snoopers and inspectors will have to be paid to catch the unlicensed occasional Sunday fisher? Would the resident fish license not be even harder to collect fairly and squarely than the old radio licence fee, which long before it was abolished was a public joke and a maker of law-evaders by the million. At least most radio sets were stationary, and up and down immovable streets. Who is going to examine the credentials of the floating four hundred thousand fishermen who drop a line here, there and everywhere?

Are Canadian Pictures Dirt?

The House of Seagram, well-known Canadian distillers, some time ago commissioned twenty-two pictures of Canadian cities to be painted by a number of reputable Canadian artists, and the collection has been widely shown in this country. Recently it was exhibited in Stockholm, and critics in the Swedish capital called the pictures 'brightly coloured postcards' and the collection 'a whisky monument'. Nearer home Mr. Henri Masson, himself an eminent Canadian painter, made a speech in Ottawa at which he described the pictures as 'a major publicity stunt' a 'farce', a 'scandal', as 'dirt' and as 'calendar pictures'.

We cannot get worked up about this, for frankly we think that most Canadian pictures, including those of Mr. Masson, are of extremely limited interest and artistic merit. We should not dream of applying his intemperate language to them, for we do not think that they deserve such bitterness. But we feel that Canadian painting is, upon the whole, the work of men whose technical skill is sometimes considerable, but who have uninteresting minds and who have, in consequence, very little to say in their pictures. Rule out a handful of Canadian painters whose minds and whose painting styles have individuality and interest, and the remainder are the thin smoke arising from the not very big explosion created by the Group of Seven, many long years ago. Worthy, but dull; that seems to sum up the situation. Compared with the painters of Australia, or South Africa, or Mexico, our people simply are not in the running.

We are sorry for Seagrams, for we think that they were trying to do something for the painters of Canada who, it must be said, complain a good deal about the neglect with which they imagine themselves to be treated. A great deal is said nowadays about the necessity for industry to take over the job of patronizing the arts, which used to be the responsibility of the aristocracy. Of course Seagrams wanted some publicity from the collection; the aristocratic patron wanted publicity too, in his way.

We have not seen the originals of the twenty-two paintings of Canadian cities; we have seen only a very good book of coloured reproductions which Seagrams sent to us. If we may judge from those reproductions, the pictures were well enough, in their way. But who wants to see a painting of a city? We believe, with the great Bernard Berenson, that great schools of painting are based upon great figure-paintings. Canadian art has always been wretchedly poor in figure-painting; painting from the nude is still regarded here with the superstitious horror which enwrapped it in the more provincial parts of Europe during the nineteenth century. Canadian painting shows a leaning toward pine trees, rocks, and all the dreary cliches of the landscape artist; toward street scenes; toward the conventional sort of portrait; toward anything, in fact, except subjects which require wit, or fantasy, or great and penetrating vision. It is, in the main, the dull work of dull men.

But we would not say it was dirt. It is more like sand—inert yet shifting, flavourless, dull.

Easter Moves With The Moon

Easter Sunday falls this year on April 18. It can come as late as April 25, and as early as March 22—a variation of 35 days. This irregularity of Easter offends those who dislike irregularity, and the Reformed Calendar enthusiasts in particular. Why, they ask, cannot Easter fall every year on the last Sunday in April? Then we should all know where we stand with regard to Easter.

We rather like the irregularity of Easter; it creates a pleasant variety in the successive Spring seasons. We admit that for those of us who live in Canada the last Sunday in April might be a fitter time for a spring festival than March 22, but we are not the whole world. England, for instance, has its Spring in March, and might not like to wait so long to celebrate the fact. And, of course, if Easter were simply a spring festival, the logical thing would be for the people in Australia and New Zealand to celebrate it in November. But Easter is primarily a Christian festival, and we must give proper regard to its origin.

Easter is linked with the Jewish Passover. According to the Gospels Our Lord celebrated the Passover on a Thursday, while Caiaphas and the priesthood celebrated it on a Friday, the day of the Crucifixion. In the early days of Christianity, Christians of Jewish descent reckoned Easter as coming on the fourteenth day of the moon which included the Paschal fast; thus their Easter did not necessarily fall on a Sunday. But the Christians of Gentile descent, holding a tradition that Christ rose on a Sunday, celebrated their Easter on the first day of the week following the Paschal feast, and counted the preceding Friday as the anniversary of the Crucifixion. In 325 A.D. a decision was made in favour of the latter group by the Council of Nicaea. But this was far from settling the matter, and Roman Christians, Alexandrine Christians, and Celtic Christians celebrated Easter at different times for many years. Even yet Christians of the Orthodox Church celebrate Easter at a date of their own reckoning. The correction of the Gregorian Calendar did nothing to lessen this confusion, nor did the dispute as to whether the yearly cycle of the Jews or that of Victorius of Aquitaine (adopted by Rome) should prevail. But after some centuries of hot theological and mathematical argument it became customary for all the Western Church to celebrate Easter on the first Sunday after the full moon which follows the vernal equinox, or March 21.

Agitations for a fixed date for Easter have been in progress since 1900, but nothing has come of it as yet. The churches are loathe to set at nought the involved argument of the early centuries of Christianity; they also feel that by keeping Easter in some fixed relation to the Passover a gesture is made toward historical accuracy, slight though it must necessarily be. Many people, we think, like to look in the calendar every year to see when Easter will fall, and would miss the variety which the moving Easter gives to the year. After all, most of us get plenty of regularity in our lives, without troubling the ancient festival of Easter.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A newspaper psychologist advises: "If you want to be popular, just be yourself". Well—that depends a lot on who you really are. There's much to be said for trying to be somebody better.

A New York pet shop offers pyjamas for dogs at $65 a pair. And what does the owner of one of these super-dogs wears, if he hopes to maintain his self-respect—something with lace?

Premier Duplessis has described a newspaper reporter who has displeased him as a 'pig' and also a 'snake'. The pleasantries seem just like old times, before journalism and politics became respectable.

THE ARMERICAN SCENE

Homage To G. Washington

By ALASTAIR BUCHAN

NO NATION, except Italy and some of the devout Catholic countries, has such a proliferation of public holidays as the United States. There are more big holidays than in Britain; nine in all, including Christmas and New Year's days, Independence Day on July 4, Labour Day on the first Monday in September and Thanksgiving on the fourth Thursday in November.

In addition a great number of holidays are observed by different States and areas. Abraham Lincoln's birthday on February 12, always the signal for an outburst of Republican oratory — which this year has taken the form of savage attacks on the record of previous Democratic Administrations — is, for instance, observed in the northern and western States, but nowhere in the South.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALABAMA and Louisiana celebrate Mardi Gras on Shrove Tuesday, while austere New Hampshire has an annual Fast Day in April. There is Pioneer Day in Utah and Defenders Day in Maryland. There is Will Rogers Day in Oklahoma and Patriots Day in Maine; Huey Long's Birthday in Louisiana and General Douglas MacArthur Day in Arkansas.

But every State — except, for some obscure reason, Idaho — celebrates Washington's Birthday, which fell last Monday, the twenty-second day of the second month, which is the two hundred and twenty second anniversary of his birth.

✧ ✧ ✧

DESPITE the greater statesmanship and stature of Linclon, the more profound intellect of Thomas Jefferson or James Monroe, and the important effect on American Legislation of Theodore and Franklin Roosevelt, George Washington remains unchallenged at the centre of American affection and national piety, the great father-figure of the people. In the capital that bears his name an enormous obelisk dedicated to him dominates the centre of the city; his portrait hangs in every classroom of every school in the country, and his unsmiling face — his grim visage came not from a dour temper but from having iron false teeth, the only known kind in those days — is on every one-dollar bill.

In some ways it is curious that Washington should be the central figure of American national consciousness, for although he was the military genius who laid the foundations of American independence, and was the first President around whom thirteen States — still only tenuously united — began their national existence, he could hardly be called a typical American.

✧ ✧ ✧

DESCENDED from a long line of English country squires, a branch of whom moved to Virginia in the seventeenth-century, he was himself a great landowner, and in most ways a typical eighteenth-century squire. Unlike Franklin or Jefferson he had no philosophical quarrel with monarchy or the English Government; he simply resented the inefficiency and callousness with which King George III and Lord North, the English Prime Minister, administered the American colonies. He was a sociable, bold man who had been a considerable gambler in land values in his middle life; orthodox in his views of religion and society, with nothing of the revolutionary in his make-up. He had considerable reservations about democracy and the wisdom of popular government, and he would have disapproved of, and been bewildered by many aspects of contemporary American life.

✧ ✧ ✧

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S house, Mount Vernon, is fifteen miles from Washington. It has been restored in recent years, and a visit to it gives one a good idea of what life on a Virginia plantation in the eighteenth century must have been like. The house is an unpretentious, mid-eighteenth-century building, with wide porch and a little clock tower. The rooms are exquisitely furnished with Chippendale furniture and silver from England, brocade curtains from France and linen from Ireland, emphasising the extreme reluctance of the revolutionary leaders to break their cultural ties with Britain and Europe. On one side the garden slopes down to the Potomac River whence all the supplies came by boat. On the other side there is a formal avenue flanked by the outbuildings which a completely self-contained property needed, the houses for the slaves and the harness maker, the iron foundry, the bakery, the salthouse, the carpenter's shop and so forth. George Washington would probably have been amazed to think that tens of thousands of his countrymen would come to pay homage each year at this unassuming little shrine.

✧ ✧ ✧

DURING THE WAR shiny American magazines used often to comfort their readers suffering from current hardships and shortages, with visions of the miraculous post-war age which science would create. I can remember an issue of "Fortune," one of the shiniest, which was devoted to outlining the wonders of plastics and of a world in which houses, cars, and furniture would be made of plastic, with prices within reach of all.

It has turned out that the much boosted plastics were less successful than their makers assumed, because they were not strong or as easy to handle as the wood and metals they were supposed to replace. And much of the initiative that went into the original development of plastics was diverted into the manufacture of nylon, orlon, and other synthetic fabrics.

✧ ✧ ✧

NOW, however, a new form of plastic, reinforced with glass fibre, is making great strides in the American market. A resin called Polyester, derived from coal-tar and alcohol, is mixed with glass fibre to make a "plastic glass" which has many uses. One of the most successful has been fishing rods, and fifteen million of them have been sold.

The new material is tough as well as pliable, and two car manufacturers, Chevrolet and Kaiser, have on the market this year a sports car with a plastic glass body, which does not scratch or dent and which takes shock or collision far better than metal. Golf clubs and vacuum flasks are being made of the new plastic and so is the tail section of the U.S. Navy's new long-range Neptune bomber.

✧ ✧ ✧

A NEW BATTLE for the lead in civil aircraft design seems to be looming up between Britain and the United States. Now that Britain has a clear lead in jet airliners, a number of American companies are working on a breed of aircraft which might supersede the jet airliner. This is the "convertiplane," which is a cross between an aeroplane and a helicopter: it can fly at the speed of the former and land in the space of the latter. The British Ministry of Supply has already commissioned one from the Fairey Company of Britain and the U.S. military chiefs have encouraged four American companies to build test versions.

The convertiplane has rotors, like a helicopter, to lift or lower it vertically to or from the ground; but once aloft conventional jet or piston engines take over.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE United States military chiefs are interested in the plane for military reconnaissance, but the airlines see definite commercial prospects; for the convertiplane could land in small spaces in the centre of big cities, eliminating tedious and expensive journeys to and from airports which make short journeys by air unprofitable for the passenger.

Meanwhile, it has become known that Lockheed and Consolidated Vultee have successfully developed a fighter aircraft for the U.S. Navy which will rise vertically from the deck of an aircraft carrier or a warship. This strange looking contraption is called the "Pogo Stick," and uses a powerful turbo-prop engine to lift the plane from an upright cradle directly into the air, like a rocket, and then turn it over to fly conventionally.

An American Opinion: SUPER SALES RESISTANCE!

More Poultry With Less Work

(WALL STREET JOURNAL)

THE men who process poultry for U.S. dinner tables are doing more and more of the housewife's work for her. As a result of this chivalry poultry consumption is climbing to still greater heights.

More processors are planning soon to offer a favourite chicken dish in a form that cuts out most of the work. This is frozen pre-fried chicken; the housewife has only to heat it to eating temperature.

The fastest-growing item in the whole frozen-food line, say many food men, is frozen chicken pie. The busy cook need only pop it into the oven for half an hour to brown the crust and warm the pre-cooked filling.

Last year an estimated 150 million chicken pies were sold. Makers are forecasting sales of 250 million this year. Chicken turnovers are a companion comer.

There has just been unveiled for national use a new method of packing pre-stuffed frozen poultry in a plastic bag. All the housewife has to do is put the bird, bag and all, in the oven and turn on the gas.

That the nation's 2,000-odd poultry processors have found ways of pleasing the housewife's desire for conveniently-prepared food is abundantly clear from a look at consumption figures. Last year over 5.5 billion pounds of poultry meat were moved to U.S. dinner tables, compared with 3 billion pounds in pre-war 1940.

Last year each man, woman and child in the land ate an average of 35 pounds of poultry, about 75% more than just before the war. This year, Federal farm men say, a new rise in per capita consumption is in sight.

Talk to poultry processors in Kansas City at the 25th annual fact-finding conference of the Institute of American Poultry Industries, and you'll hear all sorts of stories of what doing more of the housewife's work has meant in increased sales. Besides the newer phases of the trend, some older aspects continue to make headway.

Years ago, after buying chickens, turkeys, ducks and geese from farmers, processors did nothing more than kill and bleed them, strip off feathers and ship the birds to market as "New York dressed." As recently as as 1940, 85% of all poultry sold to consumers was alive or New York dressed, poultrymen estimate.

Now the ratio is reversed: more than 85% of poultry has the innards removed, is cleaned and ready to pop into the stove.

Brazil Climbing Back

(BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR)

OF more than passing interest to Brantford is the latest report on credit conditions and collections in the Latin-American export markets. This shows that Brazil, which had fallen to last place in the surveys of six months and a year ago, has made the greatest improvement, and is paying off her accumulated trade debts more rapidly.

The survey, conducted by the Foreign Credit Interchange Bureau of New York, rates countries on credit according to a points system. A figure of 175 or under means "very poor." One of 250 or more is "good".

In credit Brazil during the last six months has climbed from the "very poor" to the "fairly good" bracket with a total of 226 points, a gain of 56 points. Brazil's rating on collections has progressed from the "very slow" to the "fairly prompt" class.

Fourteen other countries in Central and South America improved their credit ratings while 15 gained on collection ratings.

The picture in this area is still mixed but the news of Brazil's climb back is some proof that the problem of trade debts owed to Canada and other firms is responding to such measures as the Aranha scheme under which the limited amount of foreign exchange available is auctioned at varying rates of cruzeiros to the dollar. For essential imports such as farm machinery dollars can be bought with fewer cruzeiros than for less pressing needs. If a Brazilian wants to import whisky he must buy his foreign exchange at such a stiff rate in cruzeiros that it cost him the equivalent of $50 a bottle.

Another encouraging piece of news from Brazil is that she has in the last six months disposed of about two years' stock of cotton which the government took off the growers' hands. Finance Minister Aranha, a man of realism and action, decided that the stock must be sold at whatever price it would fetch. This has now been done, and though there is a loss to the government in local currency, the cotton sales have brought in more foreign exchange which can be used to buy Canadian and other imported goods.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me. This he said, signifying what death he should die.

The people answered him, We have heard out of the law that Christ abideth for ever: and how sayest thou, The Son of man must be lifted up? Who is this Son of man?

Then Jesus said unto them, Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you: for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth. While ye have light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light. (John 12:32-36.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Now before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end . . .

Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, Wither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt follow me afterwards. (John 13:1, 36.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Thou, even thou, art Lord alone; thou hast made heaven, the heaven of heavens, with all their host, the earth, and all things that are therein, the seas, and that is therein, and thou preservest them all and the host of heaven worshippeth thee. (Neh. 9:6.)

Letter To The Editor

NO MEMORIAL CENTRE

SIR: In Monday's paper there were several columns about plans for the new memorial centre.

If the city of Peterborough cannot afford to keep Rent Controls on how can they efford to build a memorial centre?

No matter how many people are planning to buy or build their own homes this spring there will still be hundreds paying too much for rent. There will be many landlords that will take advantage of every little improvement they put on their tenant's homes so as to be able to raise the rent a little more.

The rent young couples have to pay now does not give them a chance to save a little on a future home of their own.

We have always had a very fair landlord and we in turn have tried to be fair tenants. Other members of our family cannot say the same of their landlords. I hate to think of what increase one member of our family will have to pay after March 1.

The thousands of dollars that it will cost to build the memorial centre would go a long way towards medical research work for many as yet incurable diseases of our children.

Then again what about a smart new apartment building for our pensioners?

As long as money is needed for children's diseases and for our old people we can get along without the memorial centre.

Yours truly,
"A THANKFUL TENANT."

Fair Game!

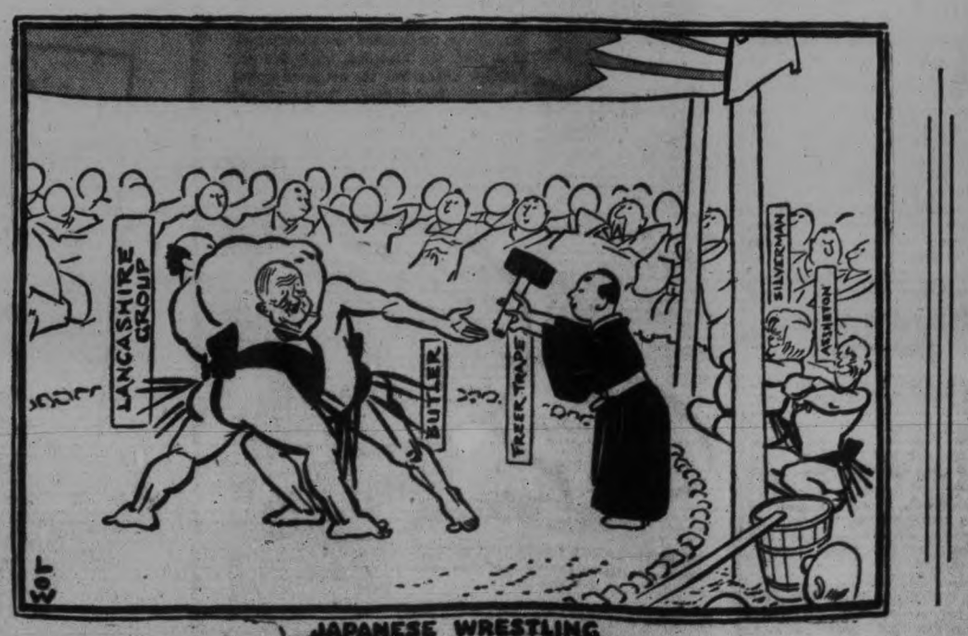
(Fort William Times-Journal)

Pity a member of the Canadian Parliament on a year like this. Not only has their salary been increased to $10,000, but the publicity attending the hike has been tremendous.

Before this, the situation was bad enough for a member. He was the object of affection of any organization or individual in his riding at a time when the organization or individual was desperately in need of a cash donation to this cause and that.

Man, with what designs must those money chasers be eyeing their member's extra pay now.

A BRITISH OPINION



Promise Of Independence Essential To Vietnamese

By RAWLE KNOX

SAIGON (OFNS) — It is believed here that M. Rene Pleven, the French Minister of Defence, now on a visit here, has been heartened by his tour of North Vietnam—for in Indo-China the nearer one gets to the front the better everything looks. But he is not expected to take any very optimistic story back to Paris.

M. Pleven has been trying to make the very difficult assessment of whether French Union troops will be in an advantageous military position in a short enough time to persuade the French people to go on paying for them. The picture he paints when he returns to Paris for his military budget speech must necessarily affect the imminent negotiations between the French and the Vietnamese on the future status of Vietnam.

The French position here is quite clear: if the Vietnamese demand such extravagant strides towards political independence that the French public sees no point in paying for so shadowy a connection, then France will tell Vietnam to go ahead and go it alone. French high officials here, however, believe that the Vietnamese terms will be reasonable. They reckon that the Vietnamese, now committed to the government of a free Vietnam, cannot consider a compromise with Ho Chi Minh, the Communist Vietminh leader, because they know that such an action would in the end destroy themselves; that they must therefore carry on the fight, must have the support of French troops, and will therefore agree to the minimum French demands (for military bases and for an area where French troops are involved).

But many Vietnamese feel that the new Vietnam government (nicknamed locally the "Parachutistes" because so many of its members appear to have been dropped in from France) must return from the Paris negotiations with a promise of real independence for Vietnam, if it is to face a public here with any confidence. Free Vietnam is in desperate need of a really popular government with which to face up to Ho Chi Minh. A promise of complete independence would give it the fillip it needs.

INTERIM AGREEMENT

The French High Commissariat here, however, reasonably envisages an interim arrangement for the duration of the war giving the French safeguards they need for military security. It is reiterated that France does not waver in her decision ultimately to establish an absolutely independent Vietnam.

The United States, now committed to paying sixty-four per cent of the cost of the Indo-China war, is tactfully trying to persuade the Vietnamese on the one hand not to be too flamboyant in their demands (one Nationalist suggestion is that all French troops should come under the command of Bao Dai (chief of the Vietnam State), and M. Pleven, on the other hand, not to present a too depressing picture when he gets back to Paris.

With American military aid pouring in so fast that the Indo-China ports have difficulty in dealing with it, the French offensive in 1955, of which the former French High Commissioner here, M. Letourneau, first talked of last year, is not absolutely impossible.

But French officials strongly believe that the answer to the Indo-China war is not to be found in the hills or jungles of Laos and Vietnam, but in Peking. If Mao Tse Tung could be persuaded by concession elsewhere to stop supplying the Vietminh, the war would be over in a matter of months. If he can not be persuaded, the French public, they beleive, will tire of the war before the Vietminh, and then all the independence in the world will not save Vietnam.

Protest Legislation For Lake Diversion

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has protested to the United States administration against legislation before Congress for diversion of additional water from Lake Michigan into the Chicago waterway.

A Canadian note states that the diversion could have an adverse effect on the proposed St. Lawrence seaway and on the hydro power potential at Niagara and on the St. Lawrence river.

The U.S. House of Representatives has approved the proposal, which would affect the general level of water in the Great Lakes. It has not yet been approved by the U.S. Senate.

The Canadian note, sent Feb. 1, was read into the U.S. Congressional Record Feb. 2.

Warn Motorists Keep Eye Open For Deer

TORONTO (CP)—Drive slowly—deer feeding. This is a warning lands and forests officials gave motorists.

They said salt which is used as a safety measure on the highways is attracting deer in some areas. The animals come out on the highways to lick it.

District forester A. B. Wheatley of Lindsay said between midnight and daybreak almost a dozen deer can be seen along Highway 28 in the Haliburton district.

5-Day Week Soon

CAMP BORDEN (CP)—Most of the 1,800 civilian workers and some of the military staff at this big army base will be on a five-day work week after April 1. However, military personnel assigned as firefighters, hospital attendants and security guards will continue on a 5½-day week.

Garbo Favorite For MGM Cameraman

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—As MGM celebrates its 30th birthday, a man with rich memories is Clarence Bull.

For more than 30 years he has been photographing the MGM stars, from Garbo to Gardner. In the early days he not only operated the movie camera but shot the still pictures as well. Eventually he became the studio's top portrait photographer, reaching his highest fame as Garbo's pet lensman.

I asked him to list his favorite subjects, and he named these:

Greta Garbo—"Of course."

Jean Harlow—"She had an excellent face and figure; easy to get along with."

Gloria Swanson—"A fool-proof face."

A DREAM

Marlene Dietrich—"A dream to work with. She had once been a photographer's assistant and knew all the angles. She once even showed the retouchers how to do their work."

Joan Crawford—"We never could agree on her lips. She wanted them exaggerated, and I always cut them down in the retouching."

Norma Shearer—"She's still as beautiful as the starlets. She was often confused by too much advice; then she'd toss it all aside and make the right decision herself."

Jeanette Macdonald—"Perfectly natural. There was nothing phony about her."

Lana Turner—"Still a real beauty."

Ava Gardner—"She comes the closes to Harlow as a real personality."

Ann Blyth—"A perfect face, but an interesting one."

Katharine Hepburn—"A distinctive type; very interesting face."

Eleaner Parker—"The sexiest of the new crop of stars."

Restrictions Removed On Agricultural Grants

TORONTO (CP)—A bill removing present restrictions placed on granting money to agricultural societies was introduced in the legislature Tuesday.

The bill, an amendment to the Agricultural Societies Act, would also give the agriculture department a freer hand in determining the basis on which such grants would be paid.

The province now may pay no more than federal or municipal grants.

However, F. A. Lashley, head of the societies branch, said outside the house no increase in the over-all amount of grants is contemplated by the government. About $300,000 is granted to agricultural societies and fairs presently.

Report Progress In Sanctuary Plan

Negotiations for the purchase of ground for a wildlife sanctuary, club site and experimental tree plot by the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association was going ahead satisfactorily, president Hugh Plowman told members at the monthly meeting, Monday.

It was agreed by the 60 members present that the project should be undertaken as soon as possible.

Chairman of the Rifle Club section, Norman Bradley, told the meeting that an average of 35 shooters attended the weekly Friday night gathering at the Peterborough Armouries butts. Mrs. E. Stott of Toronto was the winner of $80 in a cash draw project and a similar amount went into the association treasurey; Scout Brian Dunford drew the winning ticket. The evening closed with the showing of an outdoor film.

Many Canadians Inoculated Against Polio

OTTAWA (CP)—At least four times as many Canadians will be inoculated against poliomyelitis this year as last, a federal health department official said Tuesday.

Plans call for inoculation of 100,000 to 140,000 persons with gamma globulin, a blood derivative. Last year, about 25,000 persons, mostly children, were inoculated in Canada.

The health department recognizes that gamma globulin is not the final answer in the fight against polio. Health Minister Martin has said that there is little justification for undue optimism concerning use of gamma globulin as a polio vaccine.

ONLY VACCINE AVAILABLE

At the same time, the official said, gamma globulin is the only polio vaccine now available, it is better than nothing, and its use will be expanded in Canada until something better comes along.

That "something better" could arrive soon. Connaught Laboratories in Toronto now is producing a polio virus from monkey kidneys which it is sending to the United States for development of a new polio vaccine. This vaccine will be tested on some 500,000 children in the U.S. this year.

MIDLAND (CP)—Construction in Midland and in neighboring Penetanguishene appears headed for its biggest boom in years. Midland projects include a factory, an addition to a camera plant and a $700,000 hospital.

Radio Quiz Driving Howe, Family To Distraction

OTTAWA (CP)—A Progressive Conservative Tuesday gave the Commons his answer to Ottawa radio quiz and said he hopes it will take the public off the neck of acting Prime Minister Howe.

Clues in a guessing contest conducted by radio station CKOY for more than a month, have pointed unmistakably to Mr. Howe, or something closely connected with him.

As the prize mounted to $2,600, Mr. Howe and his family have been besieged by telephone calls from strangers asking personal questions.

Tuesday Carl Nickle (PC—Calgary South) asked another question:

"Might not the annoyance caused the minister be quickly ended if some program listeners would send in as their answer: 'The career of C. D. Howe?'"

Mr. Howe merely smiled.

Other searchers for the contest answer, however, have caused considerable disturbance in Mr. Howe's life, Mrs. Howe told reporters recently that strangers have kept their home telephone busy with "impertinently personal" questions about her husband.

Mr. Howe added: "They call my home, my downtown office, my rooms here in the Commons. They ring up my friends and colleagues."

Until Tuesday's question by Mr. Nickle, however, he has found refuge in the chamber of the Commons. After a couple of strangers telephoned the Liberal lobby and summoned him from the chamber for further quizzing, he told the pages to get the names and business of any callers.

Labor Department Studies Checkoff Union Dues Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Gregg said Tuesday his department is studying the question of the checkoff union dues but he sees no "great urgency" about bringing legislation into Parliament.

Mr. Gregg was speaking in the Commons on a bill by Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) to have the 'voluntary revocable" checkoff written into the federal labor code.

Under the Knowles measure, it would be mandatory on employers under federal jurisdiction to deduct union dues from employees' pay envelopes when the workers authorized this. Industries affected by such legislation would be railways, communications and other interprovincial operations under Parliament's control in industrial relations.

In the hour devoted to non-cabinet members' legislation Tuesday, Mr. Knowles' bill did not get to a vote. It will come up again later in the session.

SUGGESTS CHAIRMAN

When the hour expired, Opposition Leader Drew was talking after having made the suggestion that the government set up a royal commission to study labor legislation generally.

He said a suitable chairman might be Hon. C. P. McTague, former Ontario Supreme Court justice and chairman of the national war labor board in 1943-44. Mr. McTague also is a former chairman of the Ontario securities commission and of the National Progressive Conservative Association.

Mr. Knowles' bill, which he has proposed at several previous sessions of Parliament, came up for debate for the first time at this session. It was voted down a number of times earlier, but last year the Commons recommended the government give consideration to its principle.

The labor minister said Tuesday this consideration has been in progress by a labor department committee for some time. The committee also was studying a series of other amendments to the labor code, which went into effect in 1948 and has not had any major changes since.

Mr. Gregg said he cannot say when he will be able to submit a list of labor code amendments—including one on the checkoff—to the cabinet.

CAN'T GIVE EXACT TIME

"I cannot undertake to give the House the exact time that this action can be taken or to forecast the results," Mr. Gregg said.

"I do not think the matter is of such great urgency that I should take this step at a time when I would like to have further study given to all the proposed amendments."

Mr. Gregg also said that at this time there "exists a very strong feeling in the public mind regarding the checkoff concept," due to disputes in which the checkoff was an issue.

This was an evident reference to the long struggle in the northern Ontario and Quebec gold mines—now largely settled—in which the United Steel Workers of America (CIO-CCL) lost out in a fight for the checkoff. These mines are under provincial jurisdiction.

Manitoba Rink Has Perfect Record

HAMILTON (CP)—Manitoba today remained the only rink with a perfect record as the Canadian high school curling championships went into its third day.

Manitoba, represented by the Gordon Bell high school from Winnipeg, Tuesday night won its fourth straight game by defeating Quebec 11-5 and the victory, coupled with Saskatchewan's 9-7 upset by northern Ontario gave it sole possession of first place.

Saskatchewan's loss was its first and it now holds second place with three wins and one defeat. Five rinks—Ontario, northern Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Alberta—are tied for third place with similar records of two wins and two defeats each.

British Columbia, Quebec and Prince Edward Island are deadlocked for eighth place with one win and three setbacks.

The bonspiel winds up Thursday and Manitoba can take a commanding position with a victory against Saskatchewan when they meet this afternoon. Saskatchewan is fepresented by Saskatoon Technical Collegiate, winner of the title and Sifton Trophy in 1951 and 1952.

LOST HIS CHANCE

Northern Ontario, in scoring its upset win over Saskatchewan Tuesday night, took six of the 10 ends, including a four-ender in the seventh. Skip Bayne Secord lost a chance to tie it up for Saskatoon in the 10th end when his first stone missed a shot and went through the house. The most he could have got with the second stone would have been three, one short of a tie.

Manitoba and Quebec Tuesday night played an alternate knockout and draw game. The St. Michael's school rink from Riverbend, Que., were able to win only three of the 10 ends.

There were three mild surprises in Tuesday night's fourth round with Ontario, Alberta and Prince Edward Island winning games it had been thought they would lose. Ontario blasted New Brunswick 12-4 and Alberta defeated Nova Scotia 14-5, with both New Brunswick and Nova Scotia skips conceding in the 10th end before a stone was thrown. Prince Edward Island, one of the gamest rinks in the spiel, won their first game by defeating British Columbia 9-7.

MOST IMPROVED

The Sarnia Collegiate Institute rink from Sarnia, Ont., skipped by 17-year-old Bill Fraser, was the most improved rink in the bonspiel Tuesday. The Sarnia rink had dropped two straight Monday but came back to win the afternoon draw Tuesday with 10-9 decision over Quebec, in addition to their night victory over the Bathurst High School from New Brunswick.

The Milo High School rink from Milo, Alta., came close to providing a major upset in the third draw when it lost 7-6 to Manitoba. The rink, skipped by 18-year-old Robbie Thomson, could have tied the count in the final end but played his stone too cautiously and it stopped short of the house.

Won't Change Stand On McMaster Issue

TORONTO (CP)—The University of Toronto Athletic Association directorate Tuesday night squelched rumors that they would agree to keep McMaster University Marauders in the Intercollegiate Senior Football League.

At its regular bi-weekly meeting the directorate said it still approves of a four-team schedule, including Varsity, University of Western Ontario, Queen's University and McGill University.

Warren Stevens, Varsity athletic director, said he was in touch with Queen's and Western officials. "They assured me their position was still the same," Stevens said. He said that he was told by Queen's and Western officials "that any reported change in their colleges' official stand was news to them."

Golfer Predicts Great Future For Marlene

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — E. J. (Dutch) Harrison predicts that 19-year-old Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., will be "one of the finest women players of them all in a short time."

The seasoned Ardmore, Okla., golf professional, Marlene's partner in the international mixed two-ball golf tournament, called the youthful British amateur champion "one of the finest women golfers I have ever seen" after the Stewart-Harrison team qualified for match play with a one-over-par qualifying score of 72.

"She is good on every type of shot," Harrison said. "She doesn't have a weakness and a girl like that can't miss being great. She should go a long way."

Harrison, the 1949 Canadian open champion, was particularly high in his praise of his partner's game near the greens.

"In today's match (against Betty Dodd of San Antonio, Tex., and Bill Kaiser of Louisville) if there's a chance of getting home on the first shot after the drives, I'm going to let her shoot it. From 100 to 150 yards from the green Tuesday she was much better than I was."

Gavilan Wins Dull Decision

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan won a dull decision over John Cunningham of Baltimore Tuesday night in the first tuneup fight for his meeting with Bobo Olson for the middleweight title April 2 in Chicago.

Referee Eddie Coachman once warned the fighters to mix it up and the crowd of 4,055, a record for the Miami Beach Auditorium, booed frequently.

Gavilan weighed 156½, Cunningham 152.

Cunningham, who scored the best decision of his career in Miami last year when he defeated lightweight champion Jimmy Carter, looked well in his slugging exchanges with Gavilan and surprised the Cuban kid on three occasions by straightening him up with stiff lefts and rights to the jaw.

GRANT'S SPORT CORNER

By DON GRANT

It's always fair weather when good folk get together.

During the past year and a half these words have been the motto of the people surrounding the Donwood Community Centre on the Warsaw road, about two miles east of the city.

Not country people, yet at the same time not city people (most work in the city), these folk have developed quite a community spirit about the Corner's with their get-togethers.

Since the war years more and more houses have been built about the neighbourhood, bringing more young people with children into the area. Now there's a fairly large community out there.

Although they're not that far away from the city where they can't enjoy the theatre, sports and other entertainment found in city life, these people are gradually developing their own activities right at the corner.

Since the children are cut off from city playgrounds, beaches and skating rinks, the older folk have emphasised work among the youngsters first.

Started Year Ago

It all started about a year ago when a group of six men, headed by Stan Wood and Don Dickson, began a small open skating rink without boards for their children and others in the neighbourhood.

This rink became so popular in the wide-spread community, that Wood and Dickson along with about a dozen others decided to canvass the area for funds for a larger space. The response was so great to this money-raising scheme that it was decided to buy a large section of land next to Dickson's garage.

Dickson and Wood, who owned the land, made another contribution by donating the land to the neighbourhood and the money went towards grading and the purchasing of a community hall.

There was a ready-built one-storey, one-room building available. It was the temporary school a half-mile away in Otonabee township on the rifle range That extra room had been built by volunteer labor when the old school became filled to capacity.

With the erection of the new Coronation school, the old school and the temporary classroom building were no longer in use.

Cut Price Of Building

The township more or less gave the community the temporary schoolroom. The building, about 20 by 35 feet, and valued at about $2,000, was bought up for $500.

With skids loaned from a city factory, a platform truck and volunteer labor, the new "community centre" was moved to the corners' lot.

Since then the neighbour hood has held another canvass, responded well to raffles and teas, to raise money to finish paying for the building and foster further activities.

What's a centre without a name? This was soon answered by the people as they voted the combined name, Donwood, in honor of the instigators, Stan Wood and Don Dickson.

This year's new committee has Norm Andrew as president, Harry Schoeter as secretary, James Selman as treasurer and Dan Flint, Mrs. Bill Amos, Ken Doughty, Bert Neely, Bill Price, Stan Wood, Don Dickson Nels Kitchen and Mrs. June Davis as the directors.

Activities for the children started in earnest for the children in the fall when scouts and cubs under Lloyd Tyndall were organized and educational movies were started once a week.

This winter the main project has been an outdoor rink, complete with boards, lights and music (on the weekend). There's organized hockey and skating for the kids.

All the neighbourhood men have pitched in, volunteering their spare time at the rink. The centre has 10 teams, five men on each team, working three nights a month looking after the snack bar, supervising the rink and then the flooding.

There have been some activities for the grown-ups but the hall is mostly used by the children as a dressingroom this winter.

Play In Hockey League

The community has a hockey team this winter playing in a league with Ennismore, Warsaw and other small centres. In fact the team, coached by Ken Doughty and J. Meldrum, managed by Stan Wood, is undefeated.

A week ago the community held a dance and draw to raise more funds for further ventures this year. They hope to raise the building for a basement with dressingrooms and also enlarge the rink to regulation hockey size besides paying for a full summer program.

These folk have now poured some $2,500 in money, time and labour into the project, now recognized as a community centre under the community centre act of Ontario. They and the centre should prove to be an excellent example to be followed by other small communities throughout the district.

Jr. Petes' Player Suspended For Year For Attack On Ref.

Jim Morrow, classy winger with the Junior Petes, has been suspended from organized hockey for one year by the OHA for attacking Referee Larry Heffering in a junior "B" group playoff game last week against Port Perry on the latter's ice. Coach Red Creighton of Junior Petes was suspended for three games for leaving the bench to go on the ice during a game in the arguments following the mixup between Morrow and Heffering. Both suspensions take effect immediately. In the case of Morrow, the suspension was dated from last night's OHA sub-committee meeting in Toronto until May 1 of 1955.

The game in question was played in Port Perry last Wednesday, resulting in a 6-3 victory for the Ports to give them a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven group final playoffs. Successive boarding penalties meted out by Heffering to Bill Twist and Jerry Frizzelle of the Junior Petes led to the "rhubarb" with Morrow being given a match penalty, Kevin Heffernan (also of Peterborough) getting a misconduct penalty, and Coach Red Creighton being banished from the bench. So hot was the storm of protest that the other referee, Jim Crombie of Bowmanville, terminate the game seconds before time ran out. Morrow was accused by Heffering of hitting the latter during the argument.

TROOPS GUARD SNOW

ARE, Sweden (AP)—The Swedish Army has turned out the guard to save the snow on Areskutan mountain.

Swedish ski troops rushed to the top of the mountain Tuesday to haul snow from crevices and banks, spread it over bald crests and pack it down so that alpine events of the world's ski championships can be raced next week on schedule.

"I've got 260 men up there packing now," Col. Nils Bouvenj, commanding officer of the Jamptland Province Regiment, said, "and I've got 260 more on the alert at Oestersund. They will be brought over whenever it is necessary and it may be any day.

"Winds have been high here and the snow up on top has been blown badly. Part of the racing tracks need snow."

ROBERTS HOLDING OUT

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Star pitcher Robin Roberts of Philadelphia Phillies held a lengthy conference with owner Bob Carpenter Tuesday but the two failed to agree on Roberts' 1954 salary.

A Phillies spokesman said Roberts, who won 23 and lost 16 last year, and Carpenter will meet again at the end of the week.

Roberts is reported to be asking for a $50,000 contract, while Carpenter is reported offering the right hander the same salary he earned in 1953, believed to be $40,000. A 20-game winner each of the last four years, Roberts earlier had been asked to take a cut. He not only refused but demanded a raise.

PROPOSE ITALY-U.S. SWIM

NAPLES (AP)—A sporting goods store owner came up Tuesday with a whopping long distance swim: A 24-man relay team to swim from Italy to the United States.

Michael Lisi asked government aid in promoting the plan, which he suggested could be accomplished in 65 days with each man swimming one hour a day. The swimmers would start here and end in New York, carrying a baton with a message inside from the people of Italy to America.

The big swim would start in July, 1955, Lisi said. Meanwhile he's rounding up a group of swimmers to make a relay tour of the Bay of Naples as a warmup.

NEED MORE TIME TRIALS

EDMONTON (CP) — Mrs. Pat Underhill of Edmonton, competing in a series of international skating events in Norway, says that if Canadians are to get anywhere in the speed-skating world they will need more time trials.

Present North American rules call for competitive racing—skating against an opponent and not against time, Mrs. Underhill made her observation in a letter to her parents here.

SKIING CONDITIONS GOOD

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — The Dominion junior ski meet is scheduled to be held at the Lakehead this weekend and top skiing conditions are forecast for the meet. Six feet of snow has fallen in Fort William this winter.

Faithful Skiers

MONTREAL (CP) — The log church of St. Francis at St. Sauveur des Monts has become known as the "skiers' church." Young people who come to the Laurentians for a week-end of skiing crowd the church every Sunday morning, many of them sitting on the floor when seats are filled.

Howard McLean President Kawartha Club

Adamson, L. Browne, D. Bath, F. L. Buckland, J. E. Girven, T. Glover, A. R. MacGregor and J. D. Willis.

President Thos. Glover took the chair before the new election of officers and reports were presented from the treasurer and various committees. The membership committee reported an excellent year with a slight increase in membership. Mr. Glover commented on the good co-operation received from the different committees which contributed to a successful year.

Oshawa A Point Up In Keen Group Race

Belleville defeated Oshawa Truckmen at Bowmanville last night, which leaves the OHA senior "B" group standing as follows:

	W	L	T	Pts.

Petes	19	16	3	41
Orillia	18	17	2	38
Kingston	18	19	1	37

Oshawa plays at Orillia tonight, while Friday has Kingston at Peterborough and Orillia at Oshawa in a postponed game. The schedule ends Saturday with Orillia at Belleville, and Petes at Kingston. The group semi-finals start early next week.

Chum Fryia leads the Petes' scorers now with 40 goals and 14 assists for 54 points, serving 29 minutes in penalties. Gus Leonard is next with 14 goals and 36 assists for 50 points, having served but two minutes in penalties. Toodie Greenlaw has 18 and 27 for 45, with 16 minutes in durance vile. Eddie Redmond notched five markers and 32 assists to lead defencemen of the club with 37 points, but his 118 minutes in the sin bin is also high.

Paul Ronty Forgotten Man Of National League Sparking Rangers To Win

By MEL MORRIS, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Paul Ronty of New York is one of the forgotten men of the National Hockey League. He has never won a trophy, and never been voted to an all-star team. But New York fans will happily concede that the 25-year-old centre is one of the main factors in the Rangers' rise into contention for the fourth playoff berth. Ronty has slipped into sixth place in the NHL scoring race with a total of 44 points on 13 goals and 31 assists.

However, the 160-pound Toronto native has been the big gun in the Rangers' last three games, all victories, with one goal and four assists. The stretch drive has been good enough to move Rangers to within one point of the fourth-place Boston Bruins, and the Rangers still have a game in hand.

New York fans are at a loss to explain how Ronty has been passed up each year by the all-star selectors. Last year, he was second only to Alex Delvecchio of Detroit in scoring among league centres but Fleming Mackell of Boston took the first all-star berth. Delvecchio was voted the second spot.

SAME FATE

Ronty, who broke into the NHL with Boston in 1947, had his best season in 1949-50, when he counted 23 goals and 36 assists for the Bruins. That placed him fifth in the scoring standings, but he was beaten out in the all-star voting by Sid Abel of Detroit and Ted Kennedy of Toronto.

The same fate seems in store for him this year. At present he and Dutch Reibel of Detroit are tied as the league's top-scoring centres, but Ken Mosdell of Montreal and Tod Sloan of Toronto won the nod from the selectors in the mid-season voting.

Although he got his start with Boston, the Bruins won't be among his fans tonight when they meet the Rangers in a contest that could decide the last Stanley Cup playoff spot. A win for New York would put them in fourth place, one point ahead of Boston, and with a game in hand. A Boston victory would give the Bruins a three-point hold on the vital spot.

The losers in either case would have an uphill battle on their hands.

Tigers End Season With 6-2 Win Over Bulldogs In Windsor

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three games tonight close out the regular 1953-54 schedule of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

Two of those games — Niagara Falls at Chatham and Owen Sound at Kitchener-Waterloo—mean nothing. On the third game—Windsor at Stratford—depend third, fourth and fifth places in the standings.

Actually it matters little who is in third, fourth or fifth because under the new playoff plan, Owen Sound Mercurys, who have already clinched first place, have their choice of meeting any of the other five teams in the first round of the playoffs.

Similarly, Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, who are assured a second-place finish, can take any of the other three remaining teams for the first round. The two teams that remain will play each other in the other series of the playoffs.

The only occasion in which third place would make a difference would be if the Mercurys chose to face the Dutchmen in the first round. Then the third place team would have a choice of three teams.

TIGERS THIRD

Hamilton Tigers moved into sole possession of third place Tuesday night when they closed out their season with a 6-2 victory over the Bulldogs in Windsor. In other games the Indians defeated the Mercurys 3-1 in Owen Sound and Kitchener downed the Cataracts 6-3 in Niagara Falls.

If the Bulldogs can defeat Stratford tonight they will tie Hamilton for third. Should the Indians win they will assure Hamilton of third and move themselves into fourth, leaving Windsor in fifth.

Mickey Roth, Lloyd Finkbeiner and Billy Flick were the snipers for Stratford. Elwyn Morris shot the only goal for Owen Sound.

At Windsor the Tigers were never headed. Frank Liscombe scored twice for the Tigers. George McLagan, Jack Taylor, Lloyd Ferguson and Ab Conick were the other scorers for Hamilton. Fred Hildebrand and Frank Bathgate fired the markers for Windsor.

Kitchener's victory in Niagara Falls was costly to the Dutchmen. Although the win did nothing for Kitchener they lost the services of netminder Bill Harrington until the OHA rules on a stick-swinging duel that broke out in the second period.

PLAYERS SUSPENDED

Harrington and Ron Castelane of the Cataracts were the players involved and both took match penalties, ejecting them from the rest of the game and suspending them until the league reviews the case.

Bobby Schnurr, Kitchener centre took over in goal for the rest of the game and let in two goals.

Don Bauer, Ken Laufman, Don Rope, Don Oberholtzer, Charlie Brooker and George Scholes shared in the Kitchener scoring. Ted Fauteux, Mike Glumac and Bill Hartsburg were the marksmen for the Cataracts.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group Pembroke Lumber Kings took over third place in the standings by taking a 3-1 home-ice victory from the last-place Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Indians. The Kings have only one game remaining in the regular schedule.

Rheal Savard led the Pembroke victory with two goals. Bruce Giesebrecht tallied the other. Ron Rubic scored for the Indians.

The Indians play the Wolves in Sudbury tonight.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jimmy McLarnin of Vancouver flattened New York's favorite lightweight Sid Terris with just two punches at Madison Square Garden 26 years ago tonight. The victory in one minute, 40 seconds, established the quality of McLarnin, who moved up into welterweight ranks where he held the title alternately with Barney Ross between 1933 and 1935.

Anti-Trust Bill Asked In Baseball

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem. Colo.) introduced a bill Tuesday to bring under the anti-trust laws any professional baseball club owned by a beer or liquor company.

Johnson, who also is president of the Western League, said his move is aimed at August S. Busch, president of the Anheuser Busch Brewing Company and owner of St. Louis Cardinals.

The Senator accused Busch of using baseball "merely to sell a few more bottles of beer."

In St. Louis, Busch termed the bill "hardly proper."

FOUL PLAY WINS FOR RUSSIANS — Russian skier Lubova Kosyreva (right) is caught by the camera as she uses her skip pole as a weapon to block Sirkka Polkunen of Finland as she tries to pass her during the World Championship Cross Country Relay Race at Falun, Sweden. Helka Ristolainen, manager of the Finnish team, said that the Finns were so anoyed at the incident that they did not want to say anything about it, but Miss Polkunen insisted that Finland should be told it might have won. The Russians won the race by 25 seconds.

Name Sherman Coach Of Blue Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP)—Al Sherman, youthful backfield coach of New York Giants of the National Football League for the last five years, will be Winnipeg Blue Bombers' head coach for the 1954 season.

The 31-year-old former quarterback with Philadelphia Eagles has been signed for one year by the Western Interprovincial Football Union club.

He will be the fourth new coach in the five-team WIFU this season. Calgary Stampeders have signed Larry Siemering, formerly line coach with Washington Redskins to replace the fired Bob Snyder. Edmonton Eskimos are looking for a replacement for Darrell Royal, released from his three-year contract to become head coach at Mississippi State. British Columbia Lions, the league's new entry, will be guided by Annis Stukus, only Canadian coach in either the WIFU or the East's Big Four.

Sherman succeeds George Trafton who was dropped early this year with one year still remaining on a three-year contract.

Bomber president Ralph Misener announced Sherman's signing Tuesday night and said he was happy that Sherman had come to terms as "he was the man the Bombers were really after. I'm sure he will do a good job in Winnipeg."

FORMER QUARTERBACK

Sherman quarterbacked the Eagles under coach Early (Greasy) Neale from 1943 to 1947. In 1948 he took over as head coach of the Eagles' farm team, the Patterson Panthers of New Jersey in the American Association League. The Panthers captured the league crown, winning 11 of 12 games.

In 1949 he took over as backfield coach of the Giants, under head coach Steven Owen, a position he held until 1953. He is considered one of the top T-formation authorities in football.

In a telephone interview, Sherman said he was no stranger to Canadian football, having been with the Giants when they played Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four in an exhibition game a few years ago. In that particular game the teams played Canadian rules for one half and American rules for the second half.

"We'll certainly use the T in Winnipeg, but there will be a few interesting modifications," said Sherman.

Marlene, Partner Make Match Play

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., and E.J. (Dutch) Harrison of Ardmore, Okla., shot a one-over-par 72 Tuesday to qualify for match play in the 13th annual international mixed two-ball golf tournament.

The 19-year-old Rollins College sophomore and her veteran partner finished six strokes behind the leading pair, Grace DeMoss Smith and George Bolesta, who shot a 66 for medal honors.

In first-round play today the Stewart-Harrison team will face Betty Dodd of San Anfonio, Tex., and Bill Kaiser of Louisville, whose qualifying score of 67 earned them second place among the 32 qualifying teams.

Marlene missed a two-foot putt on the 18th green Tuesday that would have given her and Harrison even par figures. The team tcured the front and back nine in identical 36s.

Bannister Plans To Compete In B.C. Games

LONDON (AP)—Roger Bannister Britain's brightest hope for the four-minute mile, announced Tuesday he will set aside his medical books to compete in the British Empire Games at Vancouver this summer.

Bannister's entry means a race of three of the world's top milers at the games next July 31 to Aug. 6.

The other two are Australia's John Landy and New Zealand's Murray Halberg.

Bannister and Landy boast 4:02 miles, but the British Amateur Athletic Association did not officially recognize Bannister's effort because the 24-year-old medical student ran it in an unscheduled school meet.

GOOD RESULTS

Twenty-year-old Halberg flashed into prominence with a 4:04.4 mile Feb. 13 in Auckland. His time was considered spectacular because he ran on grass. Bannister's best official time is 4:03.6.

Gunder Haegg's 4:01.4 is the fastest mile ever run.

Hopes that the B.E. Games might bring together four great mile runners were disappointed when Gordon Pirie of Britain decided to turn down an invitation because the long journey to Vancouver would tire him for the European games in Switzerland in late August.

Saxton-Bratton Bout Scheduled

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Johnny Saxton and Johnny Bratton meet here tonight in a 10-round scrap tentatively billed as the first of a welterweight title elimination series.

The "tentative" description would become permanent if welter king Kid Gavilan should beat Carl (Bobo) Olsen in their coming battle for the middleweight crown. The 147-pound title then would be vacant and up for grab by the likes of Saxton, Bratton, Carmine Basilio and Billy Graham.

Should Gavilan lose in this effort to annex the middleweight title, the Saxton-Bratton winner still would be in a good position for a title shot. A sell-out crowd in excess of 7,500 is expected for the nationally televised bout. The 23-year-old Saxton, from Flushing, N.Y., ruled an early 9-to-5 favorite over the 26-year-old Chicago veteran.

St. Catharines Wallops Galt Hawks 9-4

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brian Cullen, who appears a cinch to clinch the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A scoring title, tied the league's scoring record Tuesday night.

The team captain of league-leading St. Catharines TeePees picked up five assists while the TeePees were walloping Galt Black Hawks 9-4 in St. Catharines. The night's work gave him 82 assists, which, added to his 57 goals, totals 139 points, a tie for the scoring record set by Ken Laufman of Guelph Biltmores during the 1951-52 season.

In the night's other game, Toronto Marlboros edged Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts 5-4 in Kitchener to remain in second place—six points behind the TeePees.

QUEBEC TOUR

The TeePees, who now embark on an interlocking tour of Quebec, again were led by the Brian Cullen-Hugh Barlow-Barry Cullen line.

Barry Cullen, Brian's brother, and Hugh Barlow scored two goals each. Other St. Catharines markers went to Ian Cushenan, Chester Warchol, Cec Hoekstra, Hank Ciesla and Wimpy Roberts.

Galt's goals were scored by John Sleaver, Ken Crawford, Ed Switzer and Neil McDonald.

The Greenshirts came close to tying the game in the final minute after trailing by two goals twice.

Centre Billy Harris scored twice for the Dukes as did rookie Bob Pulford. Wally Maxwell notched the other Toronto goal. Doug Vaughan, Bud Horne, Glen Cressman and Grieg Hicks scored for Kitchener.

Guelph is at Montreal Canadiens, Toronto St. Michael's visit Toronto Marlboros, St. Catharines play Montreal Royals, and Barrie is at Hamilton tonight.

Soviet Brand Of Hockey Wins Writers' Praises

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Stockholm hockey writers watched Russia's entry in the world hockey championships hang a 6-0 defeat on a Swedish second-division team Tuesday night and pronounced the Soviet brand of hockey the best seen in Sweden.

Canada's representatives, Toronto East York, played at Leksand in central Sweden, where they defeated a local team 8-1.

In contrast to their criticism of Stockholm appearances by East York, whom they declared to be below the calibre of visiting Canadian teams of previous years, the writers had nothing but praise for the Russians after their victory over the Stockholm A.I.K. club.

Don Preston, secretary of the East York club, said his team is familiarizing itself with "an entirely new game."

"The only similarity between this game and Canadian hockey is in the equipment," Preston said in an interview.

"The three main points of Canadian hockey are stick-handling, shooting and body-checking. The European version of the game comprises only stick-handling."

LEARN "NEW GAME"

Preston said he believes East York will have learned the "new game" well enough to give "a good account of ourselves" [illegible] the tournaments.

Preston says the tournament should be called the European rather than world hockey championships because of the differences in playing rules.

The Canadians have dropped two of their 12 European matches so far, losing 11-2 in Paris to an all-star team composed largely of Canadian professionals with English teams and 5-4 to the Swedish National B team. They downed the Swedes 12-3 in a return match.

RELIEF PROMISED

For Arthritic and Rheumatic Pain

New relief without pills by greaseless, odourless, stainless cream.

Toronto, Ont. (Special)— Discovery of an entirely new method of relieving pain has been announced here. Science has now developed a cream that acts in a new way to bring relief from arthritic, rheumatic and muscular aches and pains. Sold under the brand name "InfraRUB", this new odourless and greaseless cream relieves these pains without the need of pills and other internal medicines.

InfraRUB does not merely set up a surface irritation but penetrates deep down into sore muscles and joints. This permits fresh oxygen-rich blood to flow freely through afflicted areas and actually helps drive away the pain-causing congestion and pressure.

Another feature of InfraRUB that appeals to so many people is its ease of application. No long and painful rubbing is necessary as InfraRUB penetrates in a few seconds and vanishes with a moment's light massage.

InfraRUB leaves no oily film or pungent objectionable odour on the skin. Users find they are able to put on clothing in complete safety immediately after application.

Written medical reports on the success of this new help for patients suffering from rheumatic and arthritic pains and general muscular aches and pains have been prepared, based on hundreds of cases in British and French hospitals. InfraRUB users claim almost immediate relief from rheumatic and arthritic pains, sore muscles and joints.

Now for the first time, InfraRUB can be obtained without a prescription from your local drug store for only $1.39. InfraRUB is guaranteed to give hours and hours of comforting relief from arthritic, rheumatic and muscular aches and pains or your money will be refunded in full.

Mrs. Rork introduced guest speaker, Mrs. Edward Chambers of Peterborough, who was here to help organize and install our first home and school executive several years ago. Mrs. Chambers is at present helping to organize and working with the School for Retarded Children in Peterborough. Their ambition is to help these retared children to learn to live as more normal children. Instead of the three R's being stressed, they stress the three A's — affection, acceptance and approval. She used three of their children to give us individual examples of what can and is being done for these children.

Mrs. Tedford, well known to many members sang a solo, "The Hills of Home," accomanpied on the piano by Mrs. Rork.

Mrs. G. LaBrash thanked the ladies.

The certificates and cards were brought for those who had completed and passed the St. John's Ambulance course. The meeting closed with "The Queen" and lunch was served.

800,000 Cheer Queen Arriving In Melbourne

MELBOURNE (CP) — Church bells pealed forth a welcome and ticker tape showered down today upon Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh on their triumphant arrival in Melbourne.

Some 800,000 cheering, shoving spectators lined the nine-mile route from the airport following the royal couple's arrival from Tasmania in continuation of their Commonwealth tour.

The exuberant crowds pushed aside steel and wood barriers for a closer look, and police and soldiers linked arms to push the crowds back from the royal limousine.

The open car, driving at little more than a walking pace, was escorted by detachments of mounted police. The Queen, wearing a brown coat with a black velvet collar, had a special wave for doctors and nurses lining the roof of the Royal Melbourne Hospital. Many of them hurried to the roof still wearing their white surgical gowns.

The white - painted royal plane completed its flight across Bass strait ahead of schedule. At the Queen's request, the pilot circled to give her a full view of Australia's "queen city of the south."

Minutes before the royal couple landed to begin their visit to the state of Victoria the sun broke through threatening clouds. Thousands had camped out in the all-night drizzle.

Before reaching the centre of the city, the royal route followed twists and turns of what were once old bullock wagon tracks. The wagons brought wool and gold—and prosperity—to early Melbourne.

At Parliament House the Queen told members of the Victoria Legislative Assembly and their wives: "I look forward to meeting you all tomorrow when I shall have the pleasure of opening the second session of your Parliament, and I can assure you that we shall both enjoy to the full our visit to your state."

Eastern Russia Gets Pioneers

By SHERWOOD DICKERMAN

LONDON (Reuters)—Russia has sent a wave of pioneers marching toward the Soviet Union's eastern prairies with the ringing words—in effect—"go east, young man."

The great hall of the Kremlin resounded recently with praise of frontier life as Premier Georgi Malenkov and other high Russian officials said goodbye to the first contingent of new settlers, and exhorted other youths to follow them. The mass rally was a send-off for a group of factory workers and technical students who left for remote Kazakhstan on the Chinese border.

"Campfires under an open sky," and the "timeless lure of 'new lands'" were thrown into a vision of frontier days by young speakers in the Kremlin's ornate hall, Moscow radio reported.

Other speakers claimed that 3,000 youths from Moscow province and 8,000 from the vast Ukraine grain belt have volunteered to "go east." They will work on 125 new state grain farms to be set up within the next few years in the eastern prairies.

Price Increase Seen Only Gold Solution

TORONTO (CP) — Only a substantial increase in the official price of gold can offer any permanent solution to the difficulties of gold mines, V. C. Wansbrough of Toronto, vice-president and managing director of the Canadian Metal Mining Association, said today.

"In our view," he stated in an address prepared for delivery to the association's annual meeting, "nothing else will serve to remove the handicaps now imposed on world trade through an inadequacy, in volume and price, of the one universally-recognized medium of international exchange." He added, however:

"In view of the reiterated statements of officials of the United States treasury that they refuse to consider any increase in the gold price, it would appear unrealistic to anticipate any early change in the present situation.

"Nevertheless, this merely underscores the importance of making every effort to see that public opinion here and abroad is better informed about the facts and importance of the issue."

SEES NO BETTERMENT

J. A. H. Paterson, of Toronto, retiring president, in his prepared address, also found "no radical improvement in sight" for gold mines.

"Without the continued assistance given by the federal government, it is difficult to see how any but a few producers could maintain their operations."

Mr. Wansbrough said labor unrest had given rise to some criticism of the government's Emergency Gold Mining Assistance Act "from certain politicians," and that the federal government had delayed renewal of the act until labor conditions had been restored to normal. He added:

"When the act does come up for consideration, several members representing gold mining constituencies are well prepared to confute the unfounded criticisms which have been levelled from uninformed or biased sources.

"The facts prove beyond dispute that the act has performed satisfactorily the purpose for which it was designed; namely, to keep the gold mining industry and its wholly dependent communities in existence.

NO SUDDEN RICHNESS

"No company has grown rich on cost-aid. By far the greater portion received has gone to maintain payrolls and to meet increased wages. Further increases in costs could have only one result, the discontinuance of operations by many gold mines, with disastrous effects upon employees and communities alike."

(Present official price of gold is $35 (U.S.) an ounce).

Mr. Paterson saw great mining developments taking place across Canada, but all was not plain sailing in the industry.

The fall in the prices of lead and zinc had hit many producers hard.

"And there continues to hang over them, like a threatening cloud, the possibility of increased tariffs in the American market."

Mau Mau Rebellion Growing Britain Told

LONDON (AP) — A spell that anti-white Mau Mau terrorists cast on Kenya in 1952 with knife, torch and witch-doctor ritual is growing despite a bomber-backed campaign to crush the rebellion, a British parliamentary delegation reports.

A drastic shake-up of the east African crown colony's police was proposed Tuesday by the six-man, all-party delegation to help cope with the bloody uprising that some experts say may last a generation.

Fresh from an 18-day survey of the fertile land where British security forces each month are killing off about 300 of the terrorists and capturing 150, the delegation said there is danger the movement to drive out the whites and kill "loyal" tribesmen will spread beyond the Kikuyu area where it was born.

The 1,250,000 Kikuyus number almost one-quarter of Kenya's African population. It is among these tribesmen, who till the fields around Nairobi, the capital, and work as laborers and servants for the white, that the Mau Mau has done its recruiting by a combination of persuasion and violence.

"The influence of the Mau Mau in the Kikuyu area, except in certain localities, has not declined," the parliamentary delegation said.

MANY CRITICAL

Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton arranged to fly to Kenya Saturday for another review of the political and military strategy.

Lyttelton's methods of handling the campaign have been widely criticized both in Kenya and in Britain. Many among the colony's 42,000 whites contend the campaign is not tough enough. But many in the British Labor party insist that strong-arm methods already in use have hindered, not helped, the British cause.

While the whites who run the government, dominate trade and farm the best of Kenya's land are the prime objects of the Mau Mau hatred, the terrorists also want to get rid of the 154,000 Asians in the colony.

BOMBER ATTACK

Of about 700 civilians slain by the Mau Mau, however, most were Africans. The toll includes 16 whites and 13 Asians.

The terrorists have lost far more under the hammering of the army which Gen. Sir George Erskine is directing. The army totals 34,000 men—10 battalions of British troops and the King's African Rifles, 8,000 regular police and 20,000 part-time police.

Twelve RAF bombers, pursuing an aerial campaign instituted last April, are herding the Mau Mau out of the bamboo, cedar and camphor forest of the highlands so Erskine's men can get a crack at them.

Authorities estimate that 3,400 of the Mau Mau have been killed since the outbreak of the rebellion. Of perhaps 1,000 captured, 100 have been hanged for murder. Jails are crowded with 30,000 Kikuyus suspected of having taken the Mau Mau's "blood" oath.

Discover Medical Services Highly Organized In Soviet

The Russian foreign office arranged an interview for CP reporter Bill Boss with a high official of the U.S.S.R. ministry of public health. In this, the first of two articles, Boss reports what he was told about medicine in Russia.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP)—Soviet medical authorities say every Russian citizen:

1. Is registered with a general medical practitioner;
2. Gets round-the-clock medical service;
3. Receives free general, specialist, surgical and hospital treatment when necessary;
4. Receives from one-half to full pay while ill.

Details of the set-up were outlined to The Canadian Press by Dr. Lydia Vasilyevna Greshishnikova, 50-year-old head of a U.S.S.R. health ministry branch.

ALL MEDICINE CONTROLLED

"Everything pertaining to medicine in the Soviet Union comes under the direction of this ministry," said Dr. Greshishnikova, 28 years a doctor. Her husband, also a doctor, was killed during the Second World War. Her daughter, 22, graduates in pediatrics this year.

Dr. Greshishnikova said the main activities of the health ministry are discharged through eight boards. These control:

1. Treatment and preventive medicine.
2. Organization, construction and administration of health resorts.
3. Hygiene, sanitation and vaccination services.
4. Physical culture and sports.
5. Building of medical establishments.
6. Supply of medicines and medical instruments.
7. Trainingof medical workers—doctors, nurses, technicians, physical culture experts.

(The team representing Russia at the world hockey championships in Stockholm this month was chosen by health ministry officials).

LOCAL RESPONSIBILITIES

Dr. Greshishnikova said municipal and regional Soviets build their own hospitals, polyclinics and other facilities and operate them and their associated medical practices. The ministry lays down policy, plans and standards; the local Soviets carry them out.

Medicine here is organized around the polyclinics. Each is the hub of a medical "complex."

A typical complex, she said, serves a district, or ward, of 50,000 inhabitants. The district's streets and buildings are divided among 13 or 14 "sectors" of from 2,000 to 4,000 persons each.

The sectors correspond to our family doctors' practices but the doctors' offices are in the polyclinic, not in their sector's streets or buildings. Also located in the polyclinic are the specialists to whom the "GPs" refer patients.

Other elements in each complex are maternity clinics, creches, children's clinics, dispensaries for disease such as tuberculosis, and the inoculation centre. A complex may have three polyclinics, each with its hospital, and 10 to 20 creches.

MANY PATIENTS

While the general practitioner has from 2,000 to 4,000 patients on his register he regularly treats fewer than half that number.

Almost one-third of his register are children, already under the care of school doctors and children's clinics. Most workers are attended by doctors attached to their industries or enterprises.

The average doctor, who works a six-hour day, has from 800 to 1,000 regular patients.

A Russian who wants to see a doctor, yet is well enough to go to the polyclinic, visits him during morning office hours. He must go there once a year for his general medical examination.

He also must be examined by his family doctor or those at his place of employment before taking his annual holidays. (The interpreter said Russians frequently try to dodge the latter examination, which may result in holiday plan delays through having to get glasses, or some other minor service.)

If too ill to go to the polyclinic, citizens may telephone or have a neighbor take a message. The doctor calls that day, usually after his office hours. At night a duty doctor handles the case until the individual's own "GP" returns in the morning.

Polyclinics with theatres in their areas maintain a "theatre watch" with doctor and ambulance available for calls should patrons fall ill or have an accident.

Dr. Greshishnikova said:

"W aim to have the same doctors and specialists look after the same patients. They become family friends, know their patients' troubles and sorrows and share their joys."

Patients can ask for other consultants if not satisfied with a finding.

Rural medicine is similarly organized except that the doctors live in the villages and the hospital with its teams of specialists is in the centre of the medical district.

"During the last five years the urban and rural systems have been completed."

Asked why, then, Moscow's current 10-year plan provides for a 26,000-bed increase in the city's hospital accommodation alone, she said the goal was to extend the availability of hospital accommodation beyond the present average of a complex for every 50,000 to 100,000 of population.

South Africans Cultivating Jumping Frogs

WASHINGTON — From jumping, an American pastime glorified by Mark Twain, has spread to South Africa. That British Dominion now claims its tailless amphibians can outhop the prodigious jumper of the United States, the common bullfrog or Rana catesbeiana.

In 1865 Mark Twain's story of the Jumping Frog of Calaveras County (California) told how Jim Smiley's "educated" frog, Dan'l Webster, was so loaded with quail-shot that it couldn't get off the ground in a crucial contest.

From this tale stemmed annual championship matches now held in Angels Camp, Calaveras County, with real frogs, says the National Geographic Society. There a number of years ago a bullfrog named Maggie set a world's record of 16 feet 4 inches for three successive jumps. That mark has stood despite the frantic efforts of challengers from England, Australia, Trinidad, Mexico and the United States.

REPORTS OF LEAPING LENA

Now, however, come reports from Pretoria and Cape Town that South Africa has a Natal Province performer, Leaping Lena, which has spanned 22 feet 10½ inches officially and 32 feet in an exhibition jump.

American herpetologists are curious about Leaping Lena. They wonder what species among the 50 to 60 in South Africa could accomplish such feats. Any salientian that can consistently beat the bullfrog of this country's brooks and ponds east of the Rock Mountains is a formidable creature, for few jumpers in the entire animal world can compete with Rana catesbeiana.

In relation to the performer's size, man lags far behind Maggie's mark. In 1935 Jesse Owens established a running broad jump world's record of 26 feet 8¼ inches, not much more than four times his length. A kangaroo is good for about 26 feet, or five times its body length. A three-foot hop for an average frog is approximately 12 times its length.

Only the flea tops the frog's achievement as a broad jumper. With a leap of 12 inches, it springs 200 body length. The impala, an African antelope, is probably capable of the greatest horizontal leap, 30 to 40 feet. But this achievement is not comparable to that of the frog or flea.

BULLFROG IS WELL KNOWN

Whether jumping or not, the American bullfrog is perhaps the best known frog. Its hind legs provide an epicurean delicacy, and the bass-fiddle call of the male—"jug o'rum"—is a familiar outdoor sound. Before singing, the bullfrog inflates its body and floats. If alarmed, it grunts and dives under water, deflating itself at the same time.

When vaulting over the ground, the bullfrog's eyes are kept open, the arms and legs extended. Sometimes it loses momentum so that it lands on all fours simultaneously or even on the hind legs first. But when diving it closes eyelids, shuts nostrils, folds arms back against the body and hits the water nose first.

The bullfrog is the largest American frog. The female, slightly bigger than the male and usually silent, can grow to 10 inchse and weigh 3½ pounds. The diet consists of insects, small fish and snakes, other frogs or even birds. Big eyes protrude from a greenish head. The throat is tinged with yellow and the body olive brown.

Other long jumping amphibians are Fowler's toad (ufo fowleri), the diminutive Cricket frog (Acris gryllus), the croaking Green frog (Rana clamitans), the Spring Peeper (Hyla crucifer) and the sleek Leopard frog (Rana pipiens).

Navigation Opens

TORONTO (CP)—Navigation on Toronto harbor opened Tuesday 47 days after it closed. The tanker Oil Transporter was the first ship of 1954. She was inbound from Clarkson, 15 miles southwest of here. Her master, Capt. Bert Hodges, received the harbormaster's 125-year-old hat at a brief ceremony.

Red Cross Sunday

TORONTO (CP)—L. G. Mills, chairman of the national executive committee, Canadian Red Cross Society, announces that Feb. 28 has been designated Red Cross Sunday. Saturday, Feb. 27, has been named Red Cross Sabbath. Observance of these days precedes the Canadian Red Cross national appeal for funds which opens March 1.

Canada Third Trader In Free World

NEW YORK (OFNS) — Once again the United Nations Statistical Yearbook, which has just been published here, emphasizes the predominance of the United States in the world or at least in that part of it free from Communism; nowever, it also brings out, as it has never done so clearly before, the spectacular rise of Canada as an industrial Power, and the recovery of the former enemy States of Germany, Italy and Japan. Its rows of figures and tables of statistics—there are five hundred and seventy-eight closely printed pages—tell the story, up to the end of 1952, of what has happened since the war, both socially and economically; the story of the shifting patterns of trade and the changing condition of man midway through the twentieth century.

Europe, albeit a truncated Europe, lacking the Soviet satellites, is still the greatest trading area—although it is slipping badly —while North America's share of world imports and exports is 150 per cent. of what it was in 1938. Just as the United States has replaced the United Kingdom as the greatest maritime Power, so it has also become the greatest trading nation: the American share of world trade is now almost exactly what the British share was before the war, fifteen per cent.

Canada is now the third trading nation in the free world; and Canada is really the feature of this statistical yearbook—which is the fifth to have been brought out by the United Nations. Canadian industry has boomed; and for every four factories in Canada just before the war, there are now nine. In almost every field, production has been rapidly increased; Canada's output of electricity is twice what it was, while

INCREASE 70 PER CENT

Agriculture, too, has seen big changes. Figures for Canadian farm crops and livestock are 70 per cent above what they were before the war. There would seem to be no limit to Canada's expansion except that imposed by the country's relatively small population of fifteen million.

Close behind Canada in the list of trading nations is Western Germany, which overtook France as the leading exporter of continental Europe in 1952.

Another former enemy, Italy, is now one of the leading shipping countries, and its merchant marine is larger than it was before the war.

The columns of figures can be made to tell many stories: for instance, they reveal that the Latin Americans went on a wild buying spree after the war, whereas the people of Europe grimly kept their dollar purchases to a bare minimum. About the only country whose 1952 volume of imports was below the 1938 amount was the United Kingdom; and the U.N. experts believe that such austerity will be rewarded in the end.

There was a slight drop in trade generally during 1952, although whether this is significant is not certain; the widespread strikes in the heavy industries of the United States might have caused it. Of course, trade is above its pre-war level by 3½ times, according to its dollar values, but actually only 30 per cent in volume: prices have increased one hundred and fifty per cent since 1938.

The predominance of the United States is vividly demonstrated by the statistics which show that it produces a fifth of the wheat in the world, half the cotton, a third of the coal, more than half the crude petroleum, half the steel, two-thirds of the aluminum and three-quarters of the cars. Americans have one hundred and ten million radio sets, more than twenty-five million in their cars. (The second largest number of radio sets is in West Germany.)

THAT ASTERISK

Whenever "the world" is printed in the yearbook it has an asterisk beside it. This asterisked world is a shrunken one which sometimes excludes not only the Soviet Union but also Communist China, and most of the countries of Eastern Europe. The statisticians at the United Nations do make some effort to cover the Communist World, although their questionnaires are always ignored. As far as the Soviet Union is concerned, the yearbook quotes "production figures" given by the Soviet delegate in Geneva last year: these show a considerable increase over the pre-war figures.

Britain's output of electricity has increased by 164 per cent since 1937, the second largest gain in this field in the period. With the exception of coal, British production generally has risen since the war; but the improvement is bettered by certain other countries. For instance, although the United Kingdom has more ships than it had in 1937, its merchant marine is surpassed by that of the United States because of the latter's enormous building program during and just after the war. The Americans keep on putting freighters in moth balls; but they still have fifteen million tons more shipping than they had in the 'thirties."

Millions Of Pilgrims Pay Visit To Ganges River

WASHINGTON—Rising in the Himalayan snowfields, the sacred Ganges River courses 1,500 miles across India to pour its waters into the Eastern Bay of Bengal.

En route it enriches fertile fields of wheat and rice. But for India's 300 million Hindus it provides another vital service, says the National Geographic Society. To faithful Hindus, the Ganges flows from heaven and nourishes the human spirit.

"As long as the bones of a man touch Ganga water, so long is that man magnified in heaven. No place of pilgrimage is better than Ganga."

SINS WASHED AWAY

According to the Hindu creed, pilgrims cleanse their souls of sin when they bathe and drink in the Ganges.

To its shores flock Hindus of all station—rajahs and princes, warriors, merchants, farmers, and laborers. Water dipped from the Ganges is carried to all India, to be sprinkled upon the new born, the married, and the dying. Whenever possible, the dead are cremated on the river banks, or their ashes are gathered and sent to one of the sacred cities along the shores to be cast upon the water.

Among the most sacred cities are Gangotri, Hardwar, Allahabad and Banaras (Benares).

Thousands of pilgrims annually make the long journey to Gangotri, high in the Himalays near the origin of the Ganges. The town is a place of pilgrimage for Hindus who have committed particularly grievous sins. They must walk north along the left bank and return by the right bank.

Many perish from disease or starvation en route. Those who reach their goal sprinkle themselves with a jar of sacred water taken by a Brahman priest from the Ganges' source.

At Allabahad the Ganges joins another sacred river, the Jumna. Hindus consider this the holiest place on earth. There Brahma, the Hindu creator, prepared himself for the task of constructing the universe. Vishnu, the preserver, and Shiva, the destroyer—the other members of the Hindu trinity—are also believed to have gained their powers by penance at the river junction.

From January 14 to March 4, at 12-year intervals. Allahabad witnesses a great festival, the Kumbh Melaw. During its purification ceremonies, pilgrims bathe ten different ways and present ten kinds of gifts, as prescribed by Hindu custom.

5,000,000 HINDUS

Some 5,000,000 Hindus are now gathared at Allahabad for the current festival, which Hindu astrologers have proclaimed the most auspicious in more than 100 years. The thousands reported killed and injured there in the recent crush of bathers are not considered by the Hindus to be victims of unalloyed tragedy. Death during the Kumbh Mela is thought to be a direct passage to heaven.

As Mecca is the holiest of holy cities to the Muslim, so is Banaras to the Hindu. It is a place of more than 1,500 jumbled, gold-roofed temples. Daily at dawn, most of the city's 400,000 residents and thousands of visitors walk to the ghats, a two-mile-long series of steps and platforms descending from the bluff on which the city is build to the river's edge.

Throughout the day processions pass up and down the steps leading to the river, and the shores are thronged with pilgrims. Standing kneedeep in the sacred Ganges, they worship the 3,000,000 deities in the Hindu panetheon.

Deny Accusation Made Against Business Schools

TORONTO (CP) — C. G. MacOdrum (PC—Leeds) said in the legislature Tuesday that "blanket accusations" were made by Albert Wren (Lib.-Lab.—Kenora) on the operation of business colleges and were "unwarranted, unjustified and uncalled for."

Mr. Wren said his statements were "inaccurately reported" and that the question had not been originally raised by him.

Mr. MacOdrum referred to a report appearing in the Toronto Globe and Mail on an education committee meeting last week in which Mr. Wren was quoted as saying: "All these business colleges worry about is whether the youngsters have the ability to pay."

Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar, who operates business schools in Ottawa and Renfrew, said all that is required to attend a women's business college is "honesty and integrity—not money."

"I can speak in the highest terms of other operators of business schools who are established in the places where mine are," the minister said.

MP Protests Badge Removal

OTTAWA (CP)—An Ontario Progressive Conservative Tuesday protested against the removal of the crown from the badge worn by non-commissioned personnel in the air force.

J. H. Ferguson, Simcoe North, voiced his protest after Defence Minister Claxton said the badge for non-commissioned airmen was changed on orders of the chief of the air staff.

Mr. Ferguson said no cabinet minister had the right to order the removal of the crown.

Mr. Claxton said officers and non-commissioned officers of the RCAF wear a badge containing a crown and an eagle. Until May 8, 1953, non-commissioned airmen wore a badge which was made up of the letters "RCAF" surrounded by a laurel wreath with a small crown at the top. They now wore a badge containing an eagle.

Gets 9 Months

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Leslie Johnson of Stamford was sentenced to a total of nine months in reformatory on charges of carrying a concealed weapon and vagrancy. He received three months for carrying the weapon—a razor—and six months definite and three indefinite for vagrancy. The sentences will run consecutively.

Jury Returns 5 Indictments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney-General Herbert Brownell announced Tuesday a federal grand jury has returned five additional indictments charging 18 individuals and seven corporations with diverse offences in connection with the disposal of surplus ships from the Second World War.

Among the individuals was former Representative Joseph Casey (Dem. Mass.). The former member of Congress, who once headed a group alleged to have made immense profits in surplus ship transfers, was accused of conspiracy to breach a purchase contract with the government by sales of stock in the purchasing company to others without approval of the Maritime commission.

Today's indictments similarly charged Julius C. Holmes of New York city, former United States minister to London, who was alleged to have participated in the Casey transactions.

All of the indictments involve charges that surplus U. S. government ships were purchased in the names of Americans and illegally transferred to aliens through corporate transactions.

Eskimos Becoming Liveliest Of Canadian Art Groups

By DAVE STOCKAND

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canada's Eskimos are building a better life through the objects of art they are turning out near the top of the world.

Eskimo sculpture in stone and ivory is selling well in Canadian art and handicraft shops.

An Eskimo in the eastern Arctic sets aside his rifle or spear. He picks up a chunk of soapstone or serpentine and begins chipping with the crudest of tools, mirroring what he has seen on the hunt.

Serpentine is a soft rock of dark green and other colors sometimes spotted like a serpent's skin. It takes a high polish and is used as a decorative material.

Down in the big cities the finished stone-and-ivory figure is snapped up, and not by just a highbrow handful; casual collectors are finding that the lines of sculpture turned out by a "primitive nomad" blend beautifully with the modern vogue in interior decorating.

MANY HAVE TALENT

This talent, which gives the Eskimo something to fall back on when the fox and caribou fail him, is not rare among the people of the north.

Both sexes and all ages are attacking the new market with such zest that artist James Houston, who introduced the Arctic sculpture to a buying public, calls the Eskimo "Canada's liveliest art group."

With nothing more than bow drills, files and knives, and sometimes a soaking in seal oil to bring out color, chunks of stone are being transformed into vital images of every-day happenings in the Arctic.

LIVELY PIECES

A stone hunter stands poised with an ivory harpoon raised for the plunge; a sleek stone seal or a grumpy walrus suns himself on the ice; a hunter, ivory eyes popping, blows up a bladder; an Eskimo woman, full of life despite her stone body, scolds a husky which has been acting up around camp.

And these are just a few of the pieces to find a market. The number of works brought out since 1949 exceeds 30,000.

The story of the art's introduction began in 1948, when the Toronto-born Houston brought back a few Eskimo articles on his return from a painting trip into the north.

He showed them to the Canadian Handicrafts Guild and made another trip north in 1949 under that organization's auspices.

The sculpture he brought back from Port Harrison and Povungnetuk on the eastern shores of Hudson bay was put on sale in Montreal. The sale was supposed to last a week. Every article had been sold in three days.

HANDICRAFTS GUILD HELPS

The Arctic project got into full swing when the federal government came through with a grant and the Hudson's Bay Company began accepting the carvings at its trading posts, turning them over to the Handicrafts Guild for sale in the cities.

The guild trades with the Eskimos through the post managers. No Eskimo does any set project; there is no attempt at mass production. The individual pieces come in slowly to the various posts where they are bought by the managers who know the quality and type required.

The price paid the Eskimo varies with the quality of the item. The collection of articles for the year arrives in Montreal in the autumn. The Handicrafts Guild, which has its headquarters in Montreal, worked on a government grant until last year. At the present time it reports it is just meeting its expenses of operation, as far as the Eskimo work is concerned.

Almost every carving is different because the Eskimos don't see much sense in duplicating something they have already done. But of late there has been a slight trend in the wrong direction.

"Some of it is definitely imitative," says Clifford Wilson of Hudson's Bay House, speaking of a few of the recent carvings. "When they find certain types sell well they are liable to do quite a lot like that."

But the general picture is one of improvement, he says. The Eskimos are doing more work in stone than they ever did in the past and these items are superior to the few old carvings that can be seen in museums.

FORMERLY OF IVORY

Much of the old work was all ivory. Now ivory is used mainly to set off the works in stone—for spears, eyes, tusks and the like—and as pegs joining multi-piece works; the Eskimo has no glues.

The handicrafts people generally limit their advice to encouraging the Eskimos to select better stones, to age ivory for durability and to clean skins to rid them of odor.

Houston says there is no doubt the Eskimo has benefitted and will benefit still more in the future. In the HBC quarterly, The Beaver, he wrote:

"It is his (the Eskimo's) first step into industry. Government relief in these areas is being reduced and the natives are obviously well pleased with their new earning power."

BEAR HUNTER—It is in carvings such as these that the Eskimo does his best work, for nobody could be more familiar with the subject. Even in carvings the Eskimo makes sure the subject is well bundled against the cold. The bear possibly is poised over a hole in the ice, going fishing.—(CP Photo).

EYES POPPING—The hunter huffs and he puffs in this Eskimo carving, blowing up a seal bladder to be used as a float at the end of his harpoon line. Thousands of such carvings are being turned out by Canada's Eskimos, mirroring everyday happenings in their Arctic home. The slightly popeyes are inlaid ivory.—(CP Photo).

ARCTIC MOTHER—This family-type sculpture was done by an Eskimo in Canada's north and was carved with primitive tools from flinty grey stone. A market is opening up for this top-of-the-world art, giving the Eskimo a new income. —(CP Photo).

Something-For-Nothing Attitude Worries CBC

OTTAWA (CP) — Broadcasters are becoming concerned about the "something-for-nothing" attitude resulting from give-away shows and are discussing what steps to take.

A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, said Tuesday in an interview that the CBC and representatives of the private broadcasters will meet here sometime next month to discuss the matter.

T. J. Allard, executive vice-president of the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, said this is a problem that is giving broadcasters increasing concern.

GONE TOO FAR

"We have had consultations with the CBC in the past about give-away shows. The something-for-nothing philosophy has gone far too far in many phases of our society.

"It isn't exclusively a broadcasting problem but where we can we hope to lessen its ill effects."

Mr. Dunton said the CBC has been holding similar discussions with advertising agencies.

Both he and Mr. Allard said it is unlikely that any steps will be taken except by mutual agreement among the parties concerned.

Senator Blocks Appointment Of Chief Justice

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — The congressional row over the appointment of Chief Justice Earl Warren is the latest of a series of political disputes based on the time-honored doctrine of separation of powers in the government of the United States.

The doctrine, which sets up three separate and independent branches of government, is one of the most widely respected ingredients of the U.S. constitution, against which the most forceful presidents and legislators seldom prevail.

It defines and limits the powers of the three branches—the executive, headed by the president and personally responsible to him; the two chambers of Congress forming the legislative branch and responsible directly to the people; and the judiciary, headed by a chief justice appointed by the president and subject to congressional confirmation.

Normally a chief justice would not assume office until Congress has ratified his nomination, a procedure which usually is little more than a formality.

EMERGENCY APPOINTMENT

But Warren was named by Ptesident Eisenhower to fill the office temporarily when he precedessor, Fred Vinson, died several months before Congress was due to sit.

Confirmation of the appointment ran into violent opposition from Senator William Langer, a veteran North Dakota Republican who heads the Senate's judiciary subcommittee and has sworn to battle every Eisenhower appointment because he complains he should have been consulted in the naming of several postmasters in his home state.

Consequently Warren is attempting to fill his independent role as the highest judicial officer in the land while his qualifications still are under congressional debate.

A number of public figures of both political parties fear the continuing veto power of Congress over Warren's appointment and the violence of the attacks against him may hamper the chief justice in his functions and may hold up the high office itself to public distrust.

Senator Langer aroused widespread indignation when he released a list of uneyaluated charges which he said had been sent to the sub-committee by various persons. They accused the chief justice of a number of offences, including adherence to the Communist party line, consorting with "a notorious liquor lobbyist."

ACCUSERS NOT CHECKED

Langer admitted that the subcommittee staff had not even checked the names and addresses of Warren's accusers.

Prompted by the vigorous and widespread disapproval of Langer's action, the sub-committee hastily produced a favorable report on Warren and sent the nomination to the full judiciary committee for consideration. There appeared little prospect of further serious opposition to the appointment.

It was the second time in little more than a week that invoking of the separation of powers gave Congress pause in a projected action. The president fought on the same issue against a constitutional amendment proposed by Senator John Bricker (Rep. Ohio) which would have limited his power to make agreements with foreign powers without prior consultation with Congress.

The amendment currently is stalled while congressional leaders seek a compromise agreeable to both the president and the senator.

Former president Truman invoked the doctrine last November in refusing to accept a subpoena to testify before the Senate's un-American activities committee. The committee accepted his argument that a president is not accountable to Congress for his activities, and withdrew the subpoena.

After receiving his degree in economics at the University of Hamburg, Dr. Gerwin entered the newspaper world and in England, represented German newspapers as foreign correspondent.

In Canada, he looks after press and cultural affairs at the embassy. Last fall he accompanied a group of Canadian journalists who visited Germany and gained recent impressions of the recovery of Western Germany and Berlin.

Find Ottawa Mayor Doesn't Mince Words

OTTAWA (CP) — When Mayor Charlotte Whitton says "guts" that's just what she means—G-U-T-S.

At a board of control meeting Tuesday, she said certain groups in the capital are trying to undermine the civic department of recreation by "confounded grapevine gossiping."

"They haven't got the guts to come out in the open and make charges," Miss Whitton said.

"You mean intestinal fortitude," suggested Controller Paul Tardif.

"No I don't," replied the mayor. "I mean guts—the good old-fashioned Anglo-Saxon word."

Drew Suggests Disavowal Of Union Leader Banks

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Drew Tuesday suggested that the government should disavow Hal C. Banks, Montreal union leader, as Canadian delegate to an International Labor Organization meeting at Geneva.

Mr. Drew made the comment in the Commons as Progressive Conservatives renewed questioning of the appointment of Mr. Banks, Canadian director of the Seafarers' International Union (AFL-TLC) to the ILO meeting.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, Hamilton West, and PC labor spokesman, described him as a United States citizen with a record of court convictions in Canada and the U.S.

SHOULD ACT AT ONCE

Mr. Drew said: "It is possible the Canadian government should disavow this man immediately if information in their hands is disclosed."

Tuesday's questioning followed a number of questions raised at Monday's Commons sitting. At that time Labor Minister Gregi said that in Mr. Banks' appoint ment to the ILO conference on in land transport the recommenda tion of a national labor organizatio had been passed to the ILO.

(Mr. Banks was nominated by the Trades and Labor Congress o Canada.)

Uniform Rules For Draft Horses Planned

TORONTO (CP)—Provision of uniform classifications for draft horses at horse shows and agricultural fairs throughout Canada was given tentative approval Tuesday by an advisory meeting of the Canadian Horse Shows Association.

"Discussion will be initiated with national breeding associations for belgians, clydes and percherons before composing the requirements to be embodied in the rule book," said CHSA President H. J. Price.

Union Sends Protest Letter

HAMILTON (CP) — Local 504, United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers has sent a letter of protest to John W. Henley, manager of industrial relations at Westinghouse.

The protest concerns the company's plan to transfer the radio and electronics division of the company to Brantford.

The letter says the move to Brantford was first mooted "long before any substantial bumping had taken place." The company has given as a reason for the move the constant changes in personnel in the radio division through "bumping" among employees of the various Westinghouse plants in Hamilton.

Urging that the company reconsider the matter as soon as possible, the union proposes a meeting between the company and a committee of the union to go into the matter.

Railroad Bill Receives Third Reading

The House of Commons in Ottawa on Tuesday gave final approval to a private bill giving the Canadian Pacific Railway permission to build a 15-mile line between Havelock and the mine site of American Nepheline Limited at Nepthon. The Senate gave its approval earlier.

George McIlraith, (L-Ottawa west) said during clause-by-clause study of the bill that the CPR and the mining firm each will pay half the cost of building the line.

The company's product, used in the manufacture of glass and pottery, at present is trucked from the mine to Lakefield, 24 miles away. The mine site is north of Havelock, a CPR divisional point.

Parliamentary approval is required for construction of railway lines more than six miles in length.

Filtration Plant New Mains Completed In '53

A $300,000 addition to the filtration plant increased capacity by 50 per cent, according to the annual report of the water works department of the Peterborough Utilities Commission.

A second major project in 1953, a water main to feed the area east of the Locks bridge on Lansdowne St., opened the way for consumer growth in an area that has long been dormant.

Assets of the plant itself have increased by $321,700 to a total of $2,08[illegible]600 through the extension of the plant. Assets of the whole department total $2,608,408.81. But against this figure is the debenture debt still owing of $1,010,104.66 and a depreciation reserve fund of $153,863.75 building up to replace equipment as it wears out and needs replacement. These two deductions leave net assets of $1,444,440.40.

Operating expenses have increased $5,191.51 to the sum of $183,240.58.

Each Peterborough resident used an average of 120 gallons of water in 1953. This works out to total consumption of 1,740,302,000 gallons. On November 11 the first water passed through the filtration plant extension for city consumption.

The water works department has managed to maintain its margin of operating profit with no increase in rates since 1948, although it has been suggested that an increase may be forth coming. Howard Powell, general manager of the PUC has suggested that a small increase may be inevitable.

During the year 395 new water services were laid, 59 were relaid, 34 were repaired and 13 hydrants installed. New water distribution systems were installed in the Queen Elizabeth, Cordach and Ephgrave subdivisions. A water main was run to Downer's Corners, this turned on December 7.

Roosevelt To Pay $1,435 Support

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—James Roosevelt, pictured by his estranged wife, Romelle, as a philanderer and juggler of finances, was ordered today to pay her $1,435 a month temporary support.

She had asked $3,500. He had said his income is only about $2,200.

The sum is to support her and their three young children pending trial of their separate maintenance suits. In hers, Mrs. Roosevelt accused her husband of multiple adultery. Roosevelt has charged mental cruelty.

Superior judge Kurtz Kaufman ordered the eldest son of the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt to pay $3,500 on account for attorney's fees and $850 court costs.

Youths Charged Giving Liquor To Three Girls

Three Peterborough youths were charged in court today with having given liquor to three girls who were minors. They were remanded, each on $1,000 bail, to appear on March 2.

Those charged were Gary Hegadoren, 18, Western Ave., David Chambo, 21, Ford St., and Manley Clark, 22, Monaghan Rd.

Asking for $1,000 bail, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said that he would be doing less than his duty if he were not to ask for the maximum sentence (three months imprisonment) if the men were convicted. He added that he regarded the circumstances surrounding the charges in a very serious light.

Care, Handling Of Dog Shown

A cocker spaniel, "Honey", owned by Mis Phyllis Denne, was a willing guinea pig during a lecture and demonstration by F. J. Harnden at a meeting of the Peterborough Humane Society on Tuesday evening.

The administring of medicine in pills and liquid form, bandaging and handling, general care and tips on feeding and bathing found "Honey" the amiable patient. The speaker was introduced by Fred Holmes and thanked by F. D. Kerr, Q.C.

The hundred members present at the meeting were entertained at the earlier part of the program with the singing of "The Lord's Prayer" by Roy Bacon and a duet "Bless this House" by Leslie Mann and Mr. Bacon; Lorraine Bacon accompanied both numbers and Mrs. W. A. Young thanked the singers.

Following the guest speaker, Betty Evans, recent Kiwanis Festival winner, played two selections and was thanked on behalf of the society by Mrs. C. N. Geale. Junior members of the audience engaged in a short sing-song before refreshments were served. Miss Mabel Collins was in charge of the silver collection, June Fraser, decorations, and the meeting was under the chairmanship of president Mrs. S. R. Hamilton.

Singers Take One First Other Prizes At Festival

PCVS entries took a first and two seconds at the Kiwanis Music Festival in Toronto, Tuesday and a 24-girl choir from Kenner Collegiate placed fourth out of the six entries in the open choir event. The only Peterborough first was taken by PCVS girls' chorus three-part harmony, open, in which three other groups entered. On the two test pieces, "Peterkin Spray" (Whitehead) and "Thou Art So Like a Flower" (Blackford), the PCVS chorus scored an aggregate of 166 points, four more than the nearest competitor. A Kiwanis shield was won by the PCVS group in this class for the second consecutive year.

In the girls' triple and double trio class, PCVS placed second, three and four points respectively less than the Woodbridge Queen Anne singers.

The Kenner Collegiate girls' choir placed fourth in the girls' chorus, three-part harmony class with an aggregate of 169, or seven points less than the winning Riverdale Collegiate Institute. The Kenner choir was first organized last September, by director Arthur Vogt, and considering that the girls are picked from grades 9, 10, and 11, only, he feels they were "very successful."

Although the PCVS entries, under the direction of M. J. Curtis, were successful in the events mentioned, they placed sixth in the girls' chorus, three-part harmony open.

GOOD TONE

Frank Odell adjudicator said of the PCVS choral club: "The tone quality was very pleasing and the balance of the parts good. The words came out well and in a flowing manner, but there could be more character revealed through the words. Both test pieces were treated in a most musical way."

"It was a very competent performance," said adjudicator Ronold Biggs of the PCVS choral club. "The choir had too much the same level of tone; it should have more flexibility. Opportunities for grace and charm in some passages were missed. In the piece of the club's choice (Schubert's Serenade), it is usual to conceive of this in a melodic way, rather then in a harmonic arrangement of voices. The second sopranos and the altos, for this reason, were sometimes too heavy giving a thickness of quality.

Boards Hold Joint Meeting

A joint meeting of the Peterborough board of education and the district high school board was held on Tuesday evening at the Kenner collegiate, Charles H. Huffman chairman of the Peterborough board presided and the meeting followed dinner served in the cafeteria.

This joint dinner meeting is an annual affair when the two boards discuss matters that are mutual to both. The district board is in charge of the secondary education for children in Ennismore, North Monaghan, South Monaghan and parts of Otonabee, Smith, Cavan and Douro townships. While this board has not a school, it operates by purchasing education for its pupils from the Peterborough board. Charles Kitney, the county representative on the Peterborough board, is chairman of the district board.

Present also were the principals of the two schools, C. S. Browne of the PCVS and Dr. Eldon Ray of Kenner, B. W. Switzer, head of the industrial arts department of the PCVS and H. A. Toole, head of the commercial department.

Discussion followed along a wide range of subjects but principally centred on the advisability of teaching agricultural science at the PCVS and Kenner and the extending of the night school course in order that it would become more attractive to a greater number of rural residents.

Immediately following the joint meeting the two boards held separate sessions. The Peterborough board approved the acceptance of the tender of the Eastwood Construction Co. to build the addition to the Grove School and the asking city council to issue debentures for $85,000 to finance the same.

236 Mining Claims Filed For Centre Lake Area As Big Uranium Push Starts

Recorder's Office In Queen's Park Reports Record Day For Territory In Haliburton, Peterborough Counties

The mining recorder at Queen's Park is dusting off his geological maps of south-eastern Ontario these days as prospectors crowd his counters to record mining claims in the Bancroft, Haliburton and Peterborough areas. On Monday 235 claims were recorded which, in addition to the heavy staking in these areas since Christmas, is proving this once-barren granite section might have uranium possibilities of great importance.

STARTED IN 1952

It all started in July, 1952, when two Peterborough men, Garnet Burns and Bob Steele, staked a ridge of likely-looking ground at Centre lake, north of Paudash lake. Ventures Limited acquired the ground, explored it by diamond drill and underground workings, and estimated that they will have about one million tons of ore in place worth $14.50 per ton. Tied onto their ground on the north, Macassa Mines have explored an equally interesting deposit of uranium which is almost certain to make another mine.

Newkirk Mining corporation conducted an aerial survey throughout late summer and fall of last year until freeze-up. Their scintillometers revealed unknown anomaly patterns of ore in places and a large blanket-staking rush resulted during Christmas week. Many major mining companies drew veteran prospectors from Yellowknife and Bathurst, N.B., who staked far and wide and checked their ground with geiger counters. They already have revealed some interesting showings and, when the snow disappears and ground is exposed and sifted down further, many new deposits may show up.

Aside from the Ventures and Macassa showins Faraday Uranium mines in the vicinity of Bow lake has explored some of the most spectacular deposits to date. Three diamond drills are currently working on two ore bodies, 320 and 1,200 feet long respectively. These are giving averages of $18.70 ore across 28 feet width and $6.10 across 7 feet. It is believed by company officials that arrangements can be made for a better price along the lines negotiated by other prospective producers.

14 DRILLS WORKING

Fourteen diamond drills are reported to be working in the general area at the present time. This ground stretches from Kinmount on the Victoria-Peterborough county border on the west, east of Bow lake in North Hastings county and slices south into Peterborough county as far down as Burleigh township.

Where crown land could not be staked outright there have been many square miles of marginal farms leased for the mineral wealth under them. Some of the most active mining companies, besides those already mentioned are Croft, Fab Metals, Aumacho River, Dyno, Strategic Minerals and Rare Earth Minerals.

Judges Start Choosing Stories, Pictures

TORONTO (CP)—News stories, pictures, editorials and cartoons produced by Canadian newspaper men and women now are in the hands of judges who will name national newspaper awards winners for 1953.

Winners of seven $400 prizes will probably be announced early in April.

Contestants from 38 Canadian newspapers and three news services submitted work, an increase of six over the previous year. The awards were originated five years ago by the Toronto men's press club.

Continuance of the awards, originally made possible by financial support from the late George McCullagh, now is assured through a fund to which numerous newspapers contribute.

4 Drivers Fined

Four drivers were convicted of minor parking offences by Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, in court today. In each case the fine was $5, costs $2.50.

Fined were John N. Scott, Oshawa, Gerald W. Ferguson, Toronto, for parking in a prohibited zone, and Albert Fentum, Lindsay and Anco Ltd. of Canada, Cooksville, for overtime parking.

Jury Considers Damage Suit Result Of Crash

The jury retired at 11 a.m. today in the damage action brought by Ralph Empey., 25-year-old Eldorado laborer, against Kenneth G Casselman, of Madoc, and his employer, Stocklosar Marble Quarries of Eldorado, as well as Margaret Stocklosar, executrix of her late husband's estate.

Empey was driving a half-ton pickup truck on a Hastings county road, half a mile north of Malone, on Jan. 7, 1953. He came into collision with a dump truck on a sharp bend in the road, driven by Casselman, an employee of Stocklosar Marble Quarries.

Empey was trapped in his damaged vehicle and the steering wheel had to be cut off before he could be removed. He received a broken thigh bone, a broken kneecap which was later removed, and other leg injuries. He was in Belleville hospital for three weeks.

The charge to the jury was given by Mr. Justice R. I. Ferguson, the presiding judge.

Addresses to the jury were given Tuesday afternoon by T. J. Carley acting for Casselman and W. J. A. Fair, representing the plaintiff.

You can have "all the sympathy in the world" for the plaintiff, said Mr. Carley, without "extracting damages from an innocent man." He said that the parallel position of the vehicles after the accident showed that the negligence in the case was the plaintiff's.

CHARGES SPEED

Mr. Carley contended that Empey did not apply his brakes correctly for slippery driving conditions and was, in any case, travelling too fast to make a turn.

(Empey was going north and planning to turn east, while Casselman was travelling west, planning to turn south. The collision occurred at the intersection.)

For the plaintiff, Mr. Fair stressed the point that there is a sign at the corner where Casselman approaches which says "Dangerous Intersection." He suggested that the defendant was not exercising a reasonable degree of caution. Mr. Fair also wondered how Casselman could have briefly seen the other truck through a gap by the road, 70 feet from the intersection if he was keeping his eyes on the road. Casselman had testified to both.

During the afternoon Mr. Carley called Donald Parks of Madoc, a mechanic. Parks testified that he found the Casselman car extensively damaged on the right side. Clifford Deline of Malone testified that he found the Casselman truck almost entirely off the road and around almost 180 degrees to face south east by east., with the Empey truck parallel and facing northwest.

For a good part of the afternoon Casselman was on the stand in his own defence. At one point Mr. Fair said (after Casselman had testified he didn't know how badly damaged the Empey truck was) "You weren't paying much attention to your driving either, eh?" Casselman replied: "That's your idea, not mine."

While the defence was presenting its case, the plaintiff got permission to call the accountant of the Deloro Mine where Empey still works. Mr. Carley brought out that Empey was off work from January 7, 1953 to the beginning of September and is now making more money than he did before the accident.

Pathologist Testifies CWAC Suffered 7 Stab Wounds Before Death In Sadistic Attack

CORNWALL (CP)—Seven stab wounds from a thin double-edged knife in the nude body of an attractive dark-haired girl were described Tuesday by a pathologist at the murder trial of 2nd Lieut. Peter Ernest Balcombe.

Dr. William D. Hay of Kingston gave autopsy findings in the slaying last October of Marie Anne Carrier, 20-year-old CWAC reserve army sergeant from Bienville, Que. whose body was found in a grassy ditch 35 miles west of here Oct. 15.

Other witnesses during the second day of the trial of the army officer testified that Balcombe owned a stiletto and that he had been advised to stop seeing the girl because he was married.

In the hushed, crowded courtroom, Dr. Hay listed the wounds in the order he believes they were inflicted.

First were two minor cuts across the trunk below the breast. Next was a deep stomach wound which Dr. Hay, provincial regional pathologist and associate professor of pathology at Queen's University, thought was suffered at least half an hour before the girl died.

Then came two chest wounds aimed at the heart. One appeared to have been made with a sawing motion.

A sixth thrust pierced the left eyeball and penetrated into the base of the skull. The seventh was a 20-inch cut from the lowest part of the trunk up the centre of the body to the chest, following a line generally used by medical men starting an autopsy.

On the girl's throat were two bruises. Dr. Hay said they were caused by force sufficient to keep the girl from crying out but not strong enough to make her unconscious or kill her. He said they could have been made by a nylon stocking if the seam were next the skin.

The girl's eyes were dilated more widely than the veteran pathologist had ever before seen in anyone living or dead.

Dr. Hay said that in his opinion the dilation was caused by a combination of darkness, strangulation, struggling and fear.

"Profound fear, especially," he added.

He said that before he performed the post mortem, he removed from one finger of the girl's left hand a gold ring with a clear gem and the jeweller's marking "10K LA."

He identified a ring shown him in court and it was entered as an exhibit.

The doctor said the girl appeared not to have been molested sexually. He said she appeared to be a virgin.

Lt.-Col. Val Leduc, commanding officer of the 4th Canadian Guards to which Balcombe was attached, said he asked Balcombe last March 7 to stop seeing Miss Carrier. He said he told Balcombe that, as a married man, he should not go out with the young woman who had been described to him as a good girl from a good family.

The colonel said his headquarters had charge of the CWAC units in the area. Miss Carrier was attached to one of the units as a reserve force sergeant.

The colonel said that Oct. 16, after hearing that the girl was missing, he telephoned Balcombe's father-in-law's home at Komoka, near London, Ont., where Balcombe had left word he could be reached while on leave.

Col. Leduc said Balcombe himself answered the phone, said he did not know where the girl was, and said he last saw her two nights previously in Quebec City.

Capt. C. V. Carlson, commander of Balcombe's company, said that during army training exercises at Wainwright camp in Alberta last June he saw Balcombe carrying two knives, one a hunting knife and the other a double-edged stiletto. He said both knives were missing from Balcombe's kit when his belongings were gathered and listed for safekeeping after his arrest.

Missed Fortune By Neglecting To Record 15 Claims Staked

GERALDTON (CP)—Fred Bergquist says he thinks he missed a fortune by neglecting to record 15 claims he staked last spring in the heart of the Manitouwadge copper discovery.

But the raw-boned, 200-pound Swede, reputed to be one of the strongest men in the north, grinned about it this week as he yarned in a Geraldton hotel.

Roy Barker, William Dawidowich and John Forster of Geraldton flew into the Manitouwadge area in Forster's little plane last May and collected samples which assayed richly for copper but they did not stake any claims.

When the three men flew back again, they found that Bergquist and his partner, Windy Sam Pretulac, whose homes are in Fort William, had staked it solidly without knowing the Geraldton men had been there first.

LOOKING FOR NICKEL

"Me and Windy Sam were looking for nickel," Bergquist related. "We looked at the basic rocks. We didn't pay any attention to the acidic rocks that had the copper. That was our mistake. That was our bad luck."

The Geraldton men waited to see whether Bergquist and Pretulac would record the claims at the Port Arthur mines office within the 30-day limit.

"I intended to record," Bergquist said. "I made out the papers and I kept them with me a long time. But there was $75 recording fees to pay. Finally I threw the papers in the stove."

RESTAKED GROUND

As soon as the 30 days were up, Barber, Dawidowich and Forster moved in and restaked the ground. Today they hold 100,000 shares apiece of Geco, valued at about $12 a share, plus production royalties amounting to 15 cents a ton.

"But Windy Sam and me did all right," said Bergquist. "We came back in September and got Lunecho."

From that discovery in the same general area, both partners are reported to have done well in cash and stock.

Windy Sam, an ex-bushman, is on his way to Florida for a holiday.

PC Party Member Defends Ontario Highway Stand

TORONTO (CP)—A young Toronto lawyer strongly criticized Liberal house leader Farquhar Oliver Tuesday in defence of the Ontario government's stand on alleged highways irregularities.

Robert MacAulay, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Riverdale, termed it "despicable" that Mr. Oliver should demand a royal commission to investigate the alleged irregularities when the Dominion government, in probing the Petawawa army camp issue, appointed a private firm to conduct the investigation and referred the question to the Commons' defence expenditures committee.

The provincial government commissioned a similar private firm to probe the highways question and the matter was referred to the public accounts committee over opposition protests.

"Why doesn't my honorable friend try to stop sucking and whistling in the same breath," Mr. MacAulay said in the legislature. "The issue is merely a hiccup on the breath of progress."

Defending Ontario's surplus during the last fiscal year, Mr MacAulay said if the surplus was overtaxation in Ontario, as indicated by Mr. Oliver, "then it should be overtaxation in Ottawa."

He criticized the proposed federal housing plan and called for lower interest rates, down payments and a longer amortization period.

"The only thing that will be any higher in the federal plan that will meet with our approval will be the smell that surrounds it."

In his first major address of the current session, W. J. Grummett, CCF house leader, called for the setting up of a public utility commission to handle the distribution of natural gas from the proposed pipeline from Alberta, and urged an immediate start by Canada on the St. Lawrence seaway. He also asked for increased salaries for civil servants, particularly provincial police, and the rehabilitation of wasted farm lands.

W. E. Brandon (PC—York West) asked for a revision of the assessment act and a greater contribution towards children's aid costs.

The throne speech debate will continue today.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber (Mother of 5)

What a wonderful day it is when baby makes the first attempt to finger-feed himself. Of course it's messy! But think of the fun he's having trying to gain his independence . . . of the real strides he's making in learning hand-to-mouth coordination. A plastic bib will keep the dribbles from his clothes . . . sheet plastic under baby's high chair will save the floor from stains and spills.

• • •

What a wonderful day, too, when baby graduates from strained to junior or chewing foods! When the first smattering of teeth come through, both you and baby will appreciate Gerber's Junior Foods. For the tender, minced texture gives baby something to get those new little teeth into! (The bite-size bits really encourage chewing.) And the true-flavor, natural-color goodness which makes Gerber's, Strained Foods so appealing, helps to keep junior's appetite perked up.

• • •

First steps dept. Once your active little sprout starts getting the wanderlust, you can save him a few tumbles (especially on the kitchen floor) if you lightly sandpaper the soles of his first hard-soled shoes.

• • •

Five heavenly varieties of luscious sun-ripened fruits . . . processed to preserve the true-to-nature colors and flavors baby likes. Good eating galore is in store for your teething toddler when you serve Gerber's Junior Fruits. Nice "as is"—swell for a cereal topping or as a spread on bread for an older child.

• • •

Send for this handy baby bib! Made of vinylite plastic with "catchall" bottom, edged in pink and blue. Wonderful for saving baby's clothes from mealtime spills. Just send either 6 Gerber's can labels or 3 Gerber's box tops to Mrs. Dan Gerber, Box 17, Toronto 18, Canada.

Alberta Plan Eases Shortage Of Teachers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Alberta government has worked out a plan to overcome a teacher shortage by the time the schools reopen for the fall term.

Education Minister Anders Aalborg described in the Alberta legislature Tuesday legislation the government plans to introduce later this session.

He said the government proposes to issue permanent teaching certificates after a year of training and will introduce a six-week course to qualify Grade 12 graduates for a "student teacher" rating which will enable them to teach for a year in classrooms that would otherwise be without teachers.

Alberta now is short of 157 teachers, as against 220 last fall and a high of 814 in September, 1946, Mr. Aalborg said. He added that he does not think the proposals will lower teaching standards and that he considers the change "justified under the circumstances."

A plea for the Saskatchewan government to spend more than $1,000,000 on the building of market roads was made in the legislature at Regina by John Horsman, Liberal member for Wilkie. He said in throne speech debate that, if the government would gravel roads municipalities would each build 10 miles a year.

The Manitoba legislature continued debate on a bill to permit oleomargarine sold in the province to be a deeper yellow than at present. F. L. Jobin, Liberal-Progressive member for The Pas, said too many members are concerned with the interests of the dairy industry and too few with the interests of the people of Manitoba as a whole.

Works Minister Romeo Lorrain of Quebec said a proposed bridge between Fort Chambly and Village Richelieu on the Montreal-Sherbrooke highway will cost between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000. It would replace a 50-year-old span over the Richelieu river.

Liberal leader A. C. Taylor, opening throne speech debate in the New Brunswick legislature, criticized the Progressive Conservative administration for not making a more equitable distribution of federal grants. He also said the throne speech contained no promise of anything substantial to improve the lot of farmers.

The Nova Scotia Legislature, scheduled to open today, faced the task of choosing a new speaker. The former speaker, Gordon Romkey, was defeated in last June's election in which Premier Angus L. Macdonald's Liberals were returned.

Former Lawyer Charged With Fraud

BELFAST (CP) — John Gerard McQuillan, former Belfast lawyer arrested in British Columbia, was charged Tuesday with fraudulently converting £966 to his own use.

McQuillan, 33, made no answer to the charge and was remanded in custody till March 1. He had been brought back from Vancouver by an officer of the Royal Ulster Constabulary and is alleged to have embezzled funds entrusted to him by a client.

No Dodging

OSLO (CP)—The Norwegian Supreme Court in a test case has ruled that youths of military service age are obliged to call for registered draft letters and must report for service as soon as possible.

Alexander To Open Vancouver Games

LONDON (CP) — Field Marshal Earl Alexander, British defence minister and former Canadian governor-general, will open the British Empire Games at Vancouver July 30, it was announced Tuesday.

A defence ministry spokesman said Lord Alexander has cabled games officials accepting their invitation to preside at the opening ceremonies.

It was later announced that he will be accompanied on the Canadian trip by Lady Alexander.

Record Number Apply For Divorce Action

OTTAWA (CP)—A record number of Canadians applied to Parliament for divorce at this session.

Senator A. W. Roebuck, chairman of the Senate's divorce committee, said 462 applications were filed by residents of Quebec and Newfoundland, the only provinces without divorce courts.

Work hasn't been completed on parliamentary divorces, he said. Thirteen have been withdrawn, 291 recommended for parliamentary approval and two rejected. About 100 remain to be heard and another 40-odd will not be heard at this session.

Landlord Acquitted

TORONTO (CP)—William Arthur Byrnes, 26-year-old landlord, was acquitted by senior county judge Robert Forsyth Tuesday of wounding a tenant following a stabbing incident at his home Aug. 24. Byrnes said the tenant fell against the knife he was holding for protection.

Two Policemen Describe Mine Shooting

COCHRANE (CP)—Two provincial police officers said Tuesday bullets whistled past their heads after they leaped from ambush and surprised two men on the property of the Broulan Reef gold mine near Timmins the night of last Sept. 2.

Constables M. J. Pickens and David Plaunt, both of the Timmins detachment, were among police witnesses who testified today at the start of the trial of Patrick Walsh and Alphonse Norkum on five charges arising from the incident at the mine, where members of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) were on strike.

Walsh, 26-year-old union official and McIntyre mine employee, and Norkum, 32-year-old former Paymaster miner, are on trial on charges of attempted murder, shooting with intent to maim four police officers, shooting with intent to prevent lawful apprehension, attempted arson at the Broulan Reef headframe and possession of offensive weapons. They pleaded not guilty to all the charges.

A grand jury Monday brought in a true bill requiring them to stand trial. The trial started Tuesday before a jury that included two gold miners and two women.

Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan of the Ontario Supreme Court rejected a request by defence counsel G. Arthur Martin of Toronto for dismissal of the attempted murder charge. Mr. Martin argued the charge was improper since it alleged four offences, as four persons were involved.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Homemade Hot Rolls

Tomorrow Lilian F.'s letter will be printed. In it one of the recipes she asks for is "buns (with yeast) and muffins using graham flour."

Another reader, some time ago, complained that the smell and taste of yeast was so strong in her breads that she couldn't enjoy making or eating yeast-raised breads.

Since then I've been using only 1 package of granular yeast in all of my yeast products. They require a little longer to rise, but I can detect no taste or smell of yeast in them.

I hope that reader, whose name I cannot recall, and Lilian like this recipe for yeast rolls as well as my crowd did.

✧ ✧ ✧

(yeast)

Into the measuring cup measure 1 teaspoon sugar; fill to ½ cup mark with lukewarm water. Sprinkle 1 package granular yeast in. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir just a little. Sift all-purpose flour and measure 4 cups plus 2 tablespoons. In large mixing bowl beat together ¼ or 1/3 cup sugar, ½ cup SOFT shortening, 1 teaspoon salt and 2 eggs until blended and smooth, using rotary beater if desired. To this add ¼ cup lukewarm milk. After yeast has soaked 10 minutes and has been stirred just a little, add it, and the sifted measured flour. Beat with spoon to mix. Scrape dough down from sides of bowl, cover bowl with slightly dampened cloth, then a plate and let rise until doubled in bulk — dough will be almost smooth on top. Scrape out onto fairly generously floured board. What you do with the dough now is a matter of choice. I shaped mine into crescents and butterflies. For the Crescents divide dough in half and roll out one half to a 12-inch circle about ¼-inch thick. Spread with soft butter. Cut into 16 pie-shaped pieces. Beginning at the rounded edge roll each piece up, and place on buttered pan, point underneath — leaving at least 1 inch space between each roll. For Butterfly Buns roll out second half of dough to ⅛-inch thickness. Spread with soft butter and roll up like a jelly rol. Cut into 2-inch pieces. With the handle of your wooden spoon make a deep depression in the middle of each roll to make it roughly a butterfly. Place 1 inch apart on buttered pan. Cover pans of buns with doubled towel and let rise until doubled — about 2 hours at 75 deg. Fahr. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. about 12 minutes.

✧ ✧ ✧

GRAHAM MUFFINS

(bakingpowder)

Butter and flour lightly your muffin tins and set oven at 400 deg. Fahr. before starting for this mix must be handled quickly. Sift graham flour, adding residue bran in sifter to sifted flour. Measure 1½ cups plus 2 tablespoons. Sift bread or all-purpose flour and measure ½ cup and add it to sifted graham flour in sifter with 3 teaspoons baking powder (not double acting) and ½ teaspoon salt. Cream ¼ cup soft butter or margarine or vegetable shortening until light then add 1/3 cup sugar beating and creaming well, then 1 large egg and beat in until light. Add ½ cup lukewarm milk all at once, beat just a little, then sift dry ingredients over batter, and stir only until they all appear moist. Turn at once into greased muffin tins, filling ¾ full, and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for medium small muffins; 20 minutes for large, raising heat to 475 deg. for last 5 minutes. When done turn out at once.

✧ ✧ ✧

NOTE: If desired ¼ cup steamed and dried raisins may be folded into the batter with the dry ingredients — but do this last stirring quickly.

Urge More Husbands Teach Wives ABC's Of Finance

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP)—If more husbands taught their wives the ABCs of finance there would be fewer divorces, in the opinion of Margaret E. Kennedy, one of the few women in active partnership in a New York stock exchange firm.

"I'm constantly amazed," says this pink-cheeked petticoat tycoon, "at the number of otherwise intelligent, capable women who haven't the faintest idea where the family money comes from, how much there is of it, or what they would do if their husbands suddenly dropped dead."

Mrs. Kennedy, a young and feminine-looking widow and mother of two children, has established many financial "firsts" for women. She was the first woman account executive of the investment counsel firm of Van Sturm and Towne, first woman to be appointed a vice-president of a large mutual fund sponsor and several years ago became the first woman wholesaler of mutual funds when she formed her own firm, Margaret Kennedy Co.

Last year she was admitted as an active general partner in the stock exchange firm of Seligman, Lubetkin and Co.

KNOW NOT PLANNING

A specialist in finance management, Mrs. Kennedy makes frequest lecture tours explaining her "woman's dollar" program. She explains:

"This all came about when I realized the awful paradox that, although women spend most of the family money, they often know little about the family's future planning, and aren't hep to the best ways of investing for the future."

As an illustration, Mrs. Kennedy tells of the wife of a wealthy and successful business man who runs a perfectly appointed home, shops wisely for herself and her children, is poised, charming and informed on all current world events, who recently said:

HOW MUCH IS $1,000

"Tell me, Margaret, how much is $1,000? I honestly wouldn't know. I know how much $100 is, because if my husband gave me that much to go shopping, I'd know what it would buy. But I don't think I've ever seen $1,000 in cash."

Mrs. Kennedy says:

"There are too many men who say to their wives—'Go ahead and buy what you want; I'll pay for it.' Often the wives have no idea how much the family can afford to spend, whether their husbands have unlimited funds or whether they are on the edge of bankruptcy."

Sew Seams To Last The Garment's Life

More important than sewing a fine seam is sewing a strong one. This means that sewing thread should be at least as strong as the fibre in the fabric. Then, seams and hems will last for the life of the garmet.

Nylon garments sewn with nylon thread will give better satisfaction because the thread and the fabric are equal in strength. By matching thread to fabric, there is little danger of strong nylon fibres cutting weaker threads and causing seams to pop. Nylon thread also dries at the same rate as nylon fabrics. This eliminates the possibility of mildew and deterioration if the thread happens to be still damp when the garment is stored.

There are a few tips home sewers can pick up from garment manufacturers. An increasing number of Canadian firms are using nylon thread on all types of fabrics to reduce the number of returns due to seam failures. Size for size, nylon thread is three times as strong as the thread most of them used in the past, and is between three and four times more elastic. This elasticity, they found, prevents seams at armholes and other points of strain from splitting open. It gives garments made of stretchy materials, like jersey and crepe, stretchy seams too. The thread's extra strength keeps buttons from falling off and going astray.

Manufacturers have also learned that the semi-transparency of nylon thread cuts down on the number of colors they previously had to stock. Although the thread is available in some 40 colors, it isn't always necessary to spend time and pennies carefully matching spool to fabric.

For instance, a spool of white nylon thread may blend well enough with a pastel fabric to save a trip to the store. Or a left-over spool in one shade of green may match up beautifully with material of a lighter or deeper tone of green.

Nylon thread is different from others and requires slightly different sewing techniques. When sewing by hand, a shorter length of thread will help overcome tangling. Nylon thread should always be cut with a pair of scissors. It can be broken by tugging hard, but this method will stretch the thread and may cause the seam to pucker when the thread relaxes. When using the sewing machine, adjust needle and bobbin threads to low tensions just as the operators of power machines do when they stitch men's suits or women's dresses.

When sewing a stronger seam, the home dress maker usually winds up with a finer one. This is due to the fibre's strength, which permits use of much finer threads.

Irish Designer Hits Top Down-To-Earth Approach

Irish fashion designers, fresh from casting their spell on souhisticated New Yorkers and fashion-conscious Londoners, are eyeing the clothes tastes of Canadian women with some success.

Much of that success is due to internationally - known designer Sybil Connolly, whose Dublin salon every season is a mecca for world fashion experts and buyers.

However, Miss Connolly is not alone. Another designer, Elizabeth James, emerged from a recent London showing to join her at the top of the class and impressed international buyers to the tune of large orders.

A substantial order was placed by a large Montreal department store (Holt Renfrew) with retail outlets across Canada. The store plans to hold the first showing of Miss James' creations in Montreal on March 17 and in Toronto around the same time.

Couturiere James, whose factory is an 18th century house in Cork, turns out four collections a year and has kept up to 60 young Irish women stitching busily for the last 10 years.

Miss James, who maintains she has dedicated her entire life to clothes and fashions, will particularly please those women who believe it's time fashion came down to earth.

It was this down-to-earth approach that earned the young Irish designer so much applause at her recent showing in London. Her belief that comfort comes before all else was not an acquired creda but rather the basic conviction of a designer who has spent her whole life engrossed in her subject.

At 10 years of age she drew little party dresses for the 10-year-old and at 12 took her sister for Sunday walks playing a game called "Describe Your Wedding."

At the London showing of her spring collection, Mrs. James, who specializes in exclusive sportswear, produced exquisitely - cut suits, coats, dresses and jackets of Irish linen, cottons, flannels, Donegal tweed, silk tweed and hand crochet cotton lace.

The suits in heavy Irish linens, tweeds and flannels, have either exaggerated artisan shirts worn wit' tinker ties over short straight skirts, or feminine jackets. The coats are loose for travel, with enormous collars in well-defined handwoven tweeds.

The dresses and jackets consist of the darkest grey flannel and Donegal tweeds.

There are also hand-crocheted dresses with names such as "Acushla" and "Mavourneen", in white and black cotton which attracted large groups of buyers. All spoke very highly of the workmanship.

The editor of "Vanity Fair" wrote she was astounded at the moderate prices for such "exquisite workmanship."

In addition to her strong beliefs about comfort, the Cork designer is not bashful about voicing her convictions on other facets of fashion. Here are a few samples:

It's easy enough to make good clothes when price doesn't matter;

If one dressed to please men, one would wear tight black satin . . . Well, one can't do that now, can one?

One should be able to get in and out of clothes quickly, without scraping off one's make-up;

I don't believe in pockets to keep things in . . . one should have baskets for that.

However, if the reaction of her recent London fashion audience was any criterion, Mrs. James will need pockets in which to carry her press clippings. Or it may take a basket at that!

ALL OUT IN PRINT

A famous Hollywood designer once commented that prints were either terrific or dowdy. Prints, above all, call for beautifully coiffed hair. Try a new lanolin-base lacquer that isn't starchy or drying. Just spray it on and your hair stays lovely.

FASHIONED FOR THE HEAT—In case you're ever in a hot spot, this suit might be just what the doctor ordered. Made of plastic fibres and covered with a special paint, its manufacturers say it can withstand a temperature of 4,240 degrees Fahrenheit. At present, it is being shown to Paris, France, police and military officials.

Infant Baptized At WMS Meeting

HASTINGS (ENS)—The WMS of St. Andrew's church met on Thursday, with Mrs. John McMillan as their hostess.

Rev. T. E. Kennedy baptized David Charles, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McKenney of Hamilton and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. C. Dodd.

A table of sewing and needlework was on display.

The hostess served lunch.

W.A. OF TRINITY

Group 1 of the WA of Trinity United church entertained group 2. Mrs. Leonard Metcalfe was hostess. The president of group 1, Mrs. George Richardson, opened the meeting.

Mrs. Art Beamish, president of group 2, was in charge for the worship service, with Mrs. B. Trotter at the piano. The scripture was read by Mrs. H. Oliver. Mrs. A. Poole had charge of the program. Mrs. C. Oliver gave a reading, "My Sister's Wedding."

Group Discusses Centre & Registry

The Study Group on Civic Affairs meeting Tuesday evening, attended by many new and former members, heard reports of the February meetings of the City Council presented by Mrs. Max Metheral and Mrs. L. R. Groombridge, and of the Board of Education, by Miss M. McIntosh.

The program took the form of a very interesting and profitable wide-open discussion on the Memorial Community Centre, and the Community Nursing Registry. Purpose of the discussion was to air opinions and knowledge in both cases and not to draw conclusions of any kind.

President Mrs. T. J. Carley, presided and minutes were read by secretary Mrs. R. B. McWilliams.

DOROTHY DIX

Mother Wants To Learn About Young Man's Family

DEAR MISS DIX: Just how can I go about getting information in a tactful fashion on the family of my daughter's suitor? They live quite some distance away. Their son is anxious to present our daughter with an engagement ring, but we would like to know something about his background before they get too serious. I want to avoid offending the boy or his family.

Mrs. R. D.

OTHERS FEEL SAME WAY

ANSWER: If you will appreciate the fact that the boy's family is just as anxious to know about you people, you'll find it much easier to approach the problem. They almost certainly are concerned with the same question that that is upsetting you. If you have become very friendly with the young man, it shouldn't be difficult to ask him about his parents, his home, etc. You might say you'd like to see pictures of his folks. If would be quite in order for you to write his mother, suggesting that, since the young people are about to become engaged, you and she should enter into a correspondence to create a more friendly atmosphere all around. I'm sure she'd like to know your reaction to the engagements, as you would be pleased to know hers. If you want further, more complete or more direct information, you might write the clergyman of the boy's church, asking his advice.

Your wish to know more of the boy's background is commendable. A girl in love can scarcely be expected to have a practical view of her romance, yet so much much martial misery could be avoided if a little investigation preceded the nuptials. So many young men leave wives and families in a home town, then go elsewhere to do more wooing. The disillusion suffered by a girl who was too trusting certainly should be avoided if possible. I'm sure your daughter's friend has nothing to hide but what you want is assurance on this point, not guesswork. A pleasant relationship developed between both famflies can forestall most in-law trouble, but it's a wise paretn who recognizes this truth and endeavours to do something about it. Again, congratulations on your sensible attitude.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: There are two men in my life. One has been married before and has three children. He's kind, considerate, does not drink, and is a wonderful father to his youngsters. The other man is now in service but will be home in two months. He drinks a good deal, breaks dates without apology or explanation, and is a chronic liar. Which offers the greater chance of happiness?

DONNA.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Don't marry either, unless you are in love. Don't marry the first man unless you feel up to the responsibility of being a conscientious mother to his children; don't marry the second unless you want to spend a miserable existence as a drunkard's wife.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My dilemma seems to be quite usual these days. Before Ralph left for overseas, I promised to wait. Then Francis came along and I fell in love with him, though I still have a deep regard for Ralph, who will be home in a few weeks. How can I know which one I really love? R. M.

ANSWER: When Ralph comes home, tell him you're not so sure of your love, and ask for time to make up your mind. When a boy has been away a log while, it's difficult for a young girl to remember him in proper perspective. Your feeling for Francis is possibly engendered simply by the fact that he was available. It may take a little while to decide where your affection lies.

FOR "PLANE" SPEAKING — The modern "Aula Magna," main auditorium of Caracas, Venezuela's University City, will be the site of 10th Inter-American Conference starting March 1. Constructed without any internal support, the 3,000-seat auditorium gives all persons an unrestricted view of the stage. The speaker's voice is deflected by the hanging panels and is sent in equal volume to all parts of the auditorium. Each seat has a telephone, and the delegate merely dials the language he desires to get and almost instantly he hears a translation of the speaker's address.

$12,000 Fire Destroys Most Of Bottling Works

COLLINGWOOD (CP) — Loss was estimated at nearly $12,000 in a fire which destroyed a large part of the Gray bottling works in Collingwood today.

Collingwood firemen had difficulty checking the blaze before it could reach a stockpile of carbon dioxide tanks.

Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined.

Have 4-Point Plan To Aid Starving

TORONTO (CP) — A four-point program to help feed the hungry people of the world was outlined today at the annual meeting of the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada.

The board recommended that the Canadian government extend the Colombo plan; that it ship at least 50,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat to needy areas; that the arms program be reduced, if necessary, to pay for the wheat and that the cost of the wheat be spread over the whole of Canada.

The board also criticized gambling in Canada.

Federal experts say that a portion of these applicants already hold jobs of some sort and are looking for better employment.

Papers Using Too Much Uniformity

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—A report by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization says there is a danger of "growing uniformity of thought" in increasing reliance on news agencies by mass-circulation daily newspapers in their reporting of foreign news.

The report, drafted for UNESCO by Jacques Kayser, a French journalist and delegate to UN congresses on freedom of information, issued the warning in disclosing the results of a survey of 17 mass-circulation dailies over a one-week period.

The papers surveyed, four from Communist and 13 from non-Communist countries, all made no attempt to establish a network of their own foreign correspondents, the report said.

SAME OUTLOOK

The four Communist papers shared the same editorial outlook and had identical sources of information. The report added that the majority of the 17 papers printed one item only from one news agency on a given topic or made up a composite so seasoned with commentary that it became "difficult to distinguish opinion from hard fact."

The report said its conclusions do not apply to The Times of London, Le Monde of Paris and the New York Times, which it classed together with Izvestia of Moscow as "journals of influence," not in the mass-circulation category.

Report Scuffle At Kitchener Strike Plant

KITCHENER (CP) — A scuffle broke out at the plant of the strike-bound Canada Skate Manufacturing Company, Ltd., late Tuesday when four workers of a striking force of 70 left the plant.

About 30 pickets formed a circle as the men attempted to leave the building. Police ordered the pickets to break up the circle and scuffling followed.

Two strikers were picked up and placed in a cruiser but no charges have been laid. The crown attorney will be consulted about possible charges, police said. One picket received a cut hand.

The strike, longest in Kitchener's history, started last May 14. It was called by Local 1263 of the United Auto Workers union (CIO-CCL) which had replaced an independent union.

The first indication of a break in the strike came Monday when three men returned to work.

Union officials said a vote on returning to work had been taken but said ballots were counted secretly. It was after the vote was taken that the three men decided to return to work.

The men walked out demanding an eight-cent hourly wage increase, union security and other benefits.

Kingston Actors Praised For Efforts

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Adjudicator Graham Suter Tuesday night told the Domino Players of Kingston that their production of "The Playboy of the Western World" was a "tremendous evening" for the second-night audience of the eastern Ontario drama festival.

Mr. Suter said that June Gibbons' direction of the Irish play written by J. M. Synge was obviously of a very high order. The set was good, he said, and provision was made for every reasonable detail.

The English adjudicator said that while finding the play somewhat overplayed and exaggerated, these faults were consistent throughout and made for good theatre. Spontaneity of the players' actions indicated proper rehearsals to achieve natural effects.

Mr. Suter said heavy Irish accents should have been given time to register with the audience. The lack of a large audience, he said, tended to create an echo.

OVERPLAYING NOT FAULT

A good range of emotions was revealed in the lead played by Gordon Robertson. Mr. Suter also expressed pleasure with the female lead, which was played by Martha Munroe.

Mr. Suter said that generally speaking, overplaying was a fault on the right side. He suggested a little restraint to make the play easier to follow. It was a good piece of production all around, Mr. Suter said, and would probably be one of the outstanding performances of the week.

The drama festival will continue tonight with the Cobourg Opera and Drama Guild scheduled to present "Miranda," a two-act comedy.

Victim's Mother Breaks Down On Witness Stand

CORNWALL (CP) — The murder trial of 2nd Lieut. Peter Ernest Balcombe, 24, was recessed briefly today when Mrs. Marie Anna Carrier, mother of the victim, broke down on the witness stand.

Balcombe is being tried for the slaying last October of Marie Ann Carrier, 20-year-old CWAC reserve army sergeant from Bienville, Que. Her stabbed body was found in a grassy ditch 35 miles west of here Oct. 15.

Mrs. Carrier, who has been under a doctor's care, was allowed to testify seated in a chair in the witness box. In the midst of her testimony she began to sob quietly and told Chief Justice J. C. McRuer she was "a little tired."

Chief Justice McRuer called a recess and Mrs. Carrier was led from the packed courtroom by her son, Raoul, who was seated in the front row of spectators.

TELLS OF MAN'S VISITS

The French-speaking widow, 11th of a possible 40 witnesses expected to be heard, testified through an interpreter for about 35 minutes before the recess was called.

Mrs. Carrier said that Balcombe, a married man and father of two children, gave her daughter a ring in February last year. She said Marie Ann had introduced Balcombe to her at their home Jan. 25, 1953. He came to the house "five or six times" after that.

Mrs. Carrier identified the ring which was entered as an exhibit Tuesday. She said her daughter wore the ring on her engagement finger until March or April last year.

The last time she saw Balcombe, Mrs. Carrier said, was when he came to their home to see Marie Ann the evening of last Oct. 12. She said he came about 11:20 p.m. and remained until after midnight.

"I couldn't understand the conversation because they were speaking in English but they seemed to be talking in normal tones," Mrs. Carrier said. "After he left Annie spoke to me and made some confidences to me. She appeared to be normal then."

Mrs. Carrier said the last time she saw her daughter alive was at noon on Oct. 14. Marie Ann left for work as usual that after noon and the mother went to Quebec City and remained there until the following evening.

House Confirms Belgian Rifle

LONDON (CP)—Army estimates presented to the House of Commons today confirmed the adoption by Britain of the Belgian FN (Fabrique Nationale) rifle and said it has been modified to meet British requirements. The adoption had been announced in Parliament earlier.

"The British rifle was of excellent design but the difference in performance to the two weapons was marginal," the estimates report said. "Because the FN was the type of rifle favored by the Canadians and is also being ordered for trials by America, it was decided that its adoption was the wisest course in view of the greatly increased prospects of North American production.

"Neither Canada nor the United States would favor the adoption of the British EM-2."

Scot Teachers Expected Move To Canada

GLASGOW — With advertisements for teching posts in Canada appearing in Scottish newspapers, it will be no surprise if a number of Scots teachers seriously consider moving to Canada.

For a crisis is blowing up in Scottish education, once the best in the entire Commonwealth. Teachers are becoming so exasperated that they are talking of taking strike action, an unprecedented step for a normally publicity-shy body of professional men.

Indeed, a delegate conference representing nearly 30,000 teachers met in Glosgow and decided to ballot members of the Educational Institute of Scotland—the teachers' "trade union"—on the proposal to set up a strike fund. This has been followed by a decision of 50 teachers in Dunfermline high school to "work to rule."

RESULT OF THREAT

If they carry out this threat, it means they will not supervise games, co-operate in supervising school lunches, or correct test papers in their spare time.

Main causes for this near-militant action by Scots teachers are dissatisfaction with present salaries, increased contributions to their superannuation fund, extension of the retirement age from 65 to 70, lowering of standards of new entrants to the profession and overcrowding of pupils in classes.

They have taken the step of issuing a warning statement to parents on the state of schools and the perilous future facing the pupils. They have appointed a public relations officer to conduct a vigorous publicity campaign.

The root of the trouble is money. For years the teachers have been urging that brighter salaries were needed to attract more recruits— especially university graduates— into the profession.

The teacher shortage has now reached a total of 2,500 and is expected to soar to about 3,300 within the next few years. Sixteen hundred men and women are required for secondary schools.

SALARIES LOW

Salaries are not high, compared with other professions. An honors graduate starts at £520 a year and 18 years later he reaches his maximum of £810. Non graduates are paid less.

A few weeks ago it seemed as if their campaign for better pay would be successful. Their plea brought recommendations from an arbiter, but the Secretary of State for Scotland has recommended the increases be pruned.

The arbiter proposed an increase of £45 for men and £40 for women.

Scotland is also short of school accommodation. As towns have expanded plans for building schools have not kept pace. This has meant that in the big centres, children have had to be carried by bus from their new homes on the outskirts back to schools in districts they have left.

In Glasgow this need is costing ratepayers about £100,000 annually.

The Government plans to build 100 more schools throughout Scotland this year— but there is no scheme to train more teachers to staff them, except by lowering the standards of entrants to the profession.

Suspended Sentence In Immigrant Beating

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Three youths were given suspended sentences Tuesday and assault charges against a fourth were dismissed in connection with the beating of four Italian immigrants.

Russell McClarty and Richard Winton of Windsor with John Westfall of Chatham received one year's suspended sentence after pleading not guilty to the charge. A similar charge against Mike Stach of Windsor was dismissed.

Farmers Have Highway Strike

TORONTO (CP)—No one has a bigger stake in highway safety than the farmer, James N. Allen, Progressive Conservative member for Haldimand-Norfolk in the Ontario legislature, said today.

"The farmer must use the highway in all kinds of weather, in all kinds of traffic and in all kinds of vehicles—including the automobile, the truck and the tractor," he said in an address prepared for delivery to the diamond jubilee convention of the Ontario Good Roads Association.

"I can't think of any other business whose production and distribution is hampered or disrupted more by accident than the farm industry. The farmer traditionally is almost always short of help. An accident to him or to one of his helpers can really hurt.

"And yet farm residents suffer more fatal motor vehicle accidents than any other type of mishap. Some are caused by farm people themselves. Many others are caused by non-farm residents who use the highways that go by the farms.

"The huge waste of vital farm manpower and material resources caused by traffic accidents must be stopped."

Gives Evidence On Blood Test

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—A pathologist testified Tuesday at the murder trial of William Jacobs, 32, that from the amount of alcohol in Jacobs' blood Christmas Eve, "one would expect him to be showing evidence of intoxication."

The pathologist, Dr. Lorne Whitaker of St. Catharines, was one of the first crown witnesses called.

Jacobs is charged in the Christmas Eve bludgeon slaying of Alfred Hindrea, 76, of nearby Weller Park.

Dr. Whitaker said that in his opinion a severe blow on the side of the head caused Hindrea's death.

Crown Attorney Lloyd Goodwin showed him a crowbar and asked if the injury could have been inflicted with such an instrument.

"Yes, it could have," Dr. Whitaker answered.

The trial is continuing.

Arrest Pair Trying To See Eisenhower

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Two men who tried to visit President Eisenhower Tuesday at his desert vacation headquarters face arraignment on vagrancy charges.

"They meant no harm," police chief John S. Davis said of Carl E. Kinsey, 25, quarter-breed Indian of San Bernardino, Calif., and John T. Ortega, 48, Mission Indian from a Palm Springs reservation.

The two were arrested at the entrance to the Smoke Tree ranch where President and Mrs. Eisenhower stayed for six days before their return today to Washington. An unloaded rifle was found in the back of their car.

Secret service agents turned the men over to the Palm Springs police, who learned that Ortega and Kinsey were driving from Indio to Palm Springs. As they passed the Smoke Tree ranch, one said to the other:

"That's where the president is staying."

"Let's go see him," suggested the other.

They turned into the ranch property and the secret service agents were right on top of them.

The president's secretary, James C. Hagerty, told reporters there was "no indication at all" that the men had plotted an attempt on Eisenhower's life.

Commons Defeats CCF Demand For Immediate Action On Unemployment

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons has defeated a CCF demand for immediate government steps to meet unemployment problems. The vote was 129 to 68.

The CCF motion, technically want of confidence in the government, called for action to "prevent further economic distress." It drew support from all opposition parties and three Independent members in the vote Tuesday closing the fifth day of Commons debate on unemployment.

Still before members is a Progressive Conservative motion asking establishment of a parliamentary committee to study unemployment conditions and recommend a remedy. Debate will be resumed later, possibly next Monday.

Acting Prime Minister Howe, speaking earlier in the debate, said the situation is caused by a temporary slowdown in business which coincided with the winter slack period. He said seasonal unemployment will end by spring and that 1954 will be as prosperous as last year.

However, opposition speakers said the situation is serious and suggested various measures, including increased unemployment insurance, an expanded public works program and extension of defence contracts to depressed areas.

FIGURES VARY

Unemployment figures issued last week by the National Employment Service showed 524,000 persons looking for work at Jan. 21, a post-war high mark and 186,000 more than at Dec. 10. The bureau of statistics estimated 280,000 jobless at Jan. 23, 90,000 more than in early December.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said payments from the $900,000,000 unemployment insurance fund should be boosted and the period in which benefits are paid lengthened.

"The time has come for this present generation of workers to get the benefit of the huge fund that has been built up," he said. The fund was not intended for the next generation.

J. W. Murphy (PC — Lambton West) urged the government to increase its efforts to attract United States tourists to Canada. Tourist spending was a benefit to every business.

He urged the government to take the initiative in the development of long-term projects which would create employment. They would include the South Saskatchewan power and irrigation project, a development which would increase productive capacity. An immediate public works program would be only a temporary solution to the unemployment problem.

Union's Invasion Of Ottawa Seeks Work For Everyone

OTTAWA (CP)—A one-day anti-unemployment invasion of Parliament Hill by a big Canadian union has ended without government pledges, but the lobbyists' leaders were fairly satisfied. "We have created considerable heat, and I think the government is becoming aware of the situation," George Burt of Windsor, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO-CCL), said after the lobby. The 75,000-member Canadian division of the UAW sent about 125 members circulating among Commons members Wednesday with a UAW program for "full employment".

While two-man teams flagged down individual Commoners, Burt and other top officials put their "keep Canada at work" policy up to cabinet members.

The lobby came while the Commons was still involved in an unemployment debate that has stretched through five sitting days. The government has beaten off one vote of non-confidence on the issue. Another is due next week.

Meanwhile, the government formally announced unemployment figures for about a month ago.

SUBSTANTIAL INCREASE

These, previously made public in the Commons unemployment debate, showed 524,000 persons looking for work at Jan. 21 through the labor department's National Employment Service. They contained bureau of statistics estimates that 280,000 persons were out of work and seeking jobs in the week ended Jan. 23. Both figures were up substantially over December, 1953, and last January.

Percy R. Bengough, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, said he estimates unemployment at 570,000.

Eugene Forsey, research director of the Canadian Congress of Labor, made a 580,000 estimate.

Bottle Thrown From Car Injures Girl

ROSENEATH (ENS) — A whiskey bottle thown from a car which did not stop sent seven-year-old Linda Simpson to Cobourg hospital suffering extensive facial lacerations and other injuries early Wednesday evening.

Linda and her older sister Karen, 11, had just come from their home, heading for a music lesson at the home of their aunt, Mrs. James Bigwin Jr. 300 yards away. The accident took place a mile south of Alderville.

Neither Linda nor Karen could give a very coherent account of the accident, but it was believed that the younger girl was either struck by the bottle, hit by the car or both. The broken bottle was found in the vicinity. Only description of the car going north was that it was a "small, dark one."

As the car passed, Linda crumbled to her knees and said she had been hit. Karen did not think the car hit her because she had her by the hand at the time.

Dr. George A. Field of Cobourg was called after the accident. He took the girls to Cobourg for examination. The child has concussion and a fractured skull is suspected. X-rays are being taken today.

Linda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Simpson of Alderville. She is a pupil at the Alderville public school.

OPP Constables William Warner and Lyle Erskine of Cobourg are investigating the mysterious accident.

Queen, Duke Take Short Rest

MELBOURNE (AP) — Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh spent a quiet morning at Government House today, doubly quiet when compared with the tumultuous reception they got here Wednesday.

They intended to plant trees in the spacious gardens surrounding the majestic building after Sir Dallas Brooks, governor of Victoria, showed them the tristania and eucalyptus trees that the Queen's parents planted in the garden 25 years ago.

The queen was scheduled to preside today at the opening of the Victoria state parliament, as first monarch to do so in the 101-year history of the Victoria government.

Advocate Sale Beer In Stores

TORONTO (CP) — The sale of beer in Ontario grocery stores was advocated in the legislature Wednesday by Albert Wren (Lib.-Lab.—Kenora). He also urged elimination of liquor permits.

Speaking during the throne speech debate, Mr. Wren said he sees no reason why beer should not be sold in grocery stores. He thought such a move would probably have a good effect on temperance in the province.

"We should consider soon the elimination of the use of liquor permits," he said. "I think we've reached the stage as adult men and where we don't need to go through this rigmarole in the liquor stores."

Army Officers Name New Premier

Have No Intention Take Measures Against Ex-Premier

By ROBERT B. HEWETT

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's ruling Revolutionary Council has dropped Maj.-Gen. Mohamed Naguib, front man of the uprising that made a republic of this ancient land of the pharaohs, from the presidency and premiership.

The 11 young army officers of the council today named as premier Lt.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, 36, driving force of the bloodless coup that ousted King Farouk from the throne 19 months ago. He has been Naguib's deputy premier.

CANNES, France (AP) — "I hope poor Naguib can save his skin." Ex-king Farouk's secretary, Andre Chardonnens, today said that was Farouk's comment when informed that the Egyptian president who deposed him has been ousted. Chardonnens said Farouk expressed no surprise, and recalled that he predicted at the time of his own downfall in July, 1952, that Naguib would be in power for two years at most before being overthrown.

Nasser also succeeds Naguib as leader of the council. The presidency will remain vacant.

Naguib today was in army-guarded isolation at his simple, five-room home in suburban Helmieh. Capt. Galal Faizy, aide to national guidance minister, Salah Salem, said the Revolutionary Council "has no intention of taking any measures against Naguib."

However, the army guard always stationed at Naguib's home permitted no one to enter and the guard commander said: "Obviously Naguib will avoid leaving the house for the time being." Telephone lines to the house were blocked.

ACCEPTED RESIGNATION

A communique from the Revolutionary Council accused Naguib of seeking to draw Egypt "back to absolute dictatorship," declared he was suffering from a "psychological crisis," and reported unanimous acceptance of a resignation it said he submitted Monday.

The action came at a heated, seven - hour session Wednesday night of the 11 majors and lieutenant-colonels who, with Naguib, made up the council. Naguib was absent.

The 53-year-old Naguib had been avoiding council sessions lately at which the hard-boiled Nasser was present, which suggested a struggle for power.

Churchill Predicts Red Satellites Will Forsake Russia

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill today predicted the Soviet satellite nations will eventually break away from Russian domination because the "forces of the human spirit" are not easily extinguished. The prime minister was speaking in the second day of a Commons debate on the results of the Big Four foreign ministers' conference in Berlin. "No one can suppose that what happened to Poland, Czechoslovakia, Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary will endure in permanence," he said.

"No solution is in sight at present for these subjugated states. We have all rejected the course of aggressive force for this purpose. Time may find remedies which this generation cannot command.

"The forces of the human spirit and of national character, alive in those countries, cannot be speedily extinguished even by large scale movements of population and mass education of children.

"This territorial empire and multitudes of subjects, which the Soviets grasped for themselves in the hour of allied victory, constitutes the main cause of division now existing among the civilized nations."

USE OF TRIUMPH

But Stalin's use of his triumph, Churchill said, had produced other results which would live and last—the alliance and brotherhood of the English-speaking peoples upon which the life of the free world depended.

"Nothing but Stalinist Russia could have brought the conception of a united Europe from dreamland into the forefront of modern thought," he said.

"Nothing but the policy of the Soviets could have laid the foundation of the deep and lasting association which now exists between Germany and the western world, Germany and the United States, German and Britain and, I trust, between Germany and France.

"I cannot bring myself to believe that men with such able minds as the Soviet rulers have not taken stock of the price they have paid, as well as of the possessions they have gained by the Stalin policy," Churchill said.

Attorney Porter Answers Roads Charges

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Porter was on his feet repeatedly in the Ontario legislature Wednesday answering charges made by the opposition on the highways department irregularities and the disbarment of a crown attorney.

Challenged by Albert Wren (Lib.-Lab.—Kenora), Mr. Porter agreed to table evidence in the disbarment of crown attorney Bernard Arnold Russell Taylor of Kenora.

Mr. Wren said no prosecution was made in Mr. Taylor's case after he was disbarred by the law society for misappropriating sums of money which he charged were provincial government funds.

"If my honorable friend has some information why didn't he lay a charge?" the attorney-general asked.

Mr. Wren said the case was placed before the attorney-general.

Mr. Porter replied that he was advised there was no basis for a criminal charge.

"That's not good enough," said Mr. Wren.

PC TIE-UP

On the irregularities, Mr. Wren charged there was "some definite association between the Progressive Conservative party and the department of highways" in northwestern Ontario.

He reiterated the opposition's demand for a judicial commission "to lift the veil of secrecy over this whole situation."

Mr. Porter said if the member had some information on the subject he should bring it before the house.

"Let's call the public accounts committee. The public is just as interested in your secret information, too," Mr. Wren replied.

The throne speech debate will continue today.

Eisenhower Announces Military Aid For Pakistan Secure Stability, Strength

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower announced today the United States will grant military aid to Pakistan to help secure "stability and strength" in the Middle East. The president made known this decision in a formal statement. At the same time the White House made public a letter to Prime Minister Nehru of India assuring him that "this step does not in any way affect the friendship we feel for India. Quite the contrary," the president said in the letter delivered to Nehru by ambassador George V. Allen at 11 a.m. Wednesday, New Delhi time.

"We will continually strive to strengthen the warm and enduring friendship between our two countries."

The decision to give aid to Pakistan was taken under authority granted by the foreign aid law and requires no further congressional sanction.

Indian leaders had been highly critical of the idea, previously discussed, of giving military aid to their neighbor. One obvious reason was the possibility that it would tip the scales in that part of Asia to India's disadvantage.

The next step will be to send a mission to Pakistan to determine the exact needs of that country. This will be done shortly, the White House said.

Barrel Of Acid Splashes, Burns 2 Hastings Men

HASTINGS (ENS)—A barrel of acid that slipped, fell and cracked open splashed acid on two men who were carrying it into the Breithaupt tannery at noon today.

Leon Lynch, 20, took some of the acid in his face. To try to stop the burning he jumped into the nearby raceway which branches from the Trent canal into the tannery.

Rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough by Bernard Sullivan, he was in serious condition. Preliminary examination revealed that the acid burned his right eye, face, chest, arms and legs. The full extent of the burns will not be known for some days.

His companion was Ken Wellman, 25, who was burned about the legs. His injuries were treated on the spot by Dr. W. N. Campbell.

Lynch is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Lynch, RR 3, Hastings.

Bachelor Premier Has Some Rights

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's bachelor premier is having second thoughts about the joys of single blessedness.

In jocular mood, Premier Maurice Duplessis mentioned the subject at a birthday dinner Wednesday night. He will celebrate his 64th birthday soon.

He recalled that when he first formed a cabinet, two of his ministers were also bachelors.

"I thought all three of us would have the strength to persevere but two were married, and for once, I think I made a wrong decision."

Workers Reject Cut In Wages

HESPELER (CP)—Employees of the Dominion and Woollen Worsted Limited Wednesday voted down a proposed wage cut by a vote of 218 to 201.

The company asked Tuesday to accept an approximate 8½ per cent reduction in the take-home pay of all levels to offset adverse conditions in the Canadian textile industry. Average hourly wage at the plant is $1.11.

Company officials said the firm is involved in "a grim struggle" against imported goods produced by workers whose wages were much lower. Employees are members of the Woollen Workers' Union of Hespeler, independent bargaining agent for the mill.

As the vote went on the Textile Workers' Union of America (CIO-CCL) sent representatives to the plant to distribute handbills opposing the proposed wage cut.

Correspondents Praise St. Laurent After Hard-Hitting Press Conference

NEW DELHI (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent flew to Agra today for a visit to the world-famed Taj Mahal, amid correspondents' praise in this Indian capital for the Canadian leader's handling of a hard-hitting 40-minute press conference Wednesday. The prime minister was due back here tonight for a farewell dinner with President Rajendra Prasad. Friday he leaves for a side trip to Bombay and Madras for talks with Indian leaders outside the capital. He met the hundred-odd Indian and foreign newspapermen shortly after he received an honorary doctorate of laws from the University of Delhi.

The press conference was held in the Indian parliament buildings, where Wednesday he addressed upper and lower house members.

The correspondents started to shoot their questions immediately after the Canadian leader explained briefly the goodwill purpose of his flying world tour, now half over.

Some of the newspaper men were armed with copies of the text of his parliamentary speech, and asked him to expand on passages or to interpret Canadian ideas on a peaceful world as applied to India, Pakistan, Malaya, Indo-China, Africa, Europe and the United States.

One correspondent said later that, while the atmosphere remained good-humored, it was the "toughest" press conference he had seen here. Another said that in six years it was the first time a New Delhi press conference had ended with applause.

The prime minister, seated at a table with Escott Reid, Canadian high commissioner, at one side and some members of his tour staff behind him, smoked a cigaret in a black holder while he considered and answered queries.

CEASE-FIRE APPEAL

One was about Indian prime minister, Nehru's appeal for a cease-fire in Indo - China pending the April conference at Geneva to deal with Korean and Indo - Chinese peace.

The Canadian said he favors the cease-fire proposal.

Another question was about Chinese representation in the United Nations.

The prime minister said the problem was who represented China, and he doubted it would be settled while the Chinese National-

U.K. Prime Minister Thinks World Talks Not Impossible

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today he "still thinks" a meeting of the top leaders of the major powers "should not be ruled out."

Speaking in the Commons debate on the recent Big Four conference in Berlin, said he thinks his idea for a high-level conference should be "held in reserve." He added that such a conference should not be undertaken "lightly."

The prime minister's long campaign for a meeting with Soviet Premier Malenkov, President Eisenhower and French Premier Laniel has met some resistance, largely from the United States.

Churchill expressed confidence the coming Geneva conference will produce "fruitful results" and said there is nothing improper in meeting Chinese Communist leaders "in negotiation for peace."

Churchill said "it is certain that some real advantages have been gained" at the Big Four foreign ministers conference.

Despite the failure to agree on Germany and Austria, he said "it has actually made discussion of all these questions less delicate and less dangerous than it was before."

Churchill described the agreement to call a Big Five conference at Geneva April 16, with Red China sitting in, a hopeful sign.

Churchill said it was "not surprising" that the people of the United States should wish to delay Communist China's entrance into the United Nations until peace is established.

"On the other hand," he added, "it seems very unwise for the Allies not to meet the leaders of Communist China in negotiation for peace."

Churchill said the failure to agree at Berlin on German reunification and an Austrian peace treaty is not the final answer.

Patience and perseverance must never be grudged when the peace of the world is at stake. If we have to go through a cold war, punctuated by parleys, that would be preferable to the catalogue of unspeakable and unimaginable horrors which is the alternative."

5 Dead, 3 Injured In 2-Car Smash

CALGARY (CP) — Five persons, four of them bound for a wedding reception, were killed and three injured Wednesday in a two-car collision on a straight section of highway about 20 miles east of here.

Dead are: David MacKinnon, 26; his wife, Lorette, 24; Jon Martin, 38; Mrs. George Perry, 28; and Mrs. Irma Baeson, 55. All were from Calgary.

In hospital are George Perry, husband of one of the victims, his 14-month-old son, and Jon Martin, son of another of the victims.

Police said the car driven by Perry was in a broadside collision with the other vehicle. The Perry vehicle was thrown into a ditch.

Airman Dies From Injuries

QUEBEC (CP)—Pte. Raymond Jacques, 22, of Thetford Mines, Que., died today in hospital here of injuries suffered Feb. 11 in a 1,000-foot plunge from a plane with a partially-opened parachute.

Jacques, a member of the 1st battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, suffered a fractured spine in the plunge from a C-119 Flying Boxcar during a routine jumping exercise at nearby Ancienne Lorette airport.

Doctors credited his survival until now to the fact he landed in a two-foot snowbank.

U.S. Army Surrenders To Senator McCarthy

LONDON (Reuters)—The Times says today that Senator Joseph McCarthy has accomplished what British Generals could not do during the revolutionary war—"the surrender of the American army."

The independent newspaper's Washington correspondent made the evaluation of Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens' decision Wednesday to let McCarthy continue questioning of United States army officers about alleged Communist infiltration.

Rebels Overthrow Syria's President

LONDON (AP) — North Syria's Aleppo radio announced today that rebel forces have overthrown Syria's president, Gen. Adib Shishekly.

The radio broadcast monitored in London said that rebel forces have seized the north, east and western regions of the Middle East country.

Plan Investigation Into Trade Practices

OTTAWA (CP)—The Restrictive Trade Practices Commission is planning an extensive probe into "loss leader" practices in Canada, informants said today.

The inquiry, which likely will take months to complete, will be undertaken with a view to deciding whether selling below cost to destroy competition should be banned by law.

Canadians Eating More Margarine

OTTAWA (CP)—Each Canadian now is eating a little less butter than when margarine became legal in 1950.

A return tabled in the Commons Wednesday by the trade department showed the estimated 1953 consumption at 19.32 pounds for each person, against 19.98 in 1950.

After 1950, consumption slumped to 19.17 and 19.05 in 1951 and 1952, but it picked up a bit last year.

For all Canada, the aggregate consumption is up substantially, to 302,606,000 pounds in 1953 from 261,464,000 in 1950.

Sale Of Farouk's Coins Goes On In Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt (Reuters) — Egypt's political crisis today failed to affect the sale of ex-king Farouk's coin collection which began at Kubbeh palace here Wednesday.

At the luxurious palace, the talk was mainly about the auction. Little was said about President Mohammed Naguib's downfall.

American, British, French and Italian dealers bid against each other today for Farouk's collection of gold coins. The day's sales brought in about $100,000.

Prospectors Invade Monastery Property Seeking Uranium, Thorium And Iron Ore

OKA, Que. (CP) — Trappist monks today are awaiting a decision of the Quebec mines department that could decide the future of their century-old monastery in the Laurentian mountain foothills.

More than 100 prospectors seeking uranium, columbium, thorium and iron ore have descended on the sanctuary some 40 miles northwest of Montreal, staking claims in and around orchards and rolling fields that make up the grounds of the cloistered order.

The monks, most of whom observe a vow of silence, said the prospectors may disturb the peace and quiet of the monastery, but to other Oka residents the rush means a bonanza.

Hotels and rooming houses have "standing room only" signs outside their establishments, while geiger counters, pickaxes and packsacks are a common sight in village stores.

One town spokesman said the value of farming land in the region has increased five to 10-fold in the last few days.

STAKING IS LEGAL

The monks have referred the staking to provincial mines minister and say they will not comment until a decision is reached in Quebec.

In Montreal, however, a mines department referee is reported to have said staking on the monks' property is within the law since the religious brothers do not own mineral rights on their land.

Wednesday night a spokesman for the monastery said all the monks wish is to lead their lives in "peace, quiet and tranquility.

"If workers come in and begin drilling we will have no privacy."

The rush was set off by recent drilling operations in an eight-square-mile area on which mining rights are held by the Molybdenum Corporation of America.

A corporation official said Wednesday night every sample taken so far "contains uranium, and our finds have been highly encouraging.

"From all indications . . . this may prove to be the biggest columbium strike in the world."

Ask Canada Respond To Red Offer

CCF Spokesmen Say Genuine Offers Made For Trading

OTTAWA (CP)—Progressive Conservative and CCF spokesmen have called on Canada to respond to genuine offers from behind the Iron Curtain to trade in non-strategic materials.

J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood) said Canada should be responsive to any genuine signs of a desire to trade "and I emphasize the word genuine."

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said trade with any country should be encouraged "without too much fear of the political color of a country."

They spoke in the Commons Wednesday during debate on a measure to expand the operations of the crown-owned Export Credits Insurance Corporation, which insures Canadian exporters against risks in getting payment for goods from foreign countries.

John Dickey, parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe, outlined government policy on trade behind the Iron Curtain.

He said the Export Credits Insurance Corporation will insure exports to all countries "as long as an exporter can get an export permit, and as long as the sale is considered to be an insurable risk."

STRATEGIC BAN

"However," he added, "there are other agencies of the government which have the responsibility of deciding whether an export permit to Iron Curtain countries should be granted."

His reference was to government regulations guarding against shipments of strategic materials to Communist countries. Any export behind the Iron Curtain must receive a government permit, and this is refused for strategic goods.

Mr. Dickey said in the three years 1948-50 the corporation insured $2,800,000 worth of exports to Czechoslovakia and $600,000 worth to Poland.

The legislation was given second reading—approval in principle. It increases the capital stock of the crown corporation to $15,000,000 from $5,000,000 to permit insurance of more exports. The corporation can insure total exports up to 10 times its capital stock.

Chess Player Dies

U.S. Closes Polish Consulates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today told Communist Poland to close its consulates-general at New York, Chicago, and Detroit.

State Secretary Dulles sent a note to the Polish ambassador, Jozef Winiewicz, saying the consular establishments "serve no useful purpose in the conduct or relations between the United States and Poland at the present time."

There have been complaints from Michigan Congressmen and others that the Detroit consulate general was a centre of Communist propaganda. A state department spokesman said the Michigan Congressmen have been informed of the move, but declined to say whether the action was at their request.

Dulles' note asked Poland to close down the three consulates, leaving only the embassy in Washington, and "withdraw the personnel of those offices within a reasonable period."

Gone So Long Without Snow Forgotten How To Snowshoe

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP)—For some years now members of Halifax's old Red Cap Snowshoe Club have been restricted in their activities because there was little snow.

This winter there has been lots of snow, however, and what did the members do? They went for a sleigh ride.

They're all getting along in years and many have virtually forgotten how to use snowshoes. Founders of the 80-year-old club may have been turning over in their graves at the change.

Gone are the hardy fellows who met nightly for snowshoe hikes from the time the first snow came in November until early in March. From the original three or four members, the club expanded until membership had to be restricted. Today the club exists in name only, and the children of the original members carry on the tradition.

BRIGHT UNIFORMS

In the old days their brightly colored uniforms set them apart from the rest of the city's sporting fraternity.

With their blue tasseled, red stocking-caps, white coats and red stockings and sashes they were easily recognized as they tramped about the city.

The Willow Tree in mid-town was the gathering place, and from there they would race out along the shore of Bedford basin to places like Four-Mile House, Porto Bello House and Desmonds Hotel. These coach houses have long disappeared as have the coaches and passengers they served.

Many a time these men would start out early in the morning and with darkness find themselves stranded miles from the city. But they were rugged sportsmen and always romped homeward through the snow.

"Yes sir, those were the good old days," an aged club member said recently. "Why today the young fellows shy away from even walking a couple of blocks."

HOUSE THAT FREEDOM BUILT—Former Red prisoners of war who rejected communism set up housekeeping in Taipeh, Formosa, following their release by the UN repatriation team. Elsewhere in Formosa and in South Korea, former soldiers of the Red army are starting a new life under freedom.

Three Streets Scheduled To Be Paved

The 1954 paving program drawn up by City Engineer A. E. Chalmers includes completion of the paving of Monaghan Rd. from Braidwood Ave. to Lansdowne St.

Other streets to be paved this year are Rink St. from Aylmer St. to Rubidge St., and Wolfe St., from Aylmer St. to the CPR tracks.

If these projects are approved by city council, the cost would be shared by the city and adjoining property owners according to the provisions of the Local Improvement Act.

Remaining to be completed from the 1953 program is the paving of Gordon Ave., between Weller St. and Hopkins Ave.

Projects for this year to be paid for entirely by the city include the widening of Reid St., from London St. to Stewart St. and the widening of McDonnel St., at the south side, from George St. to Water St. as well as resurfacing Water St., from Hunter St. to Brock St.

Slated for future consideration is the paving of the avenues running south from Charlotte St., west of Park St.

Frost Agrees Investigate Unemployment

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost today agreed to send provincial representatives to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., next month to discuss with federal and municipal officials the unemployment situation in that city.

Mr. Frost said at a meeting with a delegation from Sault Ste. Marie that he and Labor Minister Daley would support the plan suggested yesterday in Ottawa by federal Labor Minister Gregg at a meeting with the same delegation.

Mayor Herb Smale said he would call the meeting sometime next month. The province will be represented by F. J. Lyl, director of the trade and industry branch of the department of planning and development, and members of the department of labor and the provincial economist staffs.

Premier Frost also informed the delegation that the province did not favor contributing to the proposed construction of a sewage disposal plant in Sault Ste. Marie, saying it was a municipal matter.

Other members of the delegation were aldermen C. S. Fisher, Peter King, Anthony Nino, as well as W. B. Redfern and C. H. Lyons (PC—Sault Ste Marie).

Salem told reporters the office of president of the republic will remain vacant until Parliament is restored by election which the regime plans in two years, after the end of the three-year "transitional period" proclaimed last year. During that period political parties are banned, although the government-sponsored "liberation rally" is rising as a political force.

Cairo remained quiet today. There were no signs of unusual military or police activity except for a detachment of soldiers checking the passes of reporters around the cable office.

Political observers believe there will be little immediate change in the foreign policy of Egypt's new government, even though Nasser, dynamic and hard-driving, finally has stepped to the leadership as far as the public is concerned. That foreign policy has been defined as non-co-operation with the West until British forces are withdrawn from the Suez canal zone.

The big question is the internal reaction.

There is bound to be concern over whether the young military clique will adopt more radical measures. Naguib, a moderate, has been regarded as the council's balance wheel.

Nasser is rated the most fiery exponent of Egypt's current bid for British withdrawal from the canal zone.

EUROPEAN VIEW

LONDON (AP)—Warnings that Egypt may intensify her hostility towards Britain following the sudden exit of General Naguib were sounded in Europe's press today.

Government officials are withholding comment until the dust settled but some newspapers in Britain, France and elsewhere view the Cairo shakeup with pessimism.

The London Evening News says Col. Abdel Nasser who took over from Naguib as head of the revolutionary council "has already proclaimed his vigorous hostility to 'imperialism'."

First comments in French newspapers predicted a period of uncertainty and agitation in Egypt.

In Israel, the newspaper Maariv says Naguib's removal "will certainly cause anxiety in the west and will particularly disappoint the British.

South End Ratepayers To 'Sit Tight' On Grant Issue

As an outcome of the first South End Ratepayers Association meeting, at which Mrs. Eva F. Brackenridge, president of the Peterborough Community Nursing Registry discussed the functions of that organization, it was decided that the association would take no further action concerning the $1,000 municipal grant request to re-appear before city council next Monday.

Previously the association had questioned whether the registry actually needed the money, and if so, whether it was the responsibility of the citizens to pay it.

Mrs. Brackenridge explained that the registry was not a business, but a professional organization set up as a public health and welfare service, and, "this is why we can't seem to quite float ourselves".

This service is only a link in the chain of health and welfare service, but a very necessary one, she said. It is operated by the chief registrar and three assistants working for an average salary of less than $21 a week, and for that cost the citizens of Peterborough have the registry's service at all times.

NURSES SCARCE

There is a scarcity of nurses the world over. Many hospitals have partially closed because of this lack, and it has been said that "we (the registry) should not keep capable nurses out of service to operate a phone answering service. Three of the four nurses working for the registry, are married, and could not do bed-side nursing."

Mrs. M. Pringle, chief registrar, "can do 100 times more acting in her present capacity".

"The two hospitals tired of trying to locate nurses, not knowing whether they were on duty or not —or whether they were even home or not. Something had to be done so that efficient contacts could be made in time of emergency."

Other cities have organized registries and do receive grants when necessity demands. Places as large at Ottawa and Windsor have all received help, and these cities realize the necessity of such a service.

The registry protects the public from quacks, drug addicts and alcoholics. All its members are thoroughly screened before their application is accepted, and when a call comes in for help, the most capable parties for the type of call described, are dispatched.

"If a surgeon is needed, we don't send a medical doctor, for instance."

"When a call comes in for help, and we haven't any immediately available, we don't stop trying. We can't just say 'Yes, we have no nurses' and let it go at that. We keep trying until we do get someone. And in the meantime our nurses answering the phone, can give emergency instruction to the calling party."

OWED $1,800

In September of 1953, the nursing registry owed $1,800, but through fund raising programs such as dances, teas, bridges and draws, and the generosity of some people, it managed to end the year with a surplus of $83.66.

"There is nothing further from my mind", said Mrs. Brackenridge, "than to expect an annual grant of $1,000 from city council". She explained that the hospitals are beginning to realize that the service they are getting is worth more than they have paid for." The registry is hoping to expand and may soon be self-sufficient.

A member of the audience questioned the part doctors played in the service. He stated that a large percentage of the calls handled by the registry were not for nurses, but for doctors, and that these doctors were paying rates far lower than they would do normally without the service.

"You are asking us to subsidize the doctors, not the nursing registry", said Harvey Sutton, chairman of the assessment committee.

Mrs. Brackenridge replied that the doctors were using the facilities of the registry only to help maintain its existence. They did not need it, she said, and were often annoyed by its insistence. "If the doctors dropped out, we would have to close up—unless, of course, the city would guarantee the difference".

"I do hope, city council, when they meet to decide this question will prefer to 'light a candle, rather than curse the darkness'," said Mrs. Brackenridge.

After the address, members of the association thanked Mrs. Brackenridge, and assured her that their griefs had never been against the nursing registry, but many still felt that the doctors connected with the registry were not paying enough.

After about an hour's discussion the South End Ratepayers Association decided not to send a delegation to city council Monday night to plead for or against the request of the nursing registry.

"We have been heard", said a member from the floor, "now, I think, we should sit tight".

Minister Wants Rapid Decision Seaway Project

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier says he hopes for a "rapid and favorable" decision by the United States Supreme Court authorizing a start on the power phase of the St. Lawrence seaway.

However, he told the Commons Wednesday he is unable to say when such a judgment may be given.

Mr. Chevrier was asked by Frank A. Enfield (L—York-Scarborough) when legal obstacles in the U.S. to a start on the project might be cleared away.

The minister said the U.S. Court of Appeals Feb. 9 upheld the right of the New York state power authority to join with Ontario in the $600,000,000 power job, on which the joint hydro-navigation undertaking depends.

Opponents had 90 days to make a final appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court but had not yet launched this appeal.

NO PREDICTION

It is regarded here as virtually certain that U.S. opponents of the waterway will carry an appeal to the Supreme Court, but Mr. Chevrier said he would not try to predict when this would be filed and disposed of.

"I hope there will be a rapid and favorable disposal of the matter by the Supreme Court," he added.

On another question linked with the seaway, Mr. Chevrier indicated Canada is not too worried about the effects of a proposed diversion of water from Lake Michigan into the Chicago waterway, though it has protested the proposal to the U.S. administration.

As approved by the U.S. House of Representatives but not yet by the U.S. Senate, the diversion plan would send an additional 1,000 cubic feet a second into the waterway a navigable channel that carries Chicago's waste into the Mississippi river system.

Asked about Indian fears that U. S. military aid to Pakistan might be turned against India, he said: "I am convinced if there had been the slightest suspicion it would be directed against India it would not be agreed to."

Asked for Canada's reaction should India, in turn, seek military aid from Russia, he said:

"We would be very much concerned if there were an exchange of military aid between India and any nation we looked upon as a potential aggressor.

He declined to go into details of his "confidential" talks with Nehru since the start of the week, but said the Indian leader sought to "inform and instruct" him on Asian problems.

Germans Drop Nationalism Eager For Co-operation

Germany is turning from nationalism and is taking its place as a member of the free nations of Western Europe and the free world, Dr. Edgar Gerwin, first secretary of the German embassy in Ottawa, told members of the Peterborough United Nations association Wednesday night.

Politically, economically and spiritually Western Germany is rebuilding itself. The suffering the German people endured during the last stages of the Second World War resulted in an awakening of spiritual forces that had lain dormant during the Nazi regime, he said.

Now the Germans are showing an interest in human dignity and human freedom. Dr. Gerwin said that, through the whole of Europe and the western world adhering to these principles, there was hope for a peaceful and prosperous future.

On a more practical level, Dr. Gerwin said, agreements between the nations of Europe have and could accomplish much to raise the standard of living to prevent future wars.

UNITY OF GERMANY

But the first thing for Germans is the unity of Germany. The artificial division made in 1945 at the end of the Second World War is intolerable. Political, economic and personal integration that had developed through the centuries was cut. And this barrier is working a real hardship on the nation and the people, Dr. Gerwin said.

Before the initial division of the nation thousands of Germans fled from the zone that was to be controlled by the Soviet. These people crowded into the western section that was facing a monumental task of reconstruction. Fifty per cent of the houses had been condemned as unfit for human habitation.

"We know only too well what it was to have war on our own soil.

As the occupation of the Russian took hold, Germans in the eastern sector sought for some means of escape. In hundreds and thousands they began to slip across the border.

Most of them cross in Berlin and declare themselves refugees. They are flown out of Berlin into western Germany because Berlin although occupied by the four former allied powers, is in eastern Germany.

1,300 DAILY

During last November, December and January of this year, 1,300 to 1,500 crossed into the western sectors of Berlin every day. Most disguise themselves as workers who daily cross the border from their homes to their jobs in the city.

They are first moved into camps and then homes; jobs or money and food must be found for them. As reconstruction progresses, the people are haunted by the knowledge that it is not enough because the population is constantly being increased by the refugees.

Reunification of Germany must come, they feel. But, in spite of this desperate need, of one thing Germans are sure. It must come by peaceful means. War, Germans now feel, is no solution to their problem. It would only land them in a greater mess than they were in 1945.

Dr. Gerwin saw the Schumann plan as an indication of hope for Germany and Europe. Just as the Schumann plan is overcoming the problems of exporting and importing coal and steel in Europe to keep costs within reach, so the European Payments Union is overcoming money exchange problems.

Adenauer's government is looking toward some sort of co-operative organization or federation. But that is a long way off. In the meantime there is more immediate and practical need for co-operation in defence.

Although Germans have the strongest feeling against an army of their own, they are willing to take part in a European defence army.

That was the key to the feeling of Germany today, Dr. Gerwin intimated. The people have had enough of nationalism and are looking to a future of co-operation with the rest of Europe.

The speaker was introduced by Col. J. R. E. Melton and thanked by club president L. W. Copp.

Sleet Causes 2 Crashes In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Sleet which froze on windshields of automobiles and on the streets of the town was responsible for two accidents Wednesday morning.

On Grand road, a car driven by Mrs. H. Macmillan struck the rear of a parked truck, doing no damage to the truck but damaging the front of the car to the extent of about $250.

Mrs. Macmillan was unable to swing around the parked truck due to approaching traffic and could not stop in time due to the icy pavement. PC Sam Baird investigated.

TRUCKS COLLIDE

On River Road, two trucks collided, causing total damage estimated at $275.

A truck travelling north, driven by J. Stocker, started to make a left turn into his driveway and swung directly in front of a south bound truck, owned by R. G. Petty. Stocker said he did not see the other vehicle.

Damage to the Petty truck was estimated at about $125 and to the Stocker vehicle about $150. OPP Constable Archie Eady investigated.

Farmers' Union Of West Invade District For Members

Only casual mention was made at the meeting of the Federation of Agriculture Wednesday night about the reported activities in this district of Rudolph Usick of the Farmers Union of Manitoba.

Secretary Bruce Graham brought word of a meeting at Westwood, and there have been others in both the Peterborough and Lindsay areas. No reference to the Ontario Federation was made by Mr. Usick at any of the series of meetings this week, it was said, but on the other hand his presence has been regarded as an implied criticism of the organization of farmers that was set up in this province some 15 years ago.

Emissaries of the Western Farmers' Union have been trying to get a toehold in Ontario for more than a year. When Mr. Usick entered Peterborough county he came among the people who established the first branch of the Ontario Federation, and gave the provincial body its first president in Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore.

Reports some weeks ago of Union meetings in Western Ontario did not indicate any disposition to swing to the westerners.

There was no ruffling of the feathers of the Federation directors Wednesday night, but for some months past there has been occasional expression about the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

CONVENTNION

Apart from the program of the meeting Wednesday night, R. R. Stewart of Otonabee, vice-president, and county representative to the OFA reported on the provincial convention which he attended in Toronto.

"I never had the opportunity before of attending the Federation annual or in fact of any other large agricultural association," Mr. Stewart said, "and I can tell you that I was greatly impressed by the large attendance almost filling the convention hall at the King Edward. I didn't think until then that we had such a great body of Ontario farmers who were giving their time and putting their efforts into the service of their people in this province.

"I have been at various conventions, and I can say that I never heard resolutions so ably and thoroughly discussed as were the 45 or more that were presented to the Federation delegates.

"If you never get to meetings of that size you may wonder about where our money is spent, but when you see what our farmers are trying to accomplish for us year after year you soon come to the conclusion that it is greatly worth while."

Mr. Stewart said it was too bad that more farmers do not attend the provincial convention.

He also paid tribute to Mrs. W. G. Barrie for the "excellent report" of the convention she gave at the Forum rally.

As to the attempt of invasion of Ontario by the WF"I, that subject was not included in President Henry Sharpe's agenda nor was it discussed beyond Mr. Graham's brief reference to the Westwood meeting.

"If there are any more of these meetings perhaps some of us should attend them and hear what is being said," Mr. Sharpe remarked.

Cobourg Play Criticized By Adjudicator

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Adjudicator Graham Suter said he found the play "Miranda," Cobourg's entry in the eastern Ontario drama festival Thursday night "an unwise choice."

The play, presented by the Cobourg Opera and Drama Guild, was good in presentation, Mr. Suter said, but was not prepared properly.

The English adjudicator said, however, that the group had made a noble effort and some good laughs were provided by the fantasy of a mermaid, wanting to live for a short period as a human.

The play, written by Peter Blackmore, was produced and directed by Alex de Noszody. The production and direction showed smoothness and conveyed an idea of pace.

But Mr. Suter told the group more theatrical experience was necessary to bring this type of play up to festival standards. He added that many experienced actors did not have this type of skill.

He said the best performances were by Jane Field as the doctor's wife and Frances Kyte, the mermaid.

Mr. Suter was pleased with the costumes and stage management.

The festival continues tonight with the presentation of "The Curious Savage" by the Gateway Club of the Brockville Theatre Guild.

The Problem Of Red China

The U.S. Secretary of State, Mr. Dulles, has repeated his assurance that his government will not, under any circumstances, recognize the Peiping Communist regime as the government of China. Such assurances, in matters of diplomacy, must be taken with a pinch of salt. The plain fact is that the Peiping regime is the present government of China, that there is no sign whatever that it will be overthrown by any other group, and that it is administering the country in a way which, however we may dislike the principle behind it, is experienced and about as efficient as Chinese governments usually are. Britain has shown diplomatic realism in recognizing the Mao regime, and has more than once suggested that the U.S.A. should do the same. Certainly the U.S.A. will not do so for a time, but we do not see how it can continue its present course for years.

* * *

The U.S. attitude is unrealistic, and we must not suppose that great numbers of people in the U.S.A. do not know it. Their contention that the Chiang Kai-shek government is the rightful government of China must be embarrassing to them, for Chiang Kai-shek himself is discredited both as a democrat and a military leader, and can hardly be looked upon as the head of a government-in-exile. There is some feeling at U.N. that if Communist China had been recognized in time, there would have been no Korean war; no one can say this with certainty, but there is some colour in it. It is also speculation to suggest that the inclusion of Communist China in U.N. might improve the situation in Indo-China; this seems likely enough.

* * *

But the word Communist sticks in American throats. Admission of China into U.N. does not imply approval of Communism; it is simply a recognition of a plain political fact. However, U.S. feeling is so heated on this matter that only a long campaign of persuasion and public education would make it possible for the government to change its mind about the Peiping regime. Not U.S. diplomats, but the U.S. electorate, have to learn the place of compromise and realism in international affairs.

The Built-In Compass

A real Canadian, we have been told by visitors from abroad, may be known by his built-in compass. If you ask him for directions, he is likely to say, 'Go four blocks south, then turn east and go on to the first turn, and it's a few houses north of that'. This is likely to leave the enquirer dizzy, unless he is also a real Canadian. If he is not, he will ask somebody who will tell him to go four blocks straight ahead, left at the first turn, and then left again. There is nothing much to choose between the two methods of direction, though we have a personal fancy for the one which employs the points of the compass. We are always fairly sure which direction is north, but the right-hand, left-hand business can get us pretty badly mixed up.

Why Canadians have built-in compasses, we do not know. Perhaps it was something which came into being in the days when streets were few and journeys were long. It is not easy to travel through the woods by the points of the compass, but to walk in the woods on the right and left principle is downright impossible.

We see that a proposal has been made that Toronto's Yonge Street should be a one-way thoroughfare, south-bound in the morning and northbound in the evening. But apparently there is some feeling that a lot of people do not know North from South, and cannot be blamed.

How anybody can be in Toronto and not know North from South is a mystery to us. The lake is south, in a rough, general way, and you can always tell where the lake is in summer because you can smell it. And in winter you can tell which way is north on Yonge Street, because the farther you go in that direction the worse the street-cleaning is seen to be.

But Toronto is getting to be a big city and we suppose it is full of New Canadians who have no built-in compass. Still, if we live in so easily to their imported notions, how will the poor creatures ever develop such a handy fixture?

Kitchener claims to be the only city in the world with a sixth-floor armoury, though there are a lot of families who have their suspicions of battalion drill among the people in the flat upstairs.

Dr. Neatby On The Air

Though we do not make a habit of calling attention to radio programs, we think that many of our readers may like to be reminded that they can hear Dr. Hilda Neatby debate on the air in the Citizen's Forum tonight from 7:45 p.m. until 8:30, from CBL. With Dr. C. E. Phillips of the Ontario College of Education, and Dr. R. O. MacFarlane, formerly deputy minister of Education in Manitoba, she will discuss education.

Dr. Neatby is unquestionably the most controversial figure in education in Canada today. Her book, So Little For The Mind, has been very widely discussed. Some people have hailed it as a welcome trumpet call to reform our ten provincial educational systems—all of which are more or less fashioned in the pattern which the late John Dewey created, and which is usually called 'progressive education'. Others, among whom are many professional administrators of education, can hardly find words strong enough in which to express their detestation of the book. Whichever side you belong to, or if you belong to neither, a chance to hear Dr. Neatby is not to be missed.

As we have already explained in these columns, The Examiner is mildly Neatbyite. Agreeing with her that modern schooling suffers from too much educational priestcraft and pseudo-learned nonsense, we nevertheless feel that education is vastly better than it was in our own schooldays, when rigidity of discipline and aridity of curriculum combined to make a school a prison. If modern Canadian schools were as bad as Dr. Neatby suggests, children would learn nothing and would be undisciplined barbarians; the plain fact is that they appear to learn quite a lot, and unless we are much mistaken they are better-behaved than they were years ago.

In short, there is much to be said on both sides of the controversy, and a chance to hear what the debaters have to say should be welcome.

New Weapons All Round

"The Reds Have New Weapons", a headline reads. So they have. So has every other colour of nation (even black) in this new age, when peace seems to be no more, and there shall be no moon or stars men cannot use as a target. Side by side with our news report of the speech by Defence Minister Marshal Bulganin in a special order of the day for the thirty-sixth anniversary of the Red Army, a speech in which he called on increased vigilance and competence in using the most modern weapons, was a London report that the Royal Navy has new weapons to combat submarines, sea mines and attacking planes.

Canada has new weapons, too. This newspaper has had a whole series of pictures and news accounts about them. The United States can boast of modern military equipment, also—and probably boasts of only a small part of what it has. There is, for instance, a U.S. Navy "convertiplane" which can fly horizontally with a propeller motor, and land or take-off vertically with helicopter motors. The U.S. has new big guns, too, to fire atomic missiles. Everybody has new weapons, from Zanzibar to Canada, from H-bombs to rifles. (Canada is just getting the latter.)

In mentioning these new instruments of destruction we might point out that there is still truth in the old saying that there is nothing new under the sun. That U.S. "convertiplane", for instance; a common plane with helicopter equipment, it would seem. And every war brings new weapons. By the time the war is ending they may be only on the drafting-boards of the combatant nations, if it has ended too soon to put them to test and render obsolete the weapons the war began on. (Remember the Boyes Anti-Tank rifle—the pipe with a trigger that might have knocked out a humming-bird, if properly aimed?) So it is nothing new to hear of new weapons after a war.

There is something to give us pause, however. Nothing new under the sun? Well, those A-bombs and H-bombs really are new, but they come out of the sun, not from under it. And that's the rub, and they are dangerous. A test explosion the other day blew a whole island miles long and miles wide right out of existence.

Another matter that gives us pause for solemn thought is that, unlike other pre-war periods, the nations now are parading their new weapons in a most belligerent way, recklessly, tauntingly. 'Anything you can do, we can do better. Want to see?' That is the trouble—not the new weapons which are not all so terribly new, but the number of them and the show of them. In the old days between wars, nations used to "show the flag." That scared off would-be aggressors, or interference with the status quo. Now the noise is too realistic for comfort, the times too battle-smoked to see mere flags.

News comes from Australia that that country has finally beaten its rabbit problem. By a hare's breadth?

Formosa Dream And Reality

By O. M. GREEN

FORMOSA has two Governments; and the future of the islands depends on which rule predominates in the future. For side by side with General Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalist Government, whose policy — some have said justification for existence — is based on the hope of one day invading the Chinese mainland, and overthrowing the Communists, is a provincial Government, a purely domestic administration, that is bringing new prosperity to Formosa.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Chiang Kai-shek Government is of course the one that is chiefly in the news. Chiang is President of the Nationalist Government, as well as Commander-in-Chief of the armed forces. (He offered yesterday (February 15) to stand down from next month's presidential elections, but was urged by all the Kuomintang leaders to accept nomination.) In his New Year broadcast he called 1954 "a decisive year," and added: "The time for striking back at the mainland is not far distant." And more than fourteen thousand Chinese ex-prisoners who fought with the Communists in Korea have now landed on Formosa — joyfully, by all reports.

A large camp has been prepared for them, where they are to undergo four months' "re-indoctrination," in case they should have imbibed dangerous thoughts while in the Red army. And after that all but a few of the oldest are expected to join the Nationalist Army.

✧ ✧ ✧

ONLY LAST WEEK the Nationalist Premier General Chen Cheng, said plans for a counter-attack on the mainland were being made, "irrespective and independent of whether there was another world conflict."

Yet while all this bellicose talk goes on—and that Formosa must be able to defend itself against a Communist attack is undeniable — to outside observers there is a sad contrast between this persistent dream of a Nationalist victory over the Communists, and the growing prosperity of Formosa's industry —which, incidentally, offers abundant work for the ex-prisoners from Korea.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS PROSPERITY, like the rest of Formosa's affairs, is in the hands of the Provincial Government, which is headed by Dr. O. K. Yui, once a respected business man of Shanghai, with a Provincial Assembly.

Trade balances, improving month by month in 1953, ended with the fine record in December of £6,184,370 worth of exports and only £2,408,200 of imports.

The principal contributions came from sugar — which earned Formosa £32,223,414, nearly double the 1951 figure, last year—and rice. The best rice harvest under Japanese rule was 1,402,000 tons; last year it was 1,604,000 tons; and that for 1954 is expected to be 150,000 tons higher.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE OUTLOOK for cotton, in both raw material and textile form, is also favourable. This year it is hoped that after meeting local needs, Formosa will have twenty five thousand bales of cotton yarn to export — a modest figure, but only the beginning. In 1949 Formosa had only ten thousand spindles at work. This year there should be 178,000.

Fifty business firms, mostly from Hong Kong and Macao, have applied for permission to set up industries in Formosa. A further promising development is that the Bank of Taiwan (Formosa) is now permitted to advance money to foreign importers of certain industrial raw materials, the Provincial Government having allocated 12,015,000 U.S. dollars worth of foreign exchange for this purpose.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE LAND REFORM scheme by which landlords sell all their land except about seven and a half acres for the value of two and a half years' crops to the Government which resells to the peasants on easy terms, has been praised by foreign observers. A social insurance scheme, which includes maternity benefits, to which the employer contributes sixty per cent, the worker and the Provincial Government twenty per cent each, appears to be working well.

Formosa's railways did record business last year, and 566 ships entered the chief port, Keelung. Of these 158 were American, 142 British, 116 Japanese, sixty Danish and 42 Norwegian.

✧ ✧ ✧

THESE good results would not have been possible without the assistance which the United States has given so lavishly. The point to emphasise is that this help has been so widely used. In contrast, for instance, to the reckless squandering and corruption in the Philippines); and although Formosa still has to import many commodities from metals to matches, it may reasonably hope that it will soon make itself much that is now bought abroad. That day, incidentally, would come sooner if the Nationalist Government did not take seventy per cent of the revenue for military expenses.

The difference between the policies of the Provincial and the Nationalist Government is matched by the difference between populations.

✧ ✧ ✧

OF THE TOTAL 8,260,000 (by last year's census) on the island, 650,000 were Chinese refugees from the mainland and roughly 7,610,000 natives who have been there for many generations.

These Taiwanese, as they are generally called, are bound by many ties — a common origin (they all originally came from Fukien Province, across the straits); common dialect, the most difficult of all for other Chinese to master; complete lack of interest in the mainland; a growing feeling that they belong to Formosa and Formosa to them.

✧ ✧ ✧

NO TAIWANESE can obtain office in the Nationalist Government; but more and more of them are holding high positions in the Provincial Government. They also elect their own Provincial Assembly. Short of some unforeseeable disaster, it would seem that the authority of the Provincial Government must gradually supersede that of the Nationalist—which, after all, is only a visitor, and none too welcome a visitor.

And that a Taiwanese Government might eventually claim recognition by the rest of the world as a self-sufficient, viable State seems by no means impossible.

LET ME OUT

"Now frankly," the surgeon warned, "I must inform you that this is a very serious operation. Four out of five patients die under it. Is there anything I can do for you before I begin?"

"Yes," said the patient, "help me on with my shoes and pants."

An American Opinion: DID EVER A PROSPECTIVE MOTHER HAVE A WORSE TIME?

Letters To The Editor

THINGS ARE TOUGH ALL OVER

SIR: Unions have been the answer in protecting workmen against a small percentage of rapacious employers of late, however the relation of labour to selling price is placing a value to our Canadian textiles, etc., beyond what anyone in this world is willing to pay. We can now boast of having the most expensive country to live in on this globe.

We felt a glow of pride over Canada's deep sea merchant fleet's progress after 1945. During the last 3 years it has evaporated by a series of wage hikes, etc; transferred now to English, German, Portuguese, Norwegian, etc. registry. With the completion of the St. Lawrence seaway, we'll require quite a few linguists, while we stand by lackadaisically, on the dock on the dole.

Before the recent unsuccessful strikes of the Northern Gold Mines in which 100,000 people, dependent on the industry (already government subsidized to keep alive) had to sit many moons (bossed by remote control) twiddling their thumbs. Last summer, some of the labour leaders had a stroke of genius and were insisting that the automobile industry should guarantee all workers a yearly salary (let George sell the cars).

It seems that there are two things people fear more than death; (1) what their neighbours think of them, (2) being put on any spot, where it is necessary to use their individual logic and reason.

As a caravan travels with the speed of its most decrepit camel, so, will any kind of a gathering, the herd instinct seems to hypnotize them into a state were some loud-mouth moron can push them into mob hysteria.

Witness, currently the the Cairo, Calcutta, Madrid, Trieste, Rome, etc., student riots, the "educated" most easily led by some "Mad Monk."

We seem now to be again on a "Witch Hunt" to find someone to throw the book at over the employment situation.

In the late 1930's, R. B. Bennett was our colossal villain. (In England he was knighted and appreciated). Hoover had "ruined" the United States, Hitler, to protect Germany, had a demented youth executed as a "Communist" for burning the Riechstag (which Hitler burnt), and so on.

The future can only be judged by the past. Our weaknesses will need to be dragged into the open, that we may avoid these repeated mistakes, and make progress.

Yours truly,
ROY BRAYLEY.

LUTHER, FAITH AND WORKS

SIR: In reply to "Observer's" letter, I would like to make a few comments.

"Observer" states that the movement which Martin Luther started reached the very necessity of good works for salvation. I read in Eph. 2, 8 and 9 "For by grace are ye saved through faith, and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast." Also other of Paul's writings bear out this doctrine. Read Ro. 3:19-28, Rom. 5, Gal. 2:18-21, 3:7-29, Titus 3:5-7. This doctrine was not started by Martin Luther or his followers but was divinely inspired and written by the Apostle Paul. A true Christian does not practice good works because he is trying to save himself. He practices them because, out of a heart of love for God, he desires to please him.

I notice "Observer" failed to comment on the fact which was brought out in the picture that Martin Luther could not find a love for God in his heart while regarding Him as a stern judge who is always demanding self-inflicted punishment as reparation for sins. All God requires of us is repentance for sin: "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish," Luke 13:3, and acceptance of Christ into our heart and life "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus and shalt believe in thine heart —thou shalt be saved," Rom. 10:9.

However, we must not stop here The next verse says, "For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness." Therefore we conclude that if the belief has not resulted in good works then it has not reached the heart. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the Kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven" Matt. 7:21. "Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord," Heb. 12:14.

What parent would not rather have his child do things to please him because he loved him than because he feared punishment if he failed to please?

Sincerely,
"A BELIEVER"

GOVERNMENT AID FOR THE ARTS

SIR: The recent appeals for financial aid to the National Ballet Company and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra prompt me to write this letter to your publication.

The appeals for help should, of course, meet with the warmest response but, it seems to me, that what we also need is quite a bit of indignation and the directing of such indignation into positive and constructive channels.

Why should Miss Cecila Franca have to appeal for help to keep the National Ballet alive? Why should her company wander from one building to another because of the lack of a permanent studio? Yes, why should these and other hardships and indignities be forced upon the Ballet Company, the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, our dramatic groups, painters, sculptors, composers and writers, in the richest province of our immensely rich country? Why, indeed?

I know that our Ontario situation is not an isolated one and that the Massey Report contains a number of proposals to make things a bit easier for our struggling artists. But so far, nothing practical has come from the Massey Report's minimum proposals. Everyone concerned with the development of our artistic and cultural life, must, of course, join hands in an effort to get action from Ottawa. But what of our own Ontario government? Why should it not assume a fair portion of responsibility for the development of our talents and the flowering of our arts? I think that it should and I know that it could well afford it, but I also know that it will require a lot of public pressure to get them to do their evident duty.

This letter, as you see, is quite frankly an appeal to you and your readers to help develop an articulate and effective public demand on our provincial government to enter this field in a permanent manner.

That the Frost government should contribute liberally to the present appeals of the Ballet and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and other Ontario institutions goes without saying. But it is not enough for the government (with annual surplusses of up to $58 million) to throw a lifeline to a sinking cultural organization. What is required is government aid that will make possible the further development of a distinctly Canadian expression in the arts — so necessary to combat the overwhelming U.S. influence; so desired by our artists, writers and musicians; so thwarted by lack of financial sustenance. The surfeiting of our people with the shoddy products of U.S. commercialized art makes the plight of our struggling Canadian cultural institutions all the more challenging.

During the 1952 session of the Ontario Legislature, I urged the establishment of a special branch for cultural activities within the Department of Education, the appointment of a full-time, competent director for that branch and the setting aside of a minimum of $250,000 a year for the work of this branch.

Now that we are in a new session of the Legislature, and with the plight of the Ballet and Toronto Symphony Orchestra fresh in the minds of the people, it should be possible to create sufficiently strong pressure on the government to bring about action along the general lines of my proposal.

Will you help to achieve such an objective? I sincerely hope that you will.

Respectfully yours,
J. B. SALSBERG.

CORRECTION

SIR: Your editorial in Saturday's paper (which I receive on Monday afternoon) was excellent up to a certain point. The sentence —"But upon the whole we like you very much and think that you are going to make at least as good a job of the world when your time comes as we have done" — should read "But upon the whole we like you very much and hope that you will not make such a ghastly job of the world as we have done."

Yours,
H. J. STREATER.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees. Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompense: he will come and save you. Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert. (Isa. 35: 3-6.)

And John calling unto him two of his disciples sent them to Jesus saying, Art thou he that should come? or look we for another?

When the men were come unto him, they said, John Baptist hath sent us unto thee, saying, Art thou he that should come? or look we for another?

And in that same hour he cured many of their infirmities and plagues, and of evil spirits; and unto many that were blind he gave sight.

Then Jesus answering said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; now that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached. And blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in me. (Luke 7:19-23.)

Pearson Denies Pledging Canada's Help In Wartime

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson says there was nothing in his speech at Rollins College, Fla., last Sunday to justify a news report that he was pledging Canada's help to the United States in time of war.

CCF leader Coldwell questioned the report in the Commons Wednesday as Mr. Pearson returned to the chamber following a week's absence. Opposition Leader Drew had raised a similar question last Monday.

They apparently were referring to a dispatch from Winter Park, Fla., distributed in Canada by The Canadian Press, which said: "External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson tonight pledged Canada's help to the United States in the event of war."

Mr. Pearson said:

"I think in reading the text members will feel as I do that there was nothing in that speech which would justify the interpretation given to it by certain press accounts. To make that quite clear I think possibly I had better put on the record the last paragraph of this statement as so much attention seems to have been devoted to it.

NO AUTOMATIC "YES-MAN"

"I said in the statement which I made at Rollins College, Fla., 'You will find Canada no automatic "yes-man" but a staunch and loyal friend, especially in time of difficulty.'

"I went on to give some evidence of that in peace and war and then I finished my statement as follows:

"'Canada is a young country, crying out for development; a country of vast distances, expensive and difficult to govern and to administer. Hers is not a determining voice when the big international decisions are to be made, nor will her contribution be decisive in the conference room or where the conflict rages. It might therefore be tempting to try to stand aside in any struggle between the giants and excuse that course by arguing that those who call the tune should pay the piper.

"'But that is not the way we feel about it. The conflict today is not between empires, or between one super-power and another, but between freedom and slavery, despotism and democracy, right and wrong. So we range ourselves on the side of freedom, under the leadership of the United States of America, and we will play, I hope, a good part in the long and unending fight for peace and a decent world.'"

Recommend Detailed Survey Of Provincial Conservation

TORONTO (CP) — A detailed conservation survey of the province was recommended today by the Ontario legislature's conservation committee.

The survey would determine how much forest cover, dams and soil re-education is needed for the best conservation of land and water resources.

Planning and Development Minister Warrender approved the suggestion, providing funds can be found to carry it out.

The committee decided to invite interested groups to appear before the committee, the first of its kind in the legislature for several years.

Proposed amendments to the Conservation Authorities Act, including one which would allow such authorities to be established in northern Ontario, were discussed.

ALLOW TOWNSHIP ACTION

The amendment would allow municipalities such as Neebing township at the Lakehead to establish a proper organization to combat flooding.

Another amendment would allow two or more adjoining authorities to unite their efforts.

Everett Weaver (PC—St. David's) suggested some control over farmers who take off topsoil to sell at high prices to urban residents.

Opposition leader Farquhar Oliver said this would be "a dangerous invasion of private rights."

Stanley Hunt (PC — Renfrew) said the regulation governing the cutting of trees on private property should be applied to the removal of topsoil.

C. E. Janes (PC—Lambton East) said flooding removes much topsoil which is difficult to replace.

Five-Point Margin Held By Toronto Over Collis Cagers

Toronto's intermediate "B" girls basketball champions, theT rotters ,took a slim five-point lead in the Ontario quarthe Trotters, took a slim five-point lead in the Ontario quarters took the small lead in the first game of the two-game points-to-count series by winning 55-50 Wednesday night in Harbord Collegiate. Basing their prediction on the first game's play, the Collis girls are confident they'll win the second game and the series Friday night when the return game is played at the YWCA gym, beginning at 8:30. The winner of this series will enter the provincial semi-finals against either Brantford or St. Catharines.

Featuring two tall girls, especially one named Kirwood, a six-foot two-inch centre, the Trotters relied upon rebounds to control the game, particularly in the second half. Collis had trouble jumping against that height under both baskets.

GOOD SHOOTING

The Trotters' best feature was their shooting. Black was particularly a standout in this line as she stood at centre court, dropping in five long field baskets which helped her total 11 points. The Trotters' high scorer was McCloskey who worked well from in close and far out for 12 points.

Once again Collis relied upon shifty Joan Dunk for the majority of points. By driving in for layups or for jump shots she paced the Collis lasses to the lead in the second quarter and then attempted a revival which fell short in the fourth quarter. In all she scored 20 points.

Trotters' Black with two long shots gave the Toronto champions a slim 6-5 lead in the first quarter when Pauline Stewart and Climaxing the best OHA senior "B" group race in Central Ontario for years, the four semi-finalists are fighting right down to the wire for playoff positions with the schedule winding up Saturday. It's a real dogfight between Oshawa and the TPT Petes for top spot, while Kingston and Orillia battle bitterly to move up from that fourth position —and we won't know the final standing for playoff berths till the end of the week. Semi-finals commence early next week, but one can't name the exact day until it is known which team meets which in each playoff bracket. Kingston plays Petes here Friday, as Orillia goes to Oshawa, while Saturday sees Orillia at Belleville, and the Petes ending the schedule in Kingston.

Mike Rodden of Kingston writes: "In accordance with old custom tactics likely will be drastically altered in playoff time. Defensive measures will be stressed to limit and results could be startling, having little in common with past performances. The first goal of any game takes an added importance whereas during the regular season its value was questionable. To date, each of the playoff teams has followed an independent competitive pattern. None has been consistent unless Peterborough can be excused. The Petes, no world beaters on the road, won 13 consecutive games at home before Orillia held them to a 3-3 deadlock last Friday.

Aces Play Port Perry

Oshawa, using Port Perry for home ice, tackles our juvenile Aces tonight at Civic Arena, return tilt of their home-and-home OHA juvenile "A" playdown series. Aces lead by four goals, and a win will send them into the next provincial playdown round. Angus Bradley is manager of the smart young Aces, while Bill Crowley has been coaching them this semester in PMHA play. Two other local PMHA teams are in Ontario playdowns, too, in "A" classes. Local midget Shamrocks, backed by the Police Athletic Association; and the bantam Shamrocks, who are sponsored by the local branch of the Commercial Travellers Association. Both are coached by Pat Doherty and managed by Dave Hayes, the midgets having stepped up from bantam last year after winning the OMHA crown over Guelph. They await word on first playdown rounds.

The shades of night are falling fast for the Junior Petes, and the blind may be drawn Saturday up Port Perry way. They lost 7-5 here last p.m. and now face the heruclean task of taking four straight to win group honors. Penalties hurt 'em again last night, and they were short three players, including Jim Morrow who was suspended the day before for a year because of an attack a week ago on Referee Larry Heffering in Port Perry. A stiff sentence — and club officials sure grumbled plenty about it —but the OHA is cracking down hard on players who tangle the with arbiters. Coach Red Creighton is out for three games for leaving the bench to go on the ice during a game, and the redhead is burning over that, too. Kevin Heffernan proved most effective for the locals, who hope to whip Ports in Port Perry. The club is sending one or two busses for fans only up Saturday, leaving the terminal (where tickets must be picked up by two p.m.) at seven in the e'en.

Treasurer at Centre

Ford Warren, manager of the Bank of Montreal, has agreed to be treasurer of the general committee of the Memorial Community Centre — a highly important post. The various committees or sub-committees required will be set up this Saturday afternoon at a two o'clock meeting of the general Centre committee in the City Hall. Site, finance, publicity committees, etc., will then be prepared to assume their tasks as soon as the private bill is passed permitting the city to obtain a site within Morrow Park. Just what spot in the park has not been decided upon as yet. A week from Sunday, Chairman D. A. McGillis, Mayor Graham and eight or nine more members will inspect the Kingston Centre, with no expense to the Peterborough fund for the trip.

With monotonous regularity, local police constables have to escort Al and Tiny Mills through threatening mat fans to their room at the Brock almost every time they show here in a main bout. Or there'd be a free-for-all, for sure. So it happened again last p.m. after they won the top bout when Hombre Montana was disqualified. Of course, Hombre shouldn't have teed off on the ref besides belting the Mills to the mat. But he didn't like having his beard pulled out by the roots as it took the big grappler a long time to grow it. His partner, Fred Atkins, was injured (getting a nasty one in the groin) for the second fall, after he had pinned Tiny Mills for the opener. Earl McCready downed Pat Flanagan in the semi-windup, while Nanjo Singh and Jack Bence drew in the preiim.

Oshawa Roller Captures Region Singles

Peterborough bowlers made a fine showing at Campbellford when 80 trundlers took part in the Molson Classic regional singles to declare a winner to represent this region at the Toronto Sportsmen's Show next month. Bowlers from Oshawa, Whitby, Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg, Peterborough, Brighton, Trenton, Madoc, Stirling and Campbellford competed, with C. Heath of Oshawa taking top honors with 2067 for eight games.

Another Oshawa roller, H. Sarnowsky was second with 1988. "Tic" Caccavella of Peterborough was third with 1902, followed closely by local bowlers Fred Martin with 1899, Jerry Bradley 1894, Bill Boon 1879, Jack Barnes and Bob Patton 1866 each, and Bud Goodson with 1850. Peterborough placed seven in the first 10 bowlers in a fine showing.

Other local bowlers in the competition were H. Killen, A. Whiteside, W. Harris, H. Gordon, N. Gordon, V. Ferguson, D. Vyse, M. Akers, Joe Watson and F. Wood.

DIDN'T MAKE IT

Last year's winner, George (Turk) Walton of Peterborough, failed to qualify for the playoffs this year.

"Toots" Collins, regional director for the Classic, has announced that the team finals to be played at Peterborough will be this coming Saturday. Each team will roll eight games, four at Duffus' and four at Playfair. Ten teams will open the tourney at Duffus' at 10 a.m. and go again at Playfair at four p.m. At one o'clock, 12 teams will start each alley and again at seven in the evening. The regional trophy will be presented at the conslusion of the event.

Port Perry Takes 3-0 Lead In Set As Jr. Petes Lose

OOOOhhhhhh ! ! ! Those penalties ! ! Those little two-minute trips to the penalty box put Red Creighton's Junior Petes behind the eight-ball Wednesday night in the junior "B" group finals with Port Perry. While the Petes were off for minor infractions the Flyers took advantage of the odd man to score three goals in their 7-5 victory to take a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven series. Oooohhhh those penalties ! ! ! !

When the young Petes played on even terms with the Flyers, they could match them rush for rush, and even carried an edge on the territorial play and scoring. But when they were a man short, the Flyers were flying about Bob Delehaye in the Petes' goal.

After spotting the Flyers the first goal (when the Petes were short), the Junior Petes rallied to tie the score. Then they took the lead twice, only to have the Flyers tie the score twice in less than a half-minute both times.

Going into the second tied at three-all, the Petes once more ran into penalty trouble. This time it was disastrous. The Ports on their powerful power play scored twice and never looked back.

PETES TIRED

The Ports went on to a 6-3 score at the end of the second and then held on throughout the third as the tired, short-handed Petes vainly attempted a rally, dogged penalties, and fell short.

Coach Red Creighton, suspended three games Tuesday by the OHA for going on the ice in the second game, watched his lads go down to defeat from the gondola, above the Petes' bench. Dootch Vitarelli was handling the team.

Besides missing Jim Morrow, suspended a year, also on Tuesday by the OHA, for the second game fracus, the Petes were without the services of starry forward, Bob Gardiner, and defenceman, John Pue. Their absence caused the over-worked Petes to tire quickly.

Just the same the Young Petes gave the Flyers more trouble than they bargained for. In fact at times the Petes hemmed the Flyers well in, completely disorganizing their defence. But Flyer's goalie, Ross Howe, came through in the pinches with stellar goaltending once again.

At times the Flyers also had their share of penalties and would have suffered the same fate of the Petes if Howe hadn't been so spectacular in the net. Twice, in the second and early in the third,

Lakefield Triumphs Over Pt. Hope In 3-1 Playoff Fray

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—In a fast, rugged OHA intermediate "A" lakeshore group semi-final here last night, Lakefield Lumbermen downed Port Hope Redmen 3-1. It was their first series win, following two victories for the Ports and a tie game. A wide-open fracas broke out with 40 seconds left in the game, players tangling and a bunch of fans mixing it. Four major penalties were handed out, Birch and Floyd of Lakefield, and Tod and Al Lintner of Port Hope getting the official ire.

Some 600 fans saw a tight fray on good ice. Lakefield had a little edge most of the way, Red Wasson in the other net proving a big stumbling block to the home squad, and Ray Harding shining for Lakefield Lumbermen.

Medhurst got the lone Port Hope goal, while the whole home team stood out in a neat showing. Their scoring was well spread around in this game. The teams tangle in Port Hope on Friday.

LED IN FIRST

Lakefield took a 2-0 lead in the first period, Floyd hitting the hemp on a pass from Cam Wasson. Red stopped one shot but was off-balance for the rebound. Racine and McCracken went off for hooking and slashing, and later Hogan got it for boarding. Taking advantage of the extra man, Joe Blewett (playing his second season's game for Lakefield) scored late in the heat, aided by Ace Reid.

Douglas went off in the second for elbowing, and Hunter and Caravaggio combined smartly to tally. Wilson went over for boarding and Richlark for interference to leave Lumbermen shy two but the Ports were checked well. Later, Turner got it for high-sticking, A. Lintner for a similar offence, and Freeman and Blewett for roughing. Medhurst finally scored for Port Hope on a slap shot, Turner and Gordon being in on the play.

The third period was fast and exciting but scoreless, both goalies starring. The ice became heavy later but the pace kept fast. McCracken drew an early sentence for high-sticking, with Richlark later getting it for tripping, Birch following right away for slashing, but Lakefield held the fort. In the final minute, the lid blew off with a couple of fights breaking out on the ice and one in the stands but no players got into the latter. Referee Bun Kingdon handled the tilt well. Teams:

Port Hope—Goal, R. Wasson; defence, Douglas, Fennell; centre, McKeen; wings, Freeman, Buckton; alts., Medhurst, Turner, Gordon, A. Lintner, T. Lintner, Racine, Hogan, Hoy.

Lakefield—Goal, Harding; defence, Wilson, Richlark; centre, McCracken; wings, Floyd, N. Wasson; alts., C. Wasson, Caravaggio, Blewett, Hunter, D. Wasson, Birch, Hopkins, Reid.

Champions Clash For Honors In Badminton

By DON MATHESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Battles between the champions start tonight in the second day of the four-day Canadian badminton championships.

The selectors stuck to form as they set up the 112 matches that opened play Wednesday.

Both defending singles champions, Don Smythe and Marjory Shedd of Toronto, breezed through their games to lead every seeded player to the quarter-finals in the five open events.

Only in the junior events did the matchmakers miss. Third-seeded William Pidgeon of Oakville, Ont., and fourth-seeded Valerie Brown of Winnipeg were sidelined in second-round matches after tough battles in their opening draws.

It wasn't smooth smashing all the way for the masters of the feather touch, but no seeded player in singles, doubles or mixed events was ever in very serious trouble.

Bev Westcott of Toronto, second-seeded in men's singles, Johnny Bouck, Vancouver, seventh-seeded, and sixth-seeded Tom Matthews of Winnipeg found themselves behind in one of their two fourth-round games, but pulled out to win in extra points and sweep both games.

QUARTER-FINAL WINS

Smythe (1), Daryl Thompson, Vancouver (3), Jack Muir, Toronto (4), Dave McTaggert, Vancouver (5) and Bruce Beham, Vancouver (8), joined the other seeded players in the quarter-finals with fast victories.

They'll start to bat one-another down tonight, with the draw pitting first-eighth, second-seventh, third-sixth, and fourth-and-fifth seeded against each other.

The only four players seeded in the women's singles will clash in the semi-finals, barring upsets, tonight.

Jean Bardsley and Lois Reid of Vancouver drew a bye and then moved into the quarter-finals of the women's doubles with a 15-2, 15-4 win over Eileen Nicol of Edmonton and Helen Baxter of Calgary.

Smythe and Johnny Bouck of Vancouver moved into the quarter-finals of the men's doubles, while top-seeded Miss Bardsley and Thompson led the way to the quarter-finals of the mixed event.

Mills Brothers Win Top Grapple Bout When Atkins Hurt

Police had to escort the victorious Mills brothers through an angry crowd to their dressing-room at the Brock St. Arena last night—with Referee Joe Gollob also under the police wing—after hombre Montana was disqualified for knocking Al and Tiny Mills around the ring and then dropping Gollob twice to the floor for good measure. The big bearded South American definitely went berserk in the final round. He was carrying the whole load for his side after Fred Atkins was injured in the second fall and couldn't come back. Al Mills tackled Hombre and started rasping his eyes. He crowded him to a corner and then yanked out a hand full of Montana's black beard That did it! Hombre tore into him and into Tiny — who rushed to his rescue—and finally into the ref, who was trying to pull him off. The enraged Argentina grappler kept flailing away at all and sundry with his mighty mitts till all were down. Finally, the dazed arbiter got up, signalled that it was all over, and raised the Mills' hands in victory. Hombre was hopping mad, and so was the crowd, but that's how it ended. Some fans tried to get at the Mills as they left.

NEARLY RUPTURED

Atkins was badly hurt after 12 minutes of the second round. He had been punishing Al Mills with his pile-driver specialty when Al hoisted him high and brought him down hard straddling the top rope —to almost rupture Fred. Mills then threw his opponent over the strand and Fred hit his back hard on the apron of the ring before falling heavily to the arena floor. He was counted out there, and minutes later had to be helped to his room, being unable to resume the bout. Before the finish, Hombre and Tiny in turn took quite a beating in enemy quarters as the four grapplers roughed it hard, Tiny using grease from his long locks to rub into Montana's eyes at times.

The 251-pound Atkins won the opening fall in 13 minutes over Tiny, bumping the beam at 274, with a series of pile-drivers as he and the bulky 325-pound Montana worked fast in relays on this rival. Hombre used smashes to the jaw as his contribution, but Australian Fred did most of the damage and most of the work in this session. He was rugged from the start to hold his own with both Tiny and Al (who went 255), despite their rough repertoire of eye-rasps, hair-pulling, gouging, chokes and once a bite on the leg. Tiny tried to escape punishment by going through the ropes, but Atkins showed him no mercy, and the fans were jubilant when the fall was counted out by the harassed referee.

McCREADY WINS

Driving-in Earl McCready, at 247 pounds, took the semi-final over 232-pound Pat Flanagan in 18 minutes with a rolling cradle hold, following several slams. Pat was set up for the fall when Earl ducked a flying tackle off the ropes and Pat went right on through to partly stun himself. Before that he showed plenty of action and was better on tackles and open work, but was punished plenty on the mat by a hammerlock. They dished up a surprisingly clean and scientific bout to keep the customers happy and impartial, while the referee had an easy time of it in this tussle.

Nanjo Singh, going 234, and Jack Bence, weighing 226, battled to a prelim draw in 30 minutes. Nanjo was the villain of the piece, using such illegal and unethical stunts as biting and scratching, Gollob missing much of his villainy to the disgust of the crowd. Bence rallied for a time but found it hard to match the barrel of nasty mat tricks served up by the experienced Hindu. Jack even threatened to tackle the referee for not keeping his eyes open. They stalled around for a space and then opened it up near the finish, with Bence getting in his licks just before the gong.

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Joe Grasso, leading pitcher of St. Thomas Elgins in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League last year, has signed his 1954 contract with the Elgins.

Grasso, the first player to sign with the Elgins for this season, was chosen the most popular player of the year last season.

Local Players At RCAF For Badminton

The Central Ontario Badminton Tournament will again be held in Trenton RCAF station this year on February 26 and 27. The ladies' and men's doubles will be held Friday evening. The singles will be on Saturday morning starting at 10:30 while the mixed and senior men's will be Saturday afternoon with the finals on Saturday evening commencing at eight.

Players from Belleville, Picton, Trenton, Cobourg, Port Hope, Peterborough, Lindsay, Bowmanville, Oshawa and Ajax will participate with the Peterborough Badminton Club being entered in 51 events.

REACHED FINALS

Mrs. Ralph Charlton and Miss V. Rose reached the ladies' doubles finals last year only to be defeated by a strong Port Hope entry. Mrs. Marg Baker and Mrs. Charlton are entered this year and are first seeded team, the team in the ladies' doubles to beat.

Ralph Charlton is seeded second in the men's singles, and, with Gord Kerr and Ernie Neilson not in the tournament this year, will have a first rate chance of winning top prize. The Peterborough club won the senior men's doubles last year, with two teams in the playoffs. R. Charlton and W. Elmsley defeated Ed. Johnston and Bob Baker.

Bruins Win 5-3 From Rangers To Take 4th Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins weren't on the skids after all. Their 5-3 victory over New York Rangers Wednesday night showed they won't be pushovers for the fourth and last playoff berth in the National Hockey League. It was a key game for both clubs and the Bruins were in stride for it. They now lead the Rangers by three points, with 10 games left in the 70-game schedule. Leftwinger Dave Creighton scored two goals in less than a minute to lead the Bruins to their 26th victory of the season and dim Ranger hopes of overhauling them for the Stanley Cup playoffs.

It was the only league game. In an exhibition tilt, the last-place Chicago Black Hawks defeated the league-leading Detroit Red Wings 4-3 at St. Louis

At New York, a crowd of 13,465 fans saw the Bruins stop the Rangers cold from the start of the game. They jumped into a 2-0 lead and were leading 4-3 by the end of the second.

Rookie Doug Mohns, centre Milt Schmidt and defenceman Warren Godfrey got the other Boston markers. Wally Hergesheimer beat Boston netminder Sugar Jim Henry twice. Harry Howell scored the other.

TAKE 2-0 LEAD

Mohns sent the Bruins into a 1-0 lead at 5:25 of the first period on a play with centre Ed Sandford. Godfrey made it 2-0 midway through the session.

The Bruin drive picked up power in the second period, with Creighton scoring twice. That's when the New Yorkers came back with three straight counters.

The Rangers took over the play in the third period but couldn't tie the game. They gambled by taking goalkeeper Johnny Bower out in favor of a sixth attacker but Mackell scored in the empty nets

The loss left the Rangers in fifth spot with 59 points.

Two games are scheduled for tonight. Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens, tied for second place, meet at Montreal and the Red Wings meet Chicago.

Rocky Marciano Defends Title For Third Time

NEW YORK (AP)—Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano will make his third title defence at Yankee Stadium, Thursday, June 17, when he takes on Ezzard Charles, the former titleholder, in a 15-round bout.

The match has been in the hopper for some time and negotiations finally were completed Wednesday by promoter Jim Norris; Al Weill, manager of Marciano; and Tom Tannas, co-manager of Charles.

Marciano, who will be putting his crown on the block nine months after his successful defence against Roland La Starza will receive 40 per cent while Charles will collect 20 per cent.

In case of rain, Norris said the fight would be postponed to Monday, June 21.

Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, said no decision has been made on whether the fight will be televised into the homes or beamed into theatres. The chances are that theatre-TV will get the plum and home viewers will be shut out.

Blind Golfers To Meet In July

TORONTO (CP)—A two-day Canada-United States blind golfers tournament will be held here next July. Tentative dates have been set for July 21-22.

Details were announced Wednesday by the Royal Canadian Golf Association and a distillery who will jointly sponsor the 36-hole championship. The sponsors said it would be an annual event with all proceeds going to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Seven golfers from each country will compete with three titles at stake—team championship, international low score and Canadian low score. Competition this year will be limited to blind golfers of Canada and the U.S. but it is expected Britain and possibly other countries will compete in the future.

Canada will be host country for the annual matches.

The tournament will be added to the regular RCGA schedule annually. The RCGA will organize the championships and the distillery will pay all costs.

Saxton Wins 10-Round Bout

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Brash young Johnny Saxton outpunched and outmanoeuvred a back-pedalling and apparently disinterested Johnny Bratton to win an easy unanimous 10-round decision before a foot-stamping and booing crowd Wednesday night. Saxton weighed 148½ and Bratton 150.

Saxton lost one round as the 23-year-old New Yorker tried desperately to make a fight with the former 147-pound champion from Chicago. But Bratton apparently was in one of his no-fighting moods. The 26-year-old veteran punched little and continuously backed away from the aggressive Saxton.

A crowd of 6,838—who paid $27,369—booed, stamped feet, tossed papers into the ring and in general voiced their disgust with the inept Bratton.

Playoff Participants Matched To Decide OHA Senior A Series

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The 1953-54 schedule of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series was wrapped up Wednesday night and the playoff participants have been matched.

Owen Sound Mercurys, league-leaders who finished their schedule by dropping a 5-3 decision to the second-place Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen in Kitchener, chose Chatham Maroons for the first round of the best-of-seven-game playoffs. First game of the series will be in Chatham Friday.

Kitchener took Hamilton Tigers as opponents and their best-of-seven series will start in Kitchener Friday.

Windsor Bulldogs, who defeated Stratford Indians 3-1 in Stratford, start their series—also a best-of-seven affair—in Stratford Friday.

Bulldogs' victory gave them 59 points to tie them with Hamilton for third place. But Windsor has won 29 games while the Tigers have taken only 28.

CATARACTS ELIMINATED

Sixth-place Chatham Maroons wound up the schedule by walloping Niagara Falls Cataracts 9-0 in Chatham. The game, which meant nothing to the Maroons, completed all OHA Senior A hockey action for the Cataracts, who were put out of the running earlier in the season.

Kitchener's victory over the Mercurys let them finish the season only two points behind first place Doug Verity and Ken Laufman each scored two goals to lead the victory. George Scholes notched the other counter. Harry Kazarian, Roy Leckie and Herb Carnegie were the Owen Sound marksmen.

In Stratford the Bulldogs came from behind a 3-1 deficit with four consecutive goals for their victory over the Indians.

Gord Haidy and Fred Hildebrand each scored two for Windsor. Clarence Jaster bagged the other one. Keith Tolton, Ron Ingram and Dinny Flanagan were the Stratford snipers.

SCORED FOUR GOALS

Maroons scored four goals in the opening period, one in the second and four more in the third for their runaway win over the Cataracts. Jim Connelly led Chatham with three goals. Two went to Danny Blair and the rest were shared by Paul Oliver, Frank Bonello, Marty Zorica and Ed Didone.

Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians climbed out of the cellar in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Southern Group by defeating the Wolves 5-1 in Sudbury.

Ron Rubic, John Raynack, Marcel Clements, Dean McBride and Gord Kerr tallied one each for the Indians. Bill Barrett scored the only goal for the second-place Wolves.

The Indians play the league-leading Sault (Ont.) Greyhounds in Ontario tonight while Sudbury meets the Trappers in North Bay.

Marlene Stewart Loses Out In Golf Tourney

ORLANDO, Fla. (CP)—Canada's Marlene Stewart, acclaimed by her veteran partner Dutch Harrison as a girl who'll some day be up in the top ranks of the golfing world, bowed out Wednesday in the international mixed two-ball tournament here.

Harrison, who won the Canadian Open in 1949, had teamed up with the Fonthill, Ont., lass who won the British amateur title last year, for the dual event. And they went down fighting to Betty Dodd and Bill Kaiser, both Americans, 1 up.

In foul golfing weather they bucked torrential rain and a high wind to finish only one stroke over par 71 for the 18 holes, and came dangerously close to sending the match into extra holes.

The last hole brought the decision after Marlene and her Chicago partner had tied it up on the 17th after having been two down. And the decision was in doubt until Marlene trickled her putt past the cup on the water-soaked green.

MISSED BY ONE

Harrison had fallen about three feet short of the green on his approach, while Miss Dodd and Kaiser had got on in three, and were safe unless Miss Stewart made it on the difficult shot. It looked for a moment as if it might drop in, but it just missed and that ended the tournament for the pair.

However, Canada still has a contender in the event. Mrs. Alan McDougall of Saskatoon, teamed with Paul Kirby of Concord, N.H., play off today against favored Patty Berg of Chicago and Pete Cooper of Tampa, Fla.

They were tied after 14 holes when play ended for the day Wednesday.

Toronto Blues Win Basketball Tilt 77-60

TORONTO (CP)—University of Toronto Blues defeated University of Western Ontario Mustangs 77-60 in a senior intercollegiate basketball game Wednesday night.

It was the second victory in a row for the Blues. They defeated Assumption College of Windsor 74-53 Friday. The loss was also the first suffered by Western this year.

Hope Legislation Will Distribute Player Talent

NEW YORK (AP)—John Reed Kilpatrick, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation and a member of the National Hockey League's board of governors, has expressed the hope that the sport's proposed draft legislation will make for a more even distribution of player talent.

"Under our proposed setup it will be almost impossible for a team to be pushed to the bottom of the standings and stay there," Kilpatrick said Wednesday.

The changes are expected to be approved at a governors' meeting sometime next month.

The new setup in short will look something like this:

Each National League club will be able to protect 18 skaters plus two goalies. Every other player on the squad or on any of its farm clubs in the American, Western or Quebec Leagues will be subject to draft by another NHL team. The waiver price in each instance would be fixed at $15,000.

PRICE $15,000

In the event a club desires to send one of its protected players to a farm team, he first would have to be waived out of the National League, in which case he would become subject to the draft. He also could be claimed immediately by another big league team for $15,000.

Kilpatrick also revealed that if the New York Rangers qualify for the playoffs, the first two games of their semi-final series will be played in Madison Square Garden—probably March 23 and 25. Because the circus comes into the Garden March 31, the remainder of the Rangers' playoff games will have to be played on their opponents' ice.

Injured Forward Leaves Hospital

COBOURG (ENS) — Tom Hutton, Lindsay hockey forward injured in Monday night's game here with Cobourg, has returned home from Cobourg General Hospital.

In a hard, but legal, body check, Hutton crashed into the boards at the end of the rink. He was taken to the hospital with back injuries which were found to be of minor nature. After a period of observation at the hospital, he was discharged.

J. Barnes Rolls 324

J. Barnes rolled high single of 324 and A. Morrison top three of 823 this week in the Major Bowling League as Patterson's led teams with 3630 and a single of 1350. The 7-0 wins went to Hewitt, Crowley, Patterson's, Bartley, Edwards and Plaza over Lock, E & B, Revenoors, UE, Boucher and Sherbrooke. The 5-2 victories were taken by Seahorses, Wonder, Paramount, McLeod and Silents against Burtol, Curtis, Clements, Clapper and Goodson, as Selkirk's beat D & W 4-3.

Good scores: J. Goodson 769, D. Drummond 733, D. Tripp 733, R. Pearson 713, G. Walton (308) 762, R. Bennett 719, M. Doris 784, W. Stanbury 733, G. Niles 719, T. Collins 718, J. Barnes 720, A. Caccavella 724, R. Greenly 718, N. Collins 703 and a 309 single by A. Morrison.

TeePees Fly To Montreal For Five-Game Quebec Tour

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While the Memorial Cup is the climax as far as St. Catharines TeePees are concerned, Wednesday must have been a pretty hectic day for the league-leaders of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

One of the greatest thrills for the players must have been the plane trip from St. Catharines to Montreal to start their five-game interlocking tour with teams of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association junior league. The flight, first for most of the players, was made after the executive of the TeePees chartered a plane to help ease the effects of the strenuous schedule ahead of the St. Catharines team.

Each player was insured for $50,000. Total insurance for the entourage was $1,050,000.

Then Brian Cullen, captain of the TeePees and leading scorer in the OHA league, scored two goals and got an assist against Montreal Royals to set a scoring record for the Ontario junior loop. His two markers gave him a total of 59 goals, which added to his 83 assists, gave him 142 points—three more than the mark set by Ken Laufman of Guelph Biltmores during the 1951-52 season.

INCREASE LEAD

To top the night off the TeePees defeated the Royals 5-3 to increase their hold on first place to eight points over Toronto Marlboros.

Marlboros helped the TeePees by dropping a 3-2 decision to Toronto St. Michael's College Majors in Toronto. The victory, fourth in six meetings between the two Toronto teams this year, hoisted the third-place Collegians to within nine points of the Marlboros.

Montreal Canadiens, league-leaders of the Quebec league, improved their position with a 4-1 victory over Guelph Biltmores in Montreal.

Hamilton Cubs defeated Barrie Flyers 8-2 in Hamilton during the other game.

Brian Cullen's two-goal show against the Royals was matched by Cec Hoekstra. Don McLean scored the other one for the TeePees. Carl Wandowich, Stan Maxwell and Ed Eustace were the marksmen for the Royals.

KNOX SPARKLES

The lead changed hands twice in Toronto before Paul Knox scored two goals to tie and win the game for St. Michael's. Ken Gribbons scored the other goal for the Irish. Dave Reid and Wally Maxwell were the Marlboro snipers.

Although Guelph held a wide margin in play throughout most of the game against Canadiens, they couldn't beat the solid netminding of Gaetan Dessureault. Henri Richard led the Montreal attack with two goals. Claude Vinet and Warren Hynes collected one each. Erv Scott scored for the Biltmores.

In Hamilton the Cubs spotted the Flyers a goal but tied the score before the first period ended and went ahead to stay with two in the second. The score was 4-2 for Hamilton going into the third and four unanswered goals in the final period settled it.

Ted Reid and Val Mitchell scored two each for the winners. Others went to Marlin McAlendin, Bill Stewart, Brian Kilrea and Bob Robinson. John Martan and Jim Robertson were the scorers for the Flyers.

Galt is at Kitchener tonight.

Leaders Close In Quebec Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The race for the Quebec Hockey League championship is as tight as it ever was with Montreal Royals and Chicoutimi Sagueneens back in a tie for first place.

Wednesday, Royals defeated Quebec Aces 3-2, and moved into a tie with the idle Chicoutimi club.

In the only other game, third place Ottawa Senators downed the tail-end Springfield Indians 4-2.

At Quebec Royals were trailing 2-1 late in the third period when Dick Wray and Lulu Denis scored to give them the much-needed victory.

Red Johnson won the game almost single-handedly for Ottawa at Springfield. The husky forward rammed in three goals including the insurance marker.

Bisons Leading AHL Series By 16 Points

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons are on top of the American Hockey League by 16 points and appear headed for the championship, but looking at Wednesday's league scores the casual observer would never know it.

Providence Reds, last place 31 points behind Buffalo, humiliated the Bisons 13-5—setting a single game total goal record. Previous record was 16 goals set five years ago by Buffalo against a now-defunct Philadelphia club.

Pete Kapusta set the pace for Providence scoring three goals while teammates Chuck Scherza and Al Baccari got two apiece. Harry Taylor, Don Marshall, Gaye Stewart, Frank Eddolls and Gord Pennell were the Buffalo marksmen.

In the only other game Wednesday, Pittsburgh Hornets moved into third-place tie with Hershey Bears by beating Syracuse Warriors 7-2. Andy Barbe and Dan Lewicki scored two each for the victors while George Ford and Eric Pogue tallied for the Warriors.

M. Hawthorne Leads

Marg Hawthorne had high single of 281, as well as a 222, for a top double score of 503 this week in the Girls' City Bowling League. D. Martin's 350 for two was closest to the blind score of 349. Marines beat Cardinals 2-1 while 3-0 wins went to Black's, Bassel's, Sunoco and Curtin's over Aces, Austin's, Sevenaires and Collis in that order.

Good doubles: J. Moore 487, F. Kokesh 463, A. Anderson 451, R. Connolly 449, M. Thompson 443, M. Behan 440, P. Hawthorne 433, M. Wannamaker 421, E. Flint 417, N. Ephgrave and E. Basciano 416, T. 2 Western Rinks Trying For School Curling Honors

HAMILTON (CP) — Barring any major upsets, the 1954 Canadian high school curling championship will be decided today between Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

The two western Canada rinks, who have lost only one match each in seven games since the tournament started Monday, have double games in the windup today. If they end in a tie for first place, A playoff will be held tonight to crown a new champion.

The only other teams in the running are Northern Ontario and New Brunswick, tied for third place with four wins and three defeats. Two losses by Saskatchewan and Manitoba and two wins by Northern Ontario and New Brunswick would set up a four-way deadlock. But, it's highly unlikely.

Saskatoon Technical Collegiate won the Sifton trophy and Canadian championship in 1951 and again in 1952, before it was taken to the east last year by the Collegiate and Vocational Institute in Oshawa, Ont.

CLOSE CALL

The Winnipeg rink had a close call against Northern Ontario before winning 6-5. Play had been even during the entire game with the lead changing hands several times.

The score was tied at 5-5 going into the ninth end. Both rinks were determined to keep the house clean and when it came time for skip Terry Justice of Noranda, Que., to throw the final stone of the end he decided to put it through, thus reserving for himself the change of throwing the final stone in the 10th end.

The Noranda rink put on the pressure in the final end and it appeared it would count at least three. Skip Gene Walker of the Winnipeg rink made a nice shot with his final rock to lie shot. Justice was in a position to make a shot with his final stone that would normally have been easy for him. He had to take out Walker's stone and the game would have gone to Northern Ontario. But Justice's stone was heavy and went right through the house without touching Walker's shot rock.

A win by the Noranda rink would have given Saskatchewan sole possession of first place, and left Northern Ontario and Manitoba tied for second spot.

SASKATOON WINS

The Saskatoon rink moved into first place by defeating Winnipeg 8-7 with skip Bayne Secord throwing the stone that meant victory.

In other games, Saskatchewan registered the biggest score of the four-day championship in swamping Nova Scotia 22-5. New Brunswick had to go an extra end to do it but finally edged British Columbia 9-8. Ontario had an easy game in defeating Prince Edward Island 14-2. And Quebec scored a two-ender in the final end to squeeze out a 9-8 victory over British Columbia.

In afternoon matches, Northern Ontario edged Ontario 10-9 in a game that was not decided until the final end. British Columbia pulled a surprising 11-9 win over Nova Scotia in an extra end, New Brunswick posted a 14-8 win over Quebec and Alberta trounced Prince Edward Island 13-1.

British Columbia, Nova Scotia, Alberta and Ontario each had three wins and four losses for a fifth place tie. Quebec was in sole possession of ninth place with two wins and five losses, and Prince Edward island was in the last spot with one win and six losses.

Queensways Eliminated

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Hamilton Petries Wednesday night eliminated St. Catharines Queensways from the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association playoffs. The game ended in a 58-58 tie but Hamilton won the points-to-count round 126-118.

Canadian Hockey Team Receives Extra Men For Championship

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Reinforcements arrived Wednesday for the Canadian team entered in the world hockey championships beginning here Friday.

Four players, a goalie, two forwards and a defenceman, reached the Swedish capital in the midst of a newspaper controversy over the relative merits of Russian and Canadian hockey styles.

Sports writers have picked the Russians, entered in the world championships for the first time, to edge out the Canadians. They prefer what they describe as the "collective" game the Russians play, over the Canadian style which emphasizes shooting and body-checking as much as passing.

The Swedish writers, who have criticized the calibre of player on the Canadian team—Toronto East York—had a grudging nod of approval for one of the newcomers.

SHILL TOUTED

One newspaper described Bill Shill, 37-year-old forward who is a regular member of the East York team but couldn't leave Canada with the rest of the team, as "perhaps the best ice hockey player who has ever visited Europe."

Other newcomers are Don Lockhart, 23, goalie for Niagara Falls Cataracts of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, Eric Unger, 25, Niagara Falls centre, and Tom Jamieson, 29, defenceman with Owen Sound Mercurys.

Unger slipped while stepping from the plane on arrival here but his injured ankle is expected to be all right by the time the Canadians meet Switzerland Saturday in their opening game of the tourney. Most of the other teams start Friday.

Four other members of the Canadian team are nursing minor injuries. Bob Kennedy, Norm Gray and Tom Campbell were bruised about the legs with sticks and Harold Fiskari suffered a black eye in the Canadian 8-1 exhibition victory over the Swedish B team Tuesday night. All will be in shape for the tournament, however.

Brookside Flyers Even Series With Assumption

KEENE (ENS) — The Brookside Flyers defeated Assumption Aces 7-6 in an over-time game on Tuesday night in Keene in the Otonabee Rural League.

It was an exciting thrill-packed game with both teams playing wide-open hockey. B. Cowie was a standout, playing heads up hockey and scoring six of the goals for Brookside. D. Musgrave sparked the Assumption squad with two goals with V. O'Brien and B. Humphries playing terrific hockey.

In the first period Assumption led all the way scoring one each by D. Crowley, V. O'Brien and G. Barker.

In the second period B. Humphries hit the twine for Assumption and the score now read 4-0 for the Aces. Then B. Cowie began to roll, scoring three goals for Brookside. D. Musgrave scored one for Assumption and at the end of the period the game was 5-3 for Assumption.

In the last period L. Selby opened the scoring for Brookside with B. Cowie scoring midway through the period making the game read 5-5. With minutes left to play D. Musgrave scored for Assumption but a minute later B. Cowie tied it all up again at 6-6.

SCORED WINNER

A 10-inmute over-time period was played and at the end of the five minutes the score was still 6-6. D. Musgrave of the Aces was given a penalty for pushing the puck ahead with his hand. B. Cowie of the Flyers slammed home the winning goal with 15 seconds left in the period to win the game 7-6.

Now each team has won one game in the semi-finals with the third game on Thursday night. The winners of this fray will meet Indian River in the finals, Indian River having defeated Keene 2 games to 0 in their semi-finals.

Brookside Flyers: Goal, E. Howson, B. Cowie, L. Selby, J. Burns, R. Thomas, W. Cowie, J. Sage, R. Howson, C. Howson, G. Cowie, B. Fontain, Chamberlain.

Assumption Aces: Goal, E. Fitzgerald, C. Carey, B. Humphries, R. McFarlane, V. O'Brien, D. Musgrave, D. Crowley, H. Fitzgerald, G. Barker.

Lindsay Muskies Rub Out Cobourg

LINDSAY (ENS)—Orlie Crawford's three goals paced the Lindsay Muskies to their third win over Cobourg Comets last night to give the Muskies the Lakeshore league semi-final series three games to one. The Muskies scored their most decisive win of the set, 8-3. Crawford was assisted on all three tallies by former junior star Murray Packer, who also scored one. The other Lindsay goals were by Jack Graham, another junior player, who notched two within 15 seconds in the final period, Bill Burns, the third junior player being used by the Muskies, and Vic Corley.

GOALIE GOOD

John Fisher scored two of the Cobourg goals, with Jack Reeves counting the third, but goaltender Clair Sommerville stood out as the best of the visitors, as he handled 48 shots from the Muskies against 22 for "Mucker" O'Connel, in the Lindsay net.

The game was witnessed by the largest crowd of the season, over 3,000 including a large representation from Cobourg. The Muskies now meet the winners of the Port Hope-Lakefield series for the league championship they have held the last two years.

APPOINTED TO IOC

MONTREAL (CP)—Ken Farmer, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, announced Wednesday night that Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario hydro commission and former mayor of Toronto, has agreed to act as a member for Canada on the International Olympic Committee.

Farmer said he is certain the annual meeting of the COA in Toronto in April will give formal approval. The IOC next meets in Athens in May. Saunders will replace the late Jack Patteson of London, Ont.

Farmer said both he and A. Sidney Dawes, former COA president and still Canada's other representative on the IOC, are pleased with Saunders' acceptance. They consider the appointment an excellent one particularly since Saunders took an active interest in the Canadian Olympic training plan last year and has been in favor of Toronto becoming a site for the Olympic Games. Toronto's bid may possibly be aimed at the 1964 games.

ANNOUNCE NEW CNE SWIM

TORONTO (CP)—A 30-mile swim across Lake Ontario, with prizes totalling $25,000, will feature the Canadian National Exhibition's sports program this year, it was announced.

The new event will replace the shorter marathon of recent years which was held along Toronto's waterfront.

Fort George, N.Y., has been suggested as a starting point for the swim, open to men and women. The finish line will be at the CNE waterfront.

WAGNER NOW 80

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Honus Wagner, baseball's Mr. Shortstop, celebrated his 80th birthday Wednesday, unmindful of aches and pains but revelling in memories of 46 glorious years in baseball.

His home in nearby Carnegie bulged with newspaper men, friends, the family and cards and letters—one a special "happy birthday" greeting from President Eisenhower.

Wagner's thick, powerful shoulders and massive arms earned him eight National League batting titles over a 21-year major-league playing career ending in 1917 with a lifetime batting average of .329.

Honus spent 37 of his 40 years in baseball with Pittsburgh Pirates.

Port Perry Takes

the Petes had two-man advantages but both times Howe saved the Flyers.

THE SPARKPLUGS

Once again it was the Petes' pint-sized players, Paul Doris and Gary Kearn, that put the old spark into the Petes' play. Although roughly bodied by the heavy Flyers Doris and Kearns, along with Bud McDougall, shifted their way time and time again through the Flyers.

Veteran Kevin Heffernan, who seemed to play nearly all the time on the Petes' defence, was their defensive mainstay. In fact he played so much in the first period, he was "bushed," but continued to star.

Offensively Heffernan was most impressive in the first period when he tied the score at one-all, then helped set up the Petes' second goal (2-1) and then set up the Petes in the lead a second time a minute later.

The Flyer's line of Neil Attersley, Tom O'connor and Ken Fisher accounted for the Port's victory. They were opportunists about the Petes' goal. Dunc Brodie and Gary Copeland had several rink-length rushes, both scoring goals.

With the Petes short, O'Connor took a long shot from just inside the blueline for the Flyers' first goal. But with Al Miles off for holding, the Petes' retaliated when Heffernan tied the score on a long blueline screen shot.

The Petes pressed near the end of the period and were rewarded when Kearns slapped in a loose puck in front of Howe. From the faceoff Gibson tied the score with a short shot from directly in front.

One again Kearns put the Petes ahead when he tipped in a rolling rebound from a blueline shot by Heffernan. But with only 30 seconds left, Dunc Brodie tied the score for the third time on a rink-length rush.

Gord Coyle went off for tripping early in the second. Immediately Brodie deflected in a long shot by Dystra and O'Connor broke into the clear down the side, cut in front and beat Delehaye who was defenceless.

LEAD OF THREE

The Flyers went three ahead when Attersley shovelled in a pass from O'Connor and Fisher.

Then referees Walsh and Coombes began handing out penalties in earnest. Byrne went off for tripping, followed by Romanuk for slashing, Miles for charging and then Chasczewski for holding. But no scoring resulted.

Just before the period ended referee Coombes called a questionable penalty on Bill Twist for tripping. Twist attempted to sweep-check Dystra but flew under the Flyer. In the tumble Dykstra's skate clipped Twist on the back of the head.

Twist, bleeding from a shallow scalp cut, was carried unconscious from the ice to the dressingroom. There he came to between periods and was treated by a doctor. No stitches were required, but he didn't re-appear.

O'Connor and Chasczewski were penalized within seconds early in the third but the Petes didn't score until their time was up. Then McDougall tipped in a pass from Kearns.

Heffernan and Brodie received penalties for slashing and hooking. While Brodie was still off, the Flyers rushed and scored, Copeland netting the puck on a pass-out. After more penalties to Davis for hooking, Heffernan for interference and Gibson for slashing, Jerry Frizzelle finished the scoring on a blueline slap-shot.

The fourth game of the series will be played Saturday night in Port Perry.

Canadian Actor Dies In N.Y.

NEW YORK (CP)—Robert Ross, 52, Canadian-born actor and director who had been appearing with his wife, actress Margalo Gillmore in "Kind Sir" on Broadway, died Tuesday night.

Ross quit the cast because of illness after the Feb. 17 performance of the play, which stars Mary Martin and Charles Boyer. His wife left last Saturday night to be with her husband.

A native of Port Colborne, Ont., Ross became interested in the little theatre movement while a student in California. He made his Broadway debut in 1925 in Eva La Gallienne's civic repertory theatre.

He appeared in "Allison's House," "Katerina," "The Cherry Orchard" and "The Farmer Takes a Wife." He was associate producer with Dwight Dere Wuman of "Dance Me a Song." He served as a talent scout and had been in charge of screen tests here for Warner brothers.

Ross directed the 1941 production of "Porgy and Bess," revivals of "On the Rocks" and "They Knew What They Wanted," the municipal opera at St. Louis and Kansas City Starlight theatre.

Five-Point Margin

Dunk kept the Collis quintette close.

COLLIS BETTER

But the second quarter belonged to the Collis girls. With Shirley Bestard and Dunk providing the scoring and the others working to set them up, Collis raced to a 20-point spree which gave them the half score at 25-18.

But the third quarter was Toronto's. McCloskey, along with Patterson, Kirkwood, MacDonald and Black, gave the Trotters the lead once again when they scored 21 points holding the Collis team to but eight.

Mabel Gillen, Dunk and Stewart, combining neatly with the guards, attempted to wipe out the Toronto lead in the fourth. They succeeded in whittling down that lead by two points, leaving the Trotters only a five-point lead to carry over into Friday's game.

Ruth Hewitt Tops

Ruth Hewitt hit best single of 251 and Lila Harris best trio (including 213 and 204) in the Wednesday afternoon lasses' bowling circuit. Olive Downer was next with 211 and 201 in her 604 total. Happy Gang topped teams with 2402 as Tornadoes' 897 proved high single. Whizz Bangs and Dinkies took three points from Playfairs and Bombers; as two points were captured by Wildcats, Happy Gang, Tornadoes and Rockets from Cisco Kids, Terrors, Ramblers and Eager Beavers respectively.

Good scores: R. Hewitt 563, T. Heslip (240) 549, H. Bleakley (231) 546, P. Jackman (200) 519, D. Martin (205) 517, M. Coursey 513, G. Blondin 512, P. Doig 226, J. Casey 225, G. Davis 220, G. They had a 3-1 bulge again in the second as Hopkins, J. Sloan and L. Sloan counted, the latter, Pammett and P. Calberry earning assists apiece. J. Fawcett notched one on Blewett's pass for the losers. It was 1-1 in the third, Patterson scoring from Knox for the winners, and Heard from Blewett for the Point. Teams:

Millions Enter Gambling Dens Every Day Says CCF Member

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF member suggests that under the law millions of people unknowingly enter gambling houses every day.

Stanley Knowles, Winnipeg North Centre, raised the question Wednesday during Commons study of a revision of the Criminal Code, which says that any place equipped with a slot machine is presumed to be a common gaming house.

"I begin to wonder," he said, "whether millions of people do not go into common gaming houses every day of their lives. Every time you go into a corner store you go into a place where there is a slot machine."

Mr. Knowles said that the definition of a slot machine, covering vending machines in which there is an element of chance, would include pay telephones and slot machines for children.

With pay phones, "sometimes you will get your nickel back and sometimes you will get your number." Machines for children provided different objects — gum or trinkets—and children put their money in hoping to get something better than the last time.

Justice Minister Garson said the new code's law on gaming houses has not been changed.

"If my honorable friend is worried about having been in a gambling hell because he was in a drugstore with a slot machine, he has been doing that for years already."

Machines which provided a service were not illegal.

Little Wiggle Gives Girl Chance On TV

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's strange what a little wiggle can do.

It was just such a thing that started Lana Turner and Marilyn Monroe on the road to stardom. Now the same thing is happening to a luscious blonde charmer who calls herself Sheree North.

The doll appeared on Bing Crosby's first television show, and toward the end of it she flung off her skirt and went through a dance routine that sizzled the cables—also the sponsor and some irate TV viewers.

"The dance was criticized as a burlesque routine," she recalls. "It wasn't. A girl who was only a burlesque dancer wouldn't have been able to do it.

"Actually, the routine was not as bad as some people made it out to be. It's just that it seemed wild after the easy pace of the show. When a girl throws off her skirt and does a fast dance number after Bing has been on, it's something of a shock.

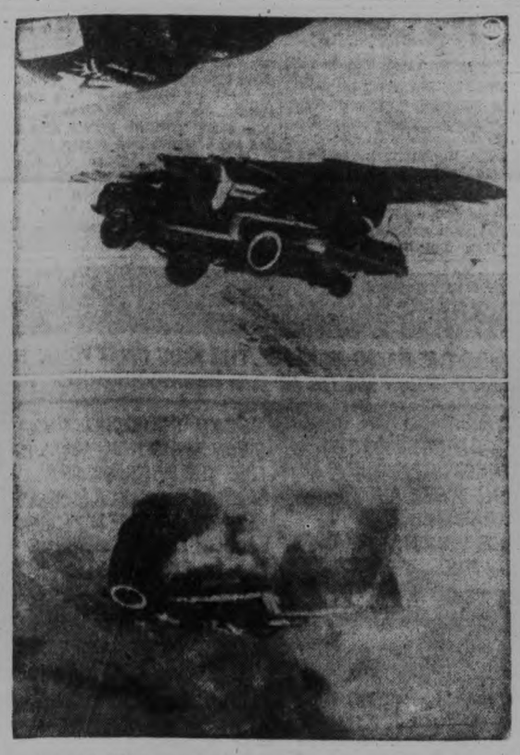
REHEARSAL TIME SHORT

"I realized this, and that's why I picked the most conservative choreographer I knew. The trouble was that I didn't have time to learn the routine. I had only a couple of hours to rehearse the dance. Then they shot it mostly from the waist up. When you have a girl jitterbugging to the 'One O'Clock Jump,' it's bound to look a bit sensational."

But while the protests poured in, so did the offers. The biggest was the possibility of filling out Monroe's "Pink Tights." she was given the most extensive test in recent years, and two days ago 20th Century-Fox signed her to a contract.

She gets another lucky break this Sunday. She'll star in the NBC-TV comedy hour version of "Anything Goes," along with Ethel Merman Frank Sinatra and Bert Lahr.

"I don't know whether I'm going to dance on the show," said Sheree. "I'm almost afraid to. I don't want to offend the mothers and fathers of America."



FIRST FATAL ACCIDENT—In the first fatal accident in a stock-car race at Daytona Beach, Fla., since the famous track was opened in 1936, Korean veteran Dick Kaufman, of Harrisburg, Pa., lost his life. At the top, Kaufman's car begins to roll over amidst a cloud of flying sand. At the bottom, the car comes to rest on its side with Kaufman's body hanging from a door.

Millions Of Bird Lovers Celebrate 150th Anniversary This Spring

WASHINGTON — Millions of bird lovers celebrate a special anniversary this spring, remembering that 150 years ago artist-naturalist John James Audubon studied and sketched his first American birds.

They were pewees, small olive-green birds that beat the robins north to the young Audubon's new home on a farm in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, the National Geographic Society says. Early in 1804, at 18, the Haiti-born son of a French naval officer arrived from France to live on his father's Mill Grove property near Norristown. He lost little time in erploring the natural wonders close at hand.

Prowling a cave along Perkioming Creek, the naturalist happened upon a mud and moss nest attached to the entrance. Snow still mantled the ground, and the air was chill. The pewees had not yet arirved. But shortly they came, and with them Audubon's intense delight in the birds of America.

FOUND ANOTHER INTEREST

The young man soon found another interest close at hand that also was to influence his entire career. While paying a visit to a neighbor, he met Lucy Bakewell, a girl of 15. Later she became Mrs. Audubon, and although she realized that "I have a rival in every bird," she shared the many ups and downs in her husband's fortunes.

The old stone manor house of Mill Grove and 122 acres were acquired by Montgomery County in 1951, the centennial of Audubon's death, and were opened to the public last year.

The house has been decorated with engravings from Audubon's famous folio, "Birds of America." The grounds, equipped with picnic facilities, retain much of the wild charm the artist-naturalist knew.

Mill Grove once was filled with birds and animals the young ornithologist had stuffed. There he devised his ingenious method of wiring specimens into life-like positions so that he could draw them accurately. In the cave beside Perkioming Creek, he conducted the first bird banding experiment in America, fastening silver wires around the young birds' legs.

SHUNNED BUSINESS CAREER

Audubon's life at Mill Grove scarcely carried out his father's intentions—a profitable business career. Nor did the young man show any interest in a lead mine on the property that furnished bullets for Revolutionary soldiers. His father, retiring and living in France, had hoped the mine would be a good investment.

It was a carefree time for Audubon, the young lord of the manor. He once remarked that "not a ball, a skating match, a house or riding party took place without me." But Audubon—strong, athletic, expert marksman, rider and dog trainer—also roamed the countryside with his drawing pencils and fowling piece, strengthening his ambition to be a naturalist.

It was in the field that he conceived his life work: A monumental folio of America's birds.

Provincial Gov'ts Seek Pensions Totally Disabled

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two provincial governments indicated Wednesday they will introduce legislation at current sessions of their legislatures to provide pensions for totally disabled persons.

The throne speech at the opening of the Nova Scotia legislature said such pensions will be introduced. They will probably be about $40 a month.

In the Manitoba legislature, Welfare Minister F. C. Bell said in reply to a question from CCF leader Lloyd Stinson that pensions legislation is planned. He said he prefers not to elaborate on the plan at present. A draft bill had been sent for the approval of the federal government which will share the pensions' cost with the province.

Quebec's legislative assembly approved by a vote of 59 to 22 a bill providing for a provincial tax on personal income. The bill now goes to the legislative council—Provincial upper house—and then must receive royal assent before becoming law. The new tax will be roughly 15 per cent of the federal tax.

ANNOUNCE GRANTS

As discussion of the bill moved toward the final clauses, Premier Maurice Duplessis announced that Quebec province universities, cut off by provincial government decision from federal aid during the last two years, will receive full compensation in provincial grants. He said the provincial grants will probably amount to twice the $2,100,000 in federal funds turned down on the grounds the subsidies encroached on provincial education rights.

Works Minister A. J. Hooke announced that the Alberta government has plans for buildings in Edmonton and vicinity costing more than $5,000,000. He said they include a highways department building, a hospital addition, a school for the deaf and a research laboratory.

2 Youths To Hang For Murder Of Bush Worker

SUDBURY (CP)—Two Montreal youths were sentenced Wednesday to be hanged May 18. They were convicted of murder in the beating death Oct. 3 of bush worker Frank Asselin.

Asked if they had anything to say before sentence was passed, Emile Bedard, 17, and Jean Guy Henaire 19, both of Montreal, said they were innocent.

The two were charged along with Robert Deslauriers, 28, also of Montreal. Deslauriers chose to be tried separately and will go to trial next Monday.

Asselin's battered body was discovered on a lonely sideroad four miles north of Sudbury. Police said they believed Asselin, who once worked in St. Catharines, was driven there in an automobile and fatally beaten and robbed after asking the way to a bootlegger's.

Henaire's lawyer, Gerald Kinsman, said in his adress to the jury it was Deslauriers who got into a fight with Asselin on the sideroad. He said Deslauriers, not Henaire or Bedard, was responsible for the slaying.

CAME FROM TORONTO

He called the two youths the "ugly ducklings" of the group. He said they were brought to Sudbury from Toronto by Deslauriers and a girl, Blanche Deschaneaux, in Deslauriers' car.

Leo McMahon, Bedard's counsel, said his client could not have taken part in the alleged conspiracy to rob Asselin. He said none of the witnesses accused Bedard of taking any part of the $47 said to have been stolen from the victim.

Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven took nearly an hour for his charge to the jury. He said the only possible verdicts were guilty of murder or not guilty.

Lawyers for both youths said they plan appeals.

Red Cross Plans Blitz Campaiign In Lakefield Village

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — A. G. Buchanan, campaign chairman of the Lakefield branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, outlined plans for a "blitz" of the village, to be held March 16, President Arthur Kingdon presided for the meeting of executive members.

Last year's campaign, carried on in the same manner, saw a total of $1,540.93 raised in one evening. It is hoped that this figure will be exceeded this year, as rising costs in the many phases of work done by the society in the village indicate the necessity for more funds. Mr. Buchanan headed last year's campaign.

The society operates a well babies clinic and maintains a well-equipped loan cupboard containing three hospital beds, two wheeled chairs, crutches and complete equipment for a sick-room, as well as emergency kits and disaster units. A part-time nurse is engaged for the public school and an active blood donor clinic organization maintained. Vitamin tablets are supplied to all school children with the consent of the parents. Sewing and knitting quotas are completed each year.

The major project is the swimming and water safety program, with financial assistance from the council.

The village has been zoned and the canvassers will be contacted in the near future. They will be asked to call at Memorial Hall on Monday evening, March 15 for instructions and necessary material and, upon completion of their route, again return to the hall for refreshments.

Witness Identifies Balcombe As Man Who Rented Tourist Cabin

CORNWALL (CP)—Second Lieut. Peter Balcombe has been identified in court as the soldier who last Oct. 15 rented a Woodstock area tourist cabin in which a woman's clothing was later found in the attic.

Charles Clayton of Beachville near Woodstock said there is no doubt in his mind that Balcombe is the man. He said Balcombe rented the cabin for $2 instead of the usual $5 on condition he would use it only three or four hours in the afternoon, then stayed in it all night.

Clayton testified Wednesday at the trial of the married 24-year-old British-born officer on a charge of murdering Marie Anne Carrier, 22, a reserve army sergeant with whom he had gone out while stationed at Valcartier camp near Quebec City.

The nude, stabbed body of the slender typist from the Quebec City area was found Oct. 15 in a grassy ditch near Iroquois about 35 miles west of here on the St. Lawrence river.

Earlier in the trial, which started Monday, a pathologist testified that the girl, whose brunette hair was lightly streaked with grey, was stabbed seven times with a thin double-bladed knife. He said one thrust pierced an eyeball. Another wound appeared to have been inflicted with a sawing motion.

PLANNED MOVE FAMILY

Balcombe, who once attended Brantford Collegiate, also was identified as the man who rented an apartment near Quebec City Oct. 14 and said he planned to take his wife and two young children from London, Ont., to live with him there.

A crown witness placed Balcombe as being in Montreal at about 2 a.m. Oct. 15.

Edward Butcher said Balcombe called at his apartment at that hour to deliver a package of clothing. The clothing belonged to Butcher's brother, a fellow officer of Balcombe's who was on draft to Korea. Butcher said his apartment is near Sherbrooke Street, the most direct route on the Quebec-Montreal highway.

Charles Clayton said Balcombe appeared at the tourist camp 440 miles west of Montreal at about 2 p.m. He drove up alone in a 1950-model maroon coach, he said.

SHORT REST

Clayton quoted Balcombe as saying he was heading for the West Coast and had driven from the Quebec border that day. Balcombe told him he wanted to rest a little while before driving all night when traffic would be less heavy than during the day. That was why he wanted to rest for three or four hours, he said.

About 8 a.m. next day, Clayton said, he returned home from night watchman's duty at a factory and was surprised to see Balcombe driving off.

"I intended to say something to him for staying late, since he had said he would be on his way in three or four hours, but he didn't give me the chance."

Clayton said his attention was drawn Oct. 21 to a newspaper picture of a car. He said he recognize it as the one driven by the soldier to whom he had rented the cabin.

He said he and Howard Cousins, son of the owner of the cabins, searched the cabin and in the attic found woman's clothing.

Man, 3 Children Receive $10,000 Damages

TORONTO (CP) — Lawrence Parks, 31-year-old department store employee, and his three young children will receive a total of $10,000 in damages as a result of the death of his 24-year-old wife, Ruth, in a bus-truck accident near Morrisburg early last July 31 which also killed 19 other persons.

A Colonial Coach Lines bus owned by Provincial Transport Company and driven by Lorne Cheesebrough of Kingston plunged into the Williamsburg canal west of Morrisburg in the Cornwall district after hitting a truck stalled on the road. Seventeen persons survived.

Mr. Justice E. G. Moorhouse approved a settlement offered by Provincial Transport Company and Cheesebrough. Parks is to receive $4,000. His son, Lawrence, 5, will get $1,500; another son, Timothy Lee, 4, $2,000; and a daughter, Catherine Ann, $2,500.

AFFIDAVITS FILED

Affidavits filed showed that the two boys now are living with Mr. and Mrs. Rosewall Gilmore, their maternal grandparents, at Bonny River, N.B. Parks and his daughter are staying with friends in Toronto.

Parks said in his affidavit he earns $49 a week and plans to use the money from the cash settlement to buy a house so that he can reunite his family.

The settlement is believed the first arising from the accident.

Hilary Describes Everest Climb

TORONTO (CP)—The first man to reach the top of Mount Everest says it was harder to get down than up.

Sir Edmund Hilary, in a public lecture Wednesday night, described the difficulties he and a Sherpa named Tenzing overcame to conquer the world's highest mountain on the eve of the Coronation.

He said the most critical hour of the Everest expedition was the slow return down the ridge from the summit.

"That was the worst hour of my life," said Sir Edmund. "Getting to the top was easy, compared to the nightmare trip through the soft sliding snow to the South Col. Every second of the descent, Tenzing and I were expecting an avalanche that would send us hurtling to the valley below."

Sir Edmund said he plans to return to Nepal in six weeks with George Lowe, another member of the Everest expedition, to climb three other peaks, all more than 24,000 feet high, in the Himalayas.

Belleville Carpenters Get Pay Increase

TORONTO (CP)—Carpenters in the Belleville area have won an hourly wage increase of 10 cents but have lost a holiday.

New conditions, agreed upon at meetings between carpenters and employers in the Belleville area, have been published in the Ontario Gaztte as amendments to regulations under the Industrial Standards Act.

The new minimum rate for the Belleville area will be $1.75 an hour for all carpenters whether or not they are working under union agreements. They will be paid overtime rates on Saturdays, Sundays and eight statutory holidays. The agreement takes Remembrance Day off the list of holidays on which overtime rates will be paid.

Pope's Condition Reported SlightlyImproved

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Ailing Pope Pius "slept fairly well" during the night and his general condition early today showed a slight improvement, the Vatican press office announced.

Other Vatican sources earlier had described the Pope's general condition as unchanged. Severe attacks of hiccuping had kept him from sleeping and severely weakened him during the first weeks of his month-long illness.

The pontiff, who will be 78 Tuesday, is believed to be suffering from gastritis, but his inability to retain the barium solution necessary for x-ray examination has prevented a complete diagnosis. He is on a semi-liquid diet and is able to leave his bed for only brief periods.

All the windows of the Pope's apartment on the top floor of the Vatican palace were unshuttered today to let in the morning light. This was considered a good sign, since during particularly trying periods for the patient the shutters have been closed to keep out the light.

CONSTANT WATCH

The constant watch by the Pope's physician and Vatican assistants is being continued. The private physician, Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi, who spent most of Wednesday at the bedside, again visited the Pope early today.

There was still talk in Vatican circles today of a possible consultation of several medical experts at the bedside. But the Pope has been against this measure.

Plane Crashed

NEW DELHI (AP)—An Indian airlines DC-3 crashed today during tests to determine the cause of a previous crash. The crew of three, all Indians, were killed. The co-pilot, K. R. Malhotra, was the brother of the Indian government's inspector of accidents, Y. R. Malhotra, who was directing the tests. The inspector is investigating a crash at Nagpur in December, in which 14 persons were killed.

Horse Theft Charge

CYRSTAL FALLS, Mich. (AP)—Authorities today held Tom Knipp, 23, and his brother, Billy, 17, of Mansfield, Ohio, for extradition to Ohio on a charge of horse theft. Prosecutor W. H. Lohr of Vinton county, Ohio, reported he has evidence the brothers stole a shetland pony from a pasture, loaded it in a second-hand hearse, took it to Mansfield and sold it for $60.

Start Tour

NEW YORK (AP)—A party of 29 persons representing United States newspapers, radio and television stations left by plane Wednesday night for a month-long "editors' tour" of Europe and the Middle East. The group, third annual one organized by James J. Wick, co-publisher of the Niles (Ohio) Times, expects to interview top government officials in countries visited.

NO RIOTS THIS TIME—Mansur Adabi, a 23-year-old Mohammedan teacher, is shown with his 14-year-old bride, Zaiton Binte Jahuri, after their marriage at Singapore. The court annulled this marriage and the court's decision touched off street rioting in which 17 persons died and more than 200 were injured.

Clarence W. Gladney

MARMORA (ENS). — The funeral service was held at St. Andrew's United church, Marmora, this afternoon of the late Clarence William Gladney of Belleville, who died in Belleville General hospital Tuesday in his 65th year.

Born in Marmora, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Gladney. His father was one of the early storekeepers of the village.

Laaer on, with his brother Edward, Clarence Gladney operated the same store. When his brother Edward enlisted in the 80th Battalion in 1915, he was joined in partnership by the late Timothy Byrnes and Jack Gehan, now retired in Tweed.

In 1932, Mr. Gladney disposed of his business and went on the road as a salesman. Due to indifferent health, he retired some years ago.

He was well known in Marmora and in Belleville, where he had been a resident for the past 18 years. He retained his membership in St. Andrew's United church, where for many years he served on the board of stewards. He gave assistance to all branches of church work. He was a member of Marmora AF and AM 222, and was Master of that lodge in 1919.

He is survived by two daughters Jean and Elizabeth, residing at his late home, 190 Ann Street, Belleville; one brother Edward Gladney, Toronto, and one sister Mrs. J. H. (Cora) Hodge of Oakville. His wife, the former Jennie Cora Hickey, died some years ago.

Kitchener Begins Changeover

TORONTO (CP) — Hydro conversion from 25 cycle to 60-cycle power begins in Kitchener March 1, Ontario hydro chairman Robert H. Saunders announced. Completion target is set for the end of August.

Mr. Saunders said that 5,387 customers already have received 60-cycle power through an advance program of the Kitchener public utilities commission.

Some 9,290 domestic, 1,382 commercial and 230 power customers in Kitchener will be affected. On each "cut" day, normally Monday through Friday, approximately 100 homes and coommercial premises within a planned area will be changed over.

Each home usually will be standardized within one day, Mr. Saunders said.

Roast Beef Supper Successful Event

MOUNT PLEASANT (ENS) — A large crowd attended the roast beef supper in Mount Pleasant hall Friday evening.

Cards and dancing provided the evening's entertainment. Square dances were called by F. Ballantyne and Lloyd Hooton.

Plans are being made for another dance in the hall on Friday, March 5.

Choked To Death

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Robert Dubois, 16, died of strangulation Wednesday a few moments after engaging another boy in a high school gymnasium-class wrestling match. The coroner said Robert apparently regurgitated a bit of food from his lunch and choked on it.

13 Red Papers Circulating Across Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — An Ottawa immigration officer said Wednesday night 13 communist publications printed in Canada are part of a "well-organized and highly vocal" propaganda machine aimed at the "Sovietization" of this country.

Alan Boyd, citizenship officer in the department of citizenship and immigration, said the papers, which he did not name, were subsidized from abroad and guided "by a common board of strategy located in Toronto."

He told a lecture meeting at McGill University that 10 of the journals are printed in Toronto, two in Sudbury, and one in Winnipeg.

"When accused of being Communist and Moscow-controlled the papers reply that they are 'progressives', 'peace crusaders' and 'spokesmen of the underprivileged masses' ".

TRAINED ABROAD

Mr. Boyd said many of the group's editors were trained abroad and "are often key men in local or national Communist-front groups."

Mr. Boyd said the group's circulation has declined about one-half from "an estimate of more than 100,000 in 1939."

Drought In Colorado Tangible, Fearsome Force

(Editor's note: Harmon Kallman, a Denver Post staff writer, visited southeastern Colorado and found rich farmland killed by fence-high dust. Here is his story as he wrote it for his paper and The Associated Press.)

By HARMON KALLMAN
Denver Post Staff Writer

DENVER (AP) — Drought seldom is dramatic. Ordinarily it spreads like a silent cancer. But in southeastern Colorado today it is a tangible, fearsome force.

You feel the grit between your teeth, between your fingers, in your eyes, even though it may not be blowing. You begin to itch all over with it as you watch mile after mile of fences buried in blown dust and sand, telegraph poles and farm equipment banked high with the powdery stuff that kills rich farmland.

The farther south and east you go, the fewer furrows you can discern in what was plowed wheat land a short week ago.

You can drive 100 miles east of here and see little sign of the disastrous dust storm of last week and the blow Monday that added insult to injury. But just a few miles to the south and the world turns grey.

It looks curiously like an ocean beach with a few weeds rising above the wind-sculptured sand. Broken cedar fence posts look like driftwood.

But farmer Bob White is fairly optimistic. He says:

"See, this winter wheat is still green, even though it's sick and you can barely see the furrows that were here until last week. With moisture, this will still make wheat.

"It's not as bad as it was in Texas in the 1930s, but I've never seen one storm do as much damage as that one last week."

Farther south you notice that the fences not covered by dunes are blown thick with weeds, like brown hedgerows.

A train on the Missouri Pacific line goes by and is lost within 100 yards in a cloud of dust from the rails and roadbed.

Each remaining clump of grass has its own little sand dune on the windward side. But a grader operator says it was worse in the 1930s—"people have just forgot."

United Church Asks CBC Stop Televising Sunday Hockey

TORONTO (CP)—The board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada has urged the CBC to stop televising Toronto junior hockey games on Sundays.

The board said in a resolution at its annual meeting Wednesday that although Ottawa had voted against Sunday sport, TV hockey programs are available to viewers in that city on Sundays. The resolution also urged the national religious advisory committee on radio to press for action on the Sunday hockey question.

The CBC said the Sunday afternoon hockey game from Toronto is not televised in Ottawa.

The board also criticized liquor advertising which originates on United States radio and television programs and is available in Ontario. Rev. W. G. Berry, associate secretary of the board, said that since such advertising is not permitted in the province, he considers its reception "an unfriendly act against Ontario."

Rev. Louis Charbonneau of Ottawa, vice-president of Lacordaire, the French-Canadian temperance movement, gave the Roman Catholic view on temperance.

He said treatment of the body and the mind could help a victim of drink, but moral and religious treatment must also strengthen the willpower of the drinker.

Refreshments were served.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

Miss Young of the Children's Aid Society helps a young couple with their problem.

Life had been difficult for Polly. Her mother's desertion and father's rejection made it necessary for the Children's Aid Society to look after her. She was pathetic—after all nobody wanted or loved her. Her eyes showed fear. After 6 months in her foster home she found she could trust adults. They loved her even when she was bad. Her eyes began to shine with happiness. But could she have her new parents' name? Could she be 'dopted? That was what the Children's Aid Society had hoped for all along. Now Polly wanted it and her foster parents wanted it. Could she be adopted? Of course she could—all because the Children's Aid Society had protected her from being unwanted and had chosen a home where there was an abundance of love and understanding.

- The Children's Aid Society serves all regardless of race and creed.
- A great number of people make personal application for the service.
- Problems affecting family life are given sympathetic help. These may be marital misundertandings or delinquency of children; they may be excessive drinking or poor physical care of children.
- The Society's chief interest is to help parents so that children can remain in their own homes.
- People who come to the Children's Aid Society are assured of a confidential hearing.
- The Children's Aid Society uses every safeguard for the child and the parents in adoption.
- Unmarried parents are assisted in carrying out their plans both for themselves and their baby. Help is given to the mother to get maintenance for her child.

To Construct New Prison At Millbrook

TORONTO (CP)—Construction of a new jail for incorrigible prisoners at Millbrook will begin shortly, Col. G. Hedley Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions, said in a report tabled in the Ontario legislature Wednesday.

Col. Basher also said in the annual report of the department of reform institutions that consideration should be given to the establishment of a guidance-classification centre, an extension of the Brampton plan for the training of the most reformable young prisoners and a centre for the study and treatment of the mentally retarded, the physically handicapped and the provision for aged derelicts.

A total of 46,003 persons was sent to jail in the province during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1953, a decrease of 140 over the previous year. In 1952-53, 40,573 persons were convicted, an increase of 87.

Poor home and no control was given as the reason why 161 youngsters were sent to training schools. Of the 516 new admissions, the separation of parents was listed as a factor in another 105 cases. Twenty-seven had alcoholic parents. Seventeen were admitted because of their stepfathers and six due to their stepmothers. Lack of parental care was listed as the chief reason in 85 cases.

Require Horses To Help Motor Fire Equipment

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—This is probably the only city in Canada where the fire department still uses horses.

Because of steep hills and severe blizzards, seven horses are hired by the department every December and are kept standing by until April.

Although the city's three fire stations have modern fire-fighting equipment, the only vehicle capable of bucking heavy snow is the snowmobile and it is too light to carry enough equipment for big fires.

This is where Dobbin comes in. Pulling ladder sleighs, hose sleighs and pump sleighs, horses can get to a fire through snow quicker than any vehicle and most winters they get a chance to show their stuff.

So far this year, trucks have been able to take all calls, but last year the horses were a factor in saving two buildings during heavy snowstorms. Until the climate changes a lot, horses are here to stay.

Killed By Car

TORONTO (CP)—Elnora Marie Ellis, 24, died Wednesday night two hours after she walked into the side of a moving automobile while crossing a street near her home in suburban Swansea.

Lacks Gratitude Says Canadian

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Burns, a former major in the Canadian Army and now an unemployed truck driver, doesn't think much of the gratitude shown by Osvaldo Hollrigi of Bolzano, Italy.

He accused Burns of a $120,000 stamp theft and in an Italian court Monday the Canadian was convicted in absentia, given a year's suspended sentence, and ordered to reimburse Hollrigi for the stamps.

"I arranged his release from a Russian prisoner-of-war camp in 1945," said Burns Wednesday. "If I hadn't got him out, he might still have been in Russian hands. "Is that gratitude?"

Burns obtained a stamp collection while overseas, but denied he ever had any stamps belonging to Hollrigi.

Burns said he intends to ignore the Italian court judgment.

"I checked and they can't do anything to me in Canada."

Early Eggs

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mallard ducks at the Assiniboine Park Zoo are sitting on eggs which normally they would not lay until May or June. Park officials said the birds are in first-class condition, which makes them lay their eggs earlier.

Miner Credits His Wife For Success In Copper Strike

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Bill Dawidowich, former hardrock miner and one of three Geraldton prospectors who last fall staked the claims which led to the Manitouwadge copper strike in northwestern Ontario, credits an understanding wife with much of his good fortune.

Dawidowich, who drove into Fort William Wednesday in his newly-acquired automobile to get medical attention for his 18-year-old son Matt, said in an interview:

"I guess if my wife Olga had been any other kind of wife, I'd never have been in on the deal. When we began this prospecting, she never dreamed it would amount to so much but she encouraged us anyway and let me go along with Roy (Barker) in what she figured was at least a good pastime.

"She just hoped we might get something out of it sometime to make up for the money we spent. Now that it's happened, she just can't get used to the idea and so far as she's concerned there will be very little change in our habits."

AMASSED FORTUNE

Dawidowich, Roy Barker and Jack Forster, all of Geraldton, staked the claims after another prospector neglected to file papers on them. All three now have large holdings in two new mines and the fortune they made almost overnight is estimated at upwards of $1,500,000 each.

Dawidowich and his wife have had more than a nodding acquaintance with hard times. Born and raised in Saskatchewan, they were married during the depression and drought when wheat crops on the Prairies were practically non-existent and young persons began moving east in search of steady employment.

In 1937 they moved east, too, and settled in Geraldton with their son, then a year old. Geraldton's gold boom was at its height and Dawidowich got a job underground at Little Long Lac gold mines.

"I stayed there seven years," he said. "However, the outdoors was more to my liking and when I got the chance I took a bush job. In 1944 I went to work for Little Long Lac Pulp and Paper Company as a bushman. Eventually I became a camp foreman and have been working at that ever since."

He quit his job last month.

He said most of the work on the claims which made him and the others rich was done Sundays after they received reports on the original samples taken out last May.

Storm No Obstacle

SYDNEY MINES, N.S. (CP)—A total of 278 district residents braved a blizzard to donate blood at a mobile Red Cross unit here. Officials said they received the largest amount of blood ever taken at the clinic here in peacetime.

May Resettle British Orphans

LONDON (CP)— Thousands of homeless and orphaned British children would be sent to Commonwealth countries for settlement under a plan soon to be submitted for government approval.

The idea comes from the parliamentary migration board set up last year by the government.

A board official said that if the plan is adopted, children from voluntary institutions and homes run by local authorities will be sent to private homes and institutions in the Commonwealth.

Costs of the children's fare, care and education would be met by the receiving country.

Canadian immigration officials said Canada would "consider any child migration scheme carefully."

They said there were two main obstacles to Canada's possible entry to the scheme:

1. Child welfare schemes are under the authority of the provinces and the federal government could not accept the children without the approval of the provinces;

2. Child welfare facilities in Canada "are already bursting at the seams."

Stevens Reported Yielding To McCarthy's Demands

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Informed sourced said today that Army Secretary Robert Stevens agreed to Senator Joseph McCarthy's demands for information after being told his contrary orders put him in the untenable position of defying the United States Congress.

Stevens' change of position killed what would have been a dramatic climax today to the dispute that started over the promotion and honorable discharge of Maj. Irving Peress. Stevens, a member of President Eisenhower's Republican administration, and McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican who is chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee, were to have had it out before the television cameras.

But although that public session was cancelled, the furore over the affair blared on, and now shows signs of developing into another election-year political issue.

CONSIDERED DEFEAT

Stevens was described as shocked that his agreeing to McCarthy's demands was considered a defeat for him and a victory for the senator. At a showdown meeting Wednesday attended by the two principals and the other Republican members of McCarthy's sub - committee, an agreement was reached that the senator might question all army personnel involved in the Peress matter.

Stevens earlier had ordered two officers to disregard sub-committee subpoenas, and the army had ignored McCarthy's call for the names of the persons involved.

But Stevens now is said to feel that he had obtained guarantees about future handling of army witnesses that, in his view, counterbalanced the concessions he made. He had objected strongly to the line taken by McCarthy in questioning Brig.-Gen. Ralph Zwicker at a closed hearing in New York last week and had said he could not permit such "abuse" of officers.

However, sharply worded statements that the administration had yielded to McCarthy came from Adlai Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, and a spokesman for Americans for Democratic Action, an organization pledged to uphold the principles of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Democratic administration.

The White House said Wednesday that Eisenhower had no hand in arranging the McCarthy - Stevens meeting. And after the army secretary carpe out of it, he told reporters he did not "consider that I am a person who capitulates or retreats."

ROOT OUT COMMUNISTS

The "memorandum of understanding" that resulted from the meeting, besides the specific agreements on further information for McCarthy's sub - committee, contained a statement that the army was in agreement with the subcommittee on the importance of rooting out Communists from the armed services, and that the army's own investigation of the Peress matter would continue.

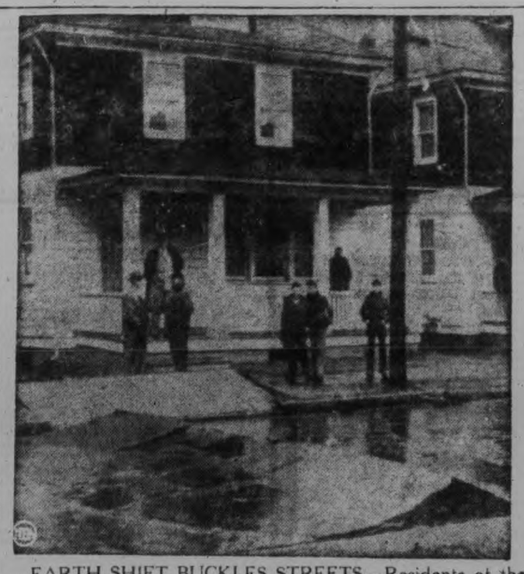
McCarthy has called Peress a "fifth amendment Communist," that is, one who refuses to testify under the constitutional amendment protecting a person from incriminating himself. Peress, now a New York dentist, has termed McCarthy's charges "sheer nonsense."

Senate sources in a position to know what went on at what McCarthy described as the "little friendly luncheon" with Stevens Wednesday, said the army secretary was told that:

1. His order to Zwicker and Maj.-Gen. William Bergin, the army adjutant - general, to disregard the subpoenas, was a blunder that put him in an "untenable" position of defying congressional authority.

2. He should have waited until he saw an official transcript of McCarthy's questioning of Zwicker behind closed doors before saying the senator had subjected the general to "unwarranted abuse."

This transcript, made public Monday, showed that McCarthy, among other things, told Zwicker he was "not fit" to wear his uniform and said the senator could not "help impugning" either the general's "honesty or . . . intelligence" as a result of some of Zwicker's answers.



EARTH SHIFT BUCKLES STREETS—Residents of the Old River Road section of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., gather in the rain at the intersection of the road and Alexander Street, where the roadway was buckled by a shift in the surface of the ground. Many foundation walls of homes were cracked, and large slabs of sidewalk were thrust upward.

Wait 6 Months To Get Car In Soviet Union

MOSCOW (AP)—Most autos in the Soviet Union still are state-owned and operated, but it's possible for a man to own his own car.

But if he's in a position to own a car, he has to wait six months or more to get one. Then he can't get licence plates until he manages to scrape together the materials to build a garage or, even more difficult, rent one. And he can't get the lumber to build a garage without official government permission.

If he somehow comes through all this, he has to pass a course in auto repairs and be able to discuss the working of an engine to get a driver's licence.

Some Soviet drivers actually make it. At last they're able to throw the family in the back seat and take a spin around the Kremlin. But if he runs out of gas, or his car breaks down, he'll find only second grade fuels available to him as a private motorist and servicing of the lowest order.

The government lately has been made aware of this state of affairs. The satirical weekly Krokodil (crocodile) says garages are being monopolized by cars belonging to government offices.

"It is nearly impossible," the paper goes on, "to convince officials in district executive committees that an automobile no longer is a luxury in the Soviet Union."

Oil Manager Confident Of Increasing Production

CALGARY (CP) — Will oil exploration and development in western Canada continue at the steadily increasing pace set since 1946?

"The (oil) industry answers with a confident 'yes'," says George Dunlap, division manager of Sun Oil Co., Calgary. He spoke this week at the first of a series of oil forums to be promoted throughout western provinces by the Canadian Petroleum Association.

The 770,000 square miles of potential oil-hunting ground in the west had only been scratched. In western Canada one well had been drilled for every 200 square miles of prospective territory, compared with one well for every 12 square miles in the United States.

Steady improvement of oil exploration techniques was another reason for improvement.

"We have no reason to doubt that further improvement will take place in the future," Mr. Dunlap said.

Canada's known crude oil reserves totalled 72,000,000 barrels in 1946. Reserves are estimated at about 2,000,000,000 barrels.

PRODUCTION UP

In 1946 western oil wells produced an average of some 21,000 barrels a day. They now produced 250,000 barrels daily. Despite doubled oil consumption in eight years, Canada now produced 44 per cent of her requirements, compared with 10 per cent in 1946.

The "two dozen or so" companies then operating in western Canada spent about $1,000,000 a month in oil exploration and development, compared with the 240 companies who spent almost $1,000,000 a day during 1953, Mr. Dunlap said.

The Alberta government, he said, had received more than $270,000,000 from the industry in royalties, rentals, bonuses and other payments since the Leduc discovery of 1947. This was equal to $270 for every person in the province and more than $700 for every taxpayer.

"For years agriculture has been one of the mainstays of the Canadian economy. The team of western agriculture and western oils will make increasing contributions to this Canada of ours."

Big Camp

MONTREAL (CP)—About 1,700 cadets from high schools and colleges throughout Quebec will spend eight weeks at Valcartier military camp this summer. This will be a post-war record for the centre, which last summer accommodated 1,200 cadets.

MISSED FORTUNE — Fred Bergquist, of Geraldton, Ont., says he thinks he missed out on a fortune when he staked 15 claims in the heart of the rich Manitouwadge copper discovery but didn't record his claims. When Bergquist didn't record his claims within the 30-day limit three other Geraldton men, Roy Barker, William Dawidowich and John Forster, flew in and restaked the claims. Today they hold 100,000 shares in Geco, valued at about $12 a share, plus production royalties amounting to 15 cents a ton. —(CP Photo).

No Fooling In Moscow Get What You Order

MOSCOW (CP) — Two western reporters wanting a quick dinner in Moscow's Metropole Hotel thought they'd forestall the local two-hours-a-meal service. They asked the waiter to bring everything at once.

Soup, cold meats, pickles, toast, butter and beverages were ordered.

Thirty minutes later came the soup.

Then from his tray the waiter unloaded two steaks.

"We ordered cold meats," said one of the reporters, who speaks pretty fair Russian. "You've brought steaks."

"But they are cold," protested the waiter.

"There are no cold meats in the kitchen today, so we cooked a steak for each of you and put them outside to chill."

SMALL FRY MEET

Some 50 members of the junior division of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association are requested to attend a general meeting at the Chamber of Commerce, Friday evening at 7:30. Chairman Don Blondeau will conduct an election of officers. Their work with the parent club will be one of education in the many branches of conservation. Senior club officials report that they are very pleased with the growth of the junior section.

THE DISTAFF SIDE

At the current Peterborough Assizes there is a sight that would have gladdened the heart of many a feminist or long-forgotten suffragette. Women equal men on the jury now hearing the civil action of May versus Hayes. There are six of both sexes deciding the case, the largest number of women on any jury since they were included on the panel Jan. 1, 1953. In the case of Empey versus Casselman and Stoklosar Marble Quarries there were four women, a record that lasted for only a day.

Rams Into Bank Car Demolished Three Injured

A 1941 model car became a pile of debris in an accident on the Chemong road, just south of Highland road at eight o'clock this morning.

Driving south on the Chemong road, Harry J. Copeland, 50, of 167 Williams St., Lindsay, suddenly lost control of his vehicle. It veered off the travelled portion of the highway, struck the inside bank of the west ditch head-on and did a complete circle, ending up facing east after the impact.

The driver and his two passengers were treated at Civic Hospital for shock and assorted bruises and lacerations. Passengers were Clare O'Connell, 27, 48 Russell St., W., Lindsay and Paul Skipworth, 22, 106 Lindsay St. S., Lindsay.

Copeland was treated for cuts about the face and cheek. O'Connell suffered a bruised left knee and Mr. Skipworth injured his right leg. After treatment all three were released.

The Copeland automobile was a complete wreck. Both front fenders were pushed into the car, the radiator was broken in, the doors were wrecked and the car was battered almost all the way around. It was towed away to Longhurst's.

Const. Harold Andrew who investigated the accident said that he could not understand how the accident could have happened. Driving conditions were good, there was no other traffic in the vicinity and there appeared to be no visibility problem. There was, however, a light fall of wet snow on the pavement.

Phone Call Warns Family Of Coal Gas

Leak From Furnace Affects 3 People Escape Serious Harm

Coal gas fumes leaking from a furnace caused three people from two families living at 689 Elcombe Crescent to become ill shortly before midnight Wednesday.

An inhalator squad was called from the fire department but the artificial breathing apparatus wasn't required. Patients were treated by Dr. Alice Martin.

Families affected were those of Carl Osborne, living in the downstairs of the house, and John O'Brien, upstairs.

CHILD ILL

Four-year-old Sharon Osborne was the most seriously ill. When her parents tried wakening her about 11:30 p.m. she would just moan and sink back into unconsciousness.

The Osbornes both had headaches, and their company, who had been with them during the evening, phoned back to suggest the discomfort might have been caused by coal and gas fumes. So when the Osbornes discovered Sharon was acting strangely they diagnosed the trouble and called the fire department and Dr. Martin.

Others who were ill were four-month-old Maureen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien, and Mrs. O'Brien herself.

Both the children are resting comfortably today.

The Osbornes have been having trouble with the coal furnace all winter. From time to time fumes have been leaking from it.

Jury To Decide Payment In $17,500 Suit

The six-man, six-woman Peterborough county jury retired at 12:45 p.m. today to consider their verdict in the civil action brought by a Toronto family against John Norman Hayes, 44, of 136 Fradette Ave.

Plaintiffs claim that Hayes was responsible for an accident 3:15 p.m., Sept. 19, 1953, on a straight stretch of Highway 7, seven miles east of Peterborough. In their statement of claim they have asked for $17,500 in damages.

The two passenger cars were wrecked in the nearly head-on collision and all four of the family of Claude May, 56 Braeside Rd., Toronto, were injured.

Least seriously hurt was Mr. May, a 45-year-old salesman. He received a scraped forehead and nose.

Mrs. Dorothy May, his 46-year-old wife, who was driving when the accident occurred, was in Civic Hospital for eight days. She received a bump over the right eye, a bruised face, swollen nose, a cut inside her lip requiring four stitches to close, a bruised chest, a cut on her left arm below the elbow requiring six stitches, and bruises and cuts on her knees.

Mrs. May says the knee still aches if subjected to strain, and the accident has made her nervous.

The elder son, 15-year-old Stuart, got a cut on the top of his head that was caused by him being thrown forward against the windshield. He was released from hospital the next day.

Donald, age 8, the younger son, was also in hospital for eight days. He, too, was thrown against the windshield and received cuts over both eyes and on the face, including a deep gash that extended in an arc from his right temple to his lower lip.

As a result of his injuries, Mrs. May testified, young Donald is nervous and shuns meeting

PENNY-A-DAY DRIVE OPENS FRIDAY in city public and separate schools, both primary and secondary. The program was sparked on Wednesday at Confederation school as drive chairman Clare Collins (seated, above) explained it to small pupils Wayne Wall and Barbara Beth Pickles. Shown with them (left to right), are school principal J. G. Nichols, Miss Maureen Hickey of St. Peter's High school, Miss Muriel Ball of King Edward Public school and school inspector Percy D. Windrim. The drive, an important part of the Community Chest campaign, raised more than $700 in 1953; officials hope to top this figure this year. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Empey Awarded $1,013.86; Damage Action

Ralph Empey, 25-year-old Eldorado laborer, Wednesday afternoon was awarded $1,013.86 by a Peterborough county jury in compensation for his injuries and damage to his truck that were sustained in an accident January 7, 1953, a half mile north of Malone.

The full amount of his damages was assessed at $5,069.30, but the jury found him to be 80 per cent negligent in the accident; so the award was scaled down accordingly.

Defendants in the action—Kenneth G. Casselman, 26, of Madoc, driver of the other truck involved, and Helen Margaret Stoklosar, owner—were found 20 per cent negligent. They received 80 per cent of their counterclaim, or $69.61.

FOUR WOMEN ON JURY

The case, which began Monday afternoon, was heard by Mr. Justice R. I. Ferguson, presiding at the Peterborough Assizes, and a jury of county people consisting of eight men and four women. The jury retired to consider their verdict and—with time out for lunch — deliberated about four hours.

The accident occurred on a Hastings county road at a sharp curve where northbound traffic meets westbound traffic. High banks along the side of the road made it difficult, if not impossible for the drivers to see each other coming.

It was at this dangerous curve that Empey's half-ton pickup truck was in collision with the left dual wheel of Casselman's four-ton dump truck. Empey was travelling north, going from Deloro to Eldorado. Casselman, a driver for Stoklosar Marble Quarries at Eldorado, was coming south. Neither vehicle was loaded at the time.

Empey claimed that he was only doing 10 miles an hour as he approached the curve and was on the right-hand side of the road. Then, he said, he was confronted by Casselman's dump truck which was over the centre line.

He said Casselman swung to the right and the front wheels responded but the back didn't. The dump truck's hind duals caught his left fender.

In their counterclaim, the defendants said Empey was going too fast considering that there was a slippery road surface and a dangerous curve to get around; and they also said Empey failed to turn to the right and give the southbound dump truck half the road.

The two vehicles ended up with the dump truck facing southeast, with only the front wheels on the travelled portion of the road. OPP Constable R. J. Devey, of Madoc, testified. The pickup truck was parallel, facing northwest, with the front wheels off the travelled portion of the road.

ONE TRUCK WRECKED

There was only slight damage to the dump truck but the pickup truck was wrecked. Empey was trapped inside and could not be taken out until the steering wheel was hacksawed off. He was in Belleville Hospital for three weeks with a broken thigh bone, a broken kneecap that was later removed, and other leg injuries.

The jury found Casselman 20

Roslin Farmer Discovers In His Oysters Beyond Hard Shell Lies Rewarding Pearl

STIRLING (ENS) — Oysters are like women.

Some men find them a constant delight. Others can scarcely endure the slippery creatures but keep coming back for more, sustained by the dream that beyond the hard shell lies a rewarding pearl.

Dreams came true for Charles Bailey of Roslin recently. He was savoring the flavor of a whole meal of oysters when something hard almost crumbled his molars.

Gingerly exploring the interior of his mouth, Mr. Bailey fished out a tiny round pellet, smaller than a piece of buckshot. He took it to a Belleville jeweller, who confirmed the fact that it was a pearl.

No value was set on the pearl. The jeweller explained that it would have to be sent away and polished before the value could be determined.

45 Persons Engaged In Police Department

A total of 42 officers, a matron, a chief, one civilian constituted the Peterborough city police force at the end of 1953, states the annual report tabled at the police commission meeting Wednesday. This averages more than one policeman for every 1,000 people in the city.

Of this number there are 30 constables, nine sergeants, one detective, one matron and the inspector of detectives, deputy chief and chief. The civilian employee acts as secretary to the chief.

Six new constables were appointed during the year and four officers received promotions.

Police Require Three Constables

The fast growing population in Peterborough and the increasing development on the outer edges of the city were given as reasons by the police commission at a meeting Wednesday when members resolved to move that three further constables be added to the force this year.

The city council has to sanction the request for the additional money required. If so, the applications for enrolment will be taken after April 1. By enrolling a further thre men the force will be able to add one to each eight-hour shift.

Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, and Mayor Norman Graham gave the idea their whole-hearted support and hoped that the additional constables would satisfactorily solve the staff shortage at present facing the city force.

This will bring the force's total number to 45 active policemen. The police matron, the chief and a civilian worker are not included in this total.

$203,647 BUDGET

Magistrate Philp said that the commission was budgeting for $203,647.20 this year. Included in this was $7,495.20 which would cover the three new constables salaries and equipment from April 1 until the end of the year. Last year the commission budgeted for $190,840. The increase is accounted for by increasing salaries due to promotions and the general rise in costs.

At the moment Peterborough has a population of 41,000 and a police force of 42.

The magistrate provided corresponding figures from other centres. There were: Kingston population 43,000 and police 51; St. Catharines, 39,000 and 51; Oshawa, 42,000 and 39; Sarnia, 40,000 and 46; Brantford, 37,000 and 44; Kitchener, 52,000 and 56.

P. J. Anglesey Re-elected Head Of VON Board

Patrick J. Anglesey was returned as president of the Victorian Order of Nurses who held their annual meeting Wednesday in the city hall.

Only change among the executive was the election of J. Condon as treasurer to replace T. E. McKay who stays on the executive as second vice-president.

Other officers of the board are vice-president James B. Lillico and secretary Robert H. Carley.

Mr. Carley expressed the board's appreciation to Miss Harriet McGeary supervisor of the Peterborough VON for her "conscientious and thorough work."

In her report Miss McGeary stressed the lack of accommodation in hospitals and suggested that chronically ill patients could be equally well treated at home by the VON.

P. J. ANGLESEY

She also recommended a referral system from hospital to community to provide continuity of nursing care for those who do not need 24-hour hospitalization.

COULD DO MORE

The VON, said Miss McGeary could carry another 1,500 visits a year over the 1953 grand total of 4,507 visits. There has been a slight falling off in the volume of VON work since existing hospitalization and medical insurance schemes do not provide for home care.

The greater the volume of visits the less the average cost per visit said Miss McGeary. Since the volume decreased last year, fees rose from $2 up to $3.

(VON patients pay only when they are able to. Last year only 18 per cent of the VON visits were full-pay jobs.

The treasurer's report submitted by Mr. McKay showed a net balance at year's end of $586.76. Total receipts were $16,479 and expenditures $14,761.84. The VON started 1953 with a debit balance.

Schools Start Penny Drive, Aim For $650

The annual Penny-a-Day drive in aid of the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund campaign starts Friday in Peterborough schools.

The penny-a-day drive, run each year a week in advance of the Community Chests drive, is being organized by Clare G. Collins. Says Mr. Collins: "We want every child in every schoolroom in every school to bring his pennies." The objective this year is $650, $50 more than last year's and $52 less than was actually raised in 1953.

"This is definitely not a contest between schools," Mr. Collins stressed. The number of pupils varies from school to school. It is a drive to make every child community-chest conscious, and, incidentally, swell the campaign coffers by a hoped-for $750.

The penny-a-day drive will continue through all next week up to March 5. At the opening dinner of the Red Cross and Community Fund drive that evening, one child from each school will present the contributions from his school to Chests chairman Alex Elliott.

The pennies are picked up each day by Ernie Ried of the Peterborough Utilities Commission. Daily totals are posted in store windows and progress reports on the campaign are published and broadcast daily.

7 Workers Get 7½-Cent Raise

The seven unionized production workers at the Hobbs Glass Division of Canadian Pittsburgh Industries Ltd., 250 Sherbrooke St., have signed a one-year contract with the company.

Principal gain for the employees, of composite Local 527, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Indep.), is a general wage increase of 7½ cents an hour. The increase is retroactive to Nov. 1, 1953, the anniversary date of the contract.

The workers also get an extra statutory holiday (Thanksgiving) making eight paid statutory holidays in all. There are automatic progressions to the top of the job rate.

The 40-hour work week, which was not an issue, remains.

Job classification rates have maximums that vary between $1.32½ and $1.47½ an hour.

Negotiating for the company were James Hendry, manager, and Col. A. S. Pearson, vice-president. Negotiating for the union: Gordon Haylock and David McDowell, assisted by UE organizers John Rowley and Len Harries.

City Engineer Plans Sewer System To Defeat Flooding

City Engineer A. E. Chalmers has drawn up plans for a system of storm sewers to drain the south-end district bounded on three sides by Ephgrave Blvd., to help prevent a recurrence of recent flooding there. Mr. Chalmers has also prepared a schedule of costs for the project. Residents of the area are being asked to prepare and sign a petition to have the work carried out under the Local Improvement Act. Cost of the project would be shared by the city and the property-owners of the district, with the city paying 40 per cent of the owners' share.

In a letter to city council 11 residents of Ephgrave Blvd. complained of flooding there last week. They blamed the undesirable condition of the road, which they said had been covered with water for a stretch of 300 feet and two feet deep in places.

It was said in the letter that a similar condition resulted after every rain and required draining and grading.

PUMPED WATER

Ald. Art Burrows, chairman of the board of works, told the board Monday evening that a crew under Foreman Jack McKibbin had attempted to grade the road to permit the water to run off but it didn't seem to help very much. The water had to be pumped off.

It was considered in the works department, Ald. Burrows said, that the flooding was due, not to the construction of the road, but to the absence of storm drains. Only the construction of drains would cure the situation permanently, it was felt.

Ephgrave Blvd. runs north from Braidwood Ave., a block west of Park St., and cuts back into Braidwood to the west. Lloyd St. runs north and south between Braidwood Ave. and the boulevard.

The engineer's plan calls for laying sewers on Braidwood Ave., east from Lloyd St. to an outlet near Park St. and west from Ephgrave Blvd.; an outlet at the south end of Lloyd St., and sewers on both the east and west branches of Ephgrave Blvd.

ALL ASSESSED

All property on Ephgrave Blvd., Lloyd St. and the north side of Braidwood Ave., whether or not it abutted directly on the work, would be assessed at the same rate per foot frontage. The assessment against property on the south side of Braidwood Ave. would be half the rate on the other streets. The city would assume 40 per cent of the property-owners' share of the cost.

The total cost of the work would be $8,603.07, of which the city would pay $5,935.33, or $522.66 a year for 15 years. Life-time of the work has been estimated at 16 years.

The cost to property-owners on the south side of Braidwood Ave. would be 3.68 cents a foot frontage for 15 years, to the others 7.37 cents a foot frontage.

Community Chest Interest Lagging

LINDSAY (ENS) — Jasper Forman, campaign chairman of the Lindsay community chest, said Wednesday that the chest is in danger of being discontinued if the public fails to show more interst in its affairs.

His comment came after Monday night's scheduled annual meeting when only seven Lindsay people showed up for the meeting.

Officials postponed the meeting and said another would be called in April.

If there isn't more public support then, said Mr. Foreman, "it is possible that the chest will cease to function and the charities benefitting from it may be forced to conduct their own fund-raising campaign".

Chief Constable Lauds Work Of Don Mackay

No serious crimes, such as murder, were committed in Peterborough during 1953, a fact which speaks highly for the members of the community. So said Police Chief John Thompson in delivering his tenth annual report to the police commission Wednesday.

He said that the conduct of members of the force had been exceptionally good, and on only two occasions had it been necessary to reprimand officers.

Chief Thompson spoke highly of the work being done by school safety patrols under the guidance of traffic constable Don Mackay. Eighteen of the city's 21 schools had organized patrols. During the year not one child had been injured on the streets while under the care of school patrols.

"I wish to thank all those who are in any way connected with the organizing and carrying on of this work and I feel that the city is being highly compensated for the small investment it has laid out to keep this organization operating," commented the chief. "I trust the same may be carried on in years to come."

POLICE SCHOOL

During 1953 a school for police was conducted under the leadership of Judge de N. Kennedy who arranged for a series of lectures to be given by members of the local lawyers' association, the report continued. The lectures had been well attended by municipal, provincial and county police and had been most valuable.

Chief Thompson offered thanks to Crown attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, for the capable manner in which he had conducted prosecutions and advised and assisted all members of the force. The lawyers, too, had been very courteous towards officers and witnesses called to give evidence.

"It is very pleasing to know that witnesses can come to court and tell their story without fear of being abused by either Crown attorney or defence lawyers," added the chief.

OPP CO-OPERATION

As usual, the OPP had been most co-operative and thanks were extended to Inspector J. A. Stringer, his officers and men.

The chief complimented probation officer John Twigg for his admirable work among the unfortunates who found themselves in domestic troubles. Thanks were extended to the superintendent of the Children's Aid, Miss Rachel Young, for splendid assistance given in many cases dealing with young children and some adults.

In conclusion, the chief thanked all members of the city force for their co-operation and loyalty which had been the means of keeping crime at a minimum during the year.

Soviet Doctors Can Order Patient To Have Operation

The Russian foreign office arranged an interview for CP reporter Bill Boss with a high official of the U.S.S.R. ministry of public health. In this, second of two articles, Boss reports what he was told about medical organization in Russia.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP) — The powers Soviet doctors are said to have are wider than those held by their Canadian counterparts.

They may:

1. Order a patient to have an operation when they consider life at stake;

2. Over-rule a parent's wishes should they consider a child's life at stake and an operation necessary;

3. Authorize a patient, or a working mother whose child is sick, to be absent from work with pay during the time required for treatment and convalescence;

4. Close down a state enterprise if they consider it does not meet state health standards.

ALL ARE ELIGIBLE

Dr. Lydia Greshishnikova, a high official of the U.S.S.R. health ministry, told The Canadian Press:

"The special feature of our system is that medical assistance is given free, is available to the broad masses of the population, and is given by qualified personnel."

Continuance of salary during illness, she said, is determined by length of service in current employment. During the early years sick pay varies from 50 to 80 per cent of salary, but after six years a patient who belongs to a trade union, and practically everyone does, draws full pay while ill.

"Pregnant mothers draw 35 days fully-paid leave before delivery and have 42 days of paid post-delivery leave. They may take their annual leave after that and, if they want to, two months leave without pay."

STATE BEARS COST

Soviet citizens do not pay a direct health or social insurance, and the system's medical costs are borne by the state, municipal and regional Soviet budgets. Sick pay also is provided for in state, organization and enterprise budgets, and is turned over to the trade unions in the form of specially-allocated funds. These are administered by the trades unions.

Soviet life insurance is straight life.

If a citizen takes out a 10-year 10,000-ruble policy, premiums of 83 rubles 35 kopeks are paid monthly during the 10 years. During that period the insured's family is protected in the event of his death, and he is guaranteed indemnity in the event of permanent incapacity.

After 10 years he may take the 10,000 rubles he has paid, without interest, or leave the money with the agency until needed. There are no annuity or endowment programs since the state operates its own pension program.

The state and its various enterprises and industries operate convalescent and rest sanatoria for workers. Most persons recovering from illness get this service free but some pay part of the cost, usually one-third, their unions absorbing the remainder from special funds.

MANY CAMPS

Dr. Greshishnikova said 5,000,000 children attend summer camps for Pioneers, the Soviet version of Boy Scouts and Girl Guides. These camps are under the health ministry which also directs athletic activities.

Soviet doctors work a six-hour day and are paid a basic monthly salary of 800 rubles, with time-and-a-half for overtime. Most general practitioners and pediatricians are women; most senior specialists and lecturers are men. A doctor's basic salary, incidentally, is the same as that of a high school teacher.

(For exchange purposes the Russians quote the ruble at 25 cents, but this does not indicate its buying power in Russia).

A doctor specializing in tuberculosis or infectious diseases draws a supplementary 15 to 20 per cent. Those assigned to distant areas, such as Siberia or the far north, draw an additional 50 to 100 per cent.

FIXED INCREASES

There are increases of 15 per cent after five years, 25 per cent after 10 years, 50 per cent after 20 years and a pension of 350 rubles monthly after 25 years. A doctor eligible for pension may continue to work and draw both salary and pension.

Doctors are eligible for the title Honored Doctor of the Soviet Union, which brings a 10-per-cent pay increase, and may receive decorations such as the Order of the Red Banner after 25 years and the Order of Lenin after 30.

Professors in institutes are paid more than practitioners. A lecturer earns between 2,000 and 4,000 rubles; the head of a department up to 6,000 rubles.

Until recently doctors have depended on local housing authorities for their personal accommodation, but modern medical complexes—the network of clinics, creches and other services organized around each polyclinic and hospital—now include doctors' living quarters.

Khyber Pass Bone Of Contention Between Pakistan-Afghanistan

WASHINGTON— Khyber Pass, historic invasion route to India known to almost every adventure-hungry boy, again has become a crossroads of world events.

For centuries migrating tribesmen and marching or mounted troops have threaded the narrow defile. Soldiers of Alexander the Great, the Tartars of Tamarlane, bejewelled Mogul potentates and their implacable enemies, the Afridi Pathans, all crossed the pass. Hard-fighting British and their local allies won fame as the Khyber Rifles for guarding its camel caravan traffic.

"That narrow sword-cut in the hills," as Rudyard Kipling called the Khyber (pronounced Ki-ber), now lies on the border between Pakistan's northwest frontier province and Afghanistan, says the National Geographic Society. This region has become a bone of contention between the two countries. Afghanistan recently requested the British to revise the 1921 boundary treaty.

BUSY IN KIPLING'S DAY

In Kipling's day the pass was busy with commerce:

And there fled on the wings of the gathering dusk
A savour of camels and carpets and musk,
A murmur of voices, a reek of smoke,
To tell us the trade of the Khyber woke.

The 30-mile gorge still is a vital link in the trade of southern Asia. Bright-colored trucks carry pomegranates and cotton from the north, and buses transport passengers, inside or on their roofs, from Kabul, Afghanistan's capital, to Peshawar, near the southeastern mouth of the pass in Pakistan. Between sheer cliffs double-humped Bactrian camels still crest the pass, 3,733 feet above sea level, with bulky burdens. Vehicles use one road, pack-animals another.

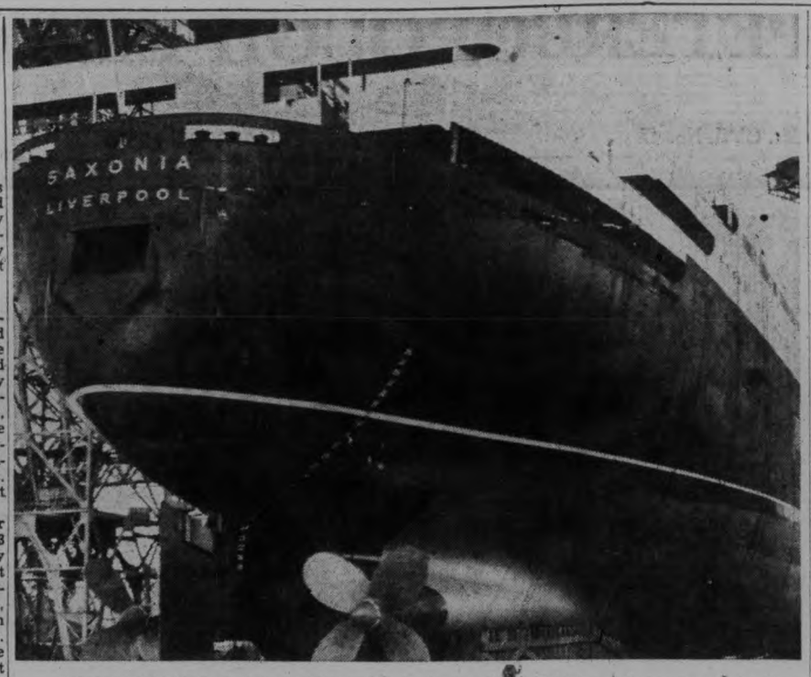
The barren, toilsome way is studded with pillboxes erected by the British during World War II. On the Pakistan side a railway winds to the border.

GATEWAY TO INDIA

Few mountain gaps possess so many historic associations as this gateway to the plains of India through the Safed Koh Range. Although Alexander led the main body of his Greek forces into India farther to the north along the Kabul River, he probably sent a division through the Khyber. There in 1672 Afghan tribes captured a neighboring army of 40,000 men, including its elephants and treasures.

The British fought a series of nineteenth century wars along the border. The campaigns were marked by heroic deeds, hazardous sieges and weary marches, many of them centering about the Fort of Ali Masjid, high on the pass. Today bronze plaques commemorate places where British and Indian regiments fought.

The cropless, waterless Khyber still has its warlike tribesmen, but since World War II they have mainly feuded among themselves, leaving the Khyber open as a door of commerce between nations. There is an ancient reason for this: They are paid to keep the peace.



AT GLASGOW Lady Churchill launched the 22,000-ton Cunard liner "Saxonia" at a Clyde-side ceremony. Expedition To Study Customs Of Melville Island Natives

WASHINGTON—The National Geographic Society is sending an expedition to little-known Melville Island off northern Australia to report on the art, mythology and tribal characteristics of its people, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, the Society's president, announced today.

Leader of the group will be Charles P. Mountford, an Australian ethnologist who led a joint National Geographic Society-Smithsonian Institution study of nearby Arnhem Land on the Australian mainland in 1848.

There are gaps in scientific knowledge of the Melville Island aborigines. Their art and beliefs differ from those of the mainland natives and seem to be centered about a colorful burial ceremony, the Pukamuni.

The Pukamuni requires three or four months of dancing and rituals. Much of the time is used in making and decorating carved burial poles, ornaments and bark utensils. The expedition will photograph and record the rites especially from the standpoint of art, symbolism and music. It will also closely observe the natives' food, shelter, tools and water transportation.

Melville Island was discovered in 1644 by Abel Jansz Tasman, the Dutch navigator. In the early nineteenth century the British founded Fort Dundas there but it was soon abandoned. The island, 65 miles long, 45 miles wide, is the second largest close to the Australian coast. Behind its fine stretches of beach grow a profusion of trees—stringy-bark, wolly-butte, plum and ironwood. Bloodwood, white gum and paper-bark thrive in freshwater swamps. Mangrove trees dot its shores.

The island is infested with dangerous crocodiles. At one time Indian buffaloes, imported from Timor, were raised in great numbers.

The bearded natives wield spears, woomeras, waddies and a short stick thrown so as to rebound from the ground on to its target. While singing and dancing the aborigines paint their faces in lurid shades of red and white.

Explorers report it a weird experience to witness night ceremonies. For one dance a dozen fires are lit. One group of men claps its hands, then yells, first loudly, then softly. Another group emerges from the shadows into the firelight, stamping feet and brandishing spears and woomeras. The women shuffle along, chanting in low tones.

Probably the most noted inhabitant of Melville Island was Robert Joel (Joe) Cooper, the sturdy six-footer who arrived from South Australia in 1881. His bravery and forthright personality established a place for him in the hearts of the natives who considered him king of the island.

It is expected the National Geographic Society's expedition will reach the field in early March and will remain several months. The party will include David Parsons, zoological collector of the Peabody Museum of Natural History at Yale University; Jane Goodale, University of Pennsylvania anthropologist; and Dr. Carleton Coon, director of the University of Pennsylvania Museum, and Mrs. Coon.

Mr. Mountford has served on the Board for Anthropological Research of the University of Adelaide and as ethnologist for the South Australia Museum. Arrangements for the Melville Island trip have been in progress for more than a year.

Denies Police Used Force Gain Confession

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Porter has denied statements made in the Ontario legislature that two Toronto policemen used a rubber hose to gain a confession from Paul Cachia, twice convicted and then finally acquitted of a charge of armed robbery.

The charges were made by Robert Macaulay, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Riverdale.

Mr. Porter said in the house that during the second trial the defence "for some reason" introduced a confession which Cachia testified was forced out of him by the use of a rubber hose.

"The officers were called. . . and swore under oath that they didn't use any rubber hose, they had no rubber hose, and used no method of intimidation on the accused."

Cachia, who had been sentenced to four years in prison, was acquitted in a third trial on the evidence of a missing witness who was finally located in Nova Scotia.

Mayor Allan Lamport, who is chairman of the Toronto police commission, termed the charges "irresponsible."

Cachia was convicted at Toronto in 1951 of robbing a suburban Swansea service station. At his trial, he said detectives had beaten him with a rubber hose to get a confession. He was acquitted at a retrial after serving two years.

Chief of detectives Alex McCathie released a copy of a confession signed by Cachia and said "I could lead you on a room-to-room search of police headquarters and I dare you to find a rubber hose."

Prospectors' School

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. W. D. Harding, geologist of the Ontario department of mines, has announced that a short course for prospectors will again be held March 1-5 in the mining building of the University of Toronto. The course, a preliminary to the annual convention of the Prospectors' and Developers' Association, will be conducted by Dr. Harding. No charge is made for the course.

Soldier Given B.E.M. Award

OTTAWA (CP) — L. Cpl. Paul Dugal of Quebec City has been awarded the British Empire Medal by the Queen, the army announced Wednesday.

Dugal, 22, came out of Communist captivity in Korea April 21, 1953, with a little black notebook which he had managed to keep hidden from the Reds. In that notebook he had written the names of 15 fellow Canadians who were prisoners-of-war. Later he remembered having seen a 16th—Capt. Joseph Michael Liston of Ottawa.

The army, which up to that time had been able to list only one Canadian as prisoner-of-war, checked Dugal's story closely. On the strength of his evidence alone, it listed all 16 officially as prisoners.

Dugal's score turned out to be perfect. When the final prisoner exchange was completed last September, all 16 men listed by Dugal had been returned as prisoners. Besides these 16, two other Canadians were repatriated by the Communists.

A Community Fund Agency

All Troubled Look For Help To Children's Aid Society

(The Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund supports 10 agencies. The campaign objective this year is $100,000 and the dates March 8 to 20. The Children's Aid is one of the 10 agencies and in this article The Examiner outlines many of the services to the community this agency renders.

You are a child, a misplaced guardian of tomorrow. You are surrounded by what seems a gigantic social conspiracy designed to crush you. You beat your feeble fists against the inexorable economics of life. You achingly listen to your parents bicker, nag and rant over how fate has passed them by.

You sit forlorn and unloved in homes filled with physical or spiritual squalor or both. You wonder if you will ever live in a home where happiness, co-operation, love and faith are more than just nice-sounding words. You are afraid.

Or you are a young girl. You have grown to become a woman and your ingrown parents of whatever income bracket have not even noticed. Some man comes along, fills the aching emptiness in your soul by telling you how wonderful you are. You find that love is more than just a word and you become pregnant. . . . And your erstwhile boy friend is looking for more worlds to conquer.

Or you are a father. Your wife is dead or sick and you are becoming ineffective at your job, wondering if your youngsters are safe with some incompetent baby-sitter. You love your children, but you can't provide them with the companionship they need to grow and the food they need to live at the same time.

OR CHILDLESS

Or you are a wife or husband without children. You yearn for a child, but have none. You think longingly how wonderful it would be to hear cries from the nursery, how pleasant even to wash mud-prints off the wallpaper.

Or you are a citizen. You have an active social conscience. You see parents neglecting their children; you see children with lustreless eyes roaming the streets not knowing what they are looking for. Your sister or your friend or your child is in trouble, or at odds with what we call society.

Or you are Miss Rachael Young, superintendent of the Peterborough Children's Aid Society. Each day you probe raw emotions, trying to convince husband and wife of their responsibilities to their children, or helping unwed mothers to do the best thing for their own flesh and blood.

You fight poverty, human neglect, public indifference. You help many who seem beyond helping, or not worthy of it in the first place. Then you look into the face of a soul-scarred child you have helped and you feel that the most agonizing job in the world is also one of the most rewarding.

The children's Aid Society of the city and county of Peterborough does not want to take children from their own homes. Everything else will be tried before parents are separated from children and the family is wrenched apart. However bad a home may be, says Miss Young, if it can be improved, it's better than putting an impressionable youngster in strange surroundings, however desirable.

PARENTAL IGNORANCE

Children's misery is often the by-product of parental ignorance and lack of understanding. Children's aid societies would be acting negatively if family counselling were not a vital part of their work.

An encouraging sign of modern times is that parents do not deify themselves as much as they once did. Miss Young says that from 35 to 40 per cent of all cases involving children, the parents take the initiative in seeking help from the society.

"We want to help them understand why they should not rather than just tell them that they mustn't." This, says Miss Young, is the basic philosophy of the children's Aid approach to parents guilty of emotional or physical neglect of their children.

When it appears that another home is the only hope for a child, parents are urged to see that this does not necessarily place them under a life-long stigma. Often the family trouble is of a temporary nature—eviction, unemployment or illness. Suitable boarding homes are found for the children where they are helped to work out their emotional tangles. Then, when parent and child are reunited, both are better able to handle future problems.

MISCONCEPTION

One popular public misconception is that unwed mothers must surrender their children or find a father for the children. No child can be separated from its parents unless neglect is proven, and then a court order must be provided to make the child a ward of the society.

Boarding homes are carefully selected, but potential foster-parents of children born out of wedlock are even more carefully screened. Every relevant detail of the adopting parents' social history is probed before they are allowed to see the child whom the society thinks would fit best in their home. Then there is a one-year probationary period before adoption proceedings can be started.

Most adopted children are babies, because older children with more knowledge of their blood parents, are consequently less adoptable. These are placed in foster homes, but are not usually adopted. They are wards of the society until they are 21.

One of the biggest problems in such cases as these is the problem of two sets of parents, both of whom have their own ideas about raising a child. Once a child has been placed in a foster-home, the society discourages visits from blood parents because these can't help guaranteeing that he will be back with them soon, even when they know this is impossible. This creates confusion in the child's mind and he has no real home at all.

Perhaps the most fundamental difference in the outlook of Children's Aid Societies today and 50 years ago, is the growing recognition that emotional neglect is often more permanently damaging than physical neglect. The law protects children from physical mistreatments and neglect (which were once considered a part of living), but emotional difficulties are less tangible.

Emotional needs are more delicate than physical needs and are more ramifying. They require even more adept treatment by the society and are exemplified by such parental abuses as drinking, non-support and desertion. The canker of the trouble is not, however, usually in these factors themselves but in deep-rooted parental disturbances which produce the above unsocial reactions.

The Peterborough Children's Aid Society is not an agency of the provincial government, although it does assume responsibility for administration of such children's statutes as the Children's Protection Act, the Adoption Act and the Children of Unmarried Parents Act. It is managed by a board of directors elected by the society. Anyone who pays a membership and is accepted under the constitution is entitled to membership in the society.

The primary responsibility of the City of Peterborough to the society, under provincial statute, is to provide money for maintenance of society wards. This does not mean just the feeding, clothing and boarding of the child, but his supervision by social workers, medical and dental services, etc. The society's share of the Community fund campaign will be largely used for this purpose.

At the end of 1953 the Peterborough society had 153 children under its care. Of these 72 were in boarding homes, 53 were in adoption homes and five were at the Children's Shelter on Lock St. The rest were in various intermediate stages.

KEEP NUMBERS DOWN

It is the aim of the society to keep the number of children at the shelter down to an absolute minimum at all times. The society recognizes that however well-arranged a shelter may be, there is no substitute for a home-like atmosphere.

It was over 60 years ago, in 1892 that a branch of the English National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children was organized in Peterborough. The first president was the sheriff, James A. Hall, although credit for founding the group goes to organizer J. Hampden Burnham.

It was not until 1905 that the society began to accept wards, and the emphasis was more on satisfying foster parents than in ensuring the best of possible homes for wards. A few years later the society was reporting an "unlimited demand for bright, healthy children."

But not all children available for placement were bright and healthy. The 1914 report wonders why mentally defective adults are allowed to marry and implies that legislation should be passed forbidding these marriages.

RESPONSIBILITIES BROADEN

The society's responsibilities broadened after the war so that the 1919 report could observe: "All classes of people come to this office, from the man who wants to know how to get his wife back. . . . to the man and woman who wanted to turn their family of five over to the society."

By 1927 adoption of illegitimate babies was assuming more importance with the passage of the Children of Unmarried Parents Act. At last the fathers of illegitimate children were legally bound to be responsible for the maintenance for out-of-wedlock children.

Through the depression the emotional life of the child was stressed, the better to help it adapt to an unfriendly economic environment. Meanwhile the society was incorporated, administration facilities were expanded, and Miss Rachael A. D. Young was appointed superintendent in 1938.

Family services have now come into their own and the prime emphasis is on rehabilitation, education and family counselling rather than primarily on removing children to more suitable homes. They believe that by helping parents to help themselves, they will also best answer "the cries of suffering childhood."

James G. Wharry, general manager of the Quaker Oats Co. is president of the Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society of the City and County of Peterborough for 1953-54. Others on the executive are vice-president M. Norman Cook; secretary Mrs. F. Irwin; treasurer J. Blake Bell; directors, E. W. Armstrong, F. G. Ash, Mrs. D. H. Diplock, Rev. H. Douglas, Father Gaughan of St. Peter's, Mrs. J. E. Girven, Mrs. N. S. Higgins, Walter Howell, Mrs. Keith Lech, Mrs. F. J. Lynch, Mrs. J. R. Marshall, the Rev. Ivan C. Morgan, Peter Moore, Walter H. Social workers are Miss Dorothy Metcalfe, Miss Clara Morris, Mrs. Isobel Murray and Harold Treen, in addition to Miss Young. Supervisors of the children's shelter are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald MacMillan.

Where'd they all go? Even without free-handed little girls like this, more families ran out of Kellogg's Corn Flakes this morning than any other cereal. This is happening all the time. Citizens Of Hanoi Ignore Battles Being Fought Nearby

By OLEN CLEMENTS

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—Every night church bells summon the faithful in misty Old Hanoi. Heavy guns rumble on the city's outskirts. The devout go to worship. The others—French, German, Arab, Moroccan and Viet Namese soldiers and civilians—flock to the cafes, the tea houses, the dance halls.

The Indo-China war is in its eighth year and the people in Hanoi are used to it. This city is a centre of the French Union forces, including French colonial soldiers, the heavily-German Foreign Legion, and Viet Namese troops that can call this land their own. They are at war with forces which are led by a Communist but backed by many non-Communists. These forces are known as the Vietminh. Some civilians say there are so many Vietminh sympathizers in Hanoi that Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh would never attack the city—he would endanger too many of his friends.

SAIGON INDIFFERENT

A thousand miles to the south is hot Saigon, where shops display Paris gowns and good food abounds. It, too, is under control of the French Union forces.

The civil population is more or less indifferent. Viet Namese and Chinese carpenters work all day building hundreds of new homes and apartments for people who apparently never give a thought to the war or to the prospect that artillery or planes might knock down some of these new buildings some day.

Many now believe a military victory by either side is an impossibility unless far more troops and supplies are poured into the fight. They hope the Big Five conference in Geneva in April and the conference of prime ministers of southern Asia in Ceylon in May will help solve the riddle.

Gen. Henri Navarre, commander-in-chief of French Union forces, says:

"We have here a politico-military war. It is only when the Viet Namese government will have won the approval of the population that a victory will be possible."

BAO DAI HAS PROBLEM

Since 1949 the chief of state, Bao Dai, has been trying to set up a national front without success. Probably almost half of the 12,000,000 Viet Namese living in the zone controlled by Bao Dai's government are directly aiding the Vietminh or indirectly supporting them out of sympathy for Ho Chi Minh. But only a fraction of the population is really Communist. Most are just anti-French. Many are anti-Communist.

To gain Viet Namese approval, Bao Dai must take a firm attitude toward France. But until Viet Nam's fledgling army is a great deal bigger and better trained, French forces are the only protection against the Vietminh, and Bao Dai cannot remain in power without them.

Meantime there is an Alice-in-Wonderland aspect to the situation. The forces on both sides cannot go anywhere militarily because it takes all their strength to stay where they are.

Justice Minister Comments On Criminal Code Clause

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson says there is a difference between a publication misinterpreting something and spreading false news.

Mr. Garson made the statement Wednesday in the Commons in commenting on a clause in the proposed Criminal Code which makes the deliberate spreading of false news a crime. The clause, similar to one in the present code, increases the maximum penalty to two years from one.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said hardly a week passes "when someone does not raise in this house a claim that our friends of the press have misinterpreted something that was said." He asked whether misinterpretation of that type comes within the clause or whether there is a line to be drawn.

Mr. Garson replied:

"There is a line in all these cases to be drawn and it is indicated as clearly as it is possible to indicate these matters in a clause which has a rather widespread application within the terms of the section.

"A person must wilfully publish a tale or news that he knows is false. One would have to prove knowledge. . . in addition to that these publications must be, within the terms of the clause, those that cause or are likely to cause injury or mischief to the public interest."

The prosecuting authorities must make up their minds whether the facts of a particular case appeared to disclose an offence and if they thought they did they would then lay a charge. They must prove the offence and if "they cannot prove the facts of the case then the prosecution under this clause fails."

He said the penalty has been increased to two years from one in line with the desire to have offences under the code grouped under some five separate headings.

"The lowest of these is two years, then five years and so on. This particular case fell into the lowest grouping, and that had the effect of increasing the penalty from one to two years."

Mr. Garson added, however, that the sentences are maximums. In a case before the courts a judge could impose a penalty of one day in jail. There was no minimum under the code.

Washington's Boyhood To Be Destined As Shrine

With George Washington's 222nd birthday just past, new plans are afoot to make a national shrine of Ferry Farm, Washington's boyhood home near Fredericksburg, Virginia.

"A plentiful faire land," Captain John Smith called the area when he first saw it in 1608, says the National Geographic Society. Certainly the young Washington—hunting, swimming, horseback riding—found the land fair.

Legend and history cling to Ferry Farm. There, or at least so says American folklore, the lad George cut down his father's cherry tree and bravely acknowledged his misdeed. There he reputedly showed his youthful high spirits and strength by throwing a silver dollar across the nearby Rappahannock River.

Another event associated with the farm is substantiated by court record. While he was swimming in the river, two women "robbed the clothes of Mr. George Washington."

RAWBONED YOUTH

Washington lived at Ferry Farm from the time he was six until he reached early manhood. By contemporary description, he grew to 6 foot 3 inch stature, rawboned, hair tinged with red, face pitted by the effects of smallpox, and feet inordinately large.

George's father, Augustine Washington, had moved his family to the region late in 1738. With him came his second wife, Mary Ball Washington, their four sons and a daughter.

It was still a growing family. In 1739, George's sister, Mildred, was born. She lived only a year. The Ferry Farm—named for the Rappahannock ferry service operated at this point—originally covered about 260 acres. Another 300 acres, added by lease, provided enough land to make a prosperous plantation.

Augustine Washington also was a business man and community leader. He owned ships on the river, worked the Occaquan iron mines, and held office in church and civic groups of Fredericksburg. His house was a substantial one. Though less impressive than the mansions of the great estates, it had good leather bottom chairs, mirrors, a modern supply of china, silver, and other luxuries of the period.

George's life was the happy, busy one of a normal, healthy youngster. He took part in the gay social activities of the neighborhood's well-to-do planters. Along with play, he studied lessons in reading, writing and "accounts." With the discovery of his father's surveying instruments, he picked up his first knowledge of the skill that gave him lifelong standards of accuracy and orderliness.

STONE-LINED PIT

The Washington's family life was shattered in 1743 by the death of George's father. Curiously, Augustine Washington's fatal illness was the outcome of a cold contracted while he was riding around the farm — the same sequence was to end the life of his famous son 56 years later.

By his father's will, George inherited the Ferry homestead. For the next five or six years it remained the base from which he made long visits to the homes of his older half-brothers, or travelled on increasingly ambitious surveying trips.

With the first expeditions and assignments of a budding military career, George Washington found Ferry Farm a place to visit as the home of his mother rather than a home of his own.

Mrs. Washington stayed on until 1772, when she moved into a town house in Fredericksburg. A few years later Washington sold the property to an old friend, General Hugh Mercer, who died of battle wounds during the Revolution.

Today, little remains to recall the Ferry Farm that Washington knew—merely a stone-lined pit, possibly part of the family icehouse, and an old one-room frame building that may have been the surveying office.

Name Anglo-Canadian Justice Of Peace

LONDON (CP) — Geoffrey H. Ward, secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain for 3 years, has been named a justice of the peace for Croydon, Surrey.

Ward, one of the best-known members of the Anglo-Canadian community in London, was born in Britain but emigrated to Canada as a child and farmed at Watford, Ont., and Perdue, Sask., later serving in the Canadian armed forces during the First World War.

He says he considers himself "virtually a Canadian" because of his long association with the Canadian business community here.

The new appointment means he will sit as one of three magistrates on the Croydon bench.

Calls For Exhaustive Research In Studying Of Lung Cancer Claims

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The president of Canada's biggest tobacco company says exhaustive research is more in the public interest than scare publicity, in determining any relationship between smoking and lung cancer.

"Regardless of the merits of claims either way, any suggestion that a product is related to ill health does scare people," E. C. Wood of Imperial Tobacco Company said in an interview.

"We have had in the past widespread scares that a certain vegetable became poisoned through canning and that use of a certain type of metal pot or pan in cooking foods engendered poisoning. The claims were established scientifically.

CLOSER DIAGNOSIS

"I don't mean to imply categorically that there can be no relationship whatever between smoking and lung cancer. But so far the reported increase in lung cancer cases has been statistical rather than clinical.

"Medical science has advanced tremendously in diagnosis, and cases established as lung cancer today were undoubtedly labelled something else a comparatively few years ago. Also, science now is giving closer study to lung cancer in relation to occupational diseases and to the increasing air pollution of our fast-growing industrial areas."

Mr. Wood said his company is taking no particular counter-measures to combat current claims. There had been no effect on its sales. Publicity given the question had not brought any inquiry to the company from the public.

"We don't feel that propaganda is the right thing and we are not doing any window-dressing as an offsetting measure," he said.

"We are not doctors and it would be pointless for us to get involved in propaganda which might only serve to establish a basis of suspicion.

"But we do co-operate and keep in touch with medical and scientific organizations. Our own laboratories are continually studying all phases of tobacco itself as well as its growth and preparation. Anything we find is unreservedly passed along to these organizations.

"Of course the work of our laboratories is not aimed at medical research but I must say they have found nothing to substantiate claims that tobacco smoking is a causative agent of lung cancer."

SCIENTIFIC VIEW

Lung cancer was a timely topic in the Canadian Cancer Society's January newsletter. It said that in 1935 lung cancer accounted for 2.4 per cent of cancer deaths whereas in 1949, last year for comparable Canadian figures, the percentage was 4.2.

"Just how much of this increase is apparent and how much is real are difficult questions to answer," said the newsletter.

". . . Over the same period of time medical science has made a number of advances which help to increase the accuracy of diagnosis of lung diseases, including cancer . . . A specific diagnosis of cancer of the lung is being made more frequently than it would have been 30 years ago.

"Morover, doctors are more aware of the possibility of lung cancer being a cause of serious lung disease and it is possible that this diagnosis, rather than pneumonia, chronic bronchitis and so on, is being placed on death certificates more frequently. Again, in only a little more than one-half of cases is the diagnosis proven by microscopic examination of tissues, so the accuracy of death reports may always be questioned. On the other hand, it has been the experience of our larger hospitals that cancer of the lung has definitely increased. . . ."

SUSCEPTIBLE AREAS

The newsletter, after relating occupational causes of lung cancer in various parts of the world, said:

"Another observation worth noting is that deaths from cancer of the lung appear to be more frequent in urban than rural areas, suggesting that smoke, industrial wastes, the fumes from motor vehicles or factors unknown may be related to lung cancer. . . .

"Investigations in the United States, Great Britain and Scandinavia would seem to show that patients with lung cancer are more likely to be smokers and that these patients have smoked more heavily and for a longer period than comparable groups without lung cancer. . . .

"More recently, research workers in the United States have collected the tar from burning tobacco and with it have produced cancer of the skin in mice.

"However, those familiar with cancer research know that what happens to a certain strain of mice may not happen to another strain of mice, and any scientist would be loath to infer that a substance which causes cancer of the skin in mice necessarily causes cancer of the lung in humans.

"It is not our intention to belittle the evidence for a relationship between lung cancer and smoking, for the evidence in fact points in that direction, but we would be unwise to lose our sense of perspective at this time. . . .

"The National Cancer Institute has given support to three Canadian research projects related to lung cancer. It is to the credit of the tobacco industry that it is embarking upon a research program to learn more about the possible effects of smoking and bodily health. . . ."

Rhee's Hatred Of Japan Stumbling Block

SEOUL — President Syngman Rhee's hatred of the Japanese, which is almost primitive in its fierceness, is illustrated by his attitude toward Japan as a possible supplier and beneficiary of the American and the United Nations rehabilitation and reconstruction programs for South Korea.

As long ago as 1950, the United States had hoped that reconstruction funds for South Korea could be spent with a double salutary effect. It hoped, for example, to obtain in Japan the consumer and capital goods needed for reconstruction and relief in this country. In that way, Japan could earn dollars while Korea would still get needed goods.

OPPOSES PLAN

But President Rhee is basically against such a plan. He does not want dollars spent for Korean aid to benefit the Japanese in any way.

There is something of fear and of jealousy in Dr. Rhee's feeling that the United States may be favoring Japan over Korea. And his phobia is that the United States and the UN plan to palm off on South Korea worn-out, obsolete industrial equipment which Japan seeks to discard and replace with new.

President Rhee has said his country "wants modern machines" and "will make purchases where bargains are best, considering price, quality and date of promised delivery." However, he does not want Japanese goods, even if Japan can meet the competitive standards he sets.

He said the now defunct Economic Coporation Administration "returned $30,000,000 to the United States treasury in its first year and $60,000,000 in its second year on the excuse that there was nothing to buy with the money." He added: "It was widely reported that the funds were turned back because Japan could not produce sufficient consumer goods to fill the orders, and many Koreans are convinced this was the case."

HAS SUSPICIONS

President Rhee said he suspects that the reason South Korea still is obliged to import coal and fertilizer, after eight years of help (dating back to post World War II aid while an American military government ran occupied South Korea) "is because the supreme commander, Allied powers (Gen. Douglas MacArthur's occupation headquarters at Tokyo) and ECA had been working together more for Japan's economy than for Korea."

He said he did not intend to create an impression that all SCAP officers were meant, because "actually most of the upper-level officers of SCAP did not know that funds earmarked for Korean economic revival were being spent in Japan."

Killed By Cow

CHAUMONT, France (AP)—A milk cow gored 3½-year-old Regine Rigolot to death on her parents' farm Wednesday. The little girl was standing by a calf when the cow suddenly attacked.

West Is Still Ready For Constructive Work

BONN (Reuters) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer let Russia know today that the west is ready for "new, constructive negotiations" on the future of Germany despie the failure of the Berlin foreign ministers' conference to solve the problem.

Opening debate on the conference in West Germany's parliament, Adenauer said:

"We shall hope progress in other questions which separate East and West will bring the Soviet Union to a revision of its policy in Europe."

He referred to the international conference on Korea and Indo-China scheduled to open at Geneva, Switzerland, April 26.

Bill Approved

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Governor Hugh White Wednesday signed into law a hotly-fought bill which prohibits denial of employment because of membership or non-membership in a labor union. The measure, fought by all labor organizations in the state, was sponsored by the Mississippi economic council.

Permit Issuing Criticized By Ont, Lawyer

BARRIE (CP)—Ontario's system of issuing motor permits was criticized in magistrate's court during the trial of a young Port Arthur motorist charged with dangerous driving.

The accused, Michael Komar, 22, was involved in a highway accident near here Oct. 28 in which one person was killed and five others were injured.

Defence counsel Heber E Smith of Barrie told the court Komar came to Canada from Czechoslovakia three years ago and could speak little English.

"The provincia system which grants a permit to a person with limited English is definitely at fault," he said.

Although he was offering no excuse for the accident, Mr. Smith said he wanted to point out that Komar, who obtained his driver's permit six months prior to the accident, did not realize the consequences of speed in a heavier vehicle such as the type driven by Canadians.

"The mishap was caused partly through ignorance," Mr. Smith said. Komar, who required the aid of an interpreter during the trial, was remanded in custody one week for sentence.

Fatal Accidents Attributed To Human Error

TORONTO (CP) — A traffic statistician said Wednesday 96.7 per cent of the fatal accidents in Ontario last year could be attributed to human error, either alone or in combination with inattention, poor judgment or discourtesy.

A. H. Rowan, director of the statistical division of the Ontario motor vehicles branch, said at the annual meeting of the Ontario Good Roads Association that human error was blamed in most of the 920 accidents in which 1,082 persons lost their lives in Ontario last year.

He said the persons at the wheel of the cars responsible drove too fast, followed too closely to another vehicle or were inattentive. They took chances where pedestrians were on the move or at railway crossings.

The association elected Andrew Boyer of Vankleek Hill president. Vice-presidents are Edgar Drew of Moscow and Leonard Wookey of Callander. Directors include W. C. Meichel, Elmire and Gordon Bryce, Watford.

Prospective Home Owners In $3,000 Class Seek Aid

OTTAWA (CP)—The National House Builders Association said today the federal government should do more to assist prospective home-owners earning around $60 a week.

It suggested four "methods of approach:"

1. Mortgage interest rates should be established at the lowest possible rate which will attract mortgage funds but still encourage home ownership.

2. The amortization should be on a 30-year basis with provision for adjustment to a 25- or 20-year basis where the purchaser has sufficient earning capacity.

3. The debt service might be increased to 25 per cent from 23 per cent with special consideration for purchasers whose circumstances might justify a gross debt service of 27 per cent.

4. Consideration be given to including a percentage of the wife's earnings in rating a prospective home-owner' earning power.

The association's recommendations were included in a brief presented by R. K. Fraser, chairman of the association's legislation committee, to the Commons' standing committee on banking and commerce.

The brief dealt with bill 102, federal legislation which seeks to assist housing by reducing the down payment and introducing a form of mortgage insurance to attract additional mortgage funds

Ireland Roused By Poet's Libel Action

DUBLIN — For 10 days Ireland has been entertained by a literary libel action in which Patrick Cavanagh, Ireland's foremost contemporary poet, sued a fortnightly journal for allegedly libelling him in a Profile article some time ago, writes Garrett Fitzgerald in Montreal Star. High-light of the case was the marathon cross-examination of the poet by defence counsel John A. Costello,—the ex-premier who announced the declaration of an Irish Republic in Canada five years ago. Mr. Kavanagh was in the witness-box for a total of thirteen hours spread over a period of a week, and the battle of wits between poet and ex-prime minister filled the columns of the Irish newspapers day after day. Popular interest was greater than in any similar action in recent decades, and the queues of well-known people in public life and in the Irish literary world filled the great hall of Dublin's Four Courts every morning during the trial; while those without leisure to attend the Court in person pored over the lengthy newspaper reports and debated the outcome with each other.

HUMBLE BEGINNING

As his counsel, Sir John Esmonde, Bart., S.C., explained to the Court, Patrick Kavanagh was reared on a small farm in Co. Monaghan which he looked after until just before the War when he came to Dublin "to follow the vocation he undoubtedly had",—i.e. to earn his living as a literary man. At that time he had already written a novel and some poems which had been well received, and after coming to Dublin he wrote his major poem "The Great Hunger", published in 1942. He has also written film criticisms, literary articles and reviews, and a gossip column, and has broadcast over the Irish, British anno Italian radio systems.

The alleged libel was published in an anonymous Profile article (one of a series) in a Dublin fortnightly journal of many years' standing, the "Leader". At an earlier stage in its history this review was edited by a former colleague of Mr. Costello, Mr. Ernest Blythe, Minister for Finance in the Cosgrave Government in the 1920's.

Mr. Kavanagh objected not so much to any particular phrase or sentence in the article,—as to its total effect which he contended was to hold him up to the ridicule and contempt. The "Leader" in its defence held that what had been said was fair comment on a matter of public interest, and that the general tenor of the article was favorable to the poet. The Profile contrasted what it alleged to be Mr. Kavanagh's pseudo-Bohemian way of life with his real merit as a poet.

"'A pard-like spirit, beautiful and swift'", it began, "is hardly the phrase that would occur to the casual observer watching Mr. Kavanagh hunkering on a bar-stool . . . His acolytes, sylph-like red-heads, dewy-eyed brunettes, two hard-faced intellectual blondes, three rangy university poets, and several semi-bearded painters flap: 'Yous have no merit, no merit at all'—he insults them individually and collectively, they love it, he sudenly leaves to get lunch in the Bailey and have something to win on the favourite. He'll be back.

"And yet, putting our cards on the table, the Keats phrase is not inapplicable".

By his cross-examination of the poet Mr. Costello sought to rebut the suggestion that this article set out to ridicule Mr. Kavanagh, and endeavored to prove to the satisfaction of the jury that insofar as it purported to portray Mr. Kavanagh's way of life or thought, it was based on his own writings. In the process there were many entertaining interludes, for both poet and ex-premier are quick-witted and resourceful.

AN AMUSING EPISODE

The poet's description of the paper which he ran for a short time in collaboration with his brother was highly entertaining. "I wrote most of the paper. Every time he (the brother) got a chance he interjected his point of view, as most men try to do. Every time I saw his point of view in it and had time I cut it out"! (The paper was financed by his brother).

When asked if he contended that the writer of the Profile had built him up in order to denigrate him, the poet answered that there were various ways of sneering at a man. People had saluted him by saying, "Hello, Shakespeare." That was an outrageous thing!

At one stage he was questioned about a contract with MacMillans, the publishing firm under which he had drawn over £300 but had not yet sent them any work for publication. He explained: "They know I am of prestige value and that is the value they want." When Mr. Costello questioned this, "Listen," said Mr. Kavanagh, "MacMillans lost a fortune on Yeat's books. That was prestige value entirely."

How did it all end? The poet lost. The jury found in favor of the "Leader" on all the questions put to them by the judge. But, while it lasted, it was exciting, for the verdict was all along in doubt, and indeed it was widely expected that Mr. Kavanagh might win. He may yet—on appeal!

SHORTER SKIRTS FOR CWAC—Maj. M. Evis (left), staff officer at army headquarters, Ottawa, wears the new-look uniform of the Canadian Women's Army Corps which has a shorter skirt—one inch—because the CWAC says it makes the uniform look smarter. Some 1,200 CWAC re-servists now wear their skirts 14 to 16 inches from the floor, depending on the height of the girl. The Wrens and WDs aren't contemplating any change in the length of skirts, styled on the right by FO. J. M. Roberts, staff officer at air force headquarters. Standard for both these services is 11¾ to 14 inches from the floor.—(CP from National Defence).

Public Barred Hearing Prayers In Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal senator wants to know why the public is barred from hearing prayers at the opening of the Senate each day.

Senator A. W. Roebuck of Toronto Wednesday asked Solicitor-General Macdonald, government leader in the upper chamber, what is the "reason or justification" for excluding the public from prayers.

Senator Macdonald said he will make inquiries about the matter but barring the public while prayers are read by the speaker has been a practice of long standing in the Senate and House of Commons.

This also was the practice in Britain when prayers are read by a chaplain at the opening of the House of Commons.

A WEEKLY INFORMATION-SERVICE

MONTREAL, February 25th — Easy on your budget . . . and delicious, too. That's any meal starring HEINZ COOKED SPAGHETTI, and you'll find a wealth of good spaghetti dishes in "Budget Savers", a booklet just published by Heinz. Heinz makes two kinds of cooked spaghetti, one in tomato sauce with cheese, the other with meat . . . and two kinds of macaroni—one in tomato sauce and one in cream sauce, both sparked with tangy cheese . . . good news indeed for February "budgeteers"! Yes, you'll find you can beat the budget and please the family, too, when you have Heinz Cooked Spaghetti and the "Budget Savers" booklet to help you. Simply write to me, Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, for your free copy of the booklet.

Most Of Us Are "Party-Liners" sharing a party-line telephone. And most of us, thank goodness, watch our party-line manners . . . I mean such little courtesies as never using the phone too long—without giving the other party a chance to use it. Or never starting to dial, without checking first to make sure the line is not in use. And making sure that the receiver is always put back carefully . . . and that youngsters are never allowed to play with the phone. All these little kindnesses mean so much in the pleasure and service we get from our telephone.

There's A Mountain Of Sewing ahead of most women, with spring days at hand. But you'll find you can get through an amazing amount if you use PRISCILLA BIAS FOLD TAPE. My enthusiasm for it is shared by so many other women, that more of them prefer Priscilla to any other tape. You'll understand why when you use it yourself. Colors are so pretty—twenty-one to choose from! You may prefer the gay checks, or the pretty two-toned effects. Remember that Priscilla Bias Fold Tape is made in Canada and absolutely guaranteed fast to boiling. I like the special finish given to the fine lawn with which Priscilla is made—makes it so easy to use!

There Are Few Things I Hate More . . . than the discomforts of a stuffed-up nose, or dry nostrils. But thank goodness, I learned about MENTHOLATUM . . . and the way it cools, soothes and clears. If you write to me, I'll send you a FREE, GENEROUS SAMPLE of Mentholatum, so that you can see for yourself why I—and many thousands of others!—are so enthusiastic about this fine product. You see . . . the medicated ingredients in the soothing base, loosen the clogging mucus in the nose . . . and ease dry nostrils. Write Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, for your sample.

We've Had More Fun Lately than I can remember for years—planning the house we're going to build soon. My specifications include a built-in vanity for the bedroom and a kitchen with a design all my very own—something I've been plotting ever since I began to wash dishes! It all costs money, but come a few more paydays, and we'll have that down payment in our savings account at the BANK OF MONTREAL. It's fun to save with something concrete, so to speak, to save for. It's the secret of successful saving, and I'm doing all I can to spread the secret around! It's remarkable how faithfully you can save when it's for something you really want! Wishful thinking never bought a dream . . . so my advice to you is to set your sights on that "something" you've always wanted—and save for it at "MY BANK".

Search Jungle For Oil In Nigeria

By ASTLEY HAWKINS

LAGOS, Nigeria (Reuters)—Engineers and scientists are working their way through a hot, swampy tropical wilderness to see if Nigeria's first discovery of oil is sufficient to justify commercial production.

Oil has rarely been sought with greater physical effort or in more exacting conditions of climate and country than in Nigeria where tropical rainstorms turn rough jungle roads into quagmires and native bearers often wade knee - deep through jungle swamps carrying equipment.

Radio is the only means of communication with exploration parties who sometimes have to be supplied by landing craft up crocodile-infested inland waterways.

Many of the engineers and drillers are from Holland and Britain. Americans soon will go to work on the project under special contract to increase the area of test drilling.

First news of the strike was given by the Shell-d'Arcy Petroleum Development Company of Nigeria last November, after explorations dating from 1939. The company said encouraging showings of crude oil had been recovered from a deep test well in Calabar province in the southeastern coastal corner of the British colony.

The quality of the oil so far recovered has been good, but according to an oil company spokesman here it may not be possible to reach any decision about commercial exploitation until at least next year.

Fills 90th Seat

TORONTO (CP)—The 90th seat in the Ontario legislature chamber was filled Wednesday with the introduction to the house of Lloyd Letherby, newly-elected Progressive Conservative member for Simcoe East.

Mr. Letherby won a by-election last month for the seat made vacant by the death of Dr. J. D. McPhee.

Games' Broadcasts

OTTAWA (CP)—Private broadcasting companies will be able to cover this year's British Empire Games at Vancouver without payment if their broadcasts are not sponsored.

Revenue Minister McCann made this clear in the Commons Wednesday, under questioning on the CBC's $50,000 purchase of broadcasting rights to the game.

KEY TO DIME MYSTERY—Electricians Bill Dominick, left, and Chuck Steck, both of Cleveland, Ohio, hold the mystery of the stuck dime. For their lunch-hour amusement, they weld a dime to a spike and drive the spike into a crack of the sidewalk. They they retire behind the frosted windows of the store they are wiring and watch through peepholes. To date they have lost two dimes, but they figure it's worth it.

Lectures On Shakespeare Among Top TV Features

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Until a few months ago, Dr. Frank C. Baxter led a quiet academic life at the University of Southern California. Then he started giving Shakespeare lectures on TV.

Egad and zounds! The professor's whole life changed.

As many as 400,000 viewers were estimated to be watching the Saturday morning program. The show's rating passed that of Edward Murrow and even approached "I Love Lucy." Baxter was hailed to New York to receive the Sylvania Award as the best local educational TV program. He appeared on "Omnibus" and was written up in magazines.

Last week he won two emmys in the TV academy awards and stole the show. He received fan mail from actors like Brian Aherne, who wrote: "The show was beautifully staged and delivered with an ease and charm which must make any actor green with envy."

Baxter received other praise from his butcher, a taxicab driver, an elevator man and people who see him on the street. A retired admiral sent him a painting of naval flags that spelled out "Operation Well Performed."

The big, bald, jolly man doesn't seem to complain about his new life. As his wife commented over the dinner table: "It doesn't befall many men of your vintage to be accorded so much attention."

STARTING SECOND COURSE

The professor is beginning his second Shakespeare course over the local CBS outlet, KNXT. The first series drew 332 students who took the course for credit toward a degree by paying $12 and taking a final examination. There were also 886 others who paid $5 to listen to the course with a special study guide.

Dr. Baxter said he thought there was a great future for academic programs on commercial stations as well as educational TV. "In the colleges and universities there is a great untapped reservoir of talent for TV," he remarked.

Dr. Baxter puts on a lively show. The set depicts a classroom with actual students, but there is nothing static about the presentation. The professor moves about, from the blackboard to exhibits of Shakespearean lore. His greatest asset is his lively wit and his ability to make the Bard seem real and dramatic and urgent in this age.

1898 Horseless Carriage Runs At Stratford

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — A horseless carriage that was a revolutionary development in 1898 can be seen chugging around the roads here now and then.

The historic car was the first of 25 LeRoy Autos made by the Good brothers here. It has been restored to running condition by Lionel (Sandy) Rider, a garage mechanic whose hobby is rejuvenating "antique" cars.

The LeRoy looks like a buggy and is steered by a tiller bar instead of a steering wheel.

MADE 25 CARS

Dr. Milton Good, now of Wasaga Beach, Ont., and the late Nelson Good manufactured 25 of the autos before they had to give up for lack of financial backing.

Dr. Good says the vehicle was the first car to cross the Canada-United States border. The crossing was made in 1900 when he and his brother drove from Waterloo to Brown City, Mich.

Parts for the cars were made in the basement of the Good home. A blacksmith at Waterloo, named Kaufman, built the chassis.

FOR ATOMIC ATTACK — This futuristic-looking mask is the latest style in protective clothing to be worn in case of atomic attack. It was among displays exhibited by the Civil Defence Committee at a convention in Montreal of the Bilingual Division of Industrial Nurses. Mrs. D. Suggest Pensions For Widows Of Deceased MPs

OTTAWA (CP)—Several senators want pensions established for widows of members of Parliament but a constitutional expert says they cannot initiate legislation to bring their idea before Parliament.

The suggestion was made in the Senate Wednesday by Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, and supported by Senators Thomas Vien (L — Quebec) and Thomas Crerar (L—Manitoba). The question was raised during debate on a bill setting a maximum of $3,000 as the annual pension for members of the Commons.

Senator Haig said he believes wives of members of Parliament or of legislatures make a great contribution to their husbands' service; she makes "a greater contribution than any other wife in the country."

GIVE CONSIDERATION

He suggested that consideration be given to allowing the wife half the pension received by her husband.

Senator Vien, an expert on constitutional procedure, said he agrees wholeheartedly with Senator Haig's suggestion but since such a proposal calls for spending of public money the Senate has not the power to initiate the plan.

Senator Crerar suggested that when a former member of Parliament receives his pension he should have the option of taking only a portion of it, specifying that the remainder be paid his widow after his death. Judges had that option with their pensions.

DOROTHY DIX:

Lass Advised To Forget Boy In Dilemma

DEAR MISS DIX: I am heart-broken over Timmy, whom I met last summer. We went steady for a few months, and broke up in November. After that he went out with a girl I will call Julie. She told Timmy recently that he was the father of the child she is expecting. Before Julie advised Timmy on this serious matter, he had come back to me and we were going steady again. After Julie told him about her condition, Timmy asked me to return his ring and said he would have to marry Julie. His father insists on this. I haven't seen Timmy since, but I can't get him out of my mind. He was so miserable when I saw him last.

LYNNE D.

✧ ✧ ✧

LET HIM GO

ANSWER: Though you are very young, you already have come up against the fact those who commit a wrong must pay.

No matter how much you may yearn for the golden hours of last summer, they can't reoccur—certainly not with Timmy. The fact that you are suffering for the mistakes of others, I realize, doesn't ease your heartache.

Since Julie did not have a good reputation, it's quite possible that Timmy is not the father of her child. She may have picked on him as a docile victim who is willing to be led to the altar to protect her name. Go to your parents with the story, and ascertain whether they won't help you. It's no job for a teen-ager to tackle.

It will not comfort you to be handed the old cliche, "You must forget him," yet I have no other advice to give you. In time, you will meet other boys and there will be school activities to occupy your mind. However, if you continue brooding and avoiding companions, you'll only prolong your misery. The past can't be undone; the future holds many promises for happiness. Look ahead, not back!

DEAR MISS DIX: What can I do about a 16-year-old girl who keeps calling me on the phone and asking for dates? I like girls nearer my age—22.

T. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Be firm in refusing to date the girl, and emphasize to her the advantages of her going with young people of her own age. Apparently she has a case of hero worship toward you. Rebuffs will cure it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a school-teacher, aged 30. I would like very much to go to a warmer climate for a year or two, but my family is sure I couldn't get a job anywhere but in our home town. Do you think I should risk a change?

ELMA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A good deal depends upon your status with your local Board of Education. If you're close to retirement and a pension, it might be better to work out that time and then take a trip as a vacation. If your pension fund is protected, anyway, there's no reason why you shouldn't arrange for a leave of absence, and try teaching in another community. Don't let your age make you a stick-in-the-mud, if you have the freedom from family responsibility and the funds to make a change.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Can two people fall in love through correspondence? I've been writing a serviceman for several months, and we're sure we're in love.

A. R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Many happy marriages have had their beginnings in a correspondence, but letters must be followed with a personal acquaintance of reasonable duration before you jump into matrimony. I hope when you meet your young men he comes up to all expectations.

START OF THE FAMOUS Pancake Day race at Olney, England. This annual event, which originated 500 years ago, takes place next Tuesday, and rules require the ladies to flip their pancakes three times while running. The winner gets traditional kiss from the bellringer of the village church.

Ringing Of The Pancake Bell Originated 500 Years Ago

Canadians everywhere will on Tuesday celebrate pancake day in real old fashioned style.

Tables will groan with stacks of delicious syrup-smothered pancakes . . . just waiting to be eaten. And over it all will hang an atmosphere of old-time celebration similar to the spirit which shows itself everywhere at Christmas. It's a revival of those good old days, when people really knew how to enjoy themselves . . . when pancake day was a tremendous event . . . in most cases a public holiday.

In olden times a special pancake bell was rung in the churches to announce the start of pancake day. Housewives then rushed to prepare their pancakes (then called "shriving cakes") according to a prescribed formula. This done, they flocked to their churches to be "shriven" or absolved of their sins. Hence the last day before Lent became "Shrove Tuesday" now popularly known as pancake day.

In frying their pancake day delicacies, the housewives of yore were taking advantage of an opportunity to use up their accumulated meat fats — then forbidden during Lent. Their pancakes were customarily turned by flipping them into the air and catching them in a skillet. "Throwing the pancake" became a recognized household sport, one of a number of diversions which came to characterize the day.

One writer of the period relates that the pancake bell, due to sound at 11 a.m., commonly was rung before nine o'clock "by the help of a knavish sexton", whereupon the entire populace quit work and launched an enthusiastic celebration.

Boys and girls sang jingling little songs as they danced through the town, travelling bands of actors staged special plays, games of shuttlecock and battledore sprang up in the village streets—and over all, hung the tantalizing aroma of pancakes and other treats. The spirit of the day is caught in a verse from Poor Robin's Almanac in 1684:

"But hark, I hear the pancake bell,
And fritters make a gallant smell
The cooks are baking, frying boyling,
Stewing, mincing, cutting, broyling,
Carving, gormandising, roasting,
Carbonading, cracking, slashing, toasting".

In the Buckinghamshire village of Olney, housewives still cook their pancakes at the first ringing of the pancake bell. At its second ringing they gather at the village pump, and when the bells peal for a third time, they pelt through the streets, frying pans in hand, to the churchyard. Winner of the race is rewarded with a kiss from the bell-ringer.

Another time-honored pancake day custom is enacted each year at Westminster School, London, England. At 11 a.m. a verger of the abbey solemnly emerges from the college kitchen, followed by a cook bearing a large pancake. In the schoolroom the cook skillfully flips the cake in the approved fashion, then throws it into a crowd of milling boys, who fight for possession of the pancake. The lad who emerges from the fray with the biggest chunk is rewarded with the sum of a "guinea" from the abbey fund.

Spring Flowers At May's Tea Match Weather

Weather conditions Wednesday did not favor the May's Home and School Association for their annual tea, which was held earlier than usual in the hope of avoiding just such spring-like muddy roads and wetness..

There was a pleasing crowd on hand, however, and the tea room was indeed spring-like with boquets of tulips and daffodils on each small table and a combination of all the spring flowers, narcissus, iris, tulips and daffodils on the main table. These were in a silver basket and were highlighted by yellow tapers in silver holders.

Sale tables were a feature of this tea and there were home baking, candy, sewing and white elephants displayed.

Mrs. Victor White and Mrs. David Ackerman had charge of the baking, Mrs. George Renwick the candy, Mrs. L. Wells and Mrs. J. Cooper the sewing and Mrs. Russell Bell and Mrs. Roy Armour the white elephants.

Tea convener was Mrs. W. H. Maynard and those serving the guests were Mrs. W. Watt, Mrs. D. MacDonald. Mrs. G. Brockley, Mrs. R. Pirie and Mrs. R. Williams, with Mrs. O. Weese, Mrs. W. Bugg and Mrs. T. Allen preparing the plates.

Pouring tea were Mrs George Ball, wife of the school principal, Miss Leatha Kidd, teacher, and Mrs. Lloyd Raper, representing the Home and School Council.

President Mrs. P. Dyer was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Frank Spenceley and the tickets were taken by Mrs. Q. Dantzer.

LANG SCHOOL

The Lang Home and School Association held its monthly meeting in the town hall Monday evening, with a very large attendance for Founder's Day, the associations' first anniversary.

Mrs. R. Keongh was in the chair, Mrs. B. Davidson, religious convener, led the group in prayer. Mrs. Keongh named the nominating committee for the coming election. They are as follows: Mrs. C. Elliott, Mrs. M. Weir and Mrs. W. Lean.

Mrs. M. Weir thanked C. Elliott, V. Edwards, George Richardson, F. Gest, J. Brown, W. Lean and W. Cartner for their invaluable help in the past twelve months.

A letter from the federation in regard to the coming annual convention of the Home and School Associations was read. It was decided to send in the registration fees for this event which takes place April 20 and 21st. Mrs. W. Brown spoke of playground equipment that was needed for the schools. It was decided that the association would attempt to procure some equipment.

Major H. G. Roberts of the Salvation Army, guest speaker, gave a very interesting talk on children. He spoke of the school, the Sunday school and the home united in a single effort to teach children the right way of life; of how little value it was for a child to be clever if he were not good. Mrs. Keongh thanked Major Roberts.

Mrs. W. Brown explained Founder's Day, the first Home and School Association and its founder, Mrs. Courtice. Shirley Graves, representing the children lit the first candle in the candle-lighting service in memory of Mrs. Courtice. Mrs. O. Scriver, representing the mothers, lit a candle in honor of the National Federation of Home and Schools. Mrs. E. Robbie, representing the teachers, lit a candle in honor of the Ontario Federation of Home and Schools and Mrs. Keongh lit the last candle in honor of the association in Lang. Mrs. Vic. Edwards lit the candle on the beautiful birthday cake, which Mrs. Edwards had made and decorated.

The group then enjoyed a duet, sung by two sister, Mrs. C. Elliott and Mrs. J. Martin. A social hour followed in which lunch was served by Mrs. V. Edwards, Mrs. O. McAuley, Mrs. W. Lean and Mrs. J. Brown.

Knox Groups At Stirling

STIRLING (ENS) — Knox Theatre Group of Peterborough presented three one-act plays in the Stirling community hall Tuesday evening, sponsored by the Ladies' League of St. John's church.

The plays, produced and directed by Peter McCombe, were "The Flattering Word," "Five to Five-Thirty" and "Your Obedient Servant."

The casts were entertained after the performance by the Ladies' League at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Bell.

double-thick brown paper, then with 4 thicknesses buttered wax paper. Fill pans 2/3 to ¾ full, smoothing top and pushing batter close to sides. Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. with waterpan in oven. If this cake is baked in 3 uniform pans it requires 3 to 3½-½ hours. I baked it in 1 very large pan and it required 4½ hours. Cake is baked when it is firm to the touch at the very centre. Replenish water in waterpan as necessary.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Boiling Chickens, The Canadian Way

In the United States I have many friends whom I love dearly, but I lament the fact that some folks who write to me wonder if I am American.

I'd like to settle it once and for all time. I was born in Hamilton, Ontario. I'm a Canadian living in the most thickly populated part of Canada, and I love it. My children and whole family are Canadians, and love that too.

I cook Canadian, eat Canadian, buy Canadian, breathe Canadian and sing "God Save the Queen" at the top of my lungs.

Now, is that settled?

✧ ✧ ✧

Some Canadian friends of mine are raising Canadian chickens for broiling (in a Canadian way, that is) and such lovely broilers never sizzled under my broiler before.

One weighing 2 lbs. and 11 ozs. served three of us very generously, and if you will indulge me, I want to tell you each step I took in preparing the little feast.

BROILED CHICKEN

Barb had prepared the chickens "oven-ready" in clear pliofilm bags, so I merely wiped them all over with a clean damp cloth. I set the oven thermostat at 450 deg. Fahr. and turned on both top and bottom burners.

With the cleaver I divided the chicken foursquare, so two folks had a breast and a wing, one had a thigh attached to a drumstick, then we argued over the leftover thigh and leg when it came to second helpings.

I placed them on the greased broiler, without the rack in, skin side down, and spread the bony cavity with 2 tablespoons butter and a sprinkling of lemon juice. With the broiler 6 or 7 inches from the burner, I broiled that side for 20 minutes. Then I turned them and basted skin side with the butter on the pan, salted and peppered and paprika-ed them and put them back to broil for 15 minutes. Then I turned them twice more. They required 50 minutes in all to cook them through at the thickest parts which is where the top of the drumstick overlaps the thigh, and the wing overlaps the breast. We served apple jelly and hot rolls and a big salad with it. Dessert would have been Roquefort cheese and crackers, but there was no time for it, for I was going out to sit with a sick friend.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: I had wonderful success with your medium dark fruit cake recipe at Christmas. Everyone raved about it! I passed the recipe on...would you send me another copy?...also, have you any recipes for buns (with yeast) and muffins using graham flour?...have tried such a lot of your recipes and like them all. The latest — six-in-one cookies, and they're good! All ready passing on that recipe too.—Lilian F.

ANSWER: In the same mail three requests came for

MEDIUM DARK FRUIT CAKE
1953 (10 lbs.)

Cream thoroughly ½ lb. butter or margarine; cream into it gradually 2 cups EACH white and brown sugar until fluffy. Beat in 10 unbeaten eggs until smooth, then drained contents of 20-oz. can crushed pineapple and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift together 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon mace, ½ teaspoon each baking soda and cinnamon. To the sifted dry ingredients add these fruits and nuts: 1 lb. broken walnuts, ½ lb. each whole red and green candied cherries, chopped citron peel, mixed orange and lemon peel, currants; 2 lbs. seedless light raisins, 1 lb. seeded dark raisins. Mix fruits and nuts in to coat them with flour. Add them to the creamed mixture with ¼ cup pineapple juice (from drained pineapple). Mix thoroughly. Line greased pans with buttered

Britons Decide Television Spice Of Life

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A beautiful viscountess says a naughty word, and it's front page news.

A duchess, equally decorative, says nothing at all, and that too is news.

A middle-aged man, just plain "mister," loses his temper, and becomes a country-wide celebrity.

The common element in all three cases is television. Rightly or wrongly, Britain has suddenly decided that TV is the spice of life, worthy of closer newspaper scrutiny than radio or the movies ever warranted. An unorthodox sneeze, any departure from the normal, is headline stuff.

London evening newspapers now all have a regular TV column and complete in "spread." A television fan magazine is fresh on the market. Commentator Eamonn Andrews, who is to British TV what Winnipeg's Stewart MacPherson used to be to British radio, writes daily in an evening paper under a bigger byline than that of any full-time newspaper man.

ONE-CHANNEL FOCUS

It is a commonplace fact, of course, that television anywhere tends to construct its own gods. In Britain, the tendency toward creating celebrities is perhaps enhanced by the fact that there is just one channel, compared with the variety of programs available in Canada and the United States. Thus the focus here is much sharper.

Every Sunday night, week after week, the only program available on Britain's 3,000,000 or so television sets is a panel game called "What's My Line?" Imported from the United States by producer Maurice Winnick. As a result nearly everyone talks about "What's My Line?" and feels almost on a first-name basis with its regular performers, who include actress Barbara Kelly of Vancouver.

This helps to explain the publicity value of Viscountess Boyd (Katie" to friends), who created a near-sensation by saying a word which she hastily corrected to "darn," and crusty Gilbert Harding, a former teacher who once taught, and worked for the BBC in Canada. Virtually unknown two years ago, the bemoustached Harding has become just about the most newsworthy man in Britain, partly because of his unpredictability, or what some would call downright rudeness.

BLUEBLOOD STAR BORN

TV is also much taken with titled persons. Something of a stir was created recently when the fetching Duchess of Rutland appeared on the screen, quietly turning the pages of a book. She uttered not a word. It looked as though another blueblood star was born, but the duchess said later she didn't care for a TV career.

Some concern has been expressed at the way personalities are being built. The New Statesman and Nation critic, William Slater, says ordinary persons are having fame thrust upon them for achievements that are "trivial in the extreme" by any reasonable standard of judgment.

Salter says the net result may be to blunt the effect of anything bold, sharp or experimental.

"When we look into our TV sets," he adds, "we look at people who appear, in image, smaller than ourselves. The TV star, in fact, is the star reduced to the level of domestic poet; even Mr. Harding is only the faithful old watchdog whose bark is worse than his bite."

New Taste

LONDON (CP) — Latest import for butcher shops here is a reindeer liver from Norway. Shippers say that so far there is not much demand for the liver, which sells at about 50 cents a pound.

Held Responsible For Accident With Parked Car

After a trial which lasted most of the morning and featured several sharp verbal exchanges between counsel W. J. Arthur Fair and Const. John Conlin, Ronald McGlennon, 309 McDonnel St., was convicted on a charge of careless driving in magistrate's court this morning.

First witness was Const. Conlin called not as an investigating officer but as a driver of one of the cars involved in an accident at Rubidge and McDonnel at 11 p.m. Jan. 29. Conlin testified that he was driving east on McDonnel when the accused, attempting to turn left and south onto Rubidge St. cut in front of him.

"I had to swerve sharply right to avoid hitting the accused," said Const. Conlin. As a result, he testified, he struck a car parked on McDonnel St. just east of Rubidge St. owned by Alexander McGregor. Conlin was off duty and driving his own car at the time. He estimated damage at $300.

The officer testified that he was 20 feet from the intersection when he first noticed McGlennon's car attempting the turn. After he crashed into the parked car, he testified, the accused's car turned left behind him.

VERY ICY

Dr. Warren J. Gamble testified that he was driving 30 feet behind McGlennon on "very slippery" pavement when he saw him slow down at the intersection and signal for a left turn. He said that the signal was properly executed, and that the accused was on the proper side of the road, but that because of slippery road conditions he (the doctor) could avoid a collision only by pulling far over to the right.

Const. Cec Bower, who investigated the accident, said that he could not hazard a guess as to stopping distances on icy roads. He testified, however, that it was a very bad and sleety night.

Mrs. Corinne Conlin, wife of the officer, said she did not see the McGlennon car until it was parked on Rubidge St. after making the turn. She said that she did not know at the time why her husband was swerving right.

Taking the stand on his own behalf McGlennon testified that he had made the turn before Conlin reached the intersection. He said that he was "almost stopped" before the turn, then accelerated across the intersection.

It was on this point that Magistrate W. R. Philp upheld Crown Attorney Bradshaw's request for conviction. The magistrate said that he could not accept this version of the accident.

Earlier, defence counsel Fair wanted to know why, despite the treacherous weather, the constable could not have avoided a collision at 40 feet if travelling slowly. The constable testified that he did not know whether McGlennon signalled or not. Asked why he did not apply his brakes, he said that if he had there would have been a head-on collision.

McGlennon was fined $10 with $11 costs.

Gloomily Watch Scottish Hopes Fade

Home Rule Cause Destroyed By Acts Of Extremists

By RANALD MacLURKIN

GLASGOW (Reuters) — Scottish home rulers are gloomily watching their hopes fade after some fairly spectacular post-war successes.

Three years ago, the question of a separate parliament for Scotland was on every Scottish tongue. Today, if you mention it to the average Scotsman, he shrugs his shoulders and looks bored.

Temporarily, at least, it looks like a lost cause, destroyed by the acts of extremists.

Yet, around 1950, 2,000,000 Scots out of a total population of 5,000,000 signed a covenant calling for home rule.

Then came the affair of the Stone of Destiny.

On Christmas Day, 1950 a group of young Scottish nationalists broke into Westminster Abbey, London, and removed the historic block of sandstone on which ancient Scottish kings were crowned. They took it to Scotland, from where it had been seized by King Edward 1 of England in 1296, and kept it hidden for four months.

DECLINE SETS IN

This was the start of the decline. To many sober-minded Scots who had willingly signed the covenant the invasion of England's national shrine was distasteful.

Quarrels among leaders of the covenant movement, with the resignations of some of the most respected and responsible of them, hastened the decline.

The ascent to the throne of Queen Elizabeth brought more wildcat action by extreme nationalists.

Members of a mysterious organization calling itself the "Scottish Republican Army" blew up mail boxes. On June 2—while Elizabeth was being crowned in London—Miss Wendy Wood, 60-year-old nationalist, publicly declared a "Scottish Republic." With a handful of supporters she stood in a public square in Aberdeen reading her "proclamation" to a few amused bus drivers.

EXPLOSION PLOT BROKEN

Then, last November, in Edinburgh, four young nationalists were charged with plotting to blow up St. Andrew's House, Edinburgh, headquarters of government departments in Scotland. They were sent to prison for a year for illegally possessing explosives.

Typical of the Scotsman's attitude to home rule today is this comment from a Clydeside shipyard worker: "I signed the covenant because I thought when it would be a guid thing for us to hae oor ain parliament. Noo I am not so sure. If these daft laddies who go aboot blowing up things with dynamite got into it and became oor rulers, the country would be ruined in a month."

County Allowed To Collect High School Tax

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario legislature's private bills committee, overriding the objects of committee chairman W. M. Nickle (PC—Kingston), today approved a bill authorizing Frontenac county council to collect the annual levy for high school purposes.

The committee approved an amendment to the Frontenac High School District Act presented by J. A. Pringle (PC—Addington) ordering the treasurer of each municipality in the county to show in mills on the tax notice the portion of the county levy rate.

Mr. Nickle said during a heated discussion that the passing of the act would create a precedent.

"Any corporation could ask us to pass a similar act . . . it would create a state of confusion . . . that would be difficult to repair."

W. J. Stewart (PC—Parkdale), in supporting Mr. Nickle's stand, said the school district wished to operate contrary to all other districts in the province.

LARGEST DISTRICT

D. G. Cunningham, county solicitor, said the county asked for the act because the geography of the country—100 miles long and 40 miles wide—makes it the largest high school district in the province. It takes in 14 of the 15 townships in the county.

"The bill is asking permission to do what has been done for the last 50 years in the county," Mr. Cunningham said.

It would save the board the trouble of presenting the budget to 14 municipalities.

He said some municipalities already show the levy on their tax bills.

Mr. Cunningham said the system has worked well. Each township asked for the assessment.

"The county for 50 years has been operating against the law," Mr. Nickle said. "If this is a precedent . . . all corporations will expect the same treatment."

The county solicitor said the precedent was already established in 1949 with the passing of the Frontenac High School District Act which gave the board the right to collect a levy for capital expenditures.

"But two wrongs never made a right," said Mr. Nickle. "I am opposed to cutting down the municipal autonomy of any township. This is a first-class example."

Deputy education minister C. F. Cannon said he personally believed the department would be in favor of having on the tax bills the levy in mills for education.

C. E. Janes (PC—Lambton East) said the committee should consider the bill as a special situation. He was supported by J. Yaremko (PC—Bellwoods) and B. L. Catchart (PC—Lamboton West.)

per cent negligent because "he was driving a heavy vehicle at a higher rate of speed than road conditions warranted,, while approaching a dangerous curve clearly marked by a caution sign."

They found the plaintiff, Empey, 80 per cent negligent; because "(1) he was travelling at a higher rate of speed than road conditions warranted, while approaching a dangerous curve; and (2) not attempting to use the remaining three feet of roadway on his right side."

ACTIONS COMBINED

Originally two actions were set down: Empey versus Casselman; and Empey versus Stoklosar Marble Quarries, owned by Helen Margaret Stoklosar, executrix of her late husband's estate. The two were combined in one trial with the same evidence applicable to both.

Jurors were Arthur Millard, North Monaghan township; Purcell Findlay, 176 Brock St.; Mrs. Mulvena Darling, Smith township; Carman Coon, Havelock; Mrs. Dorothy Thompson, 37 Edgewater Blvd.; John Coughlin, Douro township; William A. Curtain, 55 Edgewater Blvd.; Mrs. Anna Taylor, 1270 Clonsilla Ave.; Harold Hendren, Dummer township; Mrs. Eleanor Sutton, Otonabee township; Vernon Campbell, Douro; and John B. Renwick, Otonabee.

people. For some time the boy had trouble with his vision and required special treatment.

ONE DEFENCE WITNESS

Gordon H. T. Farquharson, counsel for Hayes, called only one defence witness, Dr. H. M. Yelland. The doctor said that Donald seemed a healthy, well-formed boy and he should not suffer from any disability as a result of the accident. He conceded, however, that the scar would remain and be noticeable for the rest of the boy's life.

Hayes did not testify on his own behalf.

The accident occurred on a rainy afternoon as the May family were returning from their cottage on Belmont lake to their Toronto home. As soon as they reached Havelock, Mr. May lay down in the back seat for a snooze and his wife, who has been driving for 30 years, took over the steering wheel.

Mrs. May said she was doing 48 miles an hour just before she started down the westerly side of a slope on the highway, seven miles east of Peterborough. She saw Hayes' car coming down a similar slope from the east.

"He suddenly made a very sharp turn as if he was driving into a lane or driveway," said Mrs. May.

After crossing onto the north side of the road Hayes turned east and ran along some distance with his two left wheels on the shoulder of the highway. Mrs. May braked down to about 35 miles an hour and was about to go around to the left of him when he turned back towards his own side of the road. They collided

FRONTS SMASHED

The left front ends of both cars were smashed in. The steering wheel of the 1953-model May car was broken by the weight of Mrs. May being thrown forward. Both Stuart and Donald were thrown against the windshield and Mrs. May was thrown forward against the front seat.

Mr. May testified that he was awakened by the sound of a scream and then a crash.

The May car was turned around 180 degrees, facing east. Hayes was just shaken up. His car crashed into a guard rail post on the south side of the road.

DRANK ALE

At his pre-trial examination, Hayes admitted that he had come off shift at 7 a.m. that Saturday morning. He went home, had breakfast, and went downtown to a beverage room where he had four glasses of ale. Later he went to a friend's house and had three "swallows" of wine.

A sealed 24-pint case of beer and a bottle of wine were found in his car.

Hayes was said to be staggering, and he had bloodshot eyes, thick speech and a smell of alcohol on his breath.

In his charge of the jury Mr. Justice R. I. Ferguson, presiding at the Assizes, told the jury that Mrs. May had a right to expect Hayes to pass on the left side of her.

T. J. Carley, QC, was counsel for the May family.

The jury's verdict is expected late in the afternoon.

Queen In Chair Used Years Ago By Grandfather

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth today opened the Victoria state legislature from a chair used by her grandfather, George V, more than 50 years ago to open the first Australian federal Parliament.

It was the fifth opening ceremony of a parliamentary session performed by the Queen since the beginning of her Commonwealth tour last November. The ceremony took place in the cream and blue chamber of the Legislative Council.

The Queen took four minutes to deliver her speech, and signed copies were presented to the presidents of the Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly. As the Queen ended her speech the muted boom of a 19-gun salute was heard in the chamber.

After leaving the chamber the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh visited the library of Parliament House where members of both houses and their wives were presented.

The royal couple had spent a quiet morning, in contrast to Wednesday's tumultuous reception here, in the gardens of Government House, where they planted commemorative trees near several that the Queen's parents planted 25 years ago when they visited Australia as the Duke and Duchess of York.

Rev. N. Cole Tells WI Of Newfoundland

WESTWOOD (ENS) — Westwood Women's Institute met Tuesday afternoon in the community hall.

The government grant of $3 was was received and will be presented to the Westwood school.

The sum of $5 was voted to be sent to the Hospital For Sick Children.

A letter from the department of agriculture Women's Institute branch brought material and information to conveners of standing committees. It also included a "Scottish Tartan Ribbon", a gift from the Scottish women's rural institute as a token of friendship, to each branch institute in Canada.

Miss Jessie Davidson read a letter from a "pen pal" in Kent, England, exchanging views and ideas on Institute work.

A letter of appreciation for a gift of fruit was read by the sunshine convener Mrs. H. Pacey.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation of a life membership certificate and Pin to Miss Margaret Comstock. An address was read by Miss Jessie Davidson and presentation made by Mrs. Sargent.

Highlight of the meeting was an educational address on Newfoundland by the Rev. N. Cole. Mr. Cole, a native of Newfoundland, has spent many years of his life in the Maritime provinces. By the use of a map, Mr. Cole described the territory and early discovery by the Vikings of Norway, and later by John Cabot in 1497, of the island of Newfoundland and the coast of Labrador. He elaborated on the fishing industry. Reference was made to cuture, education and to the early missionaries. Owing to the numerous harbours on the eastern coast, it is one of the ideal holiday places of the world, and also a land of great mineral wealth.

Mrs. F. E. Birdsall thanked Mr. Cole on behalf of the members.

Events of interest in local happenings were told by Miss Jessie Davidson.

Hostesses for the lunch were Mrs. T. Cardwell, Mrs. F. Neilson and Miss J. Davidson.

Contractor Errs In Calculations

WELLAND (CP)—A local contractor who erred to the extent of $6,668 in calculating, has been given permission to withdraw from a contract to build the new Afton Avenue public school in Crowland township.

Lostracco and Sons Limited were awarded the contract for their estimate of $87,917. Within a few days the school board was advised by the contractor that due to a calculating error, the contract price was $6,668 short of the amount required. Permission to withdraw was granted and new tenders have been called.

Mental Sickness Provides Biggest Health Problem

Fifty per cent of all those who call at a doctor's office and 30 per cent of all patients in hospital are suffering from some sort of mental disturbance, Dr. John S. Pratten, psychiatrist in charge of the mental health clinic at the Peterbooough Civic Hospital told the annual meeting of the Victoria Order of Nurses in the YWCA Wednesday.

In a typical community of 100,000, said Dr. Pratten, there will be 10,000 persons over 65, with this percentage growing each year. From 22 to 25 per cent of all admissions to Ontario mental hospitals are in the over-65 age group.

Many of these old people are not insane, said Dr. Pratten, and many could be handled through community mental health clinics. In 1950, 1,100 older persons were found in mental hospitals who "should never have been there at all".

People who need some assistance in solving personality and emotional problems are likely to form a majority of the community, Dr. Pratten declared. For this reason "it is the responsibility of each one of you" to create a balanced community atmosphere.

Each citizen should "work against the exploitation of the mentally defective, the abuse of the aged." Mental illness is "a sickness not a disgrace" and all must share the responsibility for removing widespread misconceptions.

TOP HEALTH PROBLEM

Mental illness is the nation's number one health problem, said Dr. Pratten. It is a problem not only because phychiatry has met with "misunderstanding, criticism and even abuse," but because so little money is invested in mental health treatment and research.

Although there are as many beds in mental hospitals as in all other hospitals combined, mental hospitals get only ten per cent of the money that goes into the general hospitals. This, said the speaker is "appalling". There are 20,000 mental patients in Ontario, 60,000 in Canada altogether.

In the United States figures are disturbing too. The last analysis, in 1952, showed 650,000 in mental hospitals with another 900,000 classified as mentally ill. Those in mental hospitals comprised 47 per cent of the hospital population, with another 9,000,000 suffering from serious personality disturbances.

In every community "however small or however privileged" there are mental health conditions needing modification and mentally sick people needing treatment. No sizeable community, said Dr. Pratten, can afford not to have a mental health clinic. Many people, he said, would not be in mental hospitals if the cases could be handled through their own community.

To back up this assertion, Dr. Pratten said that of his composite community of 100,000 only 400 to 800, can be classed as psychotics. Such people generally have to be hospitalized to protecf both society and themselves.

SERIOUSLY DISTURBED

But the psychotics do not loom large in the rosters of the mentally ill. Dr. Pratten's audience gasped when he said that 10,000 of these 100,000 could be classified as "seriously disturbed neurotics, so emotionally upset that they cannot function properly."

It is these neurotics who need treatment, not just consultation and diagnosis at mental health clinics. They must be helped to find substitutes for the various defence mechanisms they throw up.

For every ten neurotics, there are a three classed as psychosomatic patients. These are people with such physical ailments as high blood pressure, asthma, obesity, migraine headaches and various gastro-intestinal disorders which frequently are traceable to mental disturbances.

For every 100,000 people there are in addition, at least 1,000 defective children and adults, several thousand borderline defectives, 1,500 or more alcoholics and hundreds in jail as a result of personality disorders.

The community can do a job, said Dr. Pratten in helping mentally defective children and adults to become useful citizens. Many need only training and treatment in order to make useful contributions to society.

In addition to the thousands suffering mental illness, there are many more thousands who need mental health guidance as provided in marriage counselling, child guidance and the like. If their emotional worries can thus be caught early, "the likelihood of psychosomatic illness is substantially decreased."

SUBDIVISIONS

Dr. Pratten subdivided the scope of mental work into six major classifications thus:

1. The public needs to be protected. For this reason laws are passed and police and court officials keep an eye on possible menaces.

2. The hopelessly insane need humane care in the best hospitals. Care should be in keeping with the nature of their particular disorders.

3. Mental defectives need to be trained. Psychologists and social workers must be provided with equipment to provide this training.

4. Neurotics need treatment in a community mental health clinic.

5. The personnel of the various social agencies—the Children's Aid, courts, Salvation Army—as well as doctors, lawyers, clergymen and all others likely to come in contact with the mentally disturbed need counselling themselves if they are to do a good job. Here a community mental health clinic can perform a valuable educational job.

6. The community as a whole can use mental health principles to ensure the best of mental atmospheres, and to modify incipient threats to mental stability.

Dr. Pratten was thanked by Richard Raine, who expressed a prejudice against the word "psychiatry." This word, he said, scares people off. VON president Patrick J. Anglesey also expressed the thanks of the audience, suggesting that they "could leave their names for consultation on the way out." He was referring to Dr. Pratten's assertion that half the population is mentally disturbed. The speaker was introduced by J. B. Lillico.

Wheat Surplus Makes Serious Situation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leaders of United States and Canadian farm organizations called today for a more effective way of dealing cooperatively with the huge wheat surpluses and other problems of the two countries.

Allan B. Kline, president of the American farm bureau federation, discussing the wheat surplus, told reporters after the end of the two-day meeting:

"You won't be misquoting us if you said we agreed that it is a serious situation."

The 30 conferees met behind closed doors.

60 Rebels Killed

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — French and Viet Namese troops kept trying today to wipe out Vietminh forces infesting the key Red river delta of north Indo-China. The French claimed 60 rebels killed and 54 captured.

The French estimate that some 60,000 regular, regional and guerrilla fighters of the communist-led Vietminh are harassing their thinly-manned defence posts.

Unusual Race

ORILLIA (CP) — Charles McIntosh complained to police that while his new automobile was parked in front of a main street restaurant last night some athletic but perversely - minded individual ran up its back, across the roof and jumped down on the hood, doing $50 damage.

Dulles Considers Berlin Talks Well Worthwhile

By WARREN ROGERS Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles has assured the American people that the United States lost nothing at Berlin and gained much—including a chance to bring Red China "before the bar of world opinion."

Dulles, who returned five days ago from the month-long Big Four talks, told a radio-television audience Wednesday night:

"You may ask whether it was worth while to go to Berlin. . . My answer is 'yes' and I have no doubt about that."

He said two results "will profoundly influence the future" and described them as:

1. Foreign Minister Molotov was forced by the U.S., French and British delegates "to show Russia's hand"—a hand which Dulles said hung on to all it had, including East Germany and East Austria, and grabbed for more.

2. Molotov gave in, at the last hour in a "concession. . . not to be ignored," and signed a declaration spelling out U.S. refusal to recognize Red China.

33 LANGUAGES

It was this point—long-withheld U.S. diplomatic recognition of Communist China—which Dulles hit time and again. His half-hour speech, besides domestic radio-TV coverage, was beamed also in 3 languages to both sides of the Iron Curtain.

This report climaxed his campaign to convince critics that the Communist world was not "appeased" in arrangements agreed upon at Berlin for the holding April 26 of an Asian peace conference at Geneva, Switzerland, and in a lack of progress on the German and Austrian questions.

30-Mile Swim Across Lake Ont.

A feature of the Canadian National Exhibition sports program this year will be a 30-mile swim across Lake Ontario. CNE president Robert Saunder made the announcement Wednesday.

The splash-for-cash event will be open to male and female swimmers and will eliminate the waterfront professional swims held in recent years.

To insure that the leading professional swimmers compete, the CNE sports committee will offer $25,000 in prizes.

Fort George, N.Y. has been suggested as a starting point. The finish line will be off the CNE.

Allow Convention To Hold Property

TORONTO (CP) — A bill empowering more recently - formed boards of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec to hold property was approved by the Ontario legislature's private bills committee.

The bill was introduced by H.C. Nixon (L—Brant). Arthur Macdonald, the convention's legal counsel, said that under legislation passed in 1889 the Baptist Convention was recognized by Parliament and under the statutes five boards were incorporated with power to hold land. In 1911 legislation was amended enabling the convention to create additional boards.

"It seems reasonably clear that Ontario legislation would not extend to further boards," said Mr. Macdonald.

Help For Homeless

TORONTO (CP)—The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire here sent $1,000 to the British Save the Children Fund national president Mrs. Kathleen Drope announced today. The donation was made to aid homeless families during the unusual cold wave in Italy. The order learned that following the donation blankets were flown to Rome and that bedding and other supplies will follow soon.

Old Theatre Man Dies In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—A. Alfred Burridge, 88, credited with starting Mary Pickford on the stage career that later led to her triumphs in the movies, died Tuesday.

While he was working as a property man at a theatre, a stock company needed a child for a special play. He suggested the five-year-old Toronto child who, as Mary Pickford, was to gain fame as "America's sweetheart."

He spent 40 years as a member of the stage crew around Toronto vaudeville houses and theatres. He fought in the northwest rebellion of 1885 and served overseas during the First World War.

Would Extend Highways Into Northland

TORONTO (CP)—John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Prince Albert, Wednesday night suggested construction and extension of highways into Canada's northland.

Such roads are needed, he said, not only as a means of access to natural resources in the north but as a defence measure. He suggested that the federal government share with the provinces on a 50-50 basis the cost of northern highways.

In a speech before the Ontario Good Roads Association, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

". . . While the U. S. S. R. may make detours which are advantageous to itself when the going is hard and difficult, the highway of communism will lead, and the over-all plan is to lead, to the destruction of the free world. . . .

PEACE IS UNCERTAIN

"The possession of atomic power by the U. S. S. R. assures that for years to come, if not generations, peace will be uncertain. Military authorities agree that the U. S. S. R will, within two or three years, possess the atomic power necessary for devastating attacks on North America.

"Uranium and the metals for defence preparations will be required by the free world, and the area where they abound is in Canada. . . .

"Northern Canada has available to it, and in particular northern Saskatchewan, vast uranium resources which, if developed, will make our country the supply base of this metal so necessary for survival. Canada's northland is a safety deposit box of this and other minerals in which the future may show are deposited the title deeds of freedom's survival. . . . ."

Increase Trustees

TORONTO (CP) — The town of Palmerston was granted power to increase from three to nine the number of trustees on the Palmerston hospital commission in a bill approved by the private bills committee of the Ontario legislature.

The bill was introduced by J. Fred Edwards (PC—Perth).

Live Without War Hard Lesson For Mankind

TORONTO (CP)—The United Nations secretary-general said today that "the process of learning to live together without war . . . is going to be a painful and constant challenge for the rest of our lives."

In a prepared address to the Empire Club, Dag Hammarskjold said the fact that member nations have created and maintained the UN is "evidence that mankind is capable of responding to the challenge of interdependence with which the evolution of human society has now brought us face to face as never before."

History has many lessons to teach about apparently irreconcilable conflicts between peoples, he said. But with time, the nations "found that it was not only possible but necessary to make a working compromise that allowed for the differences.

"They found that it was not only possible but necessary to accept the principle of diversity in human society."

Hammarskjold also paid tribute to L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister and former president of the UN Assembly. Hammarskjold said Pearson's term as president "was not the first occasion, nor, I am sure, will it be the last, upon which he has exerted a significant influence on the side of that positive and constructive approach to world problems which is epitomized in the United Nations charter."

Church Group Quilts For Red Cross

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Plans were made for a quilting for the Red Cross when the Missionary and Service club of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. Paul Irwin. This event will be held in the church basement on Wednesday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. Clarence Coons, urged all members to be present. Mrs. Clare Chittick and Mrs. George Graham were appointed a committee in charge.

The secretary's report was given by Mrs. Charles Hunter. Miss Merle Crawford, treasurer, reported a balance on hand of $323.

Literature Secretary Miss Irene Madill distributed a number of books obtained from the Lakefield Public Library through the co-operation of Librarian Mrs. J. W. Ridpath, and asked members to continue the reading program through the year. The club will be responsible for the devotional period at the evening service on March 14.

Mrs. W. H. Fife presided for the worship service and program. Mrs. L. O. Bailey led in prayer. The study book was taken by Mrs. Alex. Graham. Mrs. S. A. Grylls gave the monthly talk on the United Nations.

Assisting the hostess in serving refreshments were Mrs. E. H. Northey, Mrs. J. R. Hull and Mrs. Fife.

Critical Shortage Of Services May Bog Down Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—A spokesman for Canada's cities, towns and villages today said that Canada's housing program may bog down because of a critical shortage of municipal services, such as sewers, schools, parks, community buildings, and police, fire and garbage services. J. O. Asselin of Montreal, president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, suggested the federal government provide assistance to communities "for such facilities beyond the capacity of the municipality to provide."

Mr. Asselin told the Commons banking committee that not enough publicity had been given to legislation enabling the federal government to join with provinces in financing assembly of land suitable for housing development.

URGE OTTAWA FINANCING

The federation, in a brief, appealed to the federal government to finance low-rental housing projects to help eliminate slums and overcrowding.

A series of these projects, financed entirely by the federal government, would stimulate more active interest by the provinces and municipalities in low-rental housing, the brief said. At the same time it would help to dispel the fears which some people hold toward such projects.

The National Housing Act has made it possible to tackle the problem "in an energetic way," the brief said. Public apathy and active opposition in some quarters, however, have hindered attempts to relieve the congestion and slum conditions.

WANTS MORE MONEY

The federation also asked the government to increase from $10,000 to $13,500 the amount of construction money available under National Housing Act loans and to lower the down payment to 10 per cent of the amount. The down payment might be even lower for houses costing less than $10,000, the brief said.

Provisions should be made to guard against any increase from the present 5¼ per cent maximum interest rate, the federation stated. Any increase would be a deterrent to new construction.

Another problem facing municipalities is the shortage of serviced residential land, the brief said. A reserve must be built up if the municipalities are to keep pace with housing requirements.

The limited financial resources of municipal governments also are hampering the opening of new sub-divisions, the brief said.

LOSES HIS JOB—Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Naguib, 53, was ousted Thursday from the presidency of Egypt. Authorities insist he is not under arrest.

Deposed Syrian Dictator Flees To Nearby Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Syria's deposed dictator, Gen. Adib Shishekly, fled into neighboring Lebanon early today as leaders of an army revolt appeared in control of his country's major cities. Shishekly, his brother Salah; and his adjutant drove across the border after midnight following Thursday's swift army uprising and an ultimatum that the dictator resign the presidency and get out of Syria within 24 hours. The trio took refuge in Beirut's Saudi Arabian legation. Speculation in the Lebanese capital was that they would continue on to that country.

GEN. ADIB SHISHEKLY

The rebel army command now in control in Damascus, the Syrian capital, telephoned Lebanon's president Camille Chamoun today to assure him of their "good intentions toward Lebanon," which lies between southern Syria and the Mediterranean and for 20 years after the First World War was joined with it as a French mandate.

(The rebel command kept a tight rein on correspondents in Damascus. Up to this morning Associated Press correspondent Simon Allawerdi had been permitted to send only two brief dispatches.)

Gen. Shawkat Shukeyr, chief of the Syrian general staff, issued an appeal from Damascus Thursday night for the country of 3,000,000, mostly Moslems, to keep calm. He said the army is "the one indivisible unit in the country's defence."

SEEN PROBABLE LEADER

It appears likely that former president Hacken Bey Attassi, deposed by Shishekly in December, 1951, in a bloodless coup, will head Syria's new government. Attassi is president of the National Assembly.

Attassi's elevation was demanded Thursday in a broadcast by rebel army leaders in north Syria, who

Egyptian Ouster Not Turn Against West

By ROBERT B. HEWETT

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's youthful bosses assured the Western powers today that a new and younger man in the top job doesn't mean a turn against the West.

British and American officials in Washington and London already had figured that the removal of conservative, 53-year-old Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Naguib from the Nile republic's presidency would not change Egypt's foreign policy of friendliness with the West and determination that British troops must quit the Suez canal zone.

Rumors circulated in Cairo, however, that the West is concerned at Naguib's replacement as premier and chairman of the ruling military revolutionary council by 36-year-old Lt.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser. Maj. Salah Salem, fiercest of the council members and the national guidance minister, hurriedly summoned foreign correspondents Thursday night to tell them:

"There will be by no means any change in our policy, either external or internal."

GROUP MADE DECISIONS

Salem said the republic's policies "have always been made by all members of the (revolutionary) council," the group of young army officers who led the revolt against ex-king Farouk and have dominated the government ever since. The council's membership remains unchanged, except for Naguib's removal.

Earlier the council had insisted that Nasser had been the real leader of the revolt against Farouk and that Naguib had been only a front man. Nasser, Naguib's vice-premier, also has been Egypt's chief negotiator in the

Has Solution For Britain's Missile Mile

NANAIMO, B. C. (CP) — Cal Dow, manager of an automobile electrical supply firm here, believes he has solved the mystery of Britain's "missile mile."

The mystery surrounds a Surrey road which has been the scene of the shattering of about 100 automobile windshields. Recently, a plane flying over the stretch had its compass shattered.

"It would seem apparent," Mr. Dow said Thursday, "on reading of the airplane phase of the phenomena, that there would be in existence somewhere along this area, a source of ultra high-frequency current (probably in the super high-frequency experimental region), the natural vibration period of which resonates exactly with that of the materials with which the shattered windshields are composed.

"So great was the response that the windshields shattered," he said.

Woman Slashed Seven Times

TORONTO (CP) — A suburban North York housewife said Thursday she was slashed seven times by a razor knife and her baby son was choked by a "huge bearded man wearing a turban" who invaded their home.

Police apparently withheld reports on the case while seeking the man, believed mentally deranged. Mrs. Joan Thorn, 21, said she suffered seven minor cuts in the Wednesday attack before the intruder ran from the house.

She told police she was in her basement when she heard someone upstairs. She went upstairs and found a "glassy-eyed" man who said "I'm going to kill you."

He then produced the knife, apparently a razor blade set in a holder.

U.K. Seeks Red Trade Pact

LONDON (CP)—The foreign office said tonight that trade talks will be resumed next month with Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia. The announcement followed a plea by Prime Minister Churchill in the House of Commons Thursday for Anglo-American co-operation in easing the Western ban on sale of strategic goods to Russia. Secret talks are under way between American and British officials here on possible revision of the ban.

The foreign office announcement said trade and financial talks with Communist Hungary will open in London March 15. Talks with Poland will start March 4. No date was set for the start of negotiations with Czechoslovakia.

CALL CAME FROM REDS

The foreign office said the initiative for reopening negotiations came from the Communist countries in all three cases.

Speaking in the House of Commons Thursday, Churchill said he does not suggest at present there should be any traffic in military equipment or certain machine tools which could be used for a war build-up; but a substantial relaxation of the regulations affecting manufactured goods, new materials and shipping would undoubtedly be beneficial.

Says Wage Cuts Not Solution In Textile Slump

TORONTO — (CP) — Harold Daoust, Canadian director of the Textile Workers Union of America, (CCL-CIO), said today that wage cuts are not the solution to the economic problem of the textile industry.

In a policy statement issued to 96 local unions representing 27,500 workers, Mr. Daoust said:

"The simple facts are that a reduction of wages at this time would only mean that the purchasing power of the workers would be reduced and that in the end result less clothing and other textile commodities would be bought and this in itself will only make the recession in the textile industry worse."

UNFAIR IMPORTS

The union official said the industry's problem is one of "unfair and cut-rate imports and can only be solved by immediate government action designed to limit the dumping of such imports on the Canadian market."

The average wage of textile workers is $44 a week, he said, compared with the Canadian average wage of $57 a week.

(Wednesday employees of the Dominion and Woolen Worsted Limited plant at Hespeler, five miles north of Galt, voted down a company-proposed wage cut. TWUA representatives distributed handbills to the workers opposing the wage cut).

88 Korean PoWs Arrive At New Delhi

NEW DELHI (AP)—The 88 Korean war prisoners who want to go to neutral countries arrived here by train today, accompanied by 272 Indian army troops from the Korean PoW custodial force.

Prime Minister Nehru's daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, and defence ministry officials headed a crowd of 2,000 who cheered the returning army personnel.

A nucleus of the custodial group will continue to care for the prisoners, who will be held in a camp outside New Delhi until future homes can be arranged for them. Twenty have expressed a desire to stay in India.

An army source said the prisoners will be given 50 rupees ($10.50) a month pocket money and be taken sight-seeing to points of historical interest.

U.S. Invites 14 Allies To Parley

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has invited 14 of its Korean war allies to meet with Russia, Communist China and North Korea at a Korean peace conference set for Geneva April 26.

The state department disclosed today that formal invitations to the parley, agreed upon at the Big Four foreign ministers meeting in Berlin last week, were issued to foreign diplomats Wednesday.

Invitations went to South Korea, Canada, Australia, Belgium, Colombia, Ethiopia, Greece, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, New Zealand, the Philippines, Thailand, Turkey, and South Africa.

'Gloomy Dean' Predicted Dark Age Coming To U.K.

WALLINGFORD, England (AP)—The Very Rev. Sir William R. Inge, 93, Anglican church leader who earned world renown as the "gloomy dean" of St. Paul's cathedral, died at his home here today. In retirement for two decades, he had been suffering from bronchitis for several weeks.

Dean Inge has said he believed neither in heaven, hell, nor the socialists, who came to power in Britain for six years after the war.

One thing he was particular about was the pronunciation of his name. He would correct offenders with the remark: "Inge—it rhymes with king, not binge."

He was the embodiment of pessimism in the popular view, but to academic circles of the English speaking world he was a distinguished classical scholar and profound philospher. His several dozen publications ranged from "Society in Rome Under the Caesars," issued in 1888, to "Dairy of a Dean," 1949.

He was dean of St. Paul's, the architectural masterpiece of Sir Christopher Wren, from 1911 to 1934. King George V knighted him in 1930.

SAW DARK AGE COMING

When he reached 90, Dean Inge issued yet another of the dour predictions which gave him his nickname, declaring: "We are approaching another dark age."

He warned, too, that "this overpopulated island is no longer an imperial power and has come to the end of a chapter, just as Rome did."

As an example of how he saw things, there was his declaration in 1944, during the war: "As a great industrial nation, we shall not and cannot recover from this year."

In his old age, he never gave up his bleak outlook on life.

Frost Denies Charges Funds Came From Contract Donations

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost and a member of his cabinet have denied opposition charges that Progressive Conservative party campaign funds came from donations received with the letting of government contracts. The premier and Highways Minister Doucett denied statements made in the legislature by Joseph Salsberg (Lab-Prog. — Toronto-St. Andrew) and Albert Wren (Lib.-Lab.—Kenora). They were supported by W. G. Beech (PC—York South).

Mr. Frost interrupted Mr. Salsberg during the throne speech debate when the member, in discussing irregularities in the Fort William branch of the highways department said the situation was aided by "the building of election funds by the party."

"No one has to come to this government or any branch of the government and make a contribution to the party in order to get a contract," Mr. Frost said. "As long as I am head of this government I will tolerate no checkoff of any kind."

Mr. Doucett said no campaign funds "in any way, shape or form" were mentioned in contract negotiations.

Mr. Wren suggested Wednesday that there was a connection between the Progressive Conservative party and the highways division at Fort William.

Mr. Beech said Mr. Wren's statement was "mean, vicious talk" and a "disservice to the people."

Mr. Salsberg said the government in dropping rent controls had "committed a very serious offence against that section of the people that needs help the most."

Premier Frost denied Mr. Salsberg's charges that the government aided anti-union forces during the strikes in the northeastern Ontario gold mines.

Arrest Busher Jackson On Assault Charge

TORONTO (CP) — Harvey (Busher) Jackson, 43, former member of Toronto Maple Leafs famed "Kid Line" of hockey, was arrested early today in suburban Etobicoke on a charge of assaulting his wife. He was later released on $1,000 bail.

Police said Mrs. Jackson had a black eye.

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—About 50 cars, trucks and buses got stuck today on icy hills in downtown St. Catharines. Many rear-end collisions were reported after about four inches of wet snow fell in the city.

Senators Think $10,000 Too Small Raise For PM

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate approved the principle of a $5,000 salary increase for cabinet ministers, but some senators suggested a proposed $10,000 increase for the prime minister is not enough. The measure, given second reading Thursday, would increase the salary of a cabinet minister to $15,000 and the prime minister to $25,000. They also receive $10,000 yearly in indemnities and allowances and a $2,000 non-taxable car allowance. Total pay for cabinet ministers would be $27,000 and the prime minister $37,000.

Senator Thomas Reid (L—British Columbia) said he likes the principle in the United Kingdom where the prime minister receives £10,000 a year, 2½ times a minister's salary. The same proportion should be maintained in Canada.

He also suggested that the prime minister should have a car and chauffeur to be "way above the cabinet ministers."

Senator Reid hinted that perhaps all cabinet ministers should not receive the same salary because some portfolios are not as heavy as others.

Senator Norman Lambert (L—Ontario) disagreed, saying ministers are on the job all the time. Ministers were not being rewarded out of proportion to the service they gave the country.

Inoculate Queen Against Polio

CANBERRA (AP)—An informed source said today that Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh were injected last week as protection against poliomyelitis with the first doses of gamma globulin produced in Australia.

The Queen's doctor, Surgeon-Cmdr. D. Steele Perkins, gave the royal pair the injections while they were staying at Government House, Canberra, as a precaution because there is an outbreak of polio in Canberra and a more serious outbreak in Western Australia where they are due later next month, the source said.

Eighteen nurses from Canberra community hospital have also been inoculated. One of their number died this week.

Oxygen Tank Explodes Nurse Badly Burned

NORTH BAY (CP)—Nurse Adelaide Edwards suffered third degree burns to about half her body Thursday when an oxygen tank exploded at Civic Hospital.

Her condition was reported today to be slightly improved.

An orderly in the room at the time of the explosion escaped serious injury. Cause of the blast was not known.

Doesn't Make Wrong Move In Tour Diplomacy

ST. LAURENT DOES TOP JOB OF SELLING CANADA TO FAR EAST

By PHILIP DEANE, London Observer Foreign News Service

NEW DELHI, Feb 25 (Copyright)—During 11 days of speech-making, banqueting, sight-seeing and answering difficult questions in both Pakistan and India, Canadian Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent has not made a wrong move in diplomacy.

Arriving in this area amid a bitter political storm, he has enhanced the popularity of his country and put forward the western viewpoint tactfully, but firmly.

He quickly showed his skill in this respect when he arrived in Karachi Feb. 17. He deftly avoided the traps in loaded questions from newsmen which might have made him appear to be condemning India and supporting Pakistan.

In addition to a round of official lunches, a state banquet and a press conference, his program in Pakistan included wading barefoot in a driving rain to lay wreaths and talks with Prime Minister Mohammed Ali and Governor-General Ghulam Mohammed.

Peshawar was his next port of call after Karachi. Peshawar means "The Khyber Pass." Mr. St. Laurent drove along that historic "gorge" guarded by the crack marksmen of the Khyber Rifles, who lined all the hilltops.

SHAKES HANDS WITH SENTRIES

At the Afghanistan frontier the Canadian prime minister shook hands with the Afghan sentries before driving back to Peshawar to get an honorary degree. When it was time to go to Lahore there was an interval for mass on Sunday, Feb. 21.

He flew on to India and there was Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, with the usual rose in his buttonhole, waiting for him at the New Delhi airport.

In India he laid more wreaths, saw more sights, visited villages and dined and had meetings with Mr. Nehru.

What he said privately to Mr. Nehru, Mr. St. Laurent repeated more oratorically to India's Parliament.

"We admire India," he said. "We think your nation's building enterprise is grandiose. We sympathize with your desire for peace in which to work against poverty in your nation, and we want to help.

"We respect your wish to stay out of other peoples' quarrels, and at the same time we recognize your right to have a say in world affairs, especially if that means doing what you did in Korea.

WEST PEACE-LOVING

"We share your view on the nature and the role of the commonwealth, but you know we too in the west are peace-loving. And the decisions we've taken and the pacts we've made were all motivated by the desire for peace, by a desire to deter aggression. The United States is playing a major role in deterring aggression and in helping peaceful reconstruction."

Then the Canadian prime minister warned Asia against the extremes of nationalism that could be a reaction against feudalism and foreign rule. He ended with an appeal recalling Mr. Nehru's speech to the Canadian Parliament in 1949 when India's prime minister asked that Canada understand India's purpose and motives. Mr. St. Laurent made the same request of India.

India is bitter against the west these days because the west is helping Pakistan, the only nation India can conceive as an enemy today. A demand for an understanding of the west could have been enough to bring on recriminations and insults.

But Mr. St. Laurent's tactful forthrightness and his attitude of carefully mixed admiration and modest advice enabled him to make his unpopular point without becoming unpopular himself.

MEMORABLE EXPERIENCE

NEW DELHI (CP)—Canada's touring prime minister bade farewell today to India's prime minister, Nehru, and said his visit to this capital will remain "one of the most memorable experiences of my life."

Prime Minister St. Laurent then left for Bombay by air and arrived later in the morning. He will also visit Madras and talk with Indian leaders outside the capital before proceeding to Ceylon during the weekend on the next leg of his round-the-world goodwill tour.

Nehru presented his guest with an album of photographs of the New Delhi visit which began Feb. 21, longest stop on the prime minister's tour.

"We lean very heavily on the part played by the nations of the East for peace in the world, because their influence is considerable," the Canadian leader told reporters before the take-off in his RCAF C-5 transport.

MEMORABLE EXPERIENCE

During the final handshake with Nehru, the Canadian prime minister was overheard saying: "The time I spent with you in New Dehli will remain one of the most memorable experiences of my life."

Nehru replied: "No, the pleasure has been entirely mine."

By coincidence, a few minutes after the RCAF plane had taken off, a commercial transport landed at the airport carrying Prime Minister Mohammed Ali of Pakistan, whom the Canadian prime minister had visited last week.

Nehru smiled and greeted the head of the neighboring Moslem state in an unscheduled meeting, and held a 15-minute chat. It was regarded as significant in view of Thursday's announcement in Washington that United States military aid would be given to Pakistan to strengthen her defences. India, a predominantly Hindu country, and Pakistan have been at odds over several issues ever since the Indian sub-continent was divided between them in 1947.

Wheat Sales Lag None Of 1953 Crop Sold Yet

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's 614,000,000-bushel wheat crop is going begging for buyers. Trade Minister Howe said Thursday in the Commons that, so far, none of the 1953 wheat crop, second largest in history, has been sold. For that reason, he informed Hazen Argue (CCF-Assiniboia), the Canadian wheat board cannot, at present, make any interim payment to Western producers participating in the 1953-54 wheat board pool.

He touched on current problems as he announced a long-delayed close-out of the 1952-53 pool. The board will distribute $58,282,000 to farmers as final payment on the pool's operation.

This amounts to an average of 10.934 cents a bushel on the 533,000,000 bushels delivered to the board in the crop year Aug. 1, 1952, to July 31, 1953.

It brings to $1.816 a bushel, basis No. 1 Northern, the total price paid to the farmer for his 1952-53 wheat, compared with $1.83 paid in the previous crop year.

Mr. Argue observed that the close-out prices announced "are quite satisfactory." But he wantd to know whether the government would this year, as it has in recent years, make an interim payment on the current wheat crop.

NO INTERIM PAYMENT

The government's policy will be announced in due course, replied Mr. Howe, but he could say "an interim payment will not be made at the present time for the very good reason that we have not sold any wheat from the last crop."

Though Mr. Howe gave no further detail, it is generally known that wheat sales are lagging. On top of the 614,000,000 bushels produced in 1953, Canada also carried over 362,700,000 bushels of unsold wheat from the previous crop year.

On Jan. 1 Canada still had about 700,000,000 bushels of unsold wheat, well up from the 580,200,000 on Jan. 1, 1953.

In the past, the mid-year interim payment has helped farmers bear financial costs of spring seeding operations. It now appears the board, outside of the $58,282,000, will make no further distribution of funds until the spring navigation season opens and Canada is able to sell more wheat.

Beef Branding Rights Cancelled

TORONTO (CP)—Beef branding privileges of three packing house firms were cancelled Thursday after meat sold from Toronto was found to be below standard when checked at Montreal.

A federal agricultural department spokesman said the firms' privilege of having their meat inspected at their coolers here has been suspended pending an investigation.

It was learned that 14 of 30 sections of meat branded red and blue failed to meet federal standards. Eight were found to be cow hinds. Price difference between the two brands and hinds would mean an additional profit of about $20 on each hind if the meat was falsely branded.

The firms are Industrial Packers, William Puddy Beef and L. Goldman and Son.

Vietminh Rebel Drive On Luangprabang Fails

SAIGON, Indo-China (Reuters)—The Vietminh rebel drive on Luangprabang has failed, the French high command formally announced here today.

The Communist-led "iron" division, which headed the advance on the royal capital of Laos, now is regrouping on the north bank of the Nambac river, 50 miles away, after losing many men in savage French air attacks, the announcement stated.

BOMBING TAKES TOLL

Hundreds of men were killed in just a single day's bombing raids recently, it was stated.

French tanks and aircraft were reported to have been flung Thursday against a Vietminh battalion attacking La Pit, a strongpoint 20 miles south of Konturh on the southern Annam plateau in Viet Nam.

In bloody hand-to-hand fighting, desperate rebel soldiers jumped on to the tanks and tried to drop hand grenades inside them. Sixty-two Vietminh bodies were counted after the engagement and there were "certainly many more" rebel casualties, the French claimed.

About half the oil went to Finland and Italy, it was stated here by the Petroleum Press Service, a monthly review which often reflects the views of the big London oil companies.

12 Foreign Language Papers Anti-Canadian

OTTAWA (CP)—Citizenship Minister Harris says 12 to 14 foreign-language papers published in Canara are attempting to undermine Canadian democratic institutions.

Mr. Harris made the statement Thursday in the Commons in commenting on a speech in Montreal by Alan Boyd, an officer of his department. Mr. Boyd said the aim of 13 pro-Communist publications in Canada is furtherance of international communism, specifically the Sovietization of Canada.

Michael Starr (PC — Ontario) asked whether Mr. Boyd was correct in stating that the Communist press was subsidized from abroad, was guided by a common board of strategy in Toronto and was aiming its propaganda at New Canadians.

COMMON KNOWLEDGE

Mr. Harris said there was nothing in the speech which was not common knowledge to officials of his department.

Liaison officers of the department visited groups of New Canadians to warn them of the evils of the Communist doctrine. Active steps were taken by these officers in an attempt to prevent immigrants coming under the influence of Communists in Canada.

Rescue Worker After Cave-in

SUDBURY (CP)—A cement plant worker was buried Thursday in a gravel pile cave-in at Wavy Industries Limited. When gravel was shovelled away from his head, he was able to grin and direct rescue operations.

Another man, Albert Jones of Garson, landed atop Kentalla, pulled himself free and ran for help.

Kentalla's condition was reported as good.

Legion Funeral Held For Roseneath Man

ROSENEATH (ENS) — Members of the Hastings Legion attended the funeral service for the late Alvin Rosebush at Roseneath United church on Thursday afternoon and later assisted with the commital service at the graveside at Centenary cemetery under the direction of Comrade Iden Bonds.

For some time Mr. Rosebush had been caretaker of Roseneath school. The school was closed for the funeral service which was attended by the teachers and pupils. The pupils of the senior room acted as flower bearers.

The largely attended service was conducted by the Rev. J. R. Wheeler with Mrs. Flex McMillan at the organ.

Man Kidnaps Dummy In Bizarre Break-in

COBOURG (ENS)—The Lady Ellis shop in Cobourg, which sells women's wear and lingerie was broken into Thursday night in one of the weirdest crimes of the year.

Nothing was stolen from the store but a store window dummy, a female figure. The dummy was found by police at the back of the shop.

The burglar carefully removed a pane of glass from the front door of the shop. He stole no money or goods, but carried off only the dummy, a red-headed one.

Const. Gene Butler is investigating the bizarre break-in. He found tracks near the back of the store, but lost them where the ground became firmer. Apparently the burglar soon tired of his titian girl friend for she was found not far from the store.

Ask Immigrants Made To Keep Farm Contracts

HAMILTON (CP)—Action to ensure that immigrant farm labor agreements are completed was urged Thursday in a resolution passed at the annual meeting of the Ontario Concentrated Milk Producers.

Pat Houston of Beachville and Anton Schmit of Woodstock charged that farm labor contracts governing newcomers to Canada are "loaded" in favor of the immigrant at the expense of the Canadian farmer.

They said that probably 75 per cent of the immigrants had no intention of entering the Canadian way of thinking; that the majority of immigrant farm laborers leave their original places of employment without a just reason; that in 90 per cent of cases the consideration given by the government to immigrants (who leave employment before contracts expired) is unwarranted, and that many credentials brought by immigrants aren't "worth a damn."

A contrary view was taken by Arthur Stewart of the Almonte district who asked delegates to take a "more realistic" attitude.

He said the heart of the problem lay in how far farmers are prepared to go in having "forced labor." It would mean that a farmer would have to keep the employee with whom he was dissatisfied.

Shelling Sinks Patrol Boat

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The French today reported the loss of a small river patrol boat under Vietminh shelling.

Communist-led rebel gunners, firing recoilless rifles, sank the vessel near Son Tay, a river port headquarters city.

In the continuing actions against rebel infiltration of the Red river delta, the French announced that 41 Vietminh troops had been killed and 35 captured.

Only light patrol clashes were reported in the hills around Dien Bien Phu, the big French stronghold in northwest Indo-China.

Hold Calgary Native In Girl's Abduction

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Cpl. Stanley Kopinski, 22, a native of Calgary, will appear in court today on a charge of abducting Margaret Sisson of Watford, an 18-year-old business school student here.

Kopinski, a member of the First Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, is charged with forcing Miss Sisson into his car at knife-point Monday night and driving her along country roads for five hours while he told her the story of his life and his views on the army.

Army authorities said Kopinski, a veteran of Korea, went absent without leave Monday. He was arrested Thursday and his car impounded by police.

now-stalemated British - Egyptian talks to settle the Suez issue.

Salem said the revolution leaders from the start had agreed that no council member should have more power than another. The showdown with Naguib came, he said, when the president threatened to resign unless he was given veto powers on council decision and the right to dismiss cabinet members.

Salem insisted that Naguib is not under arrest in his soldier-ringed home in a Cairo suburb. He said the ex-president will be kept at home for "a month or two" and then can tell his side of the story publicly if he wants to.

Board, Midway Reach Terms On Church Booths

Peterborough Exhbition board and Conklin Brothers, Patty and Frank, the carnival show men, are in business again on a one-year contract with renewal option.

Manson Cathcart of the attractons committee said today he had insisted on two reservations along the concession rows, one for the women's group of St. James' United Church, who have been catering dinners to the public for years, and the other to the women of East Emily Anglican Church, who have a refreshment booth west of the gate.

The policy of Conklin Brothers, it was said at a board meeting before the turn of the year, is to secure control of concession privileges in their grounds area.

It was also said that they decided on any applications for booth space in opposition to their business.

Dick Stewart as chairman of the grandstand attractions committee has invited a group of people to discuss and suggest the type of program they consider of top public appeal. They are meeting tonight at the Public Library at 7.30 o'clock. Some of those to whom requests for suggestions have been sent are: members of the county and city council, Charles H. Huffman chairman of the board of education, Harry Yudin, Clare Collins, Robertson Davies, Eddie O'Toole and others with Burritt Mann and Jay Whittington, chairmen of the light and heavy horses of the board.

The return of Conklin Brothers to the Peterborough Exhibition for this year's show at mid-August is one of the first definite changes under the new board. The attractions for children and young people will be of the same wide variety and quality that has always been a feature of Conklin fun for the crowd.

Plane Blown Off Runway

LONDON (AP) — Capricious winds whipped destructive gales around the British Isles today, brought icebound Norway its heaviest snowfall of the year and turned warm with rain further south to start breaking up the deep freeze that had clogged northern Europe's seaports.

The winds turned to heavy gales around the British isles and churned up huge waves in the North sea, the English channel and the Irish sea, damaging property and ripping down communications lines along exposed coastal areas. Two ships flashed word that they were in trouble off the English coast and needed help.

A 60-ton four-engined airliner taking off from Shannon airport in southern Ireland was blown off the runway and mired down in four feet of soft ground. None of the 56 passengers aboard was hurt.

High winds blew down a 30-foot section of a hospital wall in Birmingham and slightly injured several patients and medical attendants in a ward.

Delay In Alberta May Retard Pipeline

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto paper says today Ontario officials believe that construction of the all-Canadian pipeline for Alberta natural gas cannot get under way this year because of a delay by the Alberta government in granting an export licence for the gas.

The newspage story says the current delay in granting the licence is the result of an order to Trans-Canada Pipeline Company to appear before the Alberta conservation board March 22.

The story adds:

"The opinion here is that Alberta officials still have in the back of their minds the hope that by holding on to the gas they can encourage industry to locate in the province."

20 In Ontario Die At Level Crossings

TORONTO (CP)—January was the worst month on record in Ontario for level crossing fatalities.

Twenty persons died in motor vehicle crossing accidents, preliminary department of highways figures showed today. The previous high figure was for February, 1951, when there were 19 deaths.

Including the crossing fatalities, 64 persons were killed on the streets and roads of Ontario last month. Twelve were under the age of 12 and five were over 65.

Will Listen To Complaints Over Forests

TORONTO (CP) — The Hearst Chamber of Commerce and other lumber interests today were invited to appear before the Ontario legislature's lands and forests committee late next week to discuss their claims that they are being ruined by government policy which prevents them exporting pulpwood to the nearest economic markets.

The committee, which elected Bryan Cathcart (PC — Lambton West) as chairman today, asked Lands and Forests Minister Gemmell to arrange the meeting.

Mr. Gemmell said the government has not changed its pulp export policy but he would welcome a "wide open hearing."

"Let the chips fall where they may. We don't want anything under the table."

The committee next Tuesday will have Dean J. W. B. Sisam of the department of forestry, University of Toronto, Edward Zavitz, former head of the department of reforestation and C. S. Bailey, present head, outline in general the objects of the white paper on Ontario forest resources presented in the house earlier this week.

Must Aid Countries Then Markets Better

OTTAWA (CP) — Dag Hammarskjold said today the West's dollar and marketing problems can't be solved without "considerable" development of underprivileged countries.

Western peoples shouldn't complain about money spent for this purpose because they would get it all back, added the secretary-general of the United Nations.

Mr. Hammarskjold spoke at a press conference. Later today, he received an honorary doctorate of laws from Carleton College.

He said markets for Western goods cannot be expanded without economic development of south and southeast Asia. (Canada has spent $75,000,000 for this purpose in the last three years through the Colombo plan and has also contributed to the UN technical assistance program.)

Find Prices Mixed In Light Trading

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were mixed in light early afternoon stock market trading today.

Papers, foods, constructions, textiles, financial institutions, liquors and manufattures were lower. Refining oils, steels and utilities were stronger. Ford added $1.25 and Maple Leaf Gardens was up $1.50.

Western oils added in light trading with Canadian Prospect's 50-cent gain in the lead. Trading was light.

All gold categories were lower in quiet trading.

Seniors and juniors were steady to slightly higher in moderate base metal trading.

Uraniums and Bathurst-area base metals remained about steady. Lorado, at a new low (50 cents) in forenoon trading, suddenly added seven cents.

McRuer Delays Hearing Contempt Count

CORNWALL (CP)—Chief Justice J. C. McRuer today postponed hearing contempt of court charges against a distributor of three American crime magazines which recently published stories about the murder of Marie Anne Carrier, 21-year-old reserve army sergeant.

The chief justice said he would not hear the contempt charge until the conclusion of the trial of 2nd Lieut. Peter Balcombe, who is charged with the girl's murder. Her nude and stabbed body was found in a ditch near Iroquois, 40 miles west of here, last October.

Appearing in court at the chief justice's order to "show cause why he should not be cited for contempt of court," was M. C. Bryan owner of the Bryan News Agency which distributed the three magazines in the Cornwall area.

Also appearing were representatives of two of three U. S. publishing companies producing the magazines.

The chief justice ordered the contempt proceedings after J. M. P. Kelly, counsel for Balcombe, told the court of the magazine articles at the opening of the trial Monday.

The chief justice told Bryan and representatives of the magazines today that he would "not be able to proceed with the contempt charges until this case (the Balcombe trial) is completed."

"I have no desire and no right to keep this jury locked up and away from their homes any longer than necessary.

"I much prefer that those who are free to come and go as they wish should wait."

The three magazines were Official Detective, published by Triangle Publications, New York; True Police, published by Fawcett Publications, New York; and True Detective, published by T. D. Publications, New York.

Triangle Publications was not represented today.

Authorize Arming Of Half Million Men

BONN (AP)—The West German Bundestag (lower house) today approved constitutional changes authorizing the arming of half a million German soldiers to serve in the proposed European army.

The vote was 334 to 144.

The decision represented an important victory for pro - Western chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who has based his foreign policy on linking West Germany militarily and politically to free Europe. For the two constitutional changes push the European army project a step nearer reality.

Adenauer's coalition maintains that these changes wipe out the last legal obstacle in Germany to the plan to create a 2,000,000-man force to help defend Europe.

Both houses of the Bonn parliament have approved the army treaty, but Adenauer's coalition maintained that the changes approved today were needed to end a Socialist contention in the West German Supreme Court that the treaty is unconstitutional.

The two constitutional changes charge the federal government with responsibility for defence, authorize compulsory military service and declare specifically that the European army treaty and the Allied - West German peace contract do not violate the constitution.

They now go to the bundesrat (upper house) where Adenauer's coalition has the necessary two-thirds majority to approve them. Then they must be ratified by the three Western occupation powers—the United States, Britain and France—who already have given tacit approval to the amendments.

By changing the constitution, Adenauer intends to force the Supreme Court to throw out the Socialist suit challenging the constitutionality of rearmament.

District Governor Visits Campbellford Lions Club

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Members of the Campbellford Lions Club turned out in force on Wednesday night when Vic Frederick, governor of district A3 paid his first official visit to the local club. A number of guests were present.

"Why have service clubs?" Mr. Frederick asked.

Service clubs he explained have grown and now fill a place in the social, economic and moral life of an individaul and of a community.

He said that Lions, Rotary and Kiwanis were the three largest international service clubs. Of these, Lions was the largest, with a membership of one and one quarter million throughout the world.

VIC FREDERICK

WELFARE WORK

Welfare work is the chief object of service clubs; but attendance and good fellowship of periodic meetings bring their dividends to the individual and health, happiness and prosperity to the community.

Internationally, Lionism has left paths of goodwill between the countries of the world— paths over which ambassadors of understanding and peace may travel to bring international relationships into closer harmony, the governor said.

In the local field, Lionism has embraced many commendable projects. Some of these undertaken in District A3, from Ajax to Brockville and north to Whitney, include swimming pools, baseball league, hockey teams, safe driving schools, public speaking courses, TB seal campaigns, safety patrols, assisting hospitals, summer camps and a host of other services.

Civic improvement projects by the thousands have been undertaken in various places. This category alone is a major job the speaker said.

UNLIMITED OPPORTUNITIES

"Opportunities for service and self-government are unlimited," said Mr. Frederick. "It has been said that success is 15 per cent technical training and 85 per cent personality. The ability to lead and arouse enthusiasm is the greatest education and reaps the highest reward in human endeavour. The ability to get along with others is the greatest asset a man can have.

"Lionism supplies this to a great degree. It creates a new interest for each member and encourages him in the development of his talents whatever they may be. He is encouraged to think of others and to give his ability that he may reap the benefits, primary among which are the building of character, and the realization of a spirit of tolerance and understanding.

"It is notable that the Lions Club of the Philippine Islands sponsored the first club in Tokyo, just a short decade after the Japs had ravaged that island. Surely this demonstrates the christian attitude of the Lions clubs," said Mr. Frederick.

"To the individaul, Lions Club work offers a development of personality and latent ability. In short, Lionism gives the individual the opportunity to become the person he would like to be," he concluded.

The district governer was introduced by Lion Bruce Wallace and thanked by Lion Bill Allen and President Vern Rose.

PROGRAM

Ladies of the Rebekah Lodge served the banquet. Several musical number by Don Ferguson contributed to the entertainment.

President Vern Rose after thanking the ladies of the Rebekah Lodge, called on Dr. A. R. Atkinson, president of the Norwood club, and F. R. Dennis, representing the local Kinsmen Club, each of whom spoke briefly.

The health and welfare committee reported that glasses had been purchased for two school children and authorization had been given for relief for a needy family.

The agricultural committee, in conjunction with Mr. R. C. Banbury, agricultural representative, reported that there is a tractor club being organized for boys from 14 to 21 years of age. Mr. Banbury offered every assistance to Lion Nicholas and his committee.

Fear Concussion Girl Struck By Thrown Bottle

COBOURG (ENS) — Condition of seven year old Lynda Simpson of Alderville, brought to Cobourg hospital with a possible fractured skull on Wednesday evening, continued unchanged throughout the day yesterday. Dr. W. K. Taylor of Cobourg who is attending the little girl said that her condition was satisfactory but that she would remain under observation. She appeared dazed and listless as a person is with a concussion, but whether her skull was fractured or not had not yet been determined, the doctor said.

Meanwhile, provincial police checked the theory that she had been struck by an empty whiskey bottle thrown from a passing car. Lending support to this was the fact that the child's older sister 11-year-old Karen had her by the hand at the time she was hurt and was certain that the car which passed them as they waited to cross over to their home, did not strike her. Then too, a broken bottle was found in some blood from Lynda Simpson on the highway and police think she was struck by this bottle and that it was flung out of the passing car.

The child has a darkened bruise under the left eye and a cut near the right eye. The first inkling her sister had that anything was wrong was when Lynda cried out that she had been hit and dropped to the ground. She did not lose consciousness but nevertheless remained in a dazed condition. Provincial constables Lyle Erskine and Bill Warner of Cobourg spent most of yesterday in the Roseneath area, trying to learn more particulars and to ascertain the owner of the bottle found on the highway. The investigation continues.

No Uranium Samples Yet

QUEBEC (CP) — Deputy Mines Minister Dufresne said Thursday no samples containing uranium have yet been submitted to the mines research laboratories from the Oka region, 40 miles northwest of Montreal.

Mr. Dufresne said radio-active traces have been found in samples submitted from the area, but none of these included uranium.

The rural district is the scene of a prospecting rush set off by recent drilling operations in an eight-square-mile area on which mining rights are held by the Molybdenite Corporation of America, which specializes in rare metals.

Provincial laboratory officials said eight minerals have been found around Oka since the start of prospecting in 1945, including "rare earths" and thorium, a highly-radioactive mineral with as yet little commercial value.

Say Nova Scotia Industries In Bad Shape

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A $500 a year increase for members has been approved in principle in the Manitoba legislature.

The increase would bring indemnities in line with the $3,000 paid annually in other western provinces.

Cabinet ministers' salaries are not set by statute but they too will get increases.

In the Nova Scotia legislature, Progressive Conservative opposition leader Robert L. Stanfield said the province's industries are in a bad state and the federal and provincial governments "have failed utterly to cope with the problems."

MUST BE WATCHFUL

He had faith in the economy of Canada and the future but "disaster can occur if the men at the helm do not preserve a constant lookout for danger."

Sounds of desk-pounding and heckling filled the legislature buildings yesterday in Quebec and Saskatchewan.

Youth minister Sauve of Quebec charges Rene Hamel (L—St. Maurice) and Paul Goulet (L—Temiscamingue) with making "wild charges." Flushed with anger, Mr. Sauve said the Quebec government had placed the question of scholarships above politics.

Mr. Hamel had charged government favoritism in awarding scholarships. Mr. Goulet said his two sons received scholarships totalling $600 and not $1,100 as the minister had said earlier.

Mr. Sauve described Mr. Hamel's statement as "lying."

In the outburst at Regina, a Liberal member said Attorney-General J. W. Corman should "do his duty" and prosecute J. O. Rawluk, managing director of Financial Agencies Limited, which sold government insurance.

Herman Danielson said Mr. Rawluk should be prosecuted for conspiracy to bribe Saskatchewan government officials.

Last year a committee conducted a five-week investigation into charges Mr. Rawluk paid "kickbacks" for business directed to the firm to Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines and M. F. Allore, then manager of the Saskatchewan government insurance office.

Both had denied the charge and the committee, by a split vote, adopted a report which said the charges were unfounded.

Children Form Living Map

MOUNT GAMBIER, Australia (AP)—Some 6,500 school children formed a living map of Australia today to greet Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh on their arrival here by plane from Melbourne.

Their plane circled over the human map, giving the royal couple a full view of it.

Tall boys holding the flag of each state stood on the positions of the capital cities.

Below the map, the word "welcome" was spelled out by girls in white frocks.

Mount Gambier's population had swelled to 50,000—five times its normal size—for the visit.

The Queen and her husband were due back in Melbourne tonight.

Gives $4,500 Damages To Man

NORTH BAY (CP)—Mr. Justice W. F. Schroder Thursday awarded $4,500 damages to an accident victim for suffering which was more "psychosomatic" than physical.

The damages went to Henry Legault of Arnstein, about 45 miles southeast of here, against Sgt. Walter Charles McInnes, now stationed with the RCAF at Morin Heights, Que.

The claim followed an accident here March 29, 1953, when McInnes failed to stop at a stop sign and crashed into Legault's vehicle.

Following the accident, Legault became morose and excessively anxious about his health and future. Although the suffering might be partly functional, Mr. Justice Schroeder said, the symptoms were as real to the man as actual physical injuries.

SOUTH HAVEN, Mich. (AP)—Harley Rhodes Thursday discovered in a stack of musty old newspapers an April 15, 1865, copy of the New York Herald carrying the news of the assassination of President Lincoln. In a fine state of preservation, the paper also carried an ad that attracted Rhodes' attention. It offered coffee for 12 cents a pound.

Car Insurance Plan Lost $747,798

REGINA (CP)— Saskatchewan's compulsory automobile insurance plan lost $747,798 during 1953, bringing the scheme's total deficit to $1,881,551.

This was revealed in the legislature Thursday in the annual report of the Saskatchewan government insurance office.

Higher premiums for compulsory insurance went into effect last April 1 and further increases were announced last week.

COBOURG (ENS) — A further meeting between the public utilities commission and representatives of the National Union of Public Service employees, held yesterday failed to result in an agreement. The union wants a 25-cent per hour wage hike and certain changes in the contract. The utilities commission offered a three-cent-an-hour increase. The matter will no be referred to a board of conciliation.

A Senate For Britain?

The agitation in Britain to reform the House of Lords is at least as old as the agitation in Canada to reform the Senate. We have been reading some proposals for the reform of the Lords, written by the Rt. Hon. Herbert Morrison, C.H., M.P.; no one who knows anything of Mr. Morrison's history can think of him as anything but a Labour man, of great political experience and sagacity. Therefore it is impossible to suggest that what he proposes for the Lords is the result of Tory prejudice, or of a lack of understanding of democratic government. Let us see what he says.

* * *

First, he has no desire to abolish the Lords. A democratic government which has no chamber for calm second thought is lacking an important element, and Mr. Morrison knows it. He does not even want to abolish all hereditary peerages, though he would like to limit them to about 100 in the present House of 850. He would like to see Life Peerages established, to be conferred on either men or women for political service. He thinks that the Lords should be paid.

* * *

Mr. Morrison is firm in his belief that Lords should not get their seats by election; one elective body in a two-chamber parliament is enough. As he very shrewdly points out, one of the weaknesses of the American system is that both Senate and House of Representatives are elected bodies, which means that they are in political competition of a type which slows up administrative work, and the chambers are at loggerheads. Mr. Morrison praises the Lords as a court of legislative revision, and in that capacity he says that the Lords saves, rather than loses, time in law-making.

* * *

It appears to us that what Mr. Morrison is recommending for Britain is something very strongly resembling our Canadian Senate. Indeed, except for the residue of hereditary peers, the position and the powers of the Lords, under his reform, would be exactly those of the Senate. This is something for those people to ponder who cry so loudly for the abolition of the Senate. They have not, we are certain, studied the processes of a two-chamber parliament as closely or as long as has Mr. Morrison. If he thinks that two chambers work more quickly than one, and that an elected second chamber is a mistake, his opinion must be given great respect, for nobody has ever suspected Mr. Morrison of being a friend either of privilege or of idlers. The Lords, he says, has a valuable critical function; so also has the Senate.

* * *

Mr. Morrison also says: "Nor would I wish the House of Lords to become representative in character—that is to say, a body nominated as representative of classes, professions or learned societies, or partly elected by local authorities". In other words, he wants the Lords to be appointed politically. This is a kind of political realism from which many people—including those of parties long out of power—shrink. But Mr. Morrison is prepared to take the luck of the turn, rather than have an upper house filled with people of non-political character. This is the opinion of the practical politician, and a good case can be made out in its favour.

Mr. Morrison suggests what would be, in all but one respect, a Senate for Great Britain. We suggest that those who think so poorly of the Senate in Canada should consider what he has said, for he was not thinking of our Senate when he said it. What Canada already has, he wants for his own country.

Safety Education In The Schools

The encouraging report on police work in Peterborough during 1953, which Chief John Thompson presented to the Police Commission on Wednesday, contained well-deserved compliments for the safety patrols which are organized in eighteen of the city schools, and which are under the direction of Constable Don Mackay. We are happy that official commendation has been given to Constable Mackay's work, for it is of great importance in training children, from the earliest school years, to observe traffic rules and to take ordinary safety precautions. It is work which demands patience and a personality which is capable of impressing children without frightening them, and Constable Mackay's success is the best proof of his fitness for the job.

The training of children to regulate traffic in school areas is good for them, because it gives them responsibility but not an unwise amount of authority. But we think that it is equally important that the children who are not on patrol work should get it into their heads at the earliest possible age that restrictions are placed upon them for their own safety, and not as an unreasonable imposition; through the school patrol system they learn also that those who are placed in authority over them—the patrols—are simply people like themselves who have been entrusted with a particular job. It is not too difficult for children to learn that the authority of an adult is absolute in matters of safety, and absolute authority comes to be taken for granted: but authority in the hands of a child not too far removed from them in age impresses them, and makes them wonder about the nature of that authority and the reason why it has been granted. In other words, they become friends of the law, rather than unthinking servants of the law.

What's Wrong With Working Marriages?

In a report which he has made to the Board of Evangelical and Social Service of the United Church, the Rev. Dr. James R. Mutchmor makes some sharp criticisms of marriages in which husband and wife both have jobs. In too many cases, he says, they are working in order to get money for things of which he does not approve—"to pay the rent, purchase stylish fur garments, buy the TV, operate the car, pay for cocktail parties and generally go modern". Such an arrangement he terms a marriage of convenience, and "scarcely to be dignified by the name of marriage". These are hard words.

We are quite accustomed to Dr. Mutchmor in the role of Savonarola, condemning, denouncing and viewing with alarm; he is one of the few old-style Methodists still in active eruption. But his condemnation of working households interests us not only for what he condemns but for what he, by implication, suggests is right and desirable. In the true Christian home, on the Mutchmor principle, the wife does not earn, the rent, if paid at all is paid with difficulty, the wife has no furs (and probably few other attractive garments), there is no TV, no car, no cocktail parties, and modernity is kept firmly at bay. It is not a cheery picture, and we doubt if the good Doctor will ever make it popular. He seems to suggest that the worthy wife is she who accepts a humbler standard of living than she enjoyed before marriage, and that she confines herself to home, children and cooking. We seem to have heard all that before.

What Doctor Mutchmor ignores is that few wives go on working for an indefinite period after their marriage. When the home is established (with the car, the TV and the furs all bought) the wife gives up her job and the babies move in. Meanwhile she and her husband have had perhaps five years of married life which would otherwise have been lost to them. For good or ill, people demand a higher standard of living today then they did a generation ago, and birth control, and the safety with which women past their early youth may now bear a first child, enable them to get what they demand.

Nothing is more certain than that the hands of the clock cannot be turned backward. If no married woman is to have a job, most married men must have incomes at 25 which they now get at 35. If Dr. Mutchmor knows how that can be done (and from his attacks on Big Business we assume that he is a gifted financial critic) we should be glad to hear about it.

McCarthy's Forum

The forum of Rome was a small and ineffective arena for rabble-rousers compared with the television screen that Senator Joseph McCarthy uses, and a much baser thing McCarthy makes of his senatorship by TV than did Brutus of the Roman Senate hall and forum in March, 44 B.C.

Senator McCarthy "ordered" the American Secretary of the Army to appear before his Senate committee and face his charges that the army was attempting to "coddle and promote Communists". It was arranged that two television networks should broadcast the confrontation. And thus, before hundreds of thousands of TV viewers, McCarthy throws his loaded charges at the American cabinet minister, caring less for truth than for calumny, wanting not to inform the people but to sway them. It is demagoguery on a vicious two-dimensional surface. The TV screen does not reveal the depth of the stabs at the heart of American democracy. Truth and character are assassinated by vilification and half-truth, spread on television screens of the American nation.

If ever there was misuse of a great forum, and distortion of the functions of television, it is by such broadcasts. A people set up courts, under legislation; the public court of TV is not the place to try a man's integrity or a nation's army.

Mr. John Foster Dulles has been given a gift consisting of 50 German wiesswersten. Sounds like the cue for the orchestra to render that popular ditty, Slip the Meatballs to me, Dominic, Boy!

Britain Probes Football Pools

By KENNETH HARRIS

FOOTBALL pools — a prominent feature of the English scene in which several million Britons are estimated to be taking part — look like being news for some time to come. The pools consist of an attempt to forecast the results of football matches to be played on the following Saturday afternoon. Last year Britons invested about £68,000,000 in this weekly gamble. An attempt is now being made by a group of Members of Parliament to pass a Bill which would compel the pool promoters to publish accounts every week, so that the people who take part in these gambles shall see whether they are getting fair returns for their money, or whether the five or six big companies which run these pools are holding back more than they say they are by way of profits — or whether they are agreeing among themselves each week to pay "fixed" dividends. Although the Bill to compel publication of accounts was put forward by a member of the Labour Party, the Government has decided to support it, so that there is now a very good prospect that it will become law.

✧ ✧ ✧

BEFORE it does so, of course, its opponents are almost certain to try to kill it, mainly by whipping up public opinion, in the hope that this will influence the M.P.'s voting. The companies who promote the pools, for instance, are going to enclose ballot forms with the weekly coupon in which the client makes his forecast, asking him whether or not he wants the accounts published. Other opponents of the Bill will start waving a banner with "spoil sport" written on it, alleging that the Bill aims to restrict the fun or hope of profit which the pools devotees derive at present. In fact, of course, the aim of the Bill is not to interfere with the citizen's fun, but to guarantee that he gets his full and fair share of it for his money. Fred Mulley, the M.P. who brought up the Bill, told Members of the House of Commons that he occasionally likes to play the pools himself.

✧ ✧ ✧

OTHER opponents will argue that it is a mistake to pass an Act of Parliament concerned exclusively with football pools when there are other forms of popular betting which need attention — like betting on greyhound racing and on horses. The answer to that is that football pools are different in kind from other forms of betting. The pools gambler never knows what odds he is going to get for his stake, but has to take what the promoters decide he is to have. Persons who bet on horses or dogs, on the other hand, know before they put their money down what odds they are going to get if they happen to win. The Royal Commission of Inquiry which the Government established to inquire into Britain's betting, and which inquired busily for nearly three years, dealt with the football pools situation separately. Mulley, in fact, claims that his law merely implements the commission's report on the subject. What should be done about horse and dog betting, he maintains, is a separate and more complicated problem.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE most sophisticated attack on the Mulley Bill, however, will come from those who argue that a Bill to compel the pools promoters—the whole pools business is run by a mere handful of companies—to publish weekly accounts is to legalise a violation of the privacy of private companies guaranteed by the Companies Act.

✧ ✧ ✧

AS I understand it, however, this argument is specious. It is true that the Companies Act absolves a private company from the need to publish accounts, but the idea of this provision was to relieve small family concerns of an obligation which was not necessary and which might be embarrassing. The pools companies, however, are larger concerns, and in an important sense are public, not private companies. The man who stakes a shilling on a pool is in the position of a shareholder in the sense that he is the individual who enjoys what is left after all the expenses of the operation have been met. In an ordinary company, the shareholder is protected by the Companies Act which provides that that accounts must be made available for his inspection. The Mulley Bill wants the "shareholders" of the football pools—the pools promoters themselves refer to their clients as "investors" not as "customers"—treated in the same way. Mulley, in fact, can—and does—argue that far from driving a hole through the Companies Act, he is extending the effect of its provisions.

✧ ✧ ✧

MULLEY, thirty-five years old, is an interesting fellow. His father was a factory labourer in Leamington, a town in the country of Warwick—not far from Stratford-on-Avon in the Shakespeare country. Hit by a huge unemployment of the 'thirties, Mully senior had to take his son away from high school at the age of seventeen and put him to work. The first time Fred Mulley had any leisure for study was when he was taken prisoner just before the retreat from Dunkirk in 1940. He was a prisoner for five years. During that period he worked for a degree in economics, won his certificate as a chartered secretary, and won a scholarship to Christ Church, one of the most renowned colleges of Oxford University. He gained his scholarship on the strength of an essay called "The Economics of a Prison Camp," in which he described amusingly but with great expertness, the evolution of the camp's economy from one based on barter to a fully-fledged capitalist system operating an elaborate currency based on cigarettes. He became a professor in economics, and then went into Parliament, as representative for a district of Sheffield, the big, smoky steel city on the edge of the north country, which is famous for its cutlery and plate. Before the argument about the pools is over we shall no doubt hear a good deal more about Mulley. And Mulley will certainly hear a lot more about his Bill.

Niagara Or Coffee

(Saturday Night)

An American news magazine set its statisticians to work the other day, and they came up with the information that if all the coffee consumed in the United States in one year (5½ billion gallons) were brewed at one time and poured into the Niagara, it would take 15 hours to tumble over the lip of Niagara Falls (American side). Now the statisticians can get to work on another problem: if 5½ billion gallons of the Niagara River were diverted into the coffee cups of the United States, how long would it take how many people to catch on that it wasn't coffee?

An American Opinion: OUR CHANGING WORLD

Letter To The Editor

CONTROLS AND SOCIALISM

Sir: A letter that appeared in your Voice of the People, Wednesday, February 24, 1954, by a tenant regarding rental controls.

That letter gave great food for serious thought . . . Viz. Communism: The state owns everything homes; factories; and nobody owns anything.

Socialism: The people own homes and factories but the state or government control everything; nobody does anything without the sanction of the state or government.

Democracy: The people own homes and factories and free enterprize is the way of life; with a government for the people by the people; and if the government does not suit the people they have the right to vote as they please and throw that governing body out. In this way controls do not get into the hands of a few—or maybe one dictator like Hitler.

Germany tried Socialism! Controls got into the hands of a few—until Hitler—one man—controlled everything. That is the great danger of Communism and Socialism.

Dictators—as we know them—can only be overthrown by war; and thousands of Canadians died fighting to overthrow the Nazis . . . Germany's National Social Government! Someone has written: A little knowledge is a dangerous thing.

This tenant wants controls; so he or she evidently believes in Socialism—believes in it so much, evidently, that he or she begrudges a Memorial to our boys that fought and were maimed and died fighting to abolish Socialism.

Nobody—with the exception of a few chiselers—wants charity. Nobody wants something for nothing. The average person insists on paying his or her own way; and if they do not, they are dangerous thinkers and a menace to our way of life.

Today, with the baby-bonus, health insurance and hospital, the average tenant never had it so good. I know! I'm growing old; and I raised a family; and I paid rent; but I didn't get as high as $8.00 per month baby-bonus—no sir!

A lot of people in Peterborough have money lying dormant in The Memorial Centre Fund—this writer included—and a lot of those people have children who have grown since that fund was started, they are too old now to start in playing Junior Hockey anyway.

If the cost of an article goes up, supply and demand usually governs the price; but if controls interfere it means bankruptcy in this case landlords.

The average man will stop talking Communist or Socialist the day he owns his own home.

Thanking you for your attention,

Advent of Metro

(Ottawa Citizen)

According to headlines in some newspapers of late, a lot of things have been happening in a place called Metro. The latest story of note gives this place a population of almost 1,175,000, making it larger than Montreal—a startling phenomenon indeed. Farther down in the account comes an announcement that makes everything clear: "Survey Shows Toronto Richest Part of Canada." It would be interesting to know whether Metro is the creation of headline writers, or the brain child of public relations experts intent on camouflaging a name that has long been the target of uncomplimentary remarks in other parts of Canada.

Although Metropolitan Toronto has a larger population than Montreal's 1,025,000, Toronto itself has only 676,000, and Greater Montreal (Greatmont?) has 1,400,000 inhabitants. Metro would be insufferable if it were to pull ahead of Greatmont, and to prevent that catastrophe Montreal should now begin looking around for more suburbs to annex. All Canadian communities, with one exception, will count on Montreal to be vigilant in this matter.

Flavored Stamps

Cubans have been grumbling about the disagreeable taste of the stickum on the stamps. So the government has brought out an eight-centavo (eight-cent) airmail stamp with the gum flavored with a light mint essence. Parents have to hide them from children.

Vertical Trespass

(Hamilton Spectator)

A judgement at Osgoode Hall by Mr. Justice McLennan, awarding $7,358 damages to the owner and pilot of an aircraft which hit a power line privately strung from the mainland to an island on a northern lake, is a reminder that in this three-dimensional age trespass can be vertical and obstruction is no longer limited to streets and driveways on the surface.

The power line was in the air-space above an arm of water which was the natural approach for an aircraft landing on the lake. To a pilot, an air-lane of that sort is as real defined and tangible as a road is to a motorist; yet it is a safe bet that the people who erected the wires never thought of the sky above them as anything but empty space, without boundaries, direction or an imaginary white line down the middle.

The air regulations are specific and emphatic about where and how kites may or may not be flown—a fact of which probably nine out of ten kite-flyers are blissfully unaware.

Bible Message

(From The Authorized Version)

And Jethro, Moses' father-in-law came with his sons and his wife unto Moses into the wilderness, where he encamped at the mount of God. . .

And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses sat to judge the people: and the people stood by Moses from the morning unto the evening. And when Moses' father-in-law saw all that he did to the people, he said, What is this thing that thou doest to the people Why sittest thou thyself alone, and all the people stand by thee from morning unto even?

And Moses said unto his father-in-law, Because the people come unto me to enquire of God: when they have a matter, they come unto me; and I judge between one and another, and I do make them know the statutes of God and his laws.

And Moses' father-in-law said unto him, The thing that thou doest is not good. Thou wilt surely wear away, both thou, and this people that is with thee: for this thing is too heavy for thee; thou are not able to perform it thyself alone.

Hearken now unto my voice, I will give thee counsel and God shall be with thee: Be thou for the people to God-ward, that thou mayest bring the causes unto God: and and thou shalt teach them ordinances and laws, and also shew them the way wherein they must walk, and the work that they must do.

Moreover thou shalt provide out of all the people able men, such as fear God, men of of truth hating covetousness; and place such over them, to be rulers of thousands and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens: and let them judge the people at all seasons; and it shall be, that every great matter they shall bring unto thee, but every small matter they shall judge: so shall it be easier for thyself, and they shall bear the burden with thee. (Ex. 18:5, 13-22.)

Unconsidered Trifles

TROUBLES

"You're looking bad, old man. What's the trouble?"

"Domestic."

"But you always said your wife was a pearl."

"So she is. It's the mother-of-pearl that's the trouble."

MISUNDERSTAND

The courtroom was crowded as the judge finished his lecture to the defendant in a divorce case. "So, I've decided to give your wife $50 per month," were his last words.

The husband's face lit up as he smiled. "That's fine, Judge. I'll try to slip her a couple of bucks now and then myself."

The Karachi Bagpipers

(Montreal Star)

Prime Minister St. Laurent was greeted on his arrival at Karachi by a band of Pakistani bagpipers playing "O Canada." Scotsmen are prone to believe that it is only a combination of oatmeal, heather and whisky that can produce a piper. Pakistan now proves otherwise, and it may be added that many Indian regiments also maintain pipe bands which render traditional Scottish airs with a verve at least equal to the performances heard in Canada at St. Andrew's Nicht dinners.

We leave it to experts to decide whether Scotland exported the bagpipe to the Indian sub-continent, or whether—horrid thought—some Hindu or Muslim devotee of the instrument decided to raise Scotland's cultural standards by introducing it into that land.

In either case it looks like a clear example of cultural aggression.

A Community Fund Agency

Financing Always Difficult 85 Years Of YMCA's History

The time was December 14, 1868. The place was the Good Templars' Hall at Monaghan and Auburn. The occasion was the first organization meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association in Peterborough, thirteenth such group to be formed in Canada.

In today's issue of The Examiner there is published the second article of one of the 10 agencies connected with the Petreborough Red Cross and Community Fund. The fund this year is asking the citizens to provide $160,000 to help finance the work. The dates of the campaign are March 8 to 20.

Twenty-four years before a Britisher, George Williams had had a vision. He gathered together 12 young Londoners in the drapery trade and formed a religious study group known as the Young Men's Christian Association. Today the YMCA, based on a changeless theme of fellowship and brotherhood, ministers to over 2,000,000 members scattered over 78 countries.

Life was rather bleak for the Victorians, and the YMCA of the nineteenth century was a rather austere and uninspiring organization. Potentional members had to prove their moral probity and it was only after he had been duly investigated and deemed a "proper person" that one Frances Dobbin, later one of Peterborough's soliest citizens was admitted to Y membership.

SUPPLY LEADERSHIP

The present aim of the Peterborough YMCA as administered by general secretary James C. McClenaghan, is not so much to promote activities in and for themselves but to supply leadership to youth and brotherhood for adults. Says Mr. McClengahan: "The aim of the Y is to make us all our brother's keepers."

The religious theme of the YMCA has played down since 1869, when a Mr. Crawford read a paper to the local group regretting "that "the Bible is not read and honored more by professing Christians." And yet it would be misleading to say that the Y is a secular organization either.

Perhaps the best summary of the Peterborough approach to the YMCA philosophy is in Luke 2:52 "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man. This implies development along intellectual, physical, religious and social lines.

The YMCA is one of the agencies benefitting from the Community Chest campaign due to start March 5. The Y's share will be used to help maintain Camp Kawartha, provide better facilities for boys in Peterborough, aid the local group's international activities, cut administration costs and help provide a continuing program of brotherhood within the Y community.

WORLD SERVICE

But the YMCA's are not independent entities with no mutual ties except for a vague common allegiance. One of the most important activities of the Peterborough YMCA is the World Service, headed by Col. J. A. Dewart. Purpose of this group is to help set up new Y's abroad and plant solid bulwarks against the world's various isms. A donation to the Y, says Col. Dewart, is also a donation to world stability.

On the home front William McFarlane directs a widely-varied program for boys, with J. R. Bernard the boys' department chairman. There are all sorts of sports, handled through Ken Kingston's physical department, but the prime emphasis is on teaching the lads how to work and learn co-operatively, and how to become an integrated member of an interdependent human brotherhood.

For high-school boys the main non-physical program is the Hi-Y. The first Hi-Y clubs were organized in Calgary and Edmonton in 1913 and are now a feature of most YMCA's. Boys take part in panel discussions, listen to speakers, take part in group projects and think in terms of the group rather than the individual. Younger boys learn crafts, and such useful arts as dancing for the YMCA is keenly aware that there are two sexes.

CAMP KAWARTHA

Last year was the first that Camp Kawartha, originally sponsored by the Rotary Club, operated as a truly YMCA camp. It was run by Don Harwood's Y's Men's Club which plans quite an expansion program in 1954. W. J. Moorhead, chairman of the Camp Kawartha committee has listed several improvements made and more to come "with the interests of the campers constantly in mind."

Camp Kawartha is very popular with all able to attend it, but the Y, recognizing that some boys are unable to leave the city gives equally careful attention to "Camp Pow-wow." An enrolment limit of 100, which the Y hopes to expand, last year attended camp right here in Peterborough under counsellors Gord Minty (who also directs Y swimming) Fred Ash, Alex Sinclair, and Fred Ephgrave.

Some other YMCA activities include: 1-A Friday Night Club under Fred Huffman which promotes such varied activities as carol services, refreshment booths at the exhibition and basketball games. 2-The Anglo-Canadian Club (William Freedman, president) designed to make British immigrants feel at home. 3-Six bowling leagues with 225 players. 4-The Y's Menettes, ladies auxiliary to the Y's Men's, which raises money for Camp Kawartha. 5-Acting as agent for the dozens of organizations which wish to use Y facilities. 6-The So-Ed (Social Education) club which combines "the pursuit of wholesome pleasure with congenial companionship."

RE-ORGANIZED IN 1874

The history of the YMCA in Peterborough has been checkered. It began hopefully in 1868 and lasted for a few years under presidents A. H. Campbell, T. M. Fairbairn and J. A. Hill. But minutes show that a reorganization meeting was necessary in 1874. At that time the site was moved from the Good Templars hall to the old Bradburn building which was leased for $300 a year.

Under the presidency of J. Murray Smith, things looked promising but the group lapsed again and required yet another reorganization in 1881. Once again the site was moved as the Y rented quarters over Scofield's Drug Store on George St.

By now the organization was on its feet and expanding membership was beginning to create a serious housing problem. Building blueprints were studied and finally, in 1896 the Y moved into the present building at George and Murray. In 1931 the south wing was added.

Apparently the YMCA was in healthy circumstances until 1908 but there is no record of their activities. The minutes for this period were said to have been borrowed by the Peterborough Examiner in 1908 and never returned. Where they are now is anybody's guess.

By the first world war the YMCA organization was beginning to follow and in some cases establish modern trends. The emphasis was slowly away from formalized religious study to religion made workable by activities promoting fellowship. The 1920's saw a drop in membership as some thought the organization here, and in other centres divorced from reality. But with the drab depression 30's people flocked to the Y in droves, and the Y had to take stock of its program.

This stock-taking showed some inadequacies in the movement as a whole. Job placement, vocational counselling and Leisure Time Leagues began to play a part in Y activities until the war introduced an altogether new type of clientele. Though the war the YMCA operated hostels, boosted troop morale and under the terms of the Geneva Convention visited Allied prisoners-of-war.

The Peterborough YMCA kept pace with both the growing complexities of modern society and the emancipation of youth from time-worn taboos. After the war it continued to expand, to promote more fraternization with its sister organization, the YWCA and take the lead in community activities. Nearly 1,000 men and boys held memberships in the Peterborough Y at the end of 1953.

DIFFICULT PROBLEM

Financing has always been a difficult problem for the Peterborough branch since, in 1953, administrative and operating expenses alone took over $28,000. The operating loss for the year was $1,572.86 but president Stanley G. Payne hopes that public giving to the community chest will help reduce this figure.

Here are some YMCA first: basketball invented by Y director Dr. James Naismith; volleyball originated by Y director W. G. Morgan; first Canadian YMCA in Montreal, 1851; first association building at Charlottetown 1872; first young men's camp 1894; first Y swimming pool Toronto 1887; first gymnasium Saint John 1873.

The Peterborough YMCA is managed by a Board of Directors composed of the following: president, S. G. Payne; vice-presidents, P. M. McCarrell, K. N. Kingston; treasurer, H. M. Niven; directors, J. E. Girven, J. F. Richardson, Dr. J. H. Whiteside, Clarence R. Neal, Andrew Purdon, Rev. I. C. Morgan, H. F. Waddell, F. Warren, J. T. Wolstenholme, A. L. Elliott, Dr. R. C. Honey, D. A. Loomis, G. Monkman, J. G. Wharry.

Administration of the YMCA is the responsibility of James C. McClenaghan, general secretary; William McFarlane, boys' work secretary, Fraser L. Wade, physical director, Gordon Minty, swimming director, assisted by William Tranter and Terry Reid; secretarial help Margaret McPherson and Ruth Tamblin; house staff, Mrs. L. Partridge, Mrs. B. Pruner, Frank Scully, William Taylor, Jack Manley, Percy Doughty, Alex Clark and Fred Hutchings.

Summing up the aims and purposes of the Peterborough YMCA president Stanley Payne has said that the work of the YMCA "in its Christian leadership and training has helped immeasurably in the building of character and good fellowship for the boys and young men of our community."

Murdoch Named Co-Defendant In Action

TORONTO (CP)—President Walter Murdoch of the Toronto Musicians' Protective Association Thursday was named co-defendent in an action taken by Ernest Corley after Mr. Corley's puppet act was pulled from a recent hobby show here.

Earlier, Mr. Corley started action against the Canadian International Hobby and Homecraft Show Ltd., charging breach of contract.

His act, The Ministars, was called off after the musicians union announced its members, also billed for the show, would not appear with members of the American Guild of Variety Artists.

The writ amendment naming Mr. Murdoch claimed the hobby show was "induced to breach this contract by the action of Walter Murdoch personally or as the representative of the American Federation of Musicians," of which the Toronto association is an affiliate.

Charge Papers Unfair In Probe

TORONTO (CP)—G. C. Wardrope (PC—Port Arthur) told the Ontario legislature Thursday that persons involved in the highways probe at Fort William "have been crucified by the metropolitan press before justice was done."

Mr. Wardrope, speaking during the throne speech debate, said the government will give a "full report" to the public and "what more can be done?"

Publicity given the seven men charged with the alleged irregularities had "brought tragedy to their homes" before they appeared in court.

Mr. Wardrope said that the public in the district was not responsible for the irregularities "so there mustn't be any retaliation. . . by the highways department in northwestern Ontario."

Aces Oust Oshawa By 9-4 Count In Juvenile Series

Peterborough Aces defeated Oshawa (playing out of Port Perry) by a 4-3 score here last night to take the first OMHA juvenile "A" series by a 9-4 count. They had won the first playoff 5-1 last week on Port Perry ice, and now expect to meet the Belleville-Kingston winner in the next provincial playdown round. Aces, as PMHA juvenile champions, earned the right to go into OMHA playdowns. They are managed by Angus Bradley and coached by Bill Crowley. Some 200 fans saw the tilt here.

In a preliminary exhibition tussle, the local midget "A" Shamrocks (sponsored by the Police Association), rolled to a 13-1 victory over the juvenile "C" Coe Hill crew.

LED IN FIRST

Oshawa battled hard in the return joust and had a 2-1 game lead in the first period. Rennick notched one on a solo effort early in the first frame, and Steffen made it 2-0 halfway through on a pass from Mallory. A minute later, Floyd got one back for the local squad on a neat passing play with Ferren and Kane. Brooks tied up the game next heat on McFadden's pass. Ruckaloki put Oshawa up one early in the third from Steffen, but Aces replied with two. Kane slapped in Floyd's passout and then Brooks did the same with a passout from Doris, this last marker coming with but 15 seconds to play.

Aces drew seven of the 13 penalties in a generally clean game, especially fast and exciting in the final frame. Aces had more in-close chances, and they checked back fast, being kept down in scoring by steady goaltending. Floyd, Kane and Brooks led them in scoring, while Steffen was best for the losers.

Oshawa: Goal, Knight; defence, Steffen and Mallory; centre Rennick; wings, Laird and Wilson; alts.: McAllister, Lakuski, Ruckaloki, Kemp, Smart, Brown and Kenkel.

Aces: goal, Masterson; defence, Pollard and Blodgett; centre, Kane; wings, Ferren and Floyd; alts.: Murphy, Doris, Godfrey, Brooks, McFadden, Perry, Strickland, Stewart and Hickson.

Referees, McIntosh and Mulholland.

In the exhibition fray, Shamrocks (coached by Pat Doherty and managed by Dave Hayes) led 3-0 in the first period on goals by Mahoney, Daley and Baker, with Darling aiding on two. Gordon Crosby scored one in the second for Coe Hill, but Shamrocks got five, McCarthy and Mahoney tallying twice each and Darling once, as well as having an assist. Baker and C. Heffernan each had an assist, too. They ran in five more in the third, Pace, Baker, Mahoney, McCarthy and P. Heffernan hitting the hemp. Baker Coombs P. Heffernan, Forestell, Mahoney and Darling earned an assist each. Shamrocks drew the only two penalties of the game.

Major Upset In Badminton

VANCOUVER (CP)—Playing an unorthodox side-by-side game, Johnny Bouck and Lois Reid, unseeded in mixed doubles, downed fourth-seeded Mrs. Barbara James and Don Smythe of Toronto 7-15, 15-12 and 18-15 Thursday to provide the first major upset of the four-day Dominion badminton championships here.

Mrs. James won the mixed doubles title last year in partnership with Dick Birch of Toronto.

Bouck and Miss Reid, unseeded in mixed competition, are top-ranked in men's and women's doubles.

Fourth-seeded Jack Muir of Toronto was bounced from the men's singles, 15-7 and 15-4 by fifth-seeded Dave McTaggart of Vancouver. Muir suffered another loss when he and partner Bev Westcott, Toronto, who is ranked next to singles champion Smythe, were knocked out of the men's doubles.

Smythe and women's champion Marjory Shedd of Toronto moved easily into the singles semi-finals.

In the women's doubles quarter-finals, Audrey Rhodes of Stratford and Maudeen Bray, Toronto, lost 15-7, 15-5 to Claire Lovett and Norah Maw, Vancouver.

In the junior girls' semi-finals, Miss Rhodes defeated Joan Van Ackeren, Kelowna, B. C., 11-7, 11-1 Thursday.

Melee Closes Season For Bush League

MILLBROOK (ENS) — Bailieboro and Millbrook Bush Leaguers celebrated brotherhood week by turning their final game of the season into a hammer and tongs affair with a free-for-all windup.

The Monaghanites hung desperately on to an early lead to take a 9-8 decision in a soft-ice contest. Late in the hectic third period, the local banged in four quick goals to shatter Bailieboro's commanding margin and were going all out for the equalizer at the final whistle.

It was a tough game to handle but referees Agnew and McDowell proved equal to the occasion. Chief offenders in the brawl were chased to the dressing rooms for the duration.

For Bailieboro, the marksmen were McDonald, a standout player all evening, with three. The Lingards divided four and McGraw and Cook tallied singles. Ginn, although failing to blink the red light, was in on six Millbrook's counters as top point scorer. Goals were notched by Wright (3), Guthrie (2), Handley (2), Lunn (1).

Final league standing is Mount Pleasant, Scott's Corners, Millbrook, Fourth Line, Bailieboro and Bethany. Playoffs will start when, and if, ice is available.

Palmer Takes Mexico Lead

MEXICO CITY (AP) — John Palmer of Charlotte, N.C., took the opening-round lead of the $12,200 four-day Mexican open golf tournament with a four-under-par 68 on the tough 6,679-yard Club Mexico course Thursday.

The North Carolina pro was one stroke up on Ed Furgol of St. Louis Mo., and Ted Rhodes of Chicago who turned in 69s.

Palmer was second in the recent Texas Open.

A field of 135 braved a chill breeze to launch the 10th annual tourney which has attracted 76 foreigners from four continents. Three dropped out before the day was over.

A total of 19 broke or tied par 72 on the course, which was shortened for the event after only one player—Ben Hogan—managed to break par in a previous match.

Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener landed among the leaders with a par 72. Jack Kay of Montreal shot a 75. Al Balding of Toronto 77 and Murray Tucker, Toronto, 78.

Also a candidate in the pacing race is Gay Counsel, a colt owned by G. Veilleux of Drummondville, Que.

Canadian-owned candidates for the Hambletonian are the Rimouski Stable's Rotary Hanover and Our Scotchman from Rimouski, Que. Rotary Hanover won three races as a two-year-old and was in the money eight of his 15 starts. Our Scotchman did not start last season.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Cliff Heath of Oshawa was top trundler at Campbellford when 80 bowlers took part in the men's singles tourney. Bea Ross of Oshawa previously had taken ladies' singles. So now it's a team tourney for regional rollers Saturday here at Duffus' and Playfair. These are the playdowns leading up to the Molson Classic finals at the Toronto Sportsmen's Show next month. The men's team tourney with handicap is for the average bowler, and 10 teams open at Duffus at 10 a.m. and at Playfair at four. A dozen teams commence at one at each alley and again at seven in the evening, with the region trophy being presented the winners at the finish. Toots Collins is regional director.

Toronto Trotters tote a five-point lead into their return hoop playoff against Collis colleens at 8:30 tonight in the YW. Winner of the series goes into LOBA intermediate "B" semi-finals shortly. Two male playoffs tonight at the collegiate, starting at seven: Pickering vs. PCVS juniors, and Oshawa Central vs. senior PCI-ers, who hold a seven-point lead. Juniors open their district finals. COSSA playoffs beckon these teams in March. SPS junior "B" boys lead Bowmanville by a single point for their return at St. Peter's on Saturday night. Tuesday sees two YM house loop games, while Wednesday has PCVS midgets at SPS for city honors. PCVS being up 11 points.

Hard Race To The Wire

A glance at the senior "B" group puck scene. Kingston Goodyears tackle the TPT Petes here tonight, and the same squads end their schedule Saturday in the Limestone City. Orillia goes to Bowmanville this evening to play Oshawa, and then Orillia winds it up tomorrow at Belleville. At the moment, Oshawa leads the race with 44 points while Petes have 41. Then it's Orillia with 38 and Kingston 37, the Memos of Belleville being out of the running. So 'tis a mad scramble right to the wire to see whether Oshawa or Petes finish first, and whether Kingston or Orillia winds up in the fourth semi-final slot. Semi-finals opening next week are best-of-seven with top team playing the fourth, as No. 2 and No. 3 teams tangle. Plenty at stake for all.

* * * * * * *

A comment from Kingston: "In the event the eastern senior "B" group playoffs go the limit, the surviving ironmen will have to play 54 games and will have far surpassed the record of 41 established by Kingson last season before the locals went into playdowns. Goodyears' seasonal total was 55 but it is now surmised that this number may be exceeded by 10 or more before the present campaign closes. These extended schedules have been made possible by prolific use of extra players. Even the NHL stars play no more than the equivalent of 25 games in a schedule that calls for 70. None of the senior "B" teams in the approaching group playoffs has exhibited signs of exhaustion, all appearing to be in fine fettle and ready for even 14 playoff tests, if necessary.

The Bard Of Bella Villa

In reply to our recent jingle the Quinte poet laureate uses his 1951 doggerel license to get this off

The Memos toil the knell of parting ways
The Truckies, Ponties, Goodies are aglee,
The Panting Petes eye Memos with the thought
There but for breaks and gods of luck go we

Call them not 'Those Mournful Memos',
Life for them was not a dream;
They, departing, leave behind them
Imprints of a danged good team.

Take away those one-goal losses,
Three games gone with "empty coop";
Had they had the breaks of others,
Memos would have topped the group.

Local Aces erased Oshawa in the first round of the OMHA juvenile "A" playdowns, beating 'em here 4-3 last gloaming to gain the round 9-4. Couple hundred fans saw a tidy tilt with good goaltending by the Motor City netminder keeping down the count as the Bradley-Crowley crew looked the better team. They expect to play the next round this coming week. Midget Shamrocks trounced the Coe Hill juvenile "C" squad 13-1 in an exhibition here last night. Both our bantam and midget teams will hit into their first provincial playdowns next week, too. Kingston should rub out the Belleville entries in their series. Dick Ouimet tells us that the PMHA has a 5½ h.p. Johnston silent outboard motor up for raffle now to raise funds, and a new bike goes to the kid selling the most tickets.

Poor Prospects For East-West College Final

EDMONTON (CP) — Prospects for an East-West college football final aren't too bright for this year although there is an encouraging word from the University of British Columbia.

Replying to athletic director Warren Stevens of the University of Toronto who said the Intercollegiate Football Union is trying "to work up an East-West college final," Bob Osborne, UBC athletic director, said today it should be feasible within a year or two—possibly earlier.

However, the University of British Columbia is the only one of the four Western universities which has a football team. The other three university teams disbanded in 1949 and earlier.

MUST MAKE CHANGE FIRST

Dr. Maury L. Van Vliet, head of the department of physical education at the University of Alberta, said there can't be a final without the western conference being re-activated.

He said a four-team conference is needed but doubted it could be formed because University of Manitoba "doesn't seem interested."

Dr. Van Vliet said his university will likely enter a team only in a four-team circuit. University of Alberta was the last to abandon the conference in 1949.

He said Stevens' suggestion was not new. "We've been after the East for years for an east-west final in both football and basketball but nothing came of it. The East was just lukewarm to the idea," he said.

NATIONAL UNION URGED

The ultimate solution to the problem is the formation of a national intercollegiate union which could deal with these matters properly, he said. "But the East also didn't show any enthusiasm for this."

Frank Kennedy, head of the physical education department at the University of Manitoba, said he had no commment.

Wray Yeomans, former physical education director, said a University of Manitoba team would not draw in Winnipeg because of competition from the Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Union.

In Saskatoon, Colb McEown, a prominent junior football man who is assistant to the president of the University of Saskatchewan, said the university is interested in a Western hookup. But the possibility of such a league hinges on Manitoba's attitude.

We have a correction to make: The Colts' divisional playdowns will be held in Lindsay, Wednesday, March 3, and not Monday as announced in this column recently.

The next open bonspiel is the annual mixed rink affair. It runs all week from Monday, March 8, until Friday, March 12. There are four events and four trophies. The Empress Hotel Trophy is for the first event. The Calvert Trophy for the second event. The T. Eaton Trophy for the third event. And the Gordon K. Fraser Trophy for the fourth event.

The entries are coming in every day, but there is room for a few more, particularly on Monday's and Tuesday's draws.

HIGH SCORER—Perl Ronty, of New York Rangers, is making his move to the top ranks of the National Hockey League's point getters. One of the main factors in Rangers' bid for a possible playoff berth, the 25-year-old centre has moved into a fifth-place tie with Bernie Geoffrion, of Montreal. Each player has 46 points. In 59 games Ronty piled up 13 goals and 33 assists. Ronty, a native of Toronto, broke into the NHL with Boston in 1947. —(CP Photo).

Apsley Suspended By The OMHA In Midget Series

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association this week suspended the Apsley midget "C" team and awarded the first playdown round to Wellington because Apsley used two players previously ruled ineligible to perform for that team and another over-age player with the wrong name signed to his certificate. In connection with the case, the OMHA suspended Coach Bill Houle of Apsley for one year, and will deal with club manager Clarence McCormack and player Grenville Crosby when they appear before the provincial executive. It was also ruled that Ken Darling of Lakefield and Eric Batten of Warsaw cannot compete for any Apsley team but must perform for centres nearer to their home villages if they play, including Peterborough.

DENIED PERMISSION

Before the series between the Wellington and Apsley midgets began, Apsley sought permission to use Darling and Batten, but the OMHA refused this permission. The Apsley management used the players, regardless. The territorial rights of Apsley in such a case include players from Apsley, Coe Hill and Bancroft. The team had a boy in the lineup named Watson, but he suffered a fractured arm recently in Bancroft, where he lives. The Apsley team then brought in a juvenile player named Grenville Crosby from Coe Hill. Watson's name was used on the playing certificate for him, though the boy himself did not sign it, and his father helped the OMHA clear up the facts.

In the first game of the playdown series Apsley won handily, but the Wellington management, perusing the official scoresheet, saw two Crosbys in the scoring list for Apsley, Murray and Grenville, who are cousins. Only one Crosby was listed in the lineup, as well as Watson, who was not playing. A protest was lodged with the OMHA, and that body found that Grenville Crosby, Darling and Batten were all ineligible to perform for the Apsley midgets in this series. The Apsley team then dropped Grenville Crosby and defeated Wellington in the second game, but the series ultimately was awarded to Wellington.

CLUBS MUST OBEY

Albert Watkins of Peterborough, member of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, stated yesterday: "Coach Houle apparently ddin't know about this matter of signing the wrong name to G. Crosby's certificate, but his suspension was for the club's defiance of the OMHA in using a Lakefield and a Warsaw player. We will deal with the club manager and the player in question (Crosby) when they appear before the executive. All teams under our jurisdiction must abide by the rules set up, or suffer the consequences."

Leafs, Canadiens Battle To Scoreless Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The hockey game in which nobody scores isn't a novelty in the big time this year. There have been four 0-0 scores in the National Hockey League so far this year. Chubby-faced Harry Lumley, making a strong bid for his first Vezina trophy and goalkeeper's award, has three of them. Lumley, a key man in Toronto Maple Leafs' run for second place in the league race, made it No. 3 Thursday night when the Leafs and Montreal Canadiens battled to a scoreless tie at Montreal.

The game gave Harry his 11th shutout of the season and moved him ahead of Terry Sawchuk of Detroit Red Wings for goaltending honors. Jacques Plante, Canadiens' sub goalie, scored his second shutout in the six games he has played substituting for the injured Gerry McNeil.

WINGS EDGE HAWKS

In the night's only other game, league-leading Detroit Red Wings edged last-place Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 at Omaha, Neb.

At Montreal, a crowd of 14,512 had little to get excited about as the teams checked closely and seldom opened up. The tie left Leafs and Canadiens deadlocked in second place with 68 points. That is 11 points off the Red Wing pace.

Lumley, who has never taken the Vezina in his 10 years in the big leagues, now is two goals ahead of Sawchuk.

Harry kicked out 24 Montreal shots, 12 of them in the second period. Plante handled 20, including eight in the first period.

Besides Thursday night's tie, Lumley has been in two 0-0 games against the Red Wings. Boston and Chicago registered the other one.

SCORES WINNING MARKER

At Omaha, Gordie Howe, the league's leading marksman scored the winning marker midway in the second period to give the Wings their 34th victory of the season. The game was a regularly scheduled contest, one of four moved to non-league rinks by the Hawks in a move to boost hockey interest.

Ted Lindsay got the other two Detroit goals. Johnny Wilson and Pete Conacher tallied for the Hawks.

No games are scheduled tonight.

OHA Announces Three Dates For Playoffs

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association announced the dates for the three playoff series in the senior A series.

The winner of series A, between Owen Sound Mercurys and Chatham Maroons, will be a best-of-seven playoff with the winner moving into the finals. The other two series, one between Hamilton Tigers and Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and the other between Windsor Bulldogs and Stratford Indians, will be best-of-five affairs.

The winner of the Kitchener-Hamilton series, series B, will meet the winner of series C, Stratford and Windsor, in a best-of-five series for the right to advance into the finals.

SERIES' DATES

Dates for each of the series are:

Series A (Owen Sound and Chatham)—at Chatham: Feb. 26, March 3 and 10. At Owen Sound: March 1, 6, 8 and 13.

Series B (Kitchener and Hamilton)—At Kitchener: Feb. 26, March 4 and 6. At Hamilton March 1 and 5.

Series C (Windsor and Stratford)—At Windsor: Feb. 28, March 2 and 7. At Stratford: Feb. 26 and March 7.

Greenshirts Bow 6-4 To Galt

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts passed up a gilt-edged opportunity to move back into a tie for fourth place with the idle Hamilton Cubs in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series by blowing a 6-4 decision to the last-place Galt Black Hawks.

Smallest crowd of the season here, 573 fans, attended.

The Hawks scored four goals in the final period to clinch the verdict. Two came after left winger Graham Joyce was given a match misconduct penalty and another was pumped into an open net when the Greenshirts withdrew their goalie.

Buddy Horne, Del Topoll, Beryl Klinck and Gary Collins scored for the Greenshirts. John Sleaver led the Hawks with three goals. Hec Lalande, Rich Collin and Neil McDonald were the other Galt snipers.

American Patrol, In the Mood, Tuxedo Junction, Pennsylvania 6-5000, String of Pearls, Little Brown Jug, Moonlight Serenade and St. Louis Blues.
These are the songs that will bring back memories of the eventful '40s. These are songs from the days when the big band was "king" — and the Miller theme set all Young America swaying in tempo.
You heard them on the radio, you danced to them, you collected the records. Now they're on the way back — more popular than ever. No matter how many Glenn Miller records you already have, you'll want to own this compact hit collection.

Little Difficulty In Hockey Schedule Seen

STOCKHOLM (CP)—A schedule promising little difficulty for the top-rated teams opens the world hockey championships today. Canada had an open date in the eight-team round-robin series.

Czechoslovakia, the pre-tournament favorite, was drawn against Switzerland, once a power in European hockey but not seeded in the top four this year.

Sweden, the defending champions, were scheduled to face lightly-regarded Norway in today's second game. The Swedes, who faced no North American opposition last year, are given an outside chance for top honors.

The third game on today's schedule pits Russia against Finland. Observers saw it as a workout for Moscow Dynamos, who are heavily backed in their country's first try at international hockey honors.

Toronto East York, joined by Germany on the sidelines, spent the day integrating four newcomers who joined the team Wednesday. The Canadians are scheduled for their first action Saturday against Switzerland.

BRING EXPERIENCE

The new arrivals, goalie Don Lockhart, defenceman Tom Jamieson, centre Eric Unger and right-winger Bill Shill bring experience ranging from Senior A to National Hockey League competition to a senior B club which Stockholm sports writers have termed the worst ever to represent Canada in an international tournament.

Manager George Preston of the East York club defended his players Thursday night from charges of rough play.

Preston explained that the team is used to Canadian rules, and now has the job of learning that a charging penalty is apt to be imposed in Europe for what would be considered a good, clean body-check back home.

Plan Boxing Trials

OTTAWA (CP) — The boxing trials for eastern Ontario entrants in the British Empire Games will be held here March 31 and April 1 under the sponsorship of the RCAF at Rockcliffe station.

Entries will be accepted from as far west as Trenton and as far north as Pembroke.

NOVA SCOTIA CHAMPIONS — The Halifax Mayflower club has won the Nova Scotia curling championship and will represent the province at the Dominion curling tournament in Edmonton starting March 1. Left to right: Reg Piercey, skip; Wes Burge, third; Charlie Piper, second, and Bill Peters, lead.

Kilt-Clad Haligonian Heads Nova Scotia's Champion Rink

HALIFAX (CP) — A kilt-clad Haligonian will head Nova Scotia's rink at the March 1-6 Canadian curling championship at Edmonton.

Reg Piercey, who brought his Halifax Mayflower rink undefeated through the Nova Scotia championships, follows the true Scottish tradition, complete with bagpipes.

Other members of what Piercey calls his dangerous 40s rink (they are all over 40) are Wes Burge, mate; Charlie Piper, second stone, and Bill Peters, lead.

Of the four, Piercey is the only one with previous experience in Dominion play. He was second stone for the Mayflower rink skipped by R. J. Flinn that finished in a tie for fourth place in the 1947 bonspiel at Saint John, N.B.

VETERAN CURLER

He has 16 years' experience, including play in both provincial junior and senior ranks and was a member of the Mayflower rink which won the branch junior crown in 1944-45.

Burge has had 14 years' curling experience and has played in several provincial bonspiels but this year was his first as a winner. The trip west will be something of a home-coming as he started to curl in Wisetown, Sask., in 1927.

Piper has been active in the game for 11 years and did a lot of it in Moncton, N.B., where he was three times a member of the Moncton Beaver rink in the provincial play-offs.

Peters is a comparative youngster as curlers go. He has only seven years of curling experience and the provincial bonspiel this year was his first major competition.

Piercey said he preferred a "running knockout game and the boys are good at it, but we can shift to draw if necessary."

4 Rinks Left In Major Event

LINDSAY, (ENS)— Two rinks from Bobcaygeon, one from Peterborough and the other from Toronto Victorias will contest the final rounds of the main Gruen event, climaxing the week-long Gruen-Arden mixed bonspiel at Lindsay club today.

In the second day's play in the last half of the bonspiel on Thursday, the last Lindsay rink remainning in th hunt for the gold watches was eliminated, when Dr. Cliff Laidley dropped an 8-6 game with Wib Mark of Bobcaygeon.

The other semi-final went to Tom Beattie, of Toronto Victorias, who is being viced during the spiel by Mrs. Woolley, three-time Ontario tankard winner.

In the second event, Port Carling and Midland rinks are in semi-finals for the Arden trophy with Tuesday's two winners. Ken Smith of Midland turned back S. Harris of North Bay and I Wallace of Port Carling defeated D. Phippen of Sarnia.

The winners in the other four events advancing to today's playdowns include superior fuel events, D. Macklin, Sarnia, and D. McDonald, Gravenhurst.

Benson hotel event —D. Mahood, Owen Sound, and T. Tesky, Kitchener; T. Eaton cup, Andy Widdiss, Lindsay and J. Oliver, P. T. Carling.

Golden stationers event—R. Smith, Toronto granites, and Harold Wood, Lindsay.

Warsaw Ousted

WARSAW (ENS) — Donwoods defeated Warsaw 11-6 in a fast game on Thursday night. Warsaw had beaten Donwoods 9-3 on Tuesday night so Warsaw won 15-14 in points in a two-game playoff. They will enter the finals next week with the winners in the Burns Bridge and Ennismore round.

There were only three penalties in the entire game, Warsaw led play all through despite the fact that Donwoods took the game. Most of the play was in Donwood territory with Donwoods making breakaways count.

Ennismore and Burns Bridge will battle it out Friday night.

TASS BLASTS LYNDHURSTS

LONDON (Reuters)—Tass, the official Russian news agency, Thursday carried a story from Stockholm about "shocking behavior of Canadian hockey players."

The report, picked up here, said: "The Canadian hockey team which came to Sweden to take part in the world championship succeeded in making for itself a none too enviable reputation."

"While playing in the friendly contests in Stockholm, the team displayed a lack of tact and discipline by leaving the rink in protest against the decision of the judge who removed the Canadian players for brutal behaviour."

Tass then told how the Swedish paper Morgen Tidningen, in an article entitled "New scandal on the part of the Canadian team," reported "yet another instance of shocking behavior on the part of the Canadian hockey players in the small town of Leksand in Dalarne province.

The captain of the Leksand team, A. Hellberg, told Morgen Tidningen, according to Tass:

"The Canadian hockey player, No. 8, losing control over himself, began to hit out at Swedish hockey player Bengt Bornstrem during the game. He continued to fight even on the penalty bench which led to his ultimate disqualification.

"We don't like people like that in Dalarne."

BRATTON SUSPENDED

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Johnny Bratton, former welterweight champion accused of an "unsatisfactory showing" in losing a one-sided decision to Johnny Saxton in their televised fight here Wednesday night, has been suspended by the Pennsylvania state athletic commission.

At the same time, boxing commissioners George Jones and John Holahan tied up $4,770 of Bratton's $8,770 purse pending a full-dress hearing March 10, when chairman Frank Wiener will be back from a winter vacation.

Bratton and his manager, Hymie Wallman, admitted it was "a bad fight." They argued, however, that Saxton made the bout look bad by "pushing in" and "clinching."

In New York, Jim Norris president of the International Boxing Club which co-sponsored the fight, said Bratton will have to prove his fitness—"in other rings, not ours"—before he is employed by the IBC again.

Rink Wins Fifth Schoolboy Curling Championship

HAMILTON (CP) — A missed rock by Manitoba on the last shot of the game in the all-western final Thursday night gave Saskatchewan its fifth Canadian schoolboy championship in six years.

Saskatoon Technical Collegiate of Saskatoon, who defeated Gordon Bell High School from Winnipeg 10-7 to take the Sifton Trophy Thursday night, have been the champions for three of those five years.

This year's winning rink, skipped by Bayne Secord, 18, won the championship when Gene Walker, 18-year-old Manitoba skip, missed the final shot of the game.

The Walker rink, on the short end of the score throughout the game, shortened Secord's lead to 9-7 going into the 10th end. Secord put a stone deep into the house on his final throw and Walker needed only to knock the Saskatoon stone out for the game and the championship.

Walker missed his shot, took out one of his own stones and left Saskatoon with one point.

THOUGHT HE HAD IT

After the game the Manitoba skip said "I don't know how I could have missed that, I thought I had it for sure."

Saskatoon lead, 18-year-old Don Brownell, said "I don't believe we won that." Skip Secord added "that goes for me too." Second Stan Austman, 17, of the winners said "I figured he (Walker) would have made it. I don't see how he missed it." Don Snyder, 18, was Saskatoon's vice-skip.

It was the 104th game for Saskatchewan this year. The west's only other winners were Humboldt, Sask., in 1949 and Regina in 1950. The only eastern championship was won by Oshawa Collegiate and Vocational Institute in Saskatoon last year.

Other members of the runner-up Manitoba rink were vice-skip Larry Morison, 18, second Mitch Czaga, 18, and lead Jim Ursel, 17.

The large silver Sifton Trophy was presented to Secord by Victor Sifton, publisher of the Winnipeg Free Press. Mr. Sifton also presented individual trophies to the members of the winning rink.

The members of the Manitoba rink also received individual trophies from Mrs. Sifton.

WIDE COVERAGE

The final night of the tournament received the widest radio and television coverage of any Canadian curling championship. Parts of the final Saskatchewan-Manitoba sudden-death game were filmed and will be televised later.

Radio coverage included a broadcast over a local Hamilton station and a coast-to-coast broadcast over the CBC.

The tournament, in which every province but Newfoundland took part, was scheduled so that every rink would play nine games. Because of a tie at the end of their nine the Saskatchewan and Manitoba representatives played an extra game.

Saskatchewan finished the tournament with nine victories and one defeat. Manitoba had eight wins and two losses. New Brunswick was third with a 5-4 record, Northern Ontario, Alberta, British Columbia and Ontario each won four and lost five to tie for fourth place. Nova Scotia and Quebec followed, each with three victories and six defeats. Prince Edward Island was last with two wins and seven losses.

Screen Writer Honored By U.S. Guild

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—The Screen Writers Guild Thursday night gave its laurel achievement award, emblematic of the biggest contribution through the years to his craft and guild, to Dudley Nichols, who has written such movies as "Prince Valiant," "The Big Sky," "The Bells of St. Mary's," "For Whom The Bell Tolls," "Stagecoach" and "The Informer."

The award was made at the guild's annual dinner and was the decision of its 21 board members.

Producer Samuel Goldwyn made the principal address, urging revisions in the motion picture production code.

BEST COMEDY

The SWG award for the best-written United States comedy went to Ian McLellan Hunter and John Dighton for their screen play, "Roman Holiday," produced at Paramount studio from a story by McLellan.

The best-written U.S. drama, the guild decided, was "From Here To Eternity," a screen play by Daniel Taradash from James Jones' novel, and produced at Columbia.

The best-written U. S. musical award went to Helen Deutsch for her screen play "Lili" (MGM) from Paul Gallico's story.

The $1,000 Heritage Press award for the best-written script of a movie adapted from a recognized classic was postponed until next year, when the prize will be $2,000. The judges held that no adaptation of a classic this year attained the excellence of "Julius Caesar," and the Shakespeare movie carried no screenplay credit.

Stevens Tells Troubles Of College Football

TORONTO (CP) — Athletic director Warren Stevens of University of Toronto told of the troubles of the Senior Intercollegiate Football Union.

He also discussed several controversial steps taken in an attempt to straighten things out.

It was a mistake to admit McMaster Marauders into the union in 1953, he said at a press conference. The club was dropped to "preserve our football union."

McGill University, the only club against ousting McMaster, had threatened to quit too.

Old grads were dissatisfied with the former schedule and were beefing because they were unable to see their old schools play away from hom.

GATE DOWN

Ticket sales were down 28 per cent here in 1953 and other institutions suffered a "comparable drop."

The college group, Stevens said, didn't foresee the difficulties after they admitted McMaster. The unbalanced five-team schedule was "unsatisfactory" in practical application.

In Montreal, Queen's University graduates living there complained because no games were scheduled for their alma mater in that city. A similar howl was heard from grads living in other cities.

Stevens said a three- and four-team league schedule has been prepared. If McGill follows through on its threat to drop out, "there's no alternative but to play a three-team league."

A statement issued said: "In estimating for 1954-55 with the McMaster game replacing the Western game — usually our biggest gate—we were faced with a further estimated loss in revenue of $15,000 to $20,000."

Giants Attempt To Sign Doug McNichol

MONTREAL (CP) — New York Giants of the National Football League are attempting to sign Doug McNichol, star defensive end with Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four, in what is interpreted as a new move in the international grid war.

McNichol, a 23-year-old native of Merritton, disclosed that the Giants had got in touch with him by phone and had later confirmed the call by letter. He said he plans to go to New York this week-end to meet officials of the club.

"I am definitely interested," McNichol said. "Of course, I've got to find out the terms of the contract. While the proposition looks very attractive at the moment there are many angles to it and possibly in the long run I might be better off to stay with Alouettes."

The New York move was interpreted as retaliation against Canadian football teams for the signing of star tackle Arnie Weinmeister by Vancouver Lions of the Western conference.

Army Peace Pact Founders For Stevens And McCarthy

By EDMON LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP)—There was no peace today between Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens and Senator Joseph McCarthy, despite a "peace pact" heralded as settling their official differences on questioning United States Army personnel.

Conciliation efforts foundered Thursday when Stevens issued a definition of his position, backed by President Eisenhower, and McCarthy retorted that it contained a "completely false" statement.

Stevens' satement was intended to counter the widespread impression that he had yielded to McCarthy on the issue of the senator's handling of army witnesses, and to assure any military personnel interrogated in the future of protection against what Stevens had termed "abuse."

Stevens said he was confident there would be no such treatment in the future because of "assurances which I have received from members" of the Senate investigations sub - committee which McCarthy, the Wisconsin Republican heads.

COMPLETELY FALSE

That was the statement McCarthy immediately termed "completely false."

The senator, who a moment before had been speaking with reporters in complimentary terms of Stevens, said "absolutely no concession was made that any witness was abused."

To promise they would not be abused in the future, he went on, would be admitting they had been abused in the past.

James C. Hagerty, the president's press secretary, said Eisenhower approved and endorsed 100 per cent the Stevens statement. Stevens spoke of the "assurances" and also said:

ADVICE OF COUNSEL

"I shall never accede to the abuse of army personnel under any circumstances, including committee hearings. I shall never accede to their being browbeaten or humiliated. I do not intend to allow them to be deprived of the long-established practice that they have the advice of counsel when the matter under consideration is one of essential interest to me as secretary, as was the case with Gen. Zwicker."

Thus the army secretary reverted to the episode which plunged his row with McCarthy to its depth of bitterness—the senator's questioning of Brig. - Gen. Ralph Zwicker, accompanied by such remarks as one that Zwicker was "unfit" to wear his uniform.

SMILED TOO SOON—Sen. Joseph McCarthy (left) and Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens were all smiles after a secret meeting held in Washington, at which Stevens reversed himself and acceded to the demands of McCarthy. Earlier, Stevens had ordered army officials to ignore a McCarthy summons and had said he would appear himself to save them from what he had called "further abuse." However, the smiles faded today as McCarthy charged "peace pact" contained false statement.

Stevens subsequently directed Zwicker and another general to disregard subpoenas for an appearance before McCarthy's sub-committee.

McCarthy Thursday night announced that he now will recall Zwicker and question him about an affidavit the general sent to Stevens about the hearing at which he was questioned. He said he wants to know whether Zwicker was "mistaken or deliberately trying to misinform" Stevens.

Moreover, the senator said it was "strictly untrue" that he had refused to allow Zwicker to be represented by counsel. He said he would ask the general "whether he wanted counsel, and if so why he didn't tell us."

NO COMMENT

Informed of McCarthy's counterblast, Stevens sent word that he had no further comment.

So ended a day of extraordinary efforts by top officials, including the president, to find some formula for neutralizing critics' charges that Stevens, and indirectly the whole Republican administration, had surrendered to McCarthy on a matter of principle and had left army personnel unprotected in situations where their service orders clashed with the investigations subcommittee's demands on them.

Thursday Stevens was described by associates as shocked and anxious at the general interpretation of the agreement, that he had struck his colors to McCarthy, and at the effect on service morale.

Pushed into the background by the Stevens - McCarthy exchanges over the questioning of Zwicker was the original cause of the whole controversy, the case of a former army major, Dr. Irving Peress, now a dentist in New York. Peress has called McCarthy's charges against him "sheer nonsense."

But McCarthy Thursday said he intends to go ahead with his investigation of why Peress was promoted and given an honorable discharge although he refused on grounds of possible self-incrimination to answer questions about membership in subversive organizations. Zwicker is commanding officer of the army post where Peress was discharged.

U.S. More Optimistic Now Over Prospects Of Middle East Alliance

By WARREN ROGERS Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States officials today were reported more optimistic than in some time over prospects for a Middle East defence alliance, despite political upheavals in Syria and Egypt. While these countries are not envisioned as part of a defence chain to ring Russia's southern border, their affairs naturally influence the actions of their neighbors. The council of 11 young army officers who rule Egypt made a point Thursday of announcing that there would be no change in Egypt's friendly attitude toward the West.

This backed up a Washington state department estimate that the ouster of Mohammed Naguib as president-premier was an 'internal affair" only.

There was no ready interpretation here of fast-breaking developments in Syria. A military coup there Thursday forced the resignation of Adib Shishekly, who has survived 26 assassination attempts while ruling with an iron hand for three years.

The big news, from the standpoint of the proposed Middle East Alliance, was President Eisenhower's announcement Thursday of United States military aid for Pakistan.

Eisenhower was careful to notify India's prime minister Nehru of the move in a letter obviously intended to avoid any further ruffling of Nehru's oft-voiced sensitivity toward it.

Nehru has campaigned long and hard against military aid for Pakistan or any other country of the region. He argues that this will upset the balance of peace.

But U.S. officials are understood to feel that Nehru, having had his say, may ease his criticisms now that they have failed to block Pakistan arms aid. The Indian leader has said he will not move toward communism in anger, but will continue his efforts to weld a neutral buffer bloc between the East and West.

NO AGGRESSION

At Karachi, Prime Minister Mohammed Ali said Pakistan has pledged "not to engage in any act of aggression against any nation." He added that the U.S. has not asked for bases or other concessions.

At London, a foreign office spokesman for the Churchill government said Britons, "being convinced that the grant of aid, is designed to strengthen the defence of the Free World, believe that it will not be detrimental to India's defence."

Spoke No English Driver Found Not Guilty

Alfowsas Lukosius, a Lithuanian who speaks no English, won dismissal of two charges of going through a stop sign and driving without due care and attention in magistrate's court Thursday. The second charge was dropped after the Crown failed to prove a case on the first charge.

Subdued, and sometimes on the verge of tears, Lukosius sat through several hours of trial, wondering what was going on. An interpreter, John Rutkauskus, was on hand, but occasionally both Crown Attorney John Bradshaw and defence counsel W. J. A. Fair forgot his existence, and had to be reminded by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

The charges were laid as result of an accident at the corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer Sts. on the evening of January 22. Lukosius, driving west on Sherbrooke St., was in collision in mid-intersection with a northbound taxi driven by Patrick J. Killen of 305 Dublin St. It was never established whether Lukosius went through the stop sign on Sherbrooke at Aylmer, or whether he had stopped and started up again when the acicdent occurred.

SAME SPEED

The taxi driver testified that Lukosius went right through, that both cars entered the intersection at approximately the same time and both were travelling 30 miles per hour. He said that he tried to swerve left to avoid the collision, but was struck just in front of the right door. The doors, he said, then blew open and "I would have been killed for sure if I hadn't had a good grip on the wheel."

Under cross-examination by Mr. Fair, Killen acknowledged that he had seen nothing until the other car was almost on top of him. Mr. Fair suggested that it might be difficult to see very much of anything since the time was 9:15 p.m. and both cars had their headlights up.

At the time of the accident, Mr. Killen was carrying two passengers, well-known Peterborough football and lacrosse star, John Nicholls and his wife Kay. Nicholls testified that he did not see the other car until both were into the intersection, that he then closed his eyes "when I knew we were going to hit, and was next aware of what was going on when the damaged taxi was careening north on Aylmer." It came to rest 165 feet north of the intersection.

Mrs. Nicholls said that she had seen the Lukosius car when it was 30 feet away from the intersection. But she, too, looked away and had no appreciation of danger until just before the impact.

SAW TAXI

Taking the stand on his own behalf, Lukosius testified through his interpreter, an Austrian, that he had come to the intersection, after having seen the taxi at quite a distance away. He then tried to cross the intersection, but the other car, he said, was travelling at such a terrific speed (his estimate was 50 miles per hour) that he could not avoid the smash. He said that the taxi hit him on the left front fender and that the impact caused the taxi to swerve to the left.

Const. W. G. Scott testified that the Lukosius car, originally travelling west, ended up in the intersection facing southeast. The other car was quite a distance up Aylmer St. near or on the west snowbank. He said that damage to the taxi was $550, to Lukosius' car $600.

Magistrate Philp dismissed the charge on the grounds that there was such a wide conflict in evidence as presented by the prosecution and by the accused, that nobody could prove that he had failed to stop, and that the Crown witnesses' testimony was vague. Crown Attorney Bradshaw then moved for the dismissal of the careless driving charge.

It was abviously a big relief to Lukosius. His country is now a part of Soviet Russia. He gave the impression that he feared the law on principle, because Soviet courts are considerably different.

May Increase City Revenue

A municipal tax case which is being decided by Canada's highest court could result in increased revenues for Peterborough.

The Supreme Court of Canada Wednesday opened hearings on the "Phillips land grant case," involving two federal employees in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

G. Neil Phillips and James Taylor, transport department engineers employed in connection with the Sault ship canal, live in houses supplied by the federal government on federal property. They are required to do so under their terms of employment and the government deducts a portion of their salaries as rent.

Sault Ste. Marie levied a tax on the two men, and the federal government is contesting the validity of the tax. Already, the government has lost in two courts. Mr. Justice G. A. Gale ruled in favor of the municipality and his judgment was upheld in the Ontario Appeal Court. He judged it a personal tax, validly imposed.

The Crown, which might be liable for thousands of dollars in taxes elsewhere in Canada if the judgment stands, contends that since the houses involved are federal property, they are exempt from municipal tax.

It has been pointed out that four houses in Peterborough, owned by the federal government, are occupied by employees of the Trent Canal system.

The Ontario Assessment Act provides that the municipality is empowered to collect taxes on any property from which the federal government collects rent "or any other valuable consideration." The British North America Act, however states that all property belonging to the federal government is exempt from municipal taxes.

If the decision of the Supreme Court should be in favor of the municipalities, the city would presumably be permitted to collect taxes on the four houses occupied by Trent Canal employees. Whether or not this would extend to apartments occupied by caretakers of the post office, armouries and other government buildings, would of course depend on the breadth of the court's decision.

France Raises Minimum

PARIS (AP)—The French government Thursday gave agricultural workers a 15-per-cent increase in minimum wages. It was the second 15-per-cent wage boost given to non-government workers this month. Like the first, given to industrial workers, the rise was aimed at compensating non-governmental workers for the 15-per-cent raise granted last August to government employees.

Clock Saves Workman

MANCHESTER, England (AP)—Time had Harold Wood on its hands Thursday—for five hectic minutes. Then nearby workmen ran over with a lader and plucked him from the face of the St. Mary's Hospital clock 60 feet above the street. Wood, 42, was repairing the clock when a gust of wind blew down his wooden scaffold. He grabbed the three-foot minute hand and hung on.

"Make-Believe Wonderful" Says Actress

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Make-believe is a wonderful thing, and I've loved it. I think it's good to devote 10 or 12 years of one's life to it, but now I want time for other things."

This is the philosphy of Greer Garson, who will end her MGM contract next Monday. She looks back on nearly 15 years with the studio.

After first winning attention as Mrs. Chips, she went on to a string of hit pictures. At least four were among the top money-makers of all time. "Mrs. Miniver" earned a domestic gross of $5,000,000, "Random Harvest" and "Adventure" $4,500,000 apiece and "Valley of Decision" $4,250,000.

In recent years her films haven't been up to that standard, and she says that is part of the reason for leaving the studio. She detailed the reasons as she reclined beside the swimming pool of her sumptuous home:

NOT HER PICTURES

"It's no secret that I haven't been happy with the kind of pictures I have been receiving lately. The fact is that the studio is not making the big, romantic type of picture which was my particular forte.

"They are concentrating on other things — musical spectacles, pictures showing the training of young men for battle and big adventure epics made in foreign lands. I don't sing and dance with any great proficiency, and I don't fit into the second type of picture. As for the films made abroad, they often involve being out of the country 10 months or so and I don't feel I should be gone that long from my husband (Buddy Fogelson).

"So we agreed to call off the contract."

SCENE OF THE CRIME—George E. Mitchell, flanked by two military policemen, is led handcuffed to the scene of a knife murder of a German woman. Mitchell, stationed at Camp Fort MacLeod, near Iserholn, Germany, is charged with the fatal stabbing of Elisabeth Sieling, a 56-year-old widow, on December 15, 1953.

House Endorses Bill To Give Bank Control

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons Thursday endorsed the principle of a government bill to give the Bank of Canada tighter control of credit through the chartered banks.

The measure, which Finance Minister Abbott indicated would be used sparingly as an anti-inflation device, got second reading without objection from the opposition parties. It now goes to a House committee for study.

Major provision in the bill—an amendment to the Bank of Canada Act—would give the central bank power to change the ratio of cash reserves which each bank must keep on hand in relation to its deposits.

At present, the minimum now is five per cent of deposits, though the banks in practice maintain around 10 per cent. The bill would make the minimum eight per cent, and would let the Bank of Canada boost this up to 12 per cent, not by more than one percentage point in any month.

Bank deposits now are about $10,000,000,000, so a shift of one per cent could make a substantial difference in the flow of credit into the Canadian economy.

150,012 New, Used Jackets Sold For Economy Reason

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department says Crown Assets Corporation sold 150,012 new and used army cotton drill jackets for reasons of economy.

A return tabled Thursday in the Commons for Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) said the jackets were sold for $111,728. Their original cost was $3.49 each or a total of $523,541.

The jackets included 130,000 new garments and 20,012 which had been used. Ninety-two companies were invited to submit tenders by the corporation.

FOUND UNSUITABLE

The return said that cotton drill jackets were part of standard summer uniforms for the army before and during the early part of the last war. However, the tight-fitting garment was found unsuitable for summer training and trousers and short-sleeved shirts were adopted.

The cotton drill jackets continued to be used for a walking-out uniform. As a result the supply of trousers was almost exhausted at the end of the war while considerable supplies of new and partly used jackets were in stock.

Without Restrictions Slow Death Will Overtake Ship-building

OTTAWA (CP)—T. R. McLagan, president of the Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association, said today if shipping between Canadian ports is not restricted to Canadian-built ships Canadian shipyards will have a slow death and Canadian shipyard workers will be without jobs.

He was commenting on a dispatch from Chatham, Feb. 8, quoting Jochem Carton, vice-president of March Shipping Agency Ltd., Montreal, as saying any move to restrict the Great Lakes to Canadian and United States vessels might "boomerang" and result in restrictions on such waterways as the Black Sea, the Red Sea and the Baltic.

Mr. Carton told the Chatham Board of Trade a strong lobby of interested parties is trying to close off the Great Lakes to ships under foreign flags.

Mr. McLagan said he has written the Chatham Board of Trade setting out the views of his association, which represents 20 of Canada's largest shipyards.

MIGHT LOSE BUSINESS

"With the project building of the St. Lawrence seaway has come a suggestion from the United States that international voyages between Canada and the United States, from a point west of the island of Anticosti to the Great Lakes, be restricted to American and Canadian-built ships," Mr. McLagan said in his letter.

"This does not mean that foreign ships will be prevented from carrying cargo to Great Lakes ports from foreign countries but it does mean they will be prevented from carrying goods between Canadian ports and Canadian and American ports and between American ports in the restricted area.

"The reason for this suggestion is . . . a foreign sailor receives only a fraction of the wage of an American or Canadian sailor."

He said U. S. coasts have been restricted to U. S.-built ships since 1937 and Australia and New Zealand have had restrictive measures since 1912 and 1908 respectively.

"It does not seem good policy for us to spend a huge sum of money to dig the seaway and then put Canadian firms and Canadian workmen out of business," he said.

Cattle Breeder Found Guilty

L'ORIGNAL (CP)—Gerald Rowe, Riceville cattle breeder, Thursday was found guilty of falsely registering holstein cattle. He will be sentenced March 22.

In delivering judgment, Magistrate Leopold Lalonde said he is convinced Rowe has been "conducting a dishonest scheme" to falsify registrations of animals as artificially-bred holsteins of distinguished parentage.

There was ample evidence, he added, that the cow, Lady Bess Reno Echo, which Rowe registered with the Holstein Freisian Association as the mother of Lady Bess Supreme could not have given birth to the calf on the date mentioned in the registration.

"The crown has proved by two methods that Lady Bess Reno Echo could not have borne the calf on May 8, 1951, the date registered by Rowe."

Quebec To Prevent Smoking In Forests

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec legislature moved today to ban smoking in the province's forests.

The move was contained in a bill tightening forest protection regulations. The bill was adopted and sent to the Legislative Council for approval and royal assent.

One section of the measure would cancel for one year the forest travel permit of anyone caught smoking while walking or riding through forests. Smoking in trains going through forests will be permitted, but butts must not be thrown out windows or doors.

Senator Would Like PM To Be Knighted

OTTAWA (CP)—A Progressive Conservative senator would be "delighted" if the Queen was allowed to knight Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Senator R. B. Horner (PC—Saskatchewan) said in the Senate that "surely we now are sufficiently grown up to throw off our former childish objections to such titles." However, he said he opposes hereditary titles.

Your Children's Aid Society

A Weekly Column Written in the Interest of the Peterborough Children's Aid Society

"Two and one half years seemed too long to have to wait to get a baby for adoption, so I got a child privately. Now I would like to get my final adoption papers."

And then the disappointment. The mother of the child had not signed the proper legal papers giving her consent to the adoption and her whereabouts were not known. The children's aid society would be willing to do it part in completing the adoption but it cannot take responsibility for locating the parents and having the proper papers signed, in private placements. The society itself does not place a child for adoption until it is certain the birth has been registered and the parents have signed the necessary forms. In this way, disappointments are prevented. This is but one of the safeguards which can be assured when placements are made through the children's aid society.

The importance of good adopting parents has already been stressed. Equally important is a knowledge of the child. The educational background of the parents, their medical history, their stature, their complexion, — this knowledge helps in placing in the adopting home, a child particularly suited for that home.

The happiness of the family is to a degree dependent on this. When this child is with the family relatives he should be as bright but not too much brighter than the other children; he should be of a stature and complexion as much like the new cousins as possible. Not only does it mean a great deal to the child and adopting parents that the child is accepted in his adoption home, but it is equally important to them that he is accepted by the relatives.

Adopting parents are given a full description of the child's social and medical history, (parents names are not revealed); they see the child and if they are interested in him, the society requests that they make an appointment with their own doctor to have the child examined before they make their final decision. Then, if they are satisfied they may take the child home. It must be a great source of satisfaction to them to know that they can depend on the society having all the necesary papers completed before the baby goes to them.

Next week we will complete the story on adoption. If you have questions about it, get in touch with the children's aid society and they may be able to answer thehm through this column.

Strike Fails Settle Issues

NORANDA, Que. (CP)—The return to work of miners in northwestern Quebec and northern Ontario has not brought a settlement of the issues which led to these prolonged strikes, the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) says.

The statement was made in a newspaper advertisement Thursday under the heading "The issues remain."

The union said it had not attained its objective of remedying the issues of shorter hours, holiday allowances and supplementary provisions. The fact that settlements fell short of union objectives in no way affected the union's determination to continue to fight for improvements.

Workers at Noranda mines accepted a 7 per cent wage increase to end their six-month strike Feb. 13. Workers at Quemont, Waite-Amulet and Normetal mines followed suit.

Clarence M. Gladney

MARMORA (ENS)—The funeral of the late Clarence M. Gladney was held Thursday afternoon.

The service in St. Andrew's United church, Marmora, was conducted by the Rev. K. J. Crawford, pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev. Duncan McTavish of Bridge Street United church, Belleville. Burial was in the family plot in Marmora Protestant cemetery.

Pallbearers were R. E. Neal, E. P. Prentice, V. M. Lynch, A. Sweet, R. Smith and A. M. Jones.

Licences Suspended

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario liquor licence board Thursday suspended for two weeks the licence of a Canadian Legion club at Port Colborne for serving beer to members after a Sunday memorial service parade. The Chateau Kapuskasing hotel at Kapuskasing lost its licence for two weeks for serving beer to a minor.

Backs Fluoridation

CALGARY (CP) — Dr. A. J. Coughlan of Saint John, N.B., president of the Canadian Dental Association, said the association gives full backing to fluoridation of water and believes the treatment is one of the most important recent health measures.

Dr. Coughlan said science has proved fluoridation of communal water supplies is an effective preventative of tooth decay.

Gets Government Order

MIDLAND (CP) — Officials at Ernst Leitz Limited said the company has received a second major government defence contract involving manufacture of 16-millimetre aerial motion picture cameras for the RCAF. Total cost involved in the two orders is expected to exceed $1,000,000, the officials said.

I Remember

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the street car

BY AUSTIN CROSS

AUSTIN F. CROSS— Writes Cross Town for the Ottawa Citizen. In his day, worked for the Hamilton Herald, the Montreal Star and the Toronto Globe. Has been all over the world on writing assignments.

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier was Liberal leader, he used to ride the street car home. True, earlier he had driven horses and later used a car. But both were for state occasions. The tram was for every day.

Laurier's long aristocratic face and his white plume of hair falling out back of his inevitable tall silk hat combined to make him an unforgettable figure, sitting there with ramrod straightness. I used often to see him going about six o'clock to Laurier House. He was a dignified figure. Once, however, he lost his dignity. He went down to the far corner of Queen and Metcalfe Streets, to get his tram. The car came. It stopped on the near side of the street. Regulations had changed and nobody had told Laurier. The street car waited on the near side of the street; Laurier stood on the far side of the street. Both waited. Neither moved. Stalemate. The car stood there. Laurier stood there. What would happen next? Laurier, with as much dignity as he could muster, walked slowly, deliberately, across the street, marched to the rear door and got on. The tram had won over the statesman.

Hogs were 2,953 head. Grade A hogs closed higher at $35.50-36; dressed sows $26; stags $18.

Urges Ottawa Control Driving Laws

OTTAWA (CP)—A lawyer-member of Parliament has proposed that the federal government take complete control over driving laws in the face of growing toll of highway deaths and accidents.

George Nowlan (PC—Digby-Annapolis-Kings) said Thursday the country is "faced with a great slaughter on our highways today."

He admitted there are constitutional problems of provincial jurisdiction, but said Parliament has power to declare that certain things come under criminal law.

The problem of controlling highway traffic had reached the stage where it was properly within the scope of the federal parliament.

Mr. Nowlan spoke as the Commons turned to a general discussion of traffic accidents during a study of the new Criminal Code.

Other speakers joined in his appeal for action to make the highways safer, but not all agreed it is the federal government's problem.

PROVINCIAL MATTER

Justice Minister Garson said the place to prevent fatal accidents is in the licensing of drivers. Provincial legislatures were responsible for licensing, rules of the road and policing.

He agreed with the seriousness of the problem, but added: "We here are powerless to accomplish anything in that particular field."

The best parliament could do was to act within its powers in drawing up the criminal law, and then urge the provinces to enforce it.

Opposition Leader Drew said present traffic conditions are "little short of murder in many cases." There should be stricter control of driving ability.

TRUCKS A HAZARD

Police should be more strict in ensuring that trucks obey the law. Some trucks were "little short of freight trains" and blocked the view of motorists behind.

"Their very size and the extent to which they block the ordinary view are contributing greatly to many accidents."

Robert W. Mitchell (PC — London) said more stringent suspensions of driving privileges would make people realize that "highways are places where care is required more than in any other facet of modern living."

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford), a former crown attorney, suggested a three-month minimum sentence for drivers convicted of criminal negligence, drunken and impaired driving.

Slightly Improved

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope Pius again rested fairly well Thursday night and his condition was slightly improved today, an authoritative source said. The pontiff has been ill with a stomach ailment for a month.

Rome's parish priests today called on all Roman Catholics in the city to attend special masses during the week-end for the Pope's recovery and to mark the 15th anniversary next Tuesday of his election to the papal throne. The anniversary coincides with his 78th birthday.

MISLEADING HEADLINE

Ald. Harold Rehill, chairman of the city's fire, water and light committee says that a headline in Tuesday's Examiner had mislead many readers into thinking that the city had offered temporary agreements to Otonabee and North Monaghan townships for fire protection in return for payments for each fire alarm answered. The city has made no such offer, Ald. Rehill says. Long-term agreements are still being discussed with both townships.

NO DAMAGE

Three cars played bumpety-bump at the Lansdowne-George St. intersection, Thursday, when a car driven by Bertram G. Jeffrey, 42, of Bridgenorth failed to stop in time. Jeffrey claimed that he misjudged the accelerator for the brake. Very little damage was incurred by any car.

Surrenders On Charge Of Safe Theft

Crown Charges Brown Involved In Canadian Tire Job

John Raymond Brown, 45, of 208 Lake St., walked into police station Thursday afternoon and surrendered. He has been sought by police in connection with the theft of a safe containing $442 from Canadian Tire December 30.

Brown reserved plea, and was remanded on $5,000 bail until Monday when he appeared today before Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Two McCaskie brothers, Raymond 27, and Walter 26, have already undergone preliminary hearing. Raymond McCaskie has been committed for trial on a charge of breaking, entering and theft. A similar charge against Walter McCaskie was dismissed.

Brown was first connected with the case when he was seen at the South Beach hotel with Walter McCaskie shortly after the break-in.

Two rubbers discovered at the scene of the crime played an important part in the Crown's case. One turned out to be the most damaging piece of evidence against Raymon McCaskie when RCMP crime detection staff members identified the rubber as having been worn at some time over McCaskie's right shoe. The other rubber found at the scene of the crime was identified as having been worn over Brown's right shoe.

WARRANT OUT

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw referred to Brown at the preliminary hearing when he told the court "there's a warrant out across the whole of Canada for the third man involved in this matter."

The safe removed from the Canadian Tire Corporation, December 30, was discovered on the 6th Line of Otonabee township. Marks on the McCaskie truck correspond with the safe, and the truck, itself, was identified pulling away from the back of the store hurriedly just before the theft was discovered.

Truck Dodges To Miss Dog Rolls In Ditch

Mother, Daughter Only Bruised As Posts Flattened

A small dog running out in front of a truck was the cause of an accident near Slater's Corners on Highway 28, about 9:30 a.m. today.

The half-ton pickup truck, driven by Mrs. Archie Stewart, 28, of Lakefield, swerved to miss the dog, went into a spin and knocked out two guard rail posts and a mail box on the west side of the highway. Then it rolled over in a six-foot ditch.

Mrs. Stewart and her five-year-old daughter Pam were bruised and shaken up; otherwise they were unhurt. They went back home by taxi.

Mrs. Stewart was driving Pam to Peterborough for a piano lesson when just south of Slater's Corners the dog ran across the road.

LOST CONTROL

After manoeuvring to miss the dog, she lost control of the vehicle which skidded on the snow-covered highway. After skidding 100 feet or so, the truck slammed sideways into two guard rail posts, breaking them off, and turned upside down in the ditch. A mail box, owned by P. A. Leal of Smith township, was also knocked flying.

A few dents in the cab and body was the limit of the damage to the truck. It was pulled from the ditch by a tow truck.

OPP Constables Bruce Tillson and Nelson Boehme investigated.

12 Fatalities Each Year On City Streets

It doesn't get any worse but it doesn't get any better either. From 1951 to 1953 there were 36 fatal accidents in Peterborough, 12 in each of the three years. These statistics were listed in the annual report of the Peterborough police department.

Biggest increase is in dollar damage in traffic accidents. Total damage in 1953 was $173,666, almost three times the 1952 figure of $64,520. Damage in accidents under $50 was down from $33,080 to $10,724.

After a relatively good year in 1952, Peterborough drivers have become more careless again. There were 1,057 accidents last year, 950 in 1952 and 1,075 in 1951. Injuries were reported in 166 of last year's car accidents.

Sixty pedestrians and 24 cyclists were injured in accidents in 1953. Of the 250 total injured, 160 required hospital treatment.

Natural Gas Would Dispense With Gasometer

It is not likely that the utilities commission's gasometer would be required for storage purposes if natural gas were piped to Peterborough from Western Canada.

Rumors of its ultimate use for storing gas have been prevalent almost since the time when it was announced that Peterborough was among the cities in southern Ontario which would probably be served by the trans-Canada pipe line.

General-manager W. Howard Powell of the PUC, however, told The Examiner Thursday afternoon that if the regular flow of natural gas should be inadequate at peak periods or be cut off for any reason, the supply would be met from propane storage tanks.

If and when Peterborough obtains natural gas from the West, the PUC is expected to continue the manufacture of propane gas for suppliers who distribute it throughout the district and as an emergency supply for the city's mains.

Experience of United States cities had been that the peak output of gas increased 10 times with the introduction of natural gas, Mr. Powell said. Present peak output of the PUC is 400,000 cubic feet.

The gasometer has a capacity of 300,000 cubic feet. The propane storage tanks store liquid propane in amounts equivalent to 10 million cubic feet of natural gas.

YEARLY UPKEEP

Moreover, Mr. Powell said, the gasometer costs between six and seven thousand dollars a year to maintain. It contains a water seal to keep the gas from escaping. During the winter, a steam boiler has to be kept going to keep the water circulating and prevent it from freezing.

The fate of the huge contraption has been debated ever since the PUC announced its intention to convert the present mechanical system of the gas plant to a completely automatic system, which will be operated without the gasometer.

Ald. Art Burrows, who was first credited with suggesting that the gas plant be moved to make way for a parking lot, told the board of works Monday night that his original idea had been to get rid of the gasometer because it constituted an eyesore. It was then suggested that the gas plant be moved and replaced by a parking lot.

When the PUC general-manager estimated that the cost of moving the plant would be about $40,000, the parking lot idea fell into disfavor. At least one other location, closer to the business section, is now being considered by council for off-street parking.

Asked if the commission had done anything about disposing of the gasometer, Mr. Powell said that nothing could be done until council passed the bylaw authorizing debentures totalling $29,000 to pay for converting the gas plant. The spending was approved by the board of works last year.

The PUC propose to construct a new building in the vicinity of the propane storage tanks and bottle-filling building, to take the place of the three existing buildings.

The Gas Machinery Co. of Hamilton have designed a plant to generate 125,000 cubic feet an hour of propane air gas with a calorific value of 710 British thermal units.

Mistaken Identity

Ever since The Examiner revealed that the city had received an application for a pawnbroker's licence, a certain Water St. restaurateur has been importuned by a stream of impecunious characters wanting to hock their watches. The confusion arose from The Examiner's comment that a pawn shop would be a relief to those of its reporters who ordered their meals on credit. Some readers apparently thought the well-known chef, radio celebrity and Bailey bridge expert was the applicant. He wasn't.

May Family Given $5,008 Damages For Injuries

The May family of Toronto on Thursday afternoon were awarded $5,008.65 damages in a Supreme Court civil action brought against John Norman Hayes, 44, of 136 Fradette Ave., as a result of a two-car collision five months ago.

A Peterborough county jury, consisting of six men and six women, brought in their verdict at 3:35 p.m., nearly three hours after they retired.

The jury found Hayes, who had been drinking before the accident, 95 per cent negligent; Mrs. Dorothy May, 46, driver of the car containing her husband and two young sons, was five per cent negligent.

Litigation arose after Hayes, alone in his 1951-model car, crashed into the 1953-model car driven by Mrs. May, on Highway 7, seven miles east of Peterborough on the afternoon of Sept. 19, 1953.

Hayes was unhurt, but all four of the May family were injured.

Mrs. May received $570 damages. Her injuries included cuts and bruises on her face, a bruised chest, a cut on her left arm and bruises and cuts on her knees. One knee still gives her trouble, she testified.

Mr. May, a 45-year-old salesman, suffered only a scraped forehead and nose and some body bruises; but he didn't lose any time at work. However he had the out-of-pocket expenses of his family's hospital and medical bills to meet and his new car was wrecked. He was awarded $2,333.15.

BOYS HURT

Fifteen-year-old Stuart May, who received a cut on his head after being thrown against the windshield, was awarded $47.50.

Stuart's eight-year-old brother, Donald, was more seriously injured and was in Civic Hospital for eight days. He was also thrown against the windshield and he suffered cuts over both eyes and around the face, including a deep, noticeable scar extending from the right temple to his lower lip. His mother said that he needed special treatment for one eye and he was suffering from bad nerves. He was awarded $2,850.

Awards for the two boys will be paid into court as they are under 21 years of age.

Mrs. May, who was driving the car on the way home from the family's cottage on Belmont lake, said she was going down a slope on the highway when she saw Hayes' eastbound car. She said Hayes suddenly veered north across the highway, as though he was about to enter a driveway or lane; then he straightened out and drove east, with his two left wheels on the north shoulder.

After slowing to about 35 miles an hour, Mrs. May decided to pass on the left—by going over to the south side of the highway. But Hayes suddenly swung back again to his own side of the road and the two vehicles collided, she said.

The jury found Mrs. Hayes five per cent negligent in that she "failed to slow to a lesser speed in view of her awareness of the unusual situation."

Ninety-five per cent of the fault lay with Hayes, the jury decided. They listed five reasons:

"1. He rendered himself incompetent (presumably by drinking);

"2. Driving without due regard to other traffic and safety;

"3: Interfering with other traffic;

"4. He did not follow the rules of the highway by not allowing (Mrs. May) half of the highway;

"5. By making an emergency arise by turning to the south prior to the accident."

Hayes did not go into the witness box to defend himself.

T. J. Carley, QC, was counsel for the Mays; Gordon H. T. Farquharson was counsel for Hayes. Mr. Justice R. I. Ferguson presided.

LESSONS CANCELLED

Snow conditions at Kemp's hill remain the same and consequently the Saturday morning junior ski classes have been called off. Should skiing conditions improve, Ken Robinson, recreation director, states there will be further classes held.

Teachers' College Presents Pirates Of Penzance

The students of the Teachers' College were wise to choose 'The Pirates of Penzance' for their major dramatic presentation this year. Not only is the operetta one of the most delightful of the Gilbert and Sullivan repertoire, but it is also a model of excellent dramatic prose, of brilliant light verse and of music which is the work of a minor master. Everyone who worked on the production was giving his efforts to something which was in every respect worthy of effort; the memory of 'The Pirates' will remain with them, and influence their ideas of entertainment, as long as they live. And this is of first-rate importance, for the amateurs of the Teachers' College undertake their dramatic work as part of their education, and not solely to provide public entertainment.

TRIUMPHANT SUCCESS

But no good production of 'The Pirates' can be anything but entertaining, and the performance on Thursday night was a triumphant success. From the minute it began we felt that assurance which is only possible when the performers have their work thoroughly in hand. We felt no fear; we were able to relax and enjoy the fun.

Top marks must go to the chorus. Like all Mr. McKinney's choruses its tone was full and its intonation sure. Some re-scoring had been done to take care of a shortage of tenors, and certain passages had been cut—passages usually of more difficulty than musical interest. But the chorus was excellent, whether as pirates, young ladies, or policemen. There were certain of the pirates into whose clutches it would have been a positive pleasure to fall.

HANDLED WITH CERTAINTY

The principal roles were all handled with certainty, and those who were not gifted with voices of solo quality did the best possible thing—they sang with an assurance and goodwill which silenced criticism. Miss McColl, as the pirate nurserymaid, had a pleasant contralto and used it dramatically; as Mabel, Miss DeCarroll produced a voice small in tone but of charming sweetness and clarity, and she managed the long mock-coloratura waltz-song with true musicianship, for both the music and the satire were equally blended. She has the added advantage of being pretty, and it does wonders for an operatta when the leading soprano is not only a good singer, but also easy on the eyes. Indeed, there were several strikingly pretty girls in the performance; is this part of a calculated campaign to brighten Ontario schools? We fear that it may have a reverse effect, and aggravate the teacher shortage.

Lacking space to comment on all the men in turn, it is enough to say that none failed to be amusing. Particular commendation must be given to Mr. Morrison for a performance of Major-General Stanley which had real distinction, added to an appearance which irresistably recalled Louis Napoleon.

Mr. Londerville showed his usual skill in putting a big show on a small stage, and the costumes and settings were extremely creditable.

But it is not as a triumph over difficulties that this production deserves praise. It was delightful, youthful and disarming and because the spirit which emanated from it was right, we paid little attention to inadequacies which were merely technical. This was quite the best thing the College has done in years.

Those taking part were:

Richard, pirate king, B. Wagar; Samuel,, his lieutenant, S. Hope; Frederick, a pirate apprentice, D. Trumble; Ruth, a pirate maid, L. McColl; daughters of Maj. Gen. Stanley: Mabel, V. DeCarroll, Kate, M. Barber, Edith, M. Crawford, Isabel, S. Brown; Maj. General Stanley of the British Army, K. Marrison; Edward, Sgt. of Police, D. 13 Unionists To Join Lobby For Employment

Thirteen members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Indep.) are leaving Peterborough tonight to join 150 other UE members in Ontario for a mass lobby Monday at the Parliament Buildings, Ottawa.

At present the House of Commons is in an unemployment debate that has stretched through five days. There has already been one vote of non-confidence proposed. It was defeated. Another will be proposed next week.

Leading the Peterborough section of the UE lobby will be George Wallace, president of Local 524 and John Whalen of Local 527. The two unions are bargaining agents for some 3,700 production workers.

On Saturday and Sunday the UE delegates will be attending the quarterly district council meeting of the union which will be examining the growing unemployment situation.

"The full program of the union on the question of providing jobs for Canadian workers now, and continued employment for the future, will be placed before as many MPs and Cabinet Ministers as can be reached," said Ralph Sullivan, area representative. "The union delegation will also be protesting the threat to organized labor as reflected in a number of the sections of the revised Criminal Code which is before the House as Bill 7."

To provide employment and stimulate purchasing power the UE have proposed such national projects as the St. Lawrence seaway and power project, the all-Canadian pipeline for natural gas from Alberta, and the South Saskatchewan irrigation and power project.

"The union is also on record for more adequate unemployment insurance benefits and revised trade policy that will give recognition to the need for Canada to enter into trade relationships with the countries of the world. . ." said Mr. Sullivan.

He said that for the past few weeks UE members have been taking up the question of unemployment with the local MPs, and "a considerable number" of them have agreed to meet the UE delegation in Ottawa on Monday.

Executive members elected at the meeting of directors of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture Wednesday night were: Mrs. W. W. Graham of Westwood, Henry Sharpe, Bert Armstrong, George Whitfield and Braden Bullock.

Finance committee. W. W. Dawson, John Kitney and M. H. Johnston. Insurance committee: William G. Barrie, Mr. Dawson and Mr. Bullock.

Wheat committee: R. R. Stewart, Chester Hamilton, Leo Allen, Harold Millen, H. Sharpe.

Directors discussed the proposed vote on a winter wheat marketing board, but decision was postponed pending a report by Mr. Stewart of a meeting of the county directors in Toronto next month.

SEND $500 TO OFA

The board is forwarding a cheque for $500 to the provincial Federation. This is half the Peterborough assessment for 1954, and is a voluntary grant. The secretary was authorized to order 50 copies of the annual report and year book of the OFA.

Regret was expressed that fieldman Harold Lewis has not yet recovered from an illness he contracted during the CFA convention at Norwood. It is expected that he will be out again before the middle of March to take charge of the Federation booth at the Spring Show, March 16-19.

The Forums and Co-op Medical Insurance are assisting in this joint publicity display.

SERIES OF DINNERS

Mr. Lewis sent word that the series of township dinners is to be repeated early in the spring. Warsaw has already accepted the date of March 24, Springville is advancing its plans, also Norwood, Stewart Hall, North Smith and Keene.

Draft of dinner programs and choice of speakers for these meetings is being left to the separate groups. These local affairs have been uniformly successful during the last two years.

The directors decided to leave the review of the constitution to a special meeting. Henry Sharpe presided with the following present: Braden Bullock, Fred Crowe, Chester Hamilton, Burritt Jopling, Ed. Kimball, Ken Moncrief, Melville Johnston, R. R. Stewart, Alex Patterson, Clifford Johnston, Bert Armstrong, George Whitfield, Ray Brown, Harold Junkin, John Kitney, Bruce Graham acting secretary, and Ken Best.

Brucellosis Reports

Farmers in Asphodel are actively canvassing this wek for calfhood vaccination against brucellosis. There is also some activity reported in Douro and Otonabee.

Heavy support for adoption of the Brucellosis Control Act is indicated in the news from ten townships in Grey. Similar meetings in Huron have been well attended and there is also accumulating interest in Wellington county.

The Ontario crop report this week mentioned from Norfolk: "The practice of keeping fields covered with a green crop was more than justified this last week when the sudden thaw occurred. Fields left bare corroded badly."

Victoria county: "It is expected that three townships will be passing the bylaw for compulsory vaccination of all female calves under the Brucellosis Act."

✦ ✦ ✦

Danger To Grass Roots

Pastures and fall wheat fields are bare of snow as winter comes to its calendar end Sunday. Comprehending motorists passing along the highways can visualize the hazard of that lack of cover against the vagaries of March: frost by night, thaws by day, contraction and expansion of the top soil with consequent tugging at the tiny forage stalks. Reg. Ferguson mentioned this threat of early spring when the ground is bare. His brief phrases of grass-root description had a little poetic ring to them. "The slender seedlings of grass and clover in the short growth many of them made last fall before winter came! One can readily imagine the threat of damage when winter is passing; sharp changes of temperature remain with consequent heaving that snaps the delicate stems before they get a chance to resume their growth in the spring sunshine."

Bull Show Judge From U.S.

Robert Williams, Great Oaks Farm,, Rochester, Mich., will be judge at the Ontario bull show at the Royal Winter Fair building (sheep and swine arena) Tuesday Mar. 9.

This show precedes the sale to which 173 breeders of beef cattle have consigned 363 animals. The number of entries is 188 Shorthorns, 126 Herefords and 49 Aberdeen-Angus.

Herefords and Aberdeen-Angus will be shown and sold on Tuesday Mar. 9 and Shorthorns, shown and sold, on Wed. Mar. 10. Shows start at 8 a.m. and sales at 11 a.m. each day.

Every resident of Ontario who buys a bull is eligible for the premium, equal to one-third of the purchase price, but not exceeding $150.

York county breeders have entered 24 head; Wellington 18; Huron 13; Elgin 11; Lambton 10 and Middlesex, the rest of the 363 animals being made up from other counties.

As Alternate Judge

Norman McConkey of Peterborough has been proposed as alternate judge for the western Ontario Holstein championships show at the Western Fair, London. First choice is D. S. Dunton of Brampton. Total prize money for distribution will be $4,500.

Doug Dunton has come up from calf club work in which he was an outstanding competitor on teams that travelled as far as the Chicago International Show. He has continued his work with juniors as coach, has been judge at many of the major shows in Canada and for three years served as selective registration inspector for the Holstein-Friesian Association. However, it is as a breeder and showman that he has made his greatest contribution to the Holstein breed.

Almost continuously since 1929 when his herd was started he has been able to show a group of animals placing at the tops in the big shows.

Associated with Mr. Dunton in the management of his Glenvue herd are his two sons, Ralph and Earl, and the younger brother Donnie, who is just 12 years old, is a member of the Peel county Holstein 4-H Club.

Ralph Dunton's daughter, Judith Ann, represents the fifth generation of Duntons to live on the present farm. Back in 1932, Doug's father, Peter Dunton, placed a big rock by the gate to commemorate the 50th year of Dunton occupancy of the farm.

Forums Well Attended

Peterborough Farm Forums are averse to production controls and market quotes as expedients in dealing with food surpluses broadly employed in the United States.

That was the general attitude indicated by the reports on the broadcast entitled "Farm Policy in Relation to Production." The two-price system adapted by the Ontario Cheese Marketing Board last fall found considerable favor with some of the Forums, and generally there was recognition of the helpful effect of price supports as protection against severe losses in a market burdened by stalled surpluses.

LILY LAKE FORUM said: "We are definitely against controlled production. We favor an international stabilization fund, and, if it can be made possible, a food bank for any surplus that can be produced to help feed the hungry people of the world. Then if educators and help could be sent to them, they could eventually produce goods to trade for this food."

Mrs. Clarence Hancock was discussion leader. The Forums reported large attendance.

STEWART HALL FORUM met at the home of Frank Savigny, with W. W. Dawson as leader; 16 present. They rated price supports as a helpful policy in temporary difficulties, "but it does not take care of surplus products." Their preference was for the stabilizing fund plan. "We have inflation in Canada in the prices of many products."

DAISY D. FORUM, 16 present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Andrews, with Clare Telford leader, would like to see the food bank plan in effect, "but if this doesn't materialize, we would prefer the two-price system, the difference in price to be paid by farmers.... Drought, rust, grasshoppers, etc., of poor years would soon equalize our bountiful years ... A pool system was suggested for the farm products, e.g., for milk—the same price paid for the same quality of milk whether for city delivery or cheese. Opinion was divided as some preferred market quotes."

BEAVER FORUM, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Kelly, where W. B. Jopling was leader, inclined to the two-price system.

CENTRAL SMITH FORUM, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Telford, 14 attending and Mr. Telford leader, said: "As farmers we should supply our own protection through stabilization funds by producers contributing a levy on all products marketed. Although floor prices do not guarantee attractive prices or incentive, they have been a wonderful help to us in recent crises. They prevent severe fluctuations and at the same time do not interfere with regular market channels."

PINE GROVE FORUM, 18, at th Elwood Dunfords home, Harry Garbutt leader, were not agreeable to price controls and production controls. "The two-price system might work in some things, as with cheese.... We feel the governments won't let our produce go to other countries.... If we have imimgrants there may not be any surpluses."

ST. HELENA FORUM, at the home of James Humphries, John E. Elmhurst leader, 26 present: "We believe the present two-price system will be best for our country. Each farmer should continue producing a standard crop as at present. Two-price means a fair price reached between ceiling and floor prices. Any surplus should be disposed of by the Producers Marketing Board."

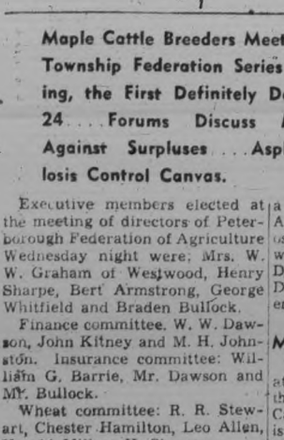
WESTWOOD FORUM, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Graham, 13, Donald Cameron leader, reported: "The most common opinion is that a national, producer-controlled marketing organization for a product, or with departments to handle several or all products, would send our products to the best markets and provide the most natural incentives to production. This organization would operate somewhat like the Canadian wheat board, and surpluses would be removed as advantageously and quickly as possible."

Fourteen were present at COLDSPRINGS FORUM, meeting at the home of Mrs. Jean Tully, who acted as leader: "We must go into those poorer countries with our knowledge and research and instill into the minds of the people we are friendly, and wish to help them in the production of food and means suitable to their countries and beliefs of religion, and try to put them on their feet to meet their own needs... Meanwhile, keep an even production on our own farms."

DONEGAL FORUM, 16, at the home of William Beggs, with Milton Cornish leader, suggested the two-price system, one domestic and the other foreign, "to keep prices of our farm goods used in Canada high enough to provide farmers good incomes ... Prices of farm goods should be in line with manufactured goods and professional services... The small quantity of goods exported could be sold at lower prices, and it seems fair that the government should pay the difference.... Overhead expenses are increasing on farms, so farmers must produce more each year to meet them. However, if there was a more stable income for farmers from year to year, it would entice them to cut down on production and thereby lower the farm produce surplus in Canada."

BOOSTS OUTPUT

Swedish agricultural output has been increased since 1946 by wider use of tractors and commercial fertilizer.



GEORGE R. McLAUGHLIN

First vice - president of the Central Ontario Spring Show, he will be chairman of the panel Wednesday afternoon Mar. 17 at Peterborough Exhibition Park. This panel will discuss particularly the question whether soy beans and grain corn are suitable cash crops for the farmers of this section of the province, Ontario to Frontenac.

Nine Holstein Master Breeders

Nine breeders of Holstein cattle were presented with Master Breeder Shields at the recent annual convention of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada in Toronto. In the photo above are: (L. to R.)—Back row—Stewart Chapman, for Chapman Bros., Weston; D. S. Dunton, Brampton; Elgin A. Laidlaw, Aylmer; Cecil J. Packham, Mitchell; Front—Q. D. Whale, Alma; Elva Vine, Listowel; Donat Giard, Ste. Rosalie, Que.; G. H. Walker, Port Perry.

This shield is the highest honor a Holstein breeder can win. Usually only two or three breeders qualify each year. Presentations were made by Senator J. Walter Jones, P.E.I., who was himself the first individual breeder to qualify as a Master Breeder back in 1931.

On studying the background of these men, it is interesting to note three things which practically all of them have in common. First, they are public-spirited citizens, taking their full share of community responsibility either in municipal office or in other local organizations. Some in fact have gone farther, D. S. Dunton, having been Warden of Peel county, Q. D. Whale, president of both his district telephone company and Mutual Fire Insurance Company and Donat Giard in addition to accepting wide local responsibilities has been President of several provincial farm organizations. The second point in common, is that each seems to have built his herd on the blood of just a few foundation cows with few, if any, other females being added to the herd. Thirdly, they have all taken great pains to select high-class herd sires.

Since the Master Breeder idea was adapted in 1930, some 53 shields have been presented. The requirements are based on the average size of the herd over the period of years in which the qualifying animals were bred. In a herd of under 40 head, it is necessary to breed 6 XX bulls, 8 *Excellent or Very Good cows and 12 Good Plus Cows. For each additional increase of 10 in the size of the herd 2 XX bulls, 2 *Excellent or Very Good cows and 3 Good Plus cows are added. All Females must have completed a Record of Performance test at least 20 per cent above the qualifying amounts.

Mr. Dunton was judge at the Central Ontario championship show here in 1953.

Ladino Clover One-Third Normal Price

Originally produced in Italy, Ladino clover was first brought to the United States shortly before 1900, but it was not until 1912 that large quantities were imported and successfully grown in valleys of the western States. It is now hardy in most of Canada, and is a valuable addition for use in pasture mixtures, especially by the producers of livestock and dairy products.

Ladino is a fast grower, crowds out weeds and resists water erosion. It provides extensively for increases of milk, meat, egg and poultry production at lower costs. It is not surpassed by any other clover for grazing and is adaptable for hay and silage purposes.

This legume has high carrying capacity and produces home-grown protein mineral feed.

THE PRICE FACTOR

Incidentally, and of practical interest to farmers is the fact that its price today is only one-third of what it was a year ago. A perennial, it is highly palatable and suitable for all classes of livestock. It starts growth early in the spring, and under favorable moisture conditions gives excellent yields of highly nutritious forage. Before other grasses and clovers are established it makes excellent pasture for dairy cattle, and it makes good range for poultry.

Another advantage of Ladino is that it re-establishes from natural re-seeding if managed properly, and recovers quickly after grazing or mowing when moisture is normal. A farmer can leave his best yields in pasture for two to three years.

It should not be used for a straight hay crop, but mixed with other mixtures. It is a very valuable legume in mixtures where alfalfa and red clover kill out.

RATES OF SEEDING

For one to two years, hay followed by pasture, authorities recommend adding a half to two pounds of Ladino to hay pasture mixtures. For permanent pasture mixtures with other grasses, sow at least two to four pounds per acre.

Ladino is a very fine seed and requires a fine, firm, moderately, smooth bed. A loose seed bed is not advised and it is suggested that rolling and packing follow after sowing in the spring. The seed should be sown shallow not over one-half inch in depth.

Broadcast seeding is very successful. March seeding is not too early, if seeding is possible, the earlier that this clover is sown the stronger the root system in the event of a drought. There is a special inoculant produced for Ladino clover, it is very economical and experts advise it. It can be purchased from any reliable seed supplier.

For fertile cultivated land with poor surface drainage, the following mixture is recommended: Ladino—two pounds, Red Clover — four pounds, Timothy — four pounds, making a total of ten pounds per acre.

For well-drained fertile and moist soil: Ladino—two pounds, Alfalfa—seven pounds, Red Clover—four pounds, Brome Grass — seven pounds, making a total of twenty pounds per acre.

As Ladino seed is not distinguishable from white clover or any other of the white clover families, growers are advised to purchase seed in sealed bags and from reliable seed dealers.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

For Education Week

Whereas community development is closely allied with all phases of education because of the increasing demands of our modern industrial world;

And whereas the increased leisure time which must result from shorter working hours necesitates careful preparation for the use of that leisure time;

And whereas the shortage of teachers, the increase of pupils and the need for more and more school buildings presents a problem which must be carefully studied by the whole community;

And whereas world problems must be a major consideration of every adult citizen of every community;

And whereas education broadens the mind, enlarges the spirit and creates a community of just and tolerant citizens living in harmony with each other;

I, as Mayor, hereby declare the week of March 7-13 to be Education Week in the City of Peterborough and trust that all loyal citizens will give due observance.

Find Every Inch Of Soil Cultivated By Japanese

By JACK BRAYLEY

TOKYO (CP)—Japan can provide the 7,000 Canadians in the Far East forces with topics for letters home as varied as the ingredients in sukiaki, which soldiers describe as the Irish stew of Japan, "cooked while you watch."

Some probably have written of these things. To others, the Japanese way of life has become so commonplace they no longer consider it worthwhile describing to their families.

A Canadian soldier, sailor or airman giving his first impressions can't ignore the ever-present smell of sewage but he soon learns there is good reason why it's so uncomfortably handy to the nose—it's routed into "honey-buckets" and sent to the rice paddies and vegetable terraces to fertilize the soil.

INTENSIVE FARMING

The boy from the Alberta or New Brunswick farm is impressed by the use of every inch of soil for cultivation and every facility for fertilization.

This maximum use of resources explains in some measure how this country was able to mount such a gigantic war effort despite the general sub-standard of living. Now the industrious Japanese is working 10 and 12 hours a day, seven days a week, for his country's recovery.

The boy from the farm can tell about the picturesque countryside, all wispy browns at this time of year, or describe to his folks how the Japanese farmer lays out his symmetrical terraces precariously close to the peak of the big hills, a method of agriculture successful only where mechanization has not replaced cheap labor.

"You see, dad," writes the Canuck, "you couldn't operate a tractor on those steep terraces and anyway if you could what in the world would all those farm hands do for employment?"

The soil on the terraces seems poor and is reminiscent in some spots of the bleak slopes of the Gaff Topsails in Newfoundland where no Canadian would think of growing crops. Even the verges between road and railway are under cultivation for the nation's 90,000,000.

PLAIN DIET

The hard-won national larder, consisting mostly of vegetables and fish, is made a little more varied by home-grown oranges and enormous pulpy apples. There are also exotic preparations made from snakes and snails, and slices of bamboo that taste like chestnuts, go into stews and salads.

The letter writer, too, can probably fill you in on many interesting phases of the Far East news because in Japan he can read half a dozen English-language papers which keep him up-to-date on the situation. He is made sharply aware of Japan's attempt at economic recovery and reads the reaction to new trade agreements aimed at providing this industrial country with markets to replace those lost in eastern Asia.

It is no wonder the Canadian may write confusingly about the political trends in the Far East. It must have been startling to him to read in a recent paper a congratulatory New Year's message from the new Ceylonese minister recalling with thanks Japan's participation in the Second World War because it speeded recognition of independence for countries such as Ceylon.

The letter home may describe a wild ride in one of the Tokyo taxis and pass on the unconfirmed report that they are driven by former Kamakaze suicide pilots. But in spite of the speed there are fewer dented fenders in Tokyo than Montreal, and traffic moves as quickly because of the split-second timing and aim of the driver.

ORIENTAL THEATRE

The Canuck may be a bit restricted in what he writes about the strip shows, but he will describe the more traditional live stage entertainment such as the Kokusai theatre. This company trains for a year before each season and mixes a little Western music hall variety to add spice to the show—and, incidentally, to appeal to the mass of American and British troops.

This is a fast moving and at times elusive program. Numbers range from the classical Kubuki symbolism, with ornate costumes on a grand scale, to modern presentations that include a human puppet tableau that is unique and amusing.

ON GRAND SCALE

The sets and decor are also on the grand scale and in one recent piece a big temple—occupying a stage nearly as big as Radio City Music Hall—crashed in rubble amid a crescendo from the big orchestra and realistic and almost horrifying off-stage sound and lighting effects.

Some Canadians even go to the Kubuki itself but it is doubtful if many write about it. This long-winded and heavily-costumed theatre escapes nearly every foreigner and some Japanese but its audience, for the most part, is made up of repeaters. It goes on for hours and usually only the most hardy Canuck stays to the end. Costumes are rich and reminiscent of the Japanese pottery patterns displaying the wide-pantalooned warlord slaying the fiery dragon.

Judge Rules Against Publishers In Contempt Of Court Charge

WHITBY (CP) — Judge J. E. Pritchard ruled today the publishers of the Pickering News and the Stouffville Tribune, weekly newspapers, were in contempt of court in printing a letter from Dr. K. A. Roberts, deputy reeve of Pickering township. Dr. Roberts was fined $25 and costs for his action of contempt in writing the letter.

The judge accepted the apologies of W. C. Murkar of the Pickering News and C. H. Nolan of the Stouffville Tribune and their word there would be no recurrence.

The imposing of the fine was the highlight of the morning's hearing of the inquiry into the alleged irregularities in the conduct of the Pickering township election on Dec. 7, 1953. The hearing is continuing.

The letter in question was published after the first two days of the hearing, a week ago.

H. A. Newman, representing councillor William A. Newman of Pickering township, said the letter suggested that "if federal and provincial governments were conducted in the same way as Pickering's we would have another Communist state."

Dr. Roberts in his apology to the court said he had no intention of prejudicing the hearing or misleading justice. He only wanted to make his views known to the people of Pickering.

Referring to the "Communist state" suggestion, Dr. Roberts said: "That is a matter of opinion and one which I feel strongly about. I feel Pickering township is more a victim of habit than anything else but I don't contend they are good habits. I am not too interested in who is elected as long as rules are followed."

In addition to the contempt charges which took up most of the morning Judge Pritchard said it had been brought to his attention "that certain threats are being made to witnesses who have been called to give evidence. This is a serious situation and if allowed to go unchallenged it would completely destroy our system of law and jurisdiction. I hope these rumors that have reached me are entirely unfounded. I want to hear no more of it."

Radio, TV Artists Lift Ban On Hudson

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto branch of the Association of Canadian Radio and Television Artists have lifted a ban under which members refused to have professional dealings with Don Hudson, supervisor of light entertainment on CBLT, the CBC's Toronto station.

The blacklisting, announced Feb. 1, was scheduled to last three months.

A report of the executive committee, presented at a general membership meeting Thursday night, said the committee "felt satisfied that it might now recommend to its members that the directive concerning associations between members and Mr. Hudson might be suspended."

HUDSON REPLACED

After the association announced its blacklisting, Mr. Hudson was replaced as one of the two alternating producers of the TV show "The Big Revue."

CBC officials said the appointment of Lloyd Brydon to replace Mr. Hudson met with "the approval of union members." They said, however, it was not a result of the union blacklisting since Mr. Hudson had not been scheduled for further producing.

The association's members are radio and TV actors, singers, dancers, writers, free-lance producers and announcers.

REGRETTED PUBLICITY

The statement said the executive "regretted sincerely the effect of the press coverage given to its action."

It added: "In view of this unanticipated publicity together with the effect the action itself already had this above recommendation is made."

The recommendation was passed by the members with the provision that no further comment be made on the matter.

When the blacklisting was announced the union charged Mr. Hudson with "unprofessional behavior" but refused to elaborate.

Slasher Strikes At Woman In North York Home

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Joan Thorne said today she was slashed seven times by a razor-wielding intruder who threatened to kill her in her suburban North York home Wednesday.

The 21-year-old housewife told police her son, Tommy, two, was choked by a "huge, bearded man wearing a turban." She said the assailant fled when she, bleeding from gashes inflicted by the man, leaped on his back as he turned to the child.

The woman said she heard someone in the kitchen while she was in the basement. She came upstairs and met him on the landing. The tall man had a glazed look in his eyes.

THREATENED TO KILL

"He came towards me saying 'I am going to kill you,'" she said. He slashed at her with a knife holding a razor. When the baby started to cry, she said, he ran to the crib and tried to choke the child. After the man fled she grabbed her son and ran to a neighbor next door who called police.

She showed reporters shallow slashes about her neck.

She said she went to the doctor after the incident to have 21 slashes on her chest treated. She said that none of them required stitches and she was permitted to return home.

Her husband was at work.

The central purpose of the "Y" movement is to build Christian personality and a Christian society. You can help achieve this worthy way of living.

Summer Camps for Boys

The "Y" operates two camps for the development and growth of boys during their long summer vacation. 165 different boys spent happy carefree days during the six-week resident camp at Camp Kawartha last summer. Camp Pow Wow, an in-the-city camp, fulfills the need of those not finding it convenient to leave the city. Both camps strive for a living experience for every boy, through fun and fellowship in a democratic atmosphere and a Christian framework.

Three Changes In Senior Armed Forces

OTTAWA (CP)—Three changes in senior armed forces appointments were announced today by the defence department. They become effective in August.

Maj.-Gen. J. D. B. (Des) Smith, chairman of the Canadian joint staff at London and Canadian military representative to supreme headquarters, Allied powers in Europe, will become commandant of the National Defence College at Kingston, Ont.

He will be succeeded overseas by Air Vice-Marshal D. M. Smith, air member for technical services at air force headquarters here.

Air Vice-Marshal C. R. Dunlap, now commandant of the defence college, will be transferred to RCAF headquarters. His actual appointment will be decided later.

Gen. Smith, 42-year-old Ottawan, is a former armored corps officer. He was commissioned in the Royal Canadian Dragoons in 1933 as a lieutenant.

APPOINTED BRIGADIER

In 1943, Gen. Smith assumed command of the 4th Canadian armored brigade with the rank of brigadier and for the first half of 1944 commanded the 5th Canadian armored brigade.

From December, 1944, until the end of the Second World War, he commanded the 1st Canadian infantry brigade in Italy and northwest Europe. In the fall of 1945 he was appointed commandant of the Canadian army staff college. He later attended the Imperial Defence College in England and served as secretary of the chiefs of staff committee and then as acting quartermaster-general.

Air Vice-Marshal Smith, 42, of New Westminster, B.C., joined the RCAF in 1934. In 1941, he formed 414 RCAF fighter-Reconnaissance squadron and commanded it until July, 1942.

He was chief staff officer at Western air command headquarters at Vancouver, assistant to the chief of air staff and deputy air member for technical services. He attended the Imperial Defence College and was appointed to his present post and rank in November, 1949.

Air Vice-Marshal Dunlap, 46, of Sydney Mines, N.S., became a pilot officer in the air force in 1928. At the outbreak of war in 1939, he was director of armament at RCAF headquarters, a position he held for three years.

Late in 1942, he took command at Leeming, Yorkshire, a station in No. 6 Canadian bomber group, and in 1943 went to North Africa as commanding officer of 331 wing, comprising three Wellington squadrons.

In 1946, Air Vice-Marshal Dunlap attended the Bikini atomic bomb tests as an RCAF representative. He later was commander of northwest air command at Edmonton and in 1951 was appointed commandant of the defence college.

AFTERMATH OF "WAR"—Parachutes use by members of the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, and supporting units during an airborne "assault" of Seven Islands airport are surveyed by RSM Dagenais of Valcartier Camp who scratches his head at this aftermeath of Exercise Loup Garou. Under RSM Dagenais' direction army men worked through a bitterly cold night to pick up and bundle the 215 chutes. They must now be packed and shipped to other points in Canada.

"Gloomy Dean" Of St. Paul's Dies

LONDON (AP)—Dr. William R. Inge, 93, famed British churchman and former "Gloomy Dean" of St. Paul's cathedral, died today.

Dr. Inge had been ill for several weeks with bronchitis. His mind was alert to the end.

Three years ago he issued one of the dour predictions which gave him his nickname:

"We are approaching another dark age."

In 1944, during the Second World War, at 83, he said: "As a great industrial nation we shall not and cannot recover from this war."

Dr. Inge once explained how he got the name "Gloomy Dean."

"I believe I had a reputation for gloom at one time, just because I tried to tell the truth as I saw it."

Dr. Inge was dean of St. Paul's, one of the Church of England's greatest cathedrals and Sir Christopher Wren's architectural masterpiece, from 1911 to 1934.

Saw Hayes With Gun Twice Dime-Store Friend Says

OTTAWA (CP) — A dime-store acquaintance of Hugh Conrad Hayes testified at his preliminary hearing on a murder charge that she twice saw him carrying a gun.

Mrs. Alice Moyes, who said she met Hayes about four months ago at a dime store where she had coffee every day, was one of nine crown witnesses who appeared Thursday. Some 12 more witnesses are to appear today.

Hayes, 30, is charged in connection with the Feb. 10 shooting of Miss Grace Currie, the landlady who evicted him, his wife and two young children five days before she was shot to death in the Sandy Hill district apartment Hayes had occupied.

DIDN'T KNOW OF FAMILY

Mrs. Moynes, who brought a gasp from the courtroom with her statement "I didn't know he had a family," said she and Hayes, with whom she had several dates, went to the home of friends in Hull, Que., on New Year's Eve and that when they were leaving, the host found a gun in Hayes' coat pocket.

She said she saw Hayes with a gun again "on Friday, Feb. 5" and that the next day he told her "he was going to Hull armories to practise shooting." That day he also told her he had quit his job and been evicted from his apartment.

Hayes also had told her "he was going home and take his furniture—nobody would take his furniture, only over his dead body."

NEIGHBOR SHOT

Archibald Grace, a tenant in the apartment house where the 64-year old nurse was shot to death, said Hayes came to his door on the afternoon of Feb. 10 and said: "Come in here, I want you to witness this."

Hayes "had a revolver in his hand," Grace said, and when "I saw the gun, I slammed the door closed and he shot through the door, hitting me on the left trouser leg."

Grace said he heard Hayes go into the next apartment—the one Hayes and his family had lived in—and he "heard another shot and then I heard him run downstairs."

He went into the apartment and found Miss Currie on the floor.

Constable Rainsford Rawlings, who handles applications for registration of firearms at Ottawa police headquarters, said Hayes had registered a Walther P38 automatic pistol last September.

The constable identified as the gun he had registered one shown him and entered as an exhibit by the crown attorney.

SWAFFHAM, England (CP) — The oldest proprietor of an English inn is believed to be Mrs. Emma Jane Dickerson, 94. She's hostess at the Red Lion in this Norfolk town.

Suter Praises Ambtious Brockville Play

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Members of the Gateway Club of the Brockville Theatre Guild were told by adjudicator Graham Suter Thursday night that they were quite promising in their presentation of "The Curious Savage" in the eastern Ontario drama festival.

Mr. Suter said he realized that the play, written by John Patrick, was an adult one presented by a youth group and he commended the group's vitality and theatrical effort. The direction by Joyce Romegialli, however, could have shown more balance of attack.

Mr. Suter said he was happy that the dialogue was clearly heard by the audience and he said the production revealed a good sense of theatre. He found the play entertaining and interesting but he thought that it was not the best type of play for a young group.

Mr. Suter's adjudication revealed that the best performances were given by Angela Romegialli as Fairy May, Paul Smith as Jeffrey and Brian Swayze as the senator.

The Saturday Players of the Ottawa Little Theatre group will present "Blood Wedding", a tragedy, tonight.

Music Festival Results

Describes Blood Stains In Balcombe Car

CORNWALL (CP) — A witness testified Thursday that blood stains were found in a car seized by police after 2nd Lieut. Peter Balcombe was arrested in connection with the stabbing slaying of Marie Anne Carrier, 21-year-old CWAC reserve sergeant.

The witness said also that from the form of one of the blood stains and the mucus and lipstick traces found on a silk stocking belonging to the slain girl there were indications a struggle had taken place when she was stabbed to death.

An Ontario Supreme Court jury under Chief Justice J. C. McRuer heard this testimony from Dr. Noble Sharp, provincial government medico-legal expert, during the murder trial of Balcombe. The army officer, married and the father of two children, kept company with Miss Carrier while stationed at the Valcartier military camp.

The nude body of the Bienville, Que., girl was found Oct. 15 in a ditch 35 miles west of here. Clothing identified as belonging to her was found in a tourist cabin near Woodstock, 300 miles from where the body was discovered, and which a witness said Balcombe had rented the same day.

BLOOD IN CAR

Dr. Sharpe testified that he found human blood on the rear seat of the car seized by police at Balcombe's father-in-law's home near London, Ont. There was also blood on the slip cover over the rear seat and on the sun visor on the driver's side there was blood in the form of a smudge.

"Would that be as if a bloody hand had pulled it down?" asked Crown Attorney R. P. Milligan.

"Yes, it would be consistent with that," Dr. Sharpe replied.

Mr. Milligan suggested to Dr. Sharpe that the blood-stained silk stocking which was found in the tourist cabin near Woodstock with other clothing of the slain girl might have been used as a gag or to throttle a person.

"Yes, it could have been," Dr. Sharpe said.

Dr. Sharpe also agreed with Mr. Milligan that it was possible during the struggle to put the stocking around the throat of the victim, she might have put her head down and smeared lipstick and mucus on it.

Dr. Sharpe said that on a plastic seat cover taken from Balcombe's car he found a large stain that spread down the front of the cover to the floor of the car. His examination showed it was human blood but its grouping could not be determined.

STAIN ON SEAT

He also examined the seat itself and found similar stains on the same portion of it as on the cover.

Dr. Ward Smith, another medico-legal expert, testified that the seat stain had a washed-out appearance and there was water beneath a front-seat floor mat. He said this indicated that "the interior of the car had recently been washed down."

Dr. Sharpe told the court traces of blood were found on a brassiere, slip and panties which a witness earlier had identified as being among the clothing found in the tourist cabin rented by Balcombe.

Dr. Sharpe said there were two cuts through the centre section of the brassiere. One was as though a sharp instrument were pushed in, partly withdrawn, and then inserted again.

Women Study Problem Of Business

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The National Council of Women has some items on its agenda which it thinks should interest business men.

The items, in the form of resolutions, have already passed the Ontario provincial council and, presumably, will come before the full council's annual meeting in Fredericton in late June.

Other provincial councils are considering them, and Muriel Wright of Toronto is in British Columbia to present the views of the Ontario council to the B.C. council.

The resolutions urge removal of excise taxes, study of any proposals for tariff reductions which would weaken the Canadian economy and takes issue with suggestions for a guaranteed annual wage in certain industries.

NEW RESOLUTION

The resolution on excise taxes urges their removal on commodities needed in the home and by the average worker. It says that excise taxes on many goods add substantially to the cost of living of the average wage earner, and is "a tax on an already existing 10 per cent manufacturers' sales tax." It comments that while the excise tax was once termed a luxury tax, most automobiles and accessories, electrical appliances, motorcycles, clocks, most watches and other necessary commodities, can no longer be termed luxury items.

The resolution on tariffs, originally from the Windsor, Ont., local council, urges on one hand that no tariff be lowered, or imports encouraged, if the result is to reduce employment in Canada; and, on the other, that no tariff be so high that foreign goods be shut out, thus freeing Canadian goods from the healthy and equitable competition of imports. As one council member put it:

"We want Canadian firms to get business, but we want them to work for it."

The resolution suggests that "the best course for organized labor would be to ensure the economic stability of Canadian industry by keeping costs down rather than shoving them up."

Commenting on suggestions for guaranteed annual wage contracts in the automobile and steel industries of Canada, it says:

"History shows that business has revived from recessions only by a lowering of costs and prices (except in wartime), and that a guaranteed annual wage would confront large and basic industries with frozen high costs at a time when the only salvation for industry would be lower costs."

Haig Says Newspaper Business So Good Publishers Don't Know How Spend Money

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservative leader in the Senate said Thursday the newspaper business is so good publishers "scarcely know what to do with their money."

Senator John T. Haig, Manitoba, said in the upper chamber that he has nothing personal against the newspaper business, but publishers have increased their wealth during the last 10 years at a greater rate than any other class of people.

"The value of their publishing business has gone up over the last 10 years at a tremendous rate. They are doing a huge amount of advertising compared with that of 10 or 15 years ago, and they scarcely know what to do with their money."

POSTAGE RATES

He spoke during debate on a government bill to increase postage rates on first-class mail by a cent an ounce. The bill will increase postage on letters from one postal district to another to five cents from four cents. Rates on mail within the same district will increase to four cents from three cents.

Senator Haig referred to the publishing business after saying the post office department lost $15,000,000 a year on its second-class operations, which include delivery of newspapers and periodicals.

He said newspaper publishers claim that it is the local rural papers that do not pay their way.

GOSSIP SHEETS

"Well," he said, "I have not seen all the rural papers, but in my opinion those I have seen are for the most part gossip sheets."

Senator W. D. Euler (L—Ontario) interjected that the reason given at the Senate banking committee for not increasing second-class rates is that "the smaller papers would go out of business."

Mr. Haig continued: "I didn't consider that a reason. Why should the letter writers pay a rate of postage to keep the smaller papers in business?"

If his law business did not pay no one would subsidize it. If small country weeklies needed subsidies, the government should subsidize directly.

Senator W. A. Buchanan (L—Alberta), newspaper publisher in Lethbridge, said only a small proportion of daily newspapers' circulation goes through the mail. Distribution was by truck and newsboys.

U.S. COMPETITION

However, monthly periodicals made representations to the government for lower rates, claiming that high rates meant high subscription rates. "They have to compete with widely-circulated publications from another country which come by express to the dealers in towns and cities."

He apparently referred to Canadian circulation of United States publications.

Senator Euler said he doubted that small papers would go out of business if second-class rates were increased.

"It is not fair at all that you should charge one class for a service that is done for somebody else."

He said the Senate committee was told that papers paid no postage on mail deliveries within a 40-mile radius of their publication offices.

Solicitor-General Macdonald, government leader, said he disagrees that rural weekly newspapers are largely gossip sheets.

"Some of those I have read are far from being gossip sheets," he said. "The men and women who edit these papers give considerable time and thought to the articles which appear in their papers, and I do not think these publications should be destroyed through any act of ours."

Lake Diversion Will Affect Navigation

OTTAWA (CP)—A proposed diversion of Lake Michigan water into the Chicago waterway would have "an adverse effect" on navigation in the Great Lakes, Transport Minister Chevrier says.

The minister said in the Commons Wednesday it would have "very little" effect on navigation, and Thursday he said he wanted to clarify that statement.

The diversion, he said, "will have an adverse effect upon navigation in the Great Lakes and, so far as the St. Lawrence river is concerned, while it is true that it would have little adverse effect during a high-water cycle, I am informed it would have a detrimental effect on downstream interest during a period of low water."

PROTESTING PLAN

The diversion plan is for an additional 1,000 cubic feet of water a second to be taken from Lake Michigan into the Chicago waterway, a navigable channel that also carries Chicago's waste into the Mississippi river system.

It has been approved by the United States House of Representatives but not yet by the U.S. Senate.

Canada sent a note to the U.S. Feb. 1 protesting the diversion plan.

Grant Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will pay half the cost of a $10 monthly increase granted by a municipality to disabled and old age pensioners, Welfare Minister Goodfellow said Thursday night. About 5,500 disabled persons throughout the province are already receiving the pension and this number was increasing at about 150 monthly.

CONTROVERSIAL APPOINTMENT — Appointment of Hal C. Banks, Canadian director of the Seafarers' International Union (AFL-TLC), as delegate to an international labor organization now going on in Geneva, has been criticized by the Progressive Conservatives in the House of Commons. Opposition Leader George Drew suggested the government disavow Banks while another member said the union leader is an American citizen and has a record of court convictions in Canada and the United States.—(CP Photo).

"By actual comparison MONARCH FLOUR proves best for all home-made cakes and pastries," says Mrs. R. V. Vanderspek of Guelph.

"When I first started housekeeping in Canada, I asked friends and neighbours which flour they used for non-yeast baking. They recommended Monarch Cake and Pastry Flour, and gave good reasons for their preference.

"So, I tried it—and was delighted with the flakiness of my pastries, and the lightness of my cakes. Curiosity prompted me to try other kinds of flour, but each new baking experience only gave me further proof that Monarch has no equal.

"As my friends had explained, Monarch Cake and Pastry Flour is specially milled from soft Ontario wheat, and that's why it's perfectly suited to get the very best out of non-yeast recipes. It certainly does, every time. I know. I buy it regularly now!"

Mrs. R. V. Vanderspek is shown above treating two young visitors to her Dutch Breakfast Gingerbread in her home at 27 Vardon Drive, Guelph. She came to Canada from Amsterdam in 1950. Now a regular user of Monarch Flour, Mrs. Vanderspek recently won acclaim as one of the finalists in a province-wide contest with her recipe shown below.

MARMORA CHAPTER

MARMORA, (ENS)—The annual dinner of Marmora chapter, IODE, was held in Sacret Heart parish hall.

The Catholic Women's League served a turkey dinner. Husbands of chapter members were guests.

After the royal toast had been offered, the toast to the men was submitted by Mrs. J. M. Brownlie, with F. R. Loveless responding. The gathering then partnered for whist. Round and square dancing was also enjoyed.

In an obstacle race in which four lines took part, that captained by Mrs. F. Paquet took honors. A musical pie was also conducted.

A prize was awarded to Mr. Berger as the youngest man present. Opening it, he saw that the gift had to be passed on to the man with the "loudest" tie, who was adjudged to be Leighton Meljinnis. The latter had to pass it over to the man who had lived in Marmora the longest, discovered to be Fred R. Wells.

The committee responsible for the program were Mesdames J. Aitchison, C. Brady and J. Reynolds.

LITTLE HATS with a level look make the most fashion news this spring. We show here (upper left) a little profile bonnet of ice blue straw by Sally Victor. This has long-stemmed roses in red and pink at one side with stems entwined on crown. Hat with visored segment brim (upper right) is by Harryson in vivid Granada orange toyo. It's topped with whip and silk pompoms in matching orange. Hat made of row-on-row of black-and-natural milan straw (lower left) is edged with flange of velvet. This is a Chanda design. Neat toque of yellow toyo by Sally Victor has wing of the straw at one side (lower centre) for dramatic flair. Opal straw with a pearly look is used (lower right) by Beatrice Martin for shallow bonnet trimmed with white silk rose and pearlized quills. The small, pretty look of spring hats is keyed to the slim lines of ready-to-wear.

2 Young Winners Singing Awards To Give Concert

Two music scholarship winners Yolanda Di Paolo and Carolle Ann Craigie will appear at a concert tonight at St. Peter's Auditorium. The concert is being arranged by the teaching staff of St. Cecelia's Convent.

Miss Di Paolo who has competed on the "Singing Stars of Tomorow" program started her singing career at the age of 16. At 20 she was studying with Dr. Ernesto Vinci at the Royal Conservatory of Music under a scholarship. In 1951 she won the coloratura class at the Canadian National Exhibition musical competitions. John Kraglund, critic, says Miss Di Paolo has "a superb voice of a calibre desired but seldom found in either operetta or musical comedy."

Miss Craigie, 17, is at present in the artist diploma course, faculty of music. She is a music scholarship winner. In 1953 Miss Craigie received the highest mark in the ARCT solo performer class. She is also winner of the Norman Wilks scholarship, and won a Kiwanis Music scholarship in 1953 in the Concerto Class playing the Liszt E flat major. Miss Craigie has appeared in the "Stars of the Festival" concert arranged by the Toronto Kiwanis Music Festival and in January was the winner in the "Opportunity Knocks" radio talent program. Miss Craigie has been guest artist on a program given by The A Cappella group of the Mendelssohn Choir.

The concert at St. Peter's Auditorium starts at 8:15 p.m.

Says Quebec Catholics Misunderstood

TORONTO (CP)—Methods used by Roman Catholics in combatting "undesirable ideologies" and moral lassitude in Quebec deserve a better understanding of motives than they usually receive outside the province, a United Church spokesman said Thursday night.

The Rev. I. D. Williams of Montreal told the board of evangelism and social service that relations between Catholic and Protestant churches in Quebec "continue along friendly and tolerant lines."

He said the non-resident observer sees what appears to be a determined effort to drive liberal thought and action out of the province as a result of a recent amendment to the Quebec Freedom of Worship Act, aimed at restricting activities of the Jehovah Witnesses sect.

ANSWERS COURT RULING

The general belief, Mr. Williams said, was that the amendment was an answer to a Supreme Court of Canada ruling on pamphleteering in Quebec City.

"This amendment probably reflects the temper and viewpoint of French-Canadian Roman Catholics respecting this sect," he added. "From their viewpoint the amendment represents no breach of civil or religious right against a legally organized religious group, but a necessary act of self-dedence."

He suggested that non-Catholics must understand the Catholics' point of view and show the way to control extreme and often socially disastrous views without resorting to prohibition.

He said the amendment to the Freedom of Worship Act will probably create no threat to existing Protestant groups, and even work to their advantage in case of needed protection against the rare case of "abuse" by Roman Catholic groups.

Small Hats On The Level

By GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK (NEA)—Hats are flat, forward and generally on the level this spring. The smaller the hat you put on your head, the smarter you'll look. Hats actually aren't silver-dollar size yet, but they're coming close.

The new shallow crowns have been designed to keep company with the short hairdo, the kind of cut that American women continue to find prettiest and most efficient. But even so, brims appear on nearly all hats and vary from the narrowest rim to the cartwheel.

Level hats and the forward pose are given handling that turns them out "small and pretty," exactly right for the slim lines and simplicity of spring clothes. And feminity is achieved through use of soft, rippled effects, fragile flowers as trimming and pale but glowing colors.

Even the profile hat is not tilted this year. It gains a side-swept look through deft twists of the brim, but it's actually worn straight on.

The forward-posed watteau gets flowers as trim and most often, in order to convey an impression of ladylike beauty. These start in the tiniest shapes and continue on up to the larger, plateau types.

Vivid color is sprinkled through all of the collections by the top designers: shocking pink, turquoise, sunny yellows, parakeet greens and sapphire blues. But there's a whole rainbow of pastels and many natural staws. White is important, too, but it's most often a white with a dash of color added.

India Plans To Adopt Modified Version Of Russia's Health System

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Faced by a shortage of 125,000 doctors and a shortage of medical aid for most of her 150,000,000 children, India is planning to adopt its own version of a Russian system under which auxiliary medical workers are trained to perform many medical services.

The plan, prepared by the Indian health ministry, has been circulated to state governments and most of them are giving it their support.

It is estimated that while the country needs 185,000 doctors, there are now only 60,000. At the present rate of training 2,600 doctors a year, it will take 37 years to reach the target.

India also needs 740,000 nurses; today there are only 12,000. Towards a need for 92,500 midwives, the present figure is 12,000.

Under the new system a large number of young men and woman who have graduated from high school and have reached the age of 18 will be recruited to "strengthen and expand the existing health organization" in rural villages. The recruits will be trained for two years in medical science and employed as "auxiliary medical workers."

The central council of health here points out that in Russia free use has been made of a type of health worker occupying a status between the qualified doctor and the nurse, midwife and sanitary inspector. Regular training courses are instituted for them.

The system is not intended to make the "auxiliary medical worker" a substitute for a dictor but to make him an "auxiliary" to the doctor so that doctors may be relieved of certain tasks.

The "auxiliaries" will be employed only in rural areas. They will be taught to treat minor and simple ailments.

India has a child population of more than 150,000,000, the vast majority of whom belong to the poorer classes. Medical aid is available only to a small fraction of these.

India has an infant mortality rate of 123 per 1,000. The average expectation of life is only 26 years compared with 42 in Japan, 62 in Britain and 68 in the United States.

Miss M. Parks Shows Pictures To Selwyn WI

SELWYN (ENS)—The women's institute met in the hall on Tuesday evening with Mrs. K. Sweeting presiding. The roll-call was answered by "Our first school and and first school-teacher".

Letters were read by the secretary, Mrs. Reg. Bell, from the Salvation Army in Peterborough, thanking the institute for the Christmas hamper, and also from Miss Jean Noble, of the home economic branch of the department of agriculture. Miss Noble is leaving the department to teach home economics in one of the high schools and she said farewell to the institutes that she had been connected with.

A splendid report on the district director's meeting held in Peterborough recently, was given by Mrs. William Elliott.

As the meeting was on education the convener, Mrs. Reg. Bell,, had invited Miss Marion Parks of Peterborough to be present and show the pictures she had taken on her trip to the British Isles, France, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Austria and also of the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. Miss Parks gave a very descriptive commentary. She was introduced by Mrs. Clayton Fitzgerald and following the pictures, Mrs. William Elliott, assistant convener presented Miss Parks with a gift on behalf of the institute.

Friends were present from Buckhorn and Bridgenorth.

The meeting closed with the national anthem.

Soroptimists Send Gift To Mexico By Miss J. Stenton

On the eve of her second trip to Mexico, Miss Jean Stenton shared memories of her first visit with the Soroptimist Club of Peterborough, when she spoke at their monthly dinner meeting Thursday

Since there are now at least three Soroptimist Clubs in Mexico, the local members took a step in the name of the international fellowship which exists between all club members when they gave Miss Stenton $25. which she is to present to Irene, Mexican missionary teacher in a girls' school now being built high in the mountain town of Taxco.

Miss Stenton last year told Examiner readers of her visit with this courageous teacher and her pupils who are so anxious for a school that they carry 20-pound stone blocks up the steep mountainside. Just two months ago she had word that they had succeeded in getting enough material for the ground floor of the school and it was indicated that the roof was nearly completed.

Some Peterborough citizens who read the story have given Miss Stenton their personal gifts toward the building fund, and the gratitude expressed for these has been so great that Soroptimists were assured their gift will bring forth overwhelming expressions of thanks from Irene and her girls.

It is perhaps difficult for Canadians to realize the actual poverty of the students' families, living in one of the larger centres of the country. The parents have given what money they had and their labor, Miss Stenton explained, and she believes that the Mexican government is now interested and may provide some financial help.

Miss Stenton, whose hobby is travelling, had a message for listener who may go outside their own country. She said "If the language of the country is not yours you will get along very well if you show a liking for the people and that you are interested in them." She felt that this particularly applied to Mexico, but commented that the visitor usually "intensely likes or dislikes this country."

"When you cross the border, you become an ambassador of Canada" Miss Stenton emphasized. "You are a salesman for your country, and you should take care to be a good salesman."

Introduction of the speaker was given by Miss Mignon Mayneord, and the expression of appreciation was very capably made by Miss Myrtle Sargent.

President Mrs. Eva Brackenridge introduced and welcomed seven guests at this meeting, four of them mothers of members. The were Mrs. H. McGeary, Mrs. T. E. Sargent, Mrs. J. Mayneord, Mrs. J. A. Wolstenholme, and Mrs. H. T. Rehill, Miss Anne Jamieson and Miss Marjorie Stenton.

Large Crowd Enjoys Movies Of Many Lands In Festival

All but two front rows of seats in the Queen Mary auditorium were filled as the fourth annual film festival of the Peterborough Film Council got off to a successful start Thursday night.

Film subjects ranged from Alberta oil to New Zealand aborigines, but all were designed to have universal appeal and an appeal to all age groups. There was a liberal sprinkling of rapt young folk throughout the audience, attentive to a total of seven movies.

Black gold was the theme of the first film, one of particular interest to Canadians. Produced for Imperial Oil, it graphically told the now-familiar tale of the Big Inchers laying over a thousand miles of pipeline from Edmonton to Superior, Wisconsin.

Perhaps the best of the seven films was a 40-minute production describing the dramatic story of the training of deaf children at the Lexington school for the deaf in New York City.

Most people, lucky enough to have their hearing, do not realize that deaf children, in learning to speak, must master a whole set of completely new and mystifying concepts. The film described the long, heartbreaking development of children through nursery and kindergarten stages until they become relatively poised eighth-graders.

The film stressed that since the children cannot hear, they have no way of telling whether or not the sounds they emit resemble words, and this creates a serious psychological problem. Another almost insurmountable barrier for patient teachers is getting the children to understand and use verbs, pronouns and abstract nouns.

MODERN PILGRIMAGE

In a complete change of mood, the third film took the audience on a modern-day pilgrimage to Canterbury. We went past Geoffrey Chaucer's famed Tabard Inn on to the home for failures in Black Heath. This unique institution was built to care for merchants who have gone bankrupt.

From here the pictorial pilgrimage headed past the Chatham navy yards to the Kent hopfields, where workers still cultivate their crop wearing gigantic stilts. The camera then passes a greensward full of cricketers and ends up on the steps of the Canterbury cathedral where Thomas Becket was murdered in the 12th century.

During the intermission people gathered in the lobby to discuss the fine calibre of the films they had seen, then returned to watch a colourful pictorial visit to Amsterdam. Unlike many films of this type, this one did not place undue emphasis on wooden shoes, windmills and quaint customs but instead showed that Amsterdam is the heart of a modern industrial nation.

The city is laid out over 90 lands connected by more than 300 bridges. Not far from the birthplace of Rembrandt, streamlined office and apartment buildings have sprung up, and an especially elaborate social security building. The Netherlands has had social security since 1901. In fact the only non-modern thing about most of Amsterdam is the streetcars.

INDIAN CRAFTS

Handicrafts of India was the theme of the fifth film, an excellent picture which would have been much better if it had been in color. We were shown how Indian women weave handbags from the leaves of the screw-pine, use nimble fingers to tat beautiful lace, and combine colored sand, seashells and glue to make attractive household ornaments. The men came into their own, shown sculpturing high-priced statuettes and ornaments out of buffalo horn.

The film this reporter enjoyed most was one taken along the Great Barrier Reef off Australia. Millions upon millions of birds flock to the islands along the reef (one species to each island) during the mating season.

A particularly crowded island is Michelmas Cay, where terns gather to raise their families. The parents hover over the rock-strewn beach, looking for a stone to nest up against so that the family will have at least a little shade. Result is that no tern is unstoned.

Moving to another island, the camera picked up the love-life of the niddy birds. Males fighting bitterly for their mates here, while the female waits impassively for the winner to carry her off. Another reason for the high mortality rate among these birds is the adhesive nature of the plants the leaves of which the birds use for their nest. Thousands die an agonizing death each year stuck to the plant's gluey seedpods.

A third island tour took us to the home of the gannets, the seabirds with probably the greatest protective instinct towards their young.

Last film on the program was a study of Polynesian customs on the Cook Islands, a 14-island dependency of New Zealand 1,600 miles from Auckland. We saw native dances, girls weaving funereal garlands from hibiscus leaves, and aspects of the copra, banana, pineapple and orange industries.

During the intermission librarian W. S Graff thanked the audience for coming out to support the festival, an aspect of Brotherhood Week. He expressed the hope that the audience would lead the way to "more amity, friendship and understanding among all peoples."

Mr. Graff also paid tribute to the work of Ron Ward, National Film Board representative in this area.

There will be eight more films tonight, and another eight on Saturday. Starting time both nights is 8 p.m.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS —By Merrill Blosser

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Husband Leaves Family Wife Cares For 5 Children

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 55 and have been married for 28 years. We have five children, the youngest 13. We had tough times while the youngsters were small, but with hard work we pulled through very well. My husband was very good to us, though occasionally he drank too much and would get mean. The big blow came several weeks ago, when he left us to live with a divorcee of 42. He has lost all interest in his family, beyond sending a very small sum of money each week. I have gone back to work to care for the children and myself. I still love my husband and am making myself ill worrying about him.

Mary B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It is indeed possible that you still love your husband. Woman's love knows no limitations of faithlessness, drunkenness or even abuse. Since you and the children still care for him, and miss him, take steps to get him back. Don't sit passively and let another woman move in on your territory. When a woman of 42 takes a man of 60 away from his family, her primary object usually is money. Attack her, then, on this vulnerable angle.

HUSBAND'S PITTANCE

Your husband is bound legally to support his family—see that he does so. The pittance he sends you is not fulfilling his obligation. Go to Family Court and force him to contribute more. When the lady realizes that she won't be getting as much money as she wants, it's more than likely she'll send your husband back home. He is sure then to be remorseful. If the woman still keeps him with her, threaten to go to his place of employment. The possibility of losing his job almost certainly will break up his little menage. Don't—and I emphasize — don't depend on your own solitary weeping to bring him home; it won't work. Action will! The martyr's lot is not a happy one, so be the aggressor, not the injured, lonely soul.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My next-door neighbors are a young couple with a small baby. The husband is 21, the wife 18, and I'm 17. The husband and I usually leave our houses at the same time in the morning, and walk to the bus together. He's asked me to go out with him in the evening, and claims he loves me. A.S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Have you no sense of discernment? Are you so blinded by flattery that you'll believe anything? Do you think that a few short walks to a bus is sufficient to arouse a love strong enough to break up a marriage? In a few years you may be a young mother. How would you like a flighty schoolgirl to step in and help break up your home? The young husband is unstable enough as it is; don't give him further encouragement.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: When I married, I owned my own home free and clear, a car, and nice furniture. I also have an income from other sources and a job. My husband contributes very little to the upkeep of the house, though he earns a good salary. When I get fed up with his miserliness, I put him out. He runs to his mother, who naturally agrees with his side of the story, and makes him worse. Sarah L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: What do you expect your husband to do when you put him out? Sleep in the park? Naturally, he'll go to his mother, and I think he should stay there. The su mof money you mentioned as his contribution to the home is small, but not so small that you should get overly upset over it. Since it's obvious that you don't depend on him for support, he probably doesn't feel the responsibility of the man-of-the-house. You seem to have more love for money than you do for your husband.

WA Of Warsaw To Buy Dishes, Silverware

WARSAW (ENS) — The Women's Association of the United church met in the Sunday school rooms with 16 members attending. Mrs. Harold Ray, president, presided.

Mrs. Ivan Payne was in charge of the devotional period. The theme was "Christian Fellowship."

It was decided to buy new dishes and silverware. Mrs. H. Payne, Mrs. H. Digweed and Mrs. Sherwood Payne were put on the committee.

Final arangements were made for the pancake social on March 2. Mrs. E. Park and Mrs. T. Cooper were put in charge of the tea.

Mrs. Sherwood Payne and Mrs. E. Park gave readings.

Lunch was served by hostesses, Mrs. Harold Ray, Mrs. E. Bell and Mrs. H. Digweed.

Toronto colors for suit accessories and dresses range from yellow to beige through to soft pinks and blues. Quebec City still favors polka-dot, most other cities mention prints as sure fashion bet.

MASCULINE TOUCH

Practically every centre reported great interest in the shirt-dress—a mannishly-tailored cotton summer outfit with stand-up collar and French cuffs, emblazoned with costume jewel cuff links.

Western cities favor the casual wrap-around coat in camel hair, cashmere or tweed for spring. Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal women still cling to the costume look of the clutch coat or the straight backed shawl collar coat.

Regina reports the color favorite for spring is tangerine, followed by pale green which shops say is influenced by the Queen's preference for that color.

News in shoes is leather. Pumps are popular, so are sandals, slings and light airy designs. The brown family is choice this spring, but black is still the basic accessory seller. Montreal reports that plain patent leather shoes are being gradually replaced by designed patterns and aniline tan (light orange-brown) shades are selling this year.

Most centres report prices about the same, but say there is more value for the money with new longer-wearing fabrics and svelte Canadian designs. Vancouver finds prices slightly lower than last year and Edmonton reports a slight drop on price tags of rayon, nylon and woollen goods.

HATS ARE COMING OFF

When your hair comes out in the open, it needs more attention. Brilliantine, beoved old gloss-maker, now is available in a liquid-cream, pretty-pink and delicately scented. Easier to use, too!

Founder's Pictures Displayed At WCTU Tea

Two pictures of the late Mrs. Frances Willard, the woman who organized the Women's Christian Temperance Union, were displayed to the view of guests at the Frances Williard Tea, held Thursday afternoon in the YWCA Green Room by the local WCTU.

This tea was very successful in its mission to promote friendship and interest. Members do not greatly publicize it nor sell tickets extensively, but his year's attendance was particularly pleasing. Mrs. A. H. Campbell had charge of the ticket sales.

Mrs. James Tinney convened the tea, with Mrs. H. T. Rehill, Mrs. W. A. Poast and Mrs. G. H. Hewitt her assistants.

A charming arrangement of the spring flowers which centred the tea table was provided by Mrs. A. A. McIntyre. The table was laid with a Madeira cloth with cutwork design and white tapers were used. The candle holders and flower bowl were of matching crystal.

President Mrs. E. M. Davis and vice-president, Mrs. Hewitt received the guests and Mrs. J. M. Fanning was at the treasurer's table.

Mrs. A. J. Throop and Mrs. E. Alton were hostesses in the tea room and the latter had arranged the pleasing musical program presented.

A duet was sung by Mrs. F. Stevenson and Mrs. A. Scriver, with Mrs. J. C. Ellis, who played piano selections at intervals during the afternono, as their accompanist. Mrs. A. E. DeNure sang a solo, and her accompanist was Mrs. Ben Smith.

Tea pourers were Mrs. R. Hanscom, Mrs. A. Macklin, Mrs. A. B. Cunningham, and Mrs. Poast, and the servers were Mrs. E. M. Rowe, Mrs. E. Howson, Miss I. McKim, and Miss M. Robinson. The plates were prepared by Mrs. Rehill, Mrs. M. McIntyre and Mrs. C. Cadd.

A home cooking table was very successfully operated by Mrs. W. H Woollard and Mrs. E. Dormer.

Readers' Friday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: Many times I would like to have shaken your hand and said "Thanks" . . . our local church women are going to put on a supper for another local group of men to hear a professor speak. There will be about 100 men. The menu is to be apple juice, cold roast beef, hot mashed potatoes, gravy, cabbage salad, relish, pickles, all kinds of pies, doughnuts . . . now the problem: this is to be on a Friday night and there will be some who cannot eat beef. What can we serve them? We do not know how many we will have to serve thus . . . Mrs. C. L.

ANSWER: It's simple enough. Make hot salmon or tuna loaves and/or cold salmon or tuna moulds. Make them in the same sizes as the recipes below. Make 4 of the hot salmon or tuna loaves and 3 of the jellied salmon or tuna moulds. Put 2 of each on the tables. As you see them used up bring in more. If any are left over the women who brought them can take them home for next night's supper. I am figuring on enough fish to serve about 30 people if necessary.

SALMON LOAF
(or tuna)

One 1-lb. can salmon, 2 cups soft breadcrumbs, ½ cup milk, 1 well-beaten egg, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, shake of cayenne, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine. Drain salmon or tuna reserving the liquid. Remove skin and bones and flake fish. Combine with remaining ingredients, turn into greased loaf pans about 7 x 3 x 2 and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes or until firm. Serve with medium white sauce, using salmon liquid as part of the milk content.

JELLIED SALMON MOULD
(or tuna)

Two ½-pound cans salmon or flaked tuna, 2 shelled hard-cooked eggs chopped, ½ cup sliced stuffed olives, 2 tablespoons capers (optional), 1 tablespoon minced chives or green onion tops (fine), 1¼ tablespoons plain gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, 2 cups mayonnaise. Combine salmon or tuna, with the eggs, olives, capers and chives. Soak gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes, and stir over hot water until dissolved. Add the dissolved gelatin to the mayonnaise, stirring constantly. Stir into fish mixture thoroughly. Turn into square, round or ring mould and chill until firm.

NOTE: For special occasion this is delicious moulded in ring mould, and when turned out centre is filled with tomato wedges and slices of avocado marinated in French dressing.

LETTER: It's two weeks now since I went to my friend's house to bake our European Marble Cake. I thought the product we turned out was pretty good. A friend of mine asked about the cake . . . it is a butter cake but is baked in a tube pan. With your help this is what it consisted of:

It's a marble cake: 1 cup butter or margarine, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspon vanilla, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon rum flavoring, pinch of salt, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ⅝ cup milk, 3 tablespoons cocoa, 2 tablespoons sugar, 3 tablespoons milk. Beat butter, gradually adding sugar. Add vanilla, eggs, one at a time and beat. Add rum flavor. Sift flour, salt and baking powder and add alternately with milk. The mixture should be quite thick. Put 2/3 of batter in tube pan. To the ⅓ of mixture add the remaining sugar, cocoa and milk. Add to batter in pan. Cut through it with fork to give marble effect. Bake 75 minutes in oven of 350 to 375 deg. Fahr. Hope you like it.—Linda G.

ANSER: I sure did, and thank you and Mrs. Hugo P. for sending in the tested recipe and for constructive suggestions.

New Spring Styles Look Sleeker And More Lissom

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian women who follow the dictates of new spring fashions will look sleeker and more lissom than ever. The work of Canadian designers is in high favor while the New York and Paris influence is not so prominent.

The form-hugging effect will be emphasized in the latest princess line and the continued vogue of the empire sheath silhouette.

These silhouettes stress an unbroken, unbelted line from bust to hip. The princess has a long, graceful torso and a moulded, small waistline, offset by either a flared or straight skirt. The empire features a high, moulded bustline, flat midriff, nipped-in waist and straight, sword-slim skirt.

CANADIAN SURVEY

A Canadian Press spring fashion survey from coast to coast indicates that foundation garments will be a girl's best friend this season, with diet charts mandatory reading for over-weight lassies.

From various cities polled the following fashion foibles are revealed:

A forward tilt is the gimmick for Easter hats, which seem to grow smaller and smaller as you travel west. Both Edmonton and Vancouver report an almost non-existent hat hidden in a nest of hair. Winnipeg's fashion-wise will wear hats which have been "slimmed," are tiny and perch on the top of the head. Sailors, pill boxes and cannoes are Easter leaders and the most popular shade is white with red a close second.

Skirts are generally one inch shorter. Most cities refuse to say how short, with the exception of Vancouver which predicts 14 inches from the ground, Saint John, N.B., which says 13½ to 14 inches, and daring Montreal which says some dresses will travel up two inches.

The color picture is puzzling. Traditional navy and grey hold the suit field with a slight leaning to flecked tweeds and pastel shades. Black is of course always popular.

IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY, LTD.
ROOM 302, BARRIE BLDG. DIAL 3920
PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO

Zenith Radio Corporation,
Hearing Aid Division,
Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen:—

This open letter to you has a three-fold purpose:
1. To tell you how we feel about you folks at Zenith.
2. To tell the folks in our community how we feel about them.
3. To bring an important message to hard-of-hearing folks who may be hestitant to wear a hearing aid.

First . . . when we took on Zenith Hearing Aids in our store, we knew we weren't handling a high-profit item. We knew we could make as much as $100 or more per sale on certain other makes of Aids. But we knew something else that appealed to us as far more important. It was Zenith's "crusade to lower the cost of hearing", to bring the benefits of better hearing to more people at a price that wouldn't leave them gasping!

We liked that idea and that ideal. And we figured that we couldn't lose by functioning as a dealer for a hearing-aid manufacturer that put a little heart-interest into his business.

Well, we HAVEN'T lost . . . not by a long sight! We've sold more aids and we've made more new friends, and our Zenith Hearing Aid business has grown steadily.

Your Advertising Department has told us to never use any superlatives—words like "best" and "finest"—when talking about Zenith Hearing Aids. We've never done that and we won't. But we can say that if there is any better Aid at ANY price, that we haven't seen it. And it's our business to KNOW hearing aids, and we'll back up these statements anytime anybody wants to give us an argument. If further proof is needed, we'll just swipe one of Zenith's own slogans and say, "ask any Zenith owner."

Second . . . we figure that our customers aren't just customers. They're our friends many of them long-standing. Friendship means that a friend always wants the good things in life for his friend . . . in business and in personal life. When it comes to someone with a hearing loss, that, to us, means a Zenith Hearing Aid IF HIS PHYSICIAN HAS RECOMMENDED THAT HE USE A HEARING AID.

Third (and we're getting kind of long winded) . . . A lot of folks are making themselves (and their friends and relatives) miserable by refusing to wear a hearing aid. We wish we could say just this to everyone of them personally: Try a Zenith. Just TRY it. These hesitant men and women don't know what they're missing. And thanks to Zenith's 10-day money-back guarantee, we can also say THIS to the hard-of-hearing: If you don't hear better, your money will be refunded if you return the instrument within ten days.

We guess that by now it's pretty clear how we feel about Zenith, and why we're writting this letter. In publishing it in the paper, it is our hope that a lot of folks will "read over our shoulder" what we're writing to you. One other thing: Our customers REALLY appreciate the battery operating cost of only 15 cents a month on the 3-transistor, no-tube Zenith "Royal T".

Sincerely,
Imperial Optical Company Ltd.

Snake-Dancer Gives Royal Pair Welcome

MOUNT GAMBIER, Australia (Reuters) — The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh were welcomed to Mount Gambier — Australia's "Little Switzerland"—today by a girl snake - dancer with a 12-foot carpet snake coiled around her neck.

She waved the snake's tail vigorously as the Queen and duke drove past a roadside fairground. The royal couple waved back.

The Queen came to this beauty spot during a flying visit to country towns in two Australian states, Victoria and South Australia.

During her stay she climbed to the look-out, a favorite spot with holidaymakers, to admire a volcanic lake lying below Mount Gambier.

NAGUIB RETURNS TO POWER IN EGYPT

HIGHEST AWARD of the Royal Life Saving Society was won by Peterborough public school teacher Betty Merritt of Douro township for proficiency in swimming. Seven other contestants tried for this award with Miss Merritt last fall; she was the only successful candidate and is the only holder of it in the city. Teaching by day and swimming by night leave little spare time for this pretty miss.

Make Compromise With Nasser As Prime Minister

CAIRO (AP)—An army spokesman said today Gen. Mohamed Naguib will return as president of Egypt and Lt.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser will become his prime minister. The spokesman told reporters this was the result of a compromise agreement worked out to settle Egypt's internal political struggle. He told reporters at army headquarters the formal announcement of Naguib's return would be made public shortly. Naguib will return as chief of state, the spokesman continued, "and everything will be as it was before."

Naguib seized power in Egypt with the aid of the army in July, 1952 and forced the abdication of King Farouk. He had been regarded as Egypt's "strong man" from that day, until this week.

Naguib was ousted and placed in virtual house arrest early Thursday after the ruling army council charged he was trying to become a dictator.

Today's sudden turn of events came near the end of a day marked by an outbreak of conflicting loyalties within the army. The first indication that something was astir came in a radio broadcast this morning warning that all disorder would be severely crushed. There was no hint in this broadcast as to the source from which the disorder might come.

The split had been confirmed by Capt. Fuad Nasr, staff officer in charge of the revolutionary council headquarters.

"Col. Nasser is in full control of the situational all over Egypt," he said. "Later today everything will be clear."

Under the compromise agreement, Naguib will come back only as president. He will relinquish his old secondary title of prime minister to Nasser, the man who engineered his overthrow two days ago.

There was an air of tension throughout Cairo all day. Troops in battle kit were stationed in the city's main squares, jet military planes circled over the capital and the radio kept repeating its warnings against disorders.

FAROUK SAW TROUBLE

(Exiled king Farouk Friday forecast serious trouble in Egypt, saying he expected it to develop next week. In Cannes, France, he expressed the opinion that "those who seized power will not keep it very long, not more than a dozen days."

Report McNulty Stricken Paralytic Polio

EDMONTON (CP)—Frank McNulty, wanted on a charge of murder in St. Thomas, and sentenced in Calgary Jan. 14 to three months for arson, Friday was reported stricken with paralytic polio.

He was brought to an Edmonton hospital from the provincial jail at Fort Saskatchewan, 15 miles northeast of here, and authorities said he was confined to an iron lung.

McNulty was in solitary confinement at Fort Saskatchewan pending an appeal against the conviction in Calgary. He was to be taken to eastern Canada later to face charges of murdering two men by setting fire to the YMCA in St. Thomas.

He was sentenced for setting fire to the Salvation Army hostel in Calgary. He was an inmate of the hostel at the time, being treated for alcoholism.

Jail officials said he was not allowed to mix with other prisoners during his short term in the provincial jail. He became ill Sunday and on instructions from the jail warden and provincial authorities was brought by ambulance to an Edmonton hospital.

Safecrackers Get $2,000 From P.O.

TORONTO (CP) — Safecrackers got $2,000 in cash, postage stamps and money orders from a post office in suburban North York early today.

Police said the thieves missed capture by minutes. Officers were called by a nearby resident who heard sounds from the building. Post office employees said about $100 of the loot was cash.

Just Met Casually!

SEOUL (AP) — The Tom Smiths bumped into each other several days ago — six miles above Korea. The United States Air Force today said Sabre jets flown by Thomas C. Smith of Kearney, Mo., and Thomas E. Smith of Stillwater, Okla., collided during a routine training mission. They parachuted from more than 30,000 feet and landed with only minor injuries.

Two Small Girls Struck By Car At Busy Corner

Two six-year-old girls, on their regular Saturday trip to the moving pictures together, were struck down by an automobile at George and King Sts. as they were crossing the busy intersection about 1:15 p.m. today.

Linda Rendell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Rendell, 107 Aylmer St., was taken by Nisbett ambulance in an unconscious condition with a large bump on the back of her head and suspected concussion. She regained consciousness long enough to tell hospital officials her telephone number but relapsed into unconsciousness before she could reveal her name.

Her companion, Agnes Caldwell, suffered an injured hand and was taken to a doctor by her father, Benjamin Caldwell, 107 Aylmer St. The two families live in the same apartment building.

Lewis R. Parks, 97 Crescent St., was driving north in his station wagon on George St. when he saw a group of people, including the two little girls, start to walk across the street from west to east, from the north-west corner of the intersection.

Parks stopped when he saw the pedestrians. There is no traffic light at the intersection. Driving north behind the Parks vehicle, Gerald O'Brien sounded his horn and swung from behind Parks to pass the station wagon on the right, striking the girls.

Sgt. Reg. McMillan, PC Bob Menzies and PC Ed Niziol of the city police are investigating.

Four Small Children Hurt In Accident

PORT CREDIT (CP) — Four small children were hurt Friday, one seriously, when, police said, a tractor-trailer went past a line of stopped cars and hit a group of eight children and a policeman.

All the children were 8 and 9 years old. Lorraine Tomlinson suffered a mangled leg and her condition was reported serious. Bruce Caton suffered a broken foot, Geoffry McIntyre cuts, and John Hodgson a wrenched knee.

Constable Wally Stent had stopped traffic to let the eight children cross the Lake Shore Road in this village 12 miles west of Toronto. Police said other cars stopped but the tractor-trailer hit the children and knocked the policeman down.

Gordon J. West, 37, of Oakville, has been charged with dangerous driving.

Fire Destroys Old Court House

GODERICH (CP)—Huron county court house, a century old this year, was destroyed by fire Friday night. County records dating back more than 100 years were also believed lost in the blaze.

The building was scheduled to be wrecked soon to make way for a modern county building. County court, county council used the building and it contained many county offices.

Caretaker James Sheardown discovered smoke in his office when he started work shortly after 8 p.m. By the time firemen arrived the building was full of smoke.

Soon flames burst through the roof on the east side, the roof with its historic four-sided clock tower fell in, and flames consumed the building.

The court house was the hub of this wheel-shaped town on the shores of Lake Huron.

County grand juries and county employees said it was decrepit, dirty and falling down but tourists loved its old-fashioned architecture and townsfolk had grown accustomed to checking the time by the big clock.

The building cost $4,000 in 1854 and county officials said it was insured for $75,000. Cost of the new county building, for which plans have been drawn up, is estimated at $500,000.

Thousands Syrians Tell Shishekly Give Up Presidency

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Syrian army rebels who forced President Gen. Adib Shishekly into exile sent planes and demonstrators through Damascus today to demand the complete ouster of pro-Shishekly elements still entrenched in the capital, according to word reaching here. While the planes dropped leaflets demanding the resignation of interim president Maahmoun el Kuzbari, thousands of demonstrators swarmed through the city and seized the house of parliament, said advices from reliable sources.

They said Col. Shawkat Shkeir, the army chief of staff who issued a statement saying he supported the interim president in his attempts to work out a constitutional solution, has resigned.

SAVE DEPUTY'S LIFE

There are rumors that the northern army forces which began the rebellion Thursday have proclaimed Hachem Bey el-Attassi, aged and revered former president as Shishekly's successor. But the best information in Damascus at the moment is that this is incorrect. Attassi was one of 12 political leaders jailed by Shishekly after a Druse tribal rebellion broke out last month. They were ordered released Friday.

The demonstrators who broke into parliament beat up a Druse deputy, Mohammed Abou Assa-Li, who supported Shishekly's measures against the Druse rebellion. Police saved his life, but with difficulty.

Shishekly, who arrived in Beirut Friday, flew today to exile in Saudi Arabia. He was the guest of the Saudi Arabian legation during his brief stay here.

The provisional regime established Friday in Damascus, the capital and southern metropolis of Syria, was attacked by the radio at Aleppo, the commercial centre of the north where the uprising against Shishekly was masterminded Thursday.

Telephoned advices from Damascus said communications between the northern and southern parts of the country had been cut.

A communique broadcast from Aleppo, whose 350,000 people make it Syria's largest city, declared the aim of the Aleppo rebels was not only the removal of Shishekly but the changing of the entire government and constitution. It declared they would continue the struggle until completely successful.

Eisenhower Supported By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower won a major victory Friday night in the Senate's vote which failed to pass proposals to amend the United States constitution to limit treaty-making powers of the president.

The vote was 60 to 31, one fewer than the required two-thirds majority of those balloting. The proposal that lost was one by Senator Walter George (Dem. Ga.) which had emerged as the last of several versions the Senate has been debating since Jan. 20.

The president has said he had no objection to an amendment that would declare no treaty or international agreement could override the constitution, but he opposed various specific proposals which he said unduly restricted the president's right to handle foreign affairs without a recourse to Congress.

In the final vote, 31 senators balked the will of 60, just as a minority may do on the ratification of treaties. Only five Senators of the 96 were not recorded.

George's proposal, which the Senate had favored previously by a preliminary 61-30 vote, would have done more than nullify provisions of treaties and other international agreements which conflict with the constitution.

PRESIDENT OBJECTS

The president objected that one part of the George proposal, requiring congressional approval before international agreements could become effective as domestic law, would have impinged upon his war powers and his authority to deal with foreign diplomats. These agreements are made by the president or his representatives without having to be ratified by the Senate, as treaties are.

The margin of one "no" vote, supplied at the last minute by Senator Harley M. Kilgore (Dem. W.Va.), apparently means there will be no amendment at all, although it is technically possible to reconsider the vote.

Associates said the outcome, no amendment, would be satisfactory to the president.

Threat To US-British Policy

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP)—United States and British policy has suffered a setback from the split within Britain's Labor party over the rearmament of West Germany. Even if only temporary, the reverse raises the threat that the West may dissipate a public-opinion advantage gained from the Russians' adamant position at the Big Four foreign ministers' conference in Berlin. Generally, west European Socialists have opposed the idea of a West German military contingent in a European army. Their opposition, particularly in France, has delayed the ratification of the European Defence Community Treaty. And EDC represents a cornerstone of British and U.S. policy for the defence of West Europe.

Britain's Labor party is regarded as a senior and honored body by Socialists on the Continent. Had Labor here wholeheartedly backed a West German military contribution to EDC, their example might have influenced their colleagues in France, Italy, the Low Countries, and West Germany.

But the British party split.

BRUSSELS MEETING

A Labor delegation favorable to EDC will discuss the question with continental Socialists at meetings in Brussels this weekend. But probably the influence of the British deputation has been frittered away.

Though the party has been feuding for three years, the emphasis heretofore has been on personalities. The party moderates, who still control the organization, follow the leadership of former prime minister Clement Attlee and Herbert Morrison, while the left-wing has clustered behind Aneurin Bevan.

At a caucus Tuesday night of Labor members of Parliament the Bevanites gained 104 votes against German rearmament—only nine short of the total polled by the moderates. Up to now Bevan's

Need To Meet School Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said today the provincial government is not doing enough to meet "the phenomenal increase in school population."

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Toronto Women's CCF committee, the party leader predicted that by 1960 there will be twice as many children in Ontario schools as there were in 1945. Another 17,000 teachers would be required in the next 10 years.

Mr. MacDonald noted that this year's provincial budget calls for $78,000,000 for education, "only a fractional increase over last year's $76,000,000 in spite of the staggering need."

"In contrast, the normal road budget has been increased substantially to $100,000,000, apart from the $53,000,000 which the (provincial) government has salted away in the highway reserve fund, ready for a pre-election splurge of generosity."

Ex-Butler Fired

OTTAWA (CP)—John Dean, 33-year-old butler to Britain's high commissioner, said today he has been fired because of a series of articles he has written about his former employer, the Duke of Edinburgh.

Secret Talks On Soviet Trade

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

LONDON (AP) — United States and British officials have begun secret talks here on the possibility of easing the Western ban on sale of strategic goods to Russia, informed sources say.

The Churchill government is reported to have initiated these talks to learn if Washington would be willing to cut the extensive lists of embargoed items. Britain feels these lists are out of date, and can be reduced without giving Soviet war potential any significant help.

Both U.S. and British officials refused to comment on these reports.

Any plan worked out by the two countries would have to be referred for approval to the 16-country consultative group in Paris which regulates the embargo.

SPURRED BY CHURCHILL

The London talks apparently have been in progress for some time. They were given added impetus by Prime Minister Churchill's call in the House of Commons Thursday for British-U.S. co-operation in relaxing the ban.

Both Conservative and Labor members gave a warm welcome to Churchill's proposal for a "substantial relaxation" in the regulations affecting shipping and trade in non-military manufactured goods and raw materials. The prime minister said this kind of "friendly infiltration" behind the Iron Curtain would help East-West trade.

Churchill said his proposal would only apply to Russia and the Eastern European satellites—not to Red China.

Warble Fly Found Among Chipmunks

KINGSTON (CP) — Thirty-six per cent of the 255 chipmunks trapped in Algonquin Park in a special survey were infested with warble fly, Dr. G. F. Bennett of the Ontario research foundation in Toronto said Friday at the eighth technical session of the council's advisory committee on fish and wildlife.

Dr. R. C. Ritchie of the University of Toronto's pathology department described a study of cancer in muskellunge caught in the Kawartha lakes. He said about seven per cent of the muskies caught by his research group in 1953 had cancer.

Permanent Employees Used To Implement 40-Hr. Week

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government Friday bowed before opposition protests concerning the way it planned to operate a shortened work week for letter carriers. Postmaster - General Cote announced it is retreating from a proposal to use casual labor and instead will hire permanent employees to give the postmen a full day off besides Sundays.

The carriers now work a 44-hour week, on a six-day delivery basis. April 1, the five-day 40-hour week will go into effect in 180 centres served by 5,000 postmen.

The government's original plan was to give all of them Saturdays off and on that day use casual help such as students, or allow the postmen themselves to work Saturdays at regular rates if they wished.

Progressive Conservatives complained about this in the Commons early this month, contending it would "dislocate" Saturday deliveries and put a new burden on the regular mailmen at the start of the next week.

Friday, Mr. Cote told the House that his department, "after further consideration," has decided to employ more full-time workers to put the short week into effect.

Another change from the original plan is that, instead of everyone having Saturdays off, it will be a "rotation" system in which the carriers will get different days off each week. The new employees will join in the rotation method along with the old ones.

Controller Gets His Ticket

TORONTO (CP)—A few hours after Controller Roy Belyea told board of control that some Toronto policemen hide behind telephone poles to trap unwary motorists, he received a $2 tag for overtime parking.

He said his car was the only one tagged on the west-central Olive avenue block.

"This is how fast they (the police) start to discriminate," he said in an interview, "I made a charge against them in board of control in the morning and by evening my car is tagged. No wonder the police brass never hears about this practice. People are afraid to complain for fear they will be discriminated against.

"And laugh this off: I was parked in front of three garages which we (Mr. Belyea's company) rent and use, so I wasn't interfering with anybody. I admit I was parked overtime, but nobody else was tagged.

At the Friday board of control meeting, Mr. Belyea said some police officers spend their days hiding behind posts and trees in hopes of catching motorists breaking traffic laws.

Agriculture Board Lost $3,000,000

TORONTO (CP)—Losses of the Ontario agricultural development board, which provided loans to farmers from 1922 to 1935 will total about $3,000,000 when the books are finally closed, J. O. Fraser, board chairman, said Friday.

Mr. Fraser told the Ontario legislature's committee on government commissions that 17,704 loans were made, providing $76,590,000 for farmers who needed cash.

Secretary Of State Criticizes McCarthy

SARNIA (CP) — Canada's secretary of state said Friday night McCarthyism is "not only ineffective, but an unfortunate way of dealing with communism."

John W. Pickersgill said in an interview that uncovering and keeping track of Communists in Canada is being done quietly by the RCMP. Referring to investigations in the United States by Senator Joseph McCarthy, he said: "All this ballyhoo just interferes with the police and all the red flag waving just puts the Reds on guard."

Suggest LCBO Aid Temperance

TORONTO (CP)—So you go to the liquor control board of Ontario establishment and buy a bottle of beautiful . . . ah, say, scotch.

You're about to pull the cork or unscrew the cap.

There on the bottle is the injunction:

"Careful! Don't drink too much."

The LCBO doesn't think much of the idea either.

It was proposed Friday to the board by J. B. Salsberg. He's the Labor-Progressive member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto St. Andrew and thinks such a sticker would be a medium for temperance.

"The board should take the lead in promoting temperance," said Mr. Salsberg.

Liquor Commissioner G. A. Welsh said he didn't feel the board was the proper body to engage in a temperance campaign. He said: "Our job is just collecting taxes in a nice, polite way."

Crowds Stop Royal Car

MELBOURNE (AP) — Thousands of excited Australians broke through the barriers on the streets of Melbourne today, blocking Queen Elizabeth's car and making her half an hour late for the races at Flemington and again for the Australia-South Africa tennis tests.

However, she missed none of the race-course thrills. She saw the £10,000 Queen Elizabeth Stakes won by Cromis, which was sired by her late father's horse, Helios.

Cromis is owned by the Queen's joint host at Flemington, E. A. Underwood, vice-chairman of the Victorian Racing Club.

A Real "Gem" For Customers

Jewelry Store Sells Coffee At 89c—Gets Brisk Business

TORONTO (CP) — A jewelry store started selling coffee at 89 cents a pound this week in protest against prices of $1.25 and up for some brands in the grocery stores.

Customers have been living up for half a block outside the jewelry store on downtown Yonge street.

A cleaning shop and a skate exchange in the same area have taken up the idea.

It all began with Mrs. Ann Paige, a housewife who happens to be a business woman. Daughter-in-law of Charles Paige, who owns four Toronto jewelry stores, the attractive brunette is the buyer for the jewelry chain.

Like most housewives she watched the recent rise in the coffee price with increasing concern.

"But I had no idea of doing anything about it until one day a coffee importer came into the store to buy some jewelry," she said in an interview. "He said the people shouldn't blame the coffee growers in Brazil. They are not getting fat on extra profit. He told me he could sell me coffee at 85 cents a pound wholesale and still make money.

"We bought coffee at 85 cents a pound and added four cents to cover the cost of bags and printing. We're not making any money, but we're not losing any either."

Since Tuesday the Paige store on downtown Yonge street has sold more than 700 pounds while the other three also are doing brisk business. And amid all the activity, jewelry sales have picked up, too.

Gov't Plans Boost Dairy Farmers To Assist Industry

TORONTO (CP)—The provincial government plans to give the ailing Ontario dairy industry a shot in the arm. A bill co-ordinating the various activities of the industry under one body was introduced in the legislature Friday. A consolidation of six acts relating to various functions of dairying, the bill recommended the formation of a milk industry commission composed of representatives of the processor, distributor and producer interests.

Acting Agriculture Minister Goodfellow said outside the house the commission would be headed by Everett Biggs, present dairy commissioner, and would be under the deputy minister of agriculture, C. D. Graham.

Mr. Goodfellow told the legislature the stabilization plans was requested by commodity groups in the industry "with the realization that the industry does need to be co-ordinated."

NEW BOARD

Under the co-ordination would come the milk control board and the milk products board, a new group to deal with concentrated milk.

The milk control board would still handle prices and marketing problems.

The commission, according to a plan prepared by the agriculture department would:

1. Be representative of the whole industry.
2. Be concerned with the co-ordination and improvement of all phases of the industry.
3. Promote and co-ordinate research.
4. Promote quality milk production.
5. Make recommendations to the milk control board and the milk products board.

TIED VERY CLOSELY

"It is recognized that all milk products are tied very closely together and that in making decisions with reference to milk products, legislation should be such as to allow equal attention to be given to all phases of the industry . . . quality milk production, plant sanitation and marketing," said Mr. Goodfellow.

During the throne speech debate, J. B. Salsberg (Lab-Prog.—Toronto St. Andrew) called for an all-Canadian St. Lawrence seaway, an all-Canadian natural gas line from Alberta and operated in Ontario as a public utility.

1,000 Attend Polo Club Ball

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP)—Human beings are more durable than polo ponies.

In the small hours this morning, many of the 1,000 persons of the Jodhpur set who crowded this fashionable spot for the inaugural polo ball continued to dance while four polo ponies were out on their feet.

The affair, sponsored by the Gulf Stream Polo Club at $25 a plate, realized $60,000 for the Damon Runyon cancer fund. The additional $35,000 was the result of a Chinese auction that wasn't an auction at all. In this type of auction the first bidder pays his bid and the next bidder pays the difference between his bid and the previous offer.

Auctioneer Jack Salsbury worked over society's millions for a full hour while the polo ponies munched alfalfa. The ponies were to have been paraded on the ball room floors, but thes never did make it.

The Duke of Windsor, on his way to Havana's international golf tournament, stopped off for a few minutes. The duchess preferred to remain in New York. Also on hand were the Earl of Carnavan and the Marquis and Marquise Portago of Spain.

Kinsmen Honor Ald. Farquharson

Ald. Gordon Farquharson was guest of honor Friday evening at a gathering of fellow Kinsmen at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club prior to his marriage next month to Miss Betty Ashbury of Belleville.

Colleagues in the legal profession shared in the event with many other of Ald. Farquharson's friends. The bridegroom-to-be was presented with gifts and a buffet supper was enjoyed.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. Farquharson's brother Robert of Corbyville, Ont., John Allen of Hamilton, and Douglas Alcorn, Gordon Driver, William Milliken and Tom McIver, all of Toronto.

Jack Gamsby and John Corkery were conveners.

CIO-CCL Chiefs Want Guaranteed Wage

OTTAWA (CP) — Policy chiefs of the 75,000-member Canadian branch of the United Automobile Workers of Ameria (CIO-CCL) Friday set their sights on a guaranteed annual wage for the union's members.

At the same time, at a session of the UAW's Canadian district council, they rejected the idea of the union going after a 35-hour week at this time.

A statement issued after a closed meeting of the council here said that, by an overwhelming majority, the members upheld UAW convention action in listing the guaranteed wage as the No. 1 objective.

It added the delegates reaffirmed opposition to the 35-hour week "at this time."

Pope Reported Slightly Better

VATICAN CITY (AP) — In a Lenten message to parish priests of Rome, Pope Pius today warned "men in high places" who ignore or deny God that they "will build even more precariously than at present."

"There is no other solution for humanity," said the Pope, "but to build the world anew in the spirit of Christ."

The ailing pontiff expressed regrets that he was unable to receive the parish priests and Lenten preachers of Rome, of whom he is bishop, as has been his annual pre-Lent custom.

His address was printed in the Vatican newspaper.

The Pope was reported slightly improved today as Roman Catholics flocked to Rome's churches for special prayers for his full recovery. Vatican sources said the pontiff, suffering from a gastric ailment, again had spent "a fairly restful night."

Film Too Spicy For Judge

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—When the woman's bathing suit hit the floor, municipal judge Thomas Pitts hit the ceiling.

Pitts Friday fined Max Beck, a penny arcade operator, $100 for exhibiting a motion picture film showing a woman stripping out of a bathing suit.

The 30-minute movie was stopped after three minutes of a courtroom showing when the judge decided it was too spicy to be run in the courtroom.

A reporter objected to the discontinuance.

The judge stood firm on his order, saying that the film could "corrupt the morals of even a newspaper man."

Premier St. Laurent Ends Goodwill Visit To India

MADRAS (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent visited this southeast Indian metropolis today for the last full day of his visit to India, longest stop on the Canadian leader's global goodwill tour. The prime minister, accompanied by his son, Jean-Paul, and his daughter, Mrs. Hugh O'Donnell of Quebec, arrived aboard the RCAF's C-5 transport which is taking him around the world. He flew here from Bombay, the big Indian port on India's west coast.

The Canadian party was received at the airport here by C. Rajagopalachari, chief minister of Madras and a veteran Indian statesman. The prime minister planned to hold discussions with the chief minister and other officials here today before leaving Sunday for Colombo, Ceylon.

In Ceylon he will be a dinner guest of Prime Minister Sir John Kotelawala at the official residence. Monday he will call on the president of Ceylon's Senate, the speaker of the house, record a broadcast and hold a press conference.

From Ceylon, the Canadian party goes on March 4 to Indonesia, then to The Philippines, Korea and Japan before flying home via Honolulu and San Francisco. They are due back in Ottawa March 17.

Friday the prime minister visited state governor Sir Girja Bajpai and other high officials in Bombay after bidding farewell to Prime Minister Nehru, with whom he had conferred almost daily since arriving in India Sunday, in New Delhi, the capital.

File Second Writ In TV Show Case

TORONTO (CP) — A second writ was filed Friday against the executive of the Toronto local of the American Federation of Musicians following the removal from the CBC television show, The Big Revue, of members of the American Guild of Variety Artists.

The AGVA members were dropped from the show after Walter Murdoch, local head of the musicians' union, said members of his group would not be allowed on programs in which AGVA members were performing.

Four AGVA dancers, Andrew Body, Robert van Norman, Babs Christie and William Yule in their writ named Mr. Murdoch with co-defendants Norman Harris and Samuel Hershenhoren, orchestra conductors, and Robert Logan, former Toronto representative of AGVA.

The writ seeks unstated damages for inducing the CBC to break its contract and asks an injunction restraining the musicians from continuing their boycott.

Father, Son Escape Fire

SUTTON BAY, Ont. (CP)—Ron Johnston, 33, heard his six-year-old son coughing, got up to get him some medicine and thereby saved his own and his son's life.

When he got up he noticed smoke curling down the stairs from the two upstairs' rooms of the six-room frame dwelling Friday.

Mr. Johnston bundled his son up in blankets and drove him down the road to a relative's home. Then he returned and retrieved a few pieces of furniture before the building collapsed.

The destroyed home included a one-room post office serving about 10 farm families in this tiny community 100 miles northeast of Sudbury.

Mrs. Johnston has been ill in hospital since the birth of a son seven weeks ago. She said her husband is an exceptionally heavy sleeper.

U.K. Submarine To Be Launched

LONDON (AP) — Britain's latest top-secret experimental submarine will be launched next Friday, it was announced today.

The new sub, to be named Explorer, is the first to be launched in Britain for seven years. It will be powered by a special fuel which experts believe may give it higher speeds than the American atomic-engined Nautilus.

Unofficial reports say the Explorer will be able to cross the Atlantic non-stop under water without the aid of snorkel-breathing tubes.

The only details officially released by the admiralty are that the explorter is 209 feet long and has a beam of 15 feet, 8 inches.

The Explorer is believed powered by the hydrogen peroxide fuel now being used experimentally by the U.S. Navy.

Stevens To Stay As Secretary Despite McCarthy's Criticism

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—A source high in President Eisenhower's administration says Mr. Robert T. Stevens will continue as secretary of the army, despite the criticism levelled at his conduct during his quarrel with Senator Joseph McCarthy.

This source, who declined to be quoted by name, said some of the Republican administration's top advisers had counselled Stevens against taking on the Wisconsin Republican senator at a televised hearing. The source said they were now satisfied that, whatever loss of prestige Stevens may have suffered because of an agreement widely interpreted as a surrender, he still would have been made to "look worse" if the hearing had taken place.

Some Republicans in Congress express confidence that the row over Stevens' demands that army witnesses be guaranteed against abusive treatment will die down now.

McCarthy himself said Friday that he does not feel he has any difficulties with the White House and that his differences with Stevens are over—"if he lives up to his agreement" to let McCarthy question army personnel in investigations of the stormy case of Maj. Irving Peress.

DURATION UNCERTAIN

The duration of the present peace seems to depend at least in part on the timing and procedure of future probes by McCarthy's Senate investigations subcommittee.

He has for the moment put aside the case of Peress, whom he calls a "fifth amendment Communist" who was promoted and given an honorable discharge from the army. Peress, a New York dentist, has termed McCarthy's charges "sheer nonsense."

Peress refused to testify before McCarthy, citing the constitutional amendment which says a person need not testify if the evidence might tend to incriminate him.

McCarthy, however, has summoned two other army men to a hearing Monday on a different matter.

The still unresolved issue between Stevens and McCarthy is the army secretary's contention that military personnel appearing before McCarthy's sub - committee should be guaranteed against the kind of treatment he said was inflicted on a general.

REVERSES POSITION

Stevens first refused and then gave permission for that general and another to appear as witnesses. The permission was expressed in a written memorandum that covered also other demands McCarthy had made, and was generally interpreted as a surrender to the senator. Stevens reacted strongly against this interpretation and issued a statement intended to counteract it.

President Eisenhower helped write this statement, the administration source said today.

McCarthy, who had charged that the statement contained "completely false" and "entirely untrue" language on two points, Friday said he had nothing to add to that.

In the statement, which Eisenhower publicly endorsed, Stevens Thursday night insisted he had made the agreement only after receiving assurances that army witnesses would not be "browbeaten" by the subcommittee.

McCarthy stuck to his charge that was a "false" claim, contending that if he had agreed not to browbeat anyone in the future it would be the same as admitting he had browbeaten in the past. He denied having done this, and said future witnesses "will have the same consideration as in the past."

Threat To U.S.

strength has been reckoned between 40 and 60.

Attlee and the moderates had held for some time that before guns actually were given to the West Germans the Western powers should make one more effort to reach an understanding with Russia. That was the position taken by the party conference last fall.

Now, in Attlee's view, Berlin was that one last shot, and the Russians refused to make any concessions.

Harold Wilson, Bevan's chief lieutenant, said:

"The government are taking this Berlin (conference) breakdown, as it has been called, as the justification for a policy which may still decide the fate of Europe in a whole generation ahead."

Shakes Queen's Hand Woman Gets Polio

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — A 25-year-old Australian woman athlete who shook hands with Queen Elizabeth in Canberra last week, has been admitted to hospital with polio, it was learned today.

She is Mrs. Kim Beazley, former track champion and wife of a West Australian member of the federal parliament. Authorities at the hospital said her condition is "not very serious."

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh were both inoculated with gamma globulin during their visit to Canberra. Twenty-five cases of polio have been reported in West Australia.

May Export Atom Fuel In Future

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—Canada's atomic power chief has taken a look into the future and come up with two long-range forecasts.

William J. Bennett, president of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., says uranium-rich Canada some day may be shipping atomic fuels to other countries to operate their atomic power plants. She also may build packaged atomic power plants and export them to power-hungry areas of the world.

Mr. Bennett, in an address Friday night to the Port Arthur Chamber of Commerce, said atomic energy for peaceful purposes will play a major role in promoting peace and combating communism in underdeveloped countries. Through its use power-poor countries could raise their living standards and defeat poverty, one of the chief causes of political unrest.

He suggested the goal could be reached through implementation of President Eisenhower's plan to pool the atomic energy resources of world powers. This would make peacetime uses of atomic power available to all nations.

CONSIDER FUTURE

"If a way can be found to implement the Eisenhower plan we will have to look beyond our own boundaries and our own needs, when we consider the future of our Canadian atomic energy program," he said.

"Certainly we will have an important contribution to make from our fund of technical experience. It is also probable that we will be called upon to supply the fuels for atomic power plants. It is not beyond the realm of possibility that we may even export package power plants."

But Mr. Bennett said industrial application of atomic energy is not around the corner. It was from eight to 10 years away.

He said atomic power plants will play a major role in overcoming an electric power deficiency of 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 kilowatts expected in Canada by 1979.

Make Compromise

(Dispatches from Cairo are subject to Egyptian censorship. This Cairo story took nearly three hours to reach New York, but was evidently intact. Part of an earlier report on disorders had failed to get through.)

One of the first public signs of the crisis came when the government-run radio Cairo interrupted a program this morning and broadcast the council's warning three times.

But up to noon, there were no signs of fighting in Cairo.

Just who was revolting against the regime and how serious it might be remained a mystery.

Urgent defence measures at Abbassia indicated a pro-Naguib plot had been discovered. Countermeasures were being hastily organized. The army blocked traffic on the highway in front of the barracks and pistol-armed officers dashed in and out in jeeps.

NAGUIB ISOLATED

The council isolated Naguib for "a month or two" at his home under military guard at the time it announced he was being dropped on charges that he intended to turn the Nile republic "back to dictatorship."

Armed forces lined up again around the Marconi cable office in Cairo, where foreign correspondents file their dispatches, as they did the morning Naguib lost his jobs.

Red-fezzed police and army troops in battle gear were stationed in the main squares of Cairo, though traffic was permitted to move normally.

Police guards were augmented in Garden City, a foreign district that is the site of the United States and British embassies.

Jet fighters flew over the city.

Family Unhurt In House Fire

WARREN, Ont. (CP) — Heat from flaming walls was blistering the paint on a crib containing a four-month-old baby Friday when Mrs. Andre Thibeault picked up the child and ran from their blazing house.

Three other young children were also taken out of the Thibeault home to safety.

No one was hurt but the fire which gutted the newly-built house near this community 40 miles west of North Bay left eight persons homeless.

Three other children were at school when the fire broke out. Mr. Thibeault was at work.

He was born in Ireland. He visited Russia in mid-1930 to talk with Soviet leaders and to form his own impressions of the Russian people and their form of government.

Red Grip On Kashmir Stage 'Hate America' Drive

By PHILIP DEANE

DELHI (OFNS)—Communism is the chief beneficiary of the Kashmir dispute between India and Pakistan, which is flaring up again as a result of the proposed United States military aid to Pakistan.

Kashmir's Communists, who are now almost in complete control of the state, are using their powerful propaganda machine for a ceaseless "Hate America" campaign. Their latest propaganda effort is the "unmasking of the strategic and diplomatic designs of the Anglo-Americans in the heart of Asia." In a pamphlet reviewing a yet unpublished book, they name as chief United States spies and "agent provocateurs" Dr. Phil Edmonds of the Church Missionary Society, Mr. Donald E. Rugh of the Church Relief Committee and Miss Evelyn W. Hersey, the social welfare attache in the United States embassy in Delhi.

The pamphlet says: "They have been observed to be operating up-to-date equipment for recording speeches, filming, photographing and so on. A well-known foreign intelligence agent, Miss Stansbury, was seen to be in close contact with them. Sheikh Abdullah (former Premier of Kashmir) . . . maintained close liaison with them. This was apparently done on humanitarian and cultural grounds. But it is well-known that Miss Stansbury established contact with Sheikh Abdullah during his visits to the United States. Certain scandalmongers . . . attributed other non-political and less reputable motives to the Sheikh himself. But Miss Stansbury's game was much deeper."

GIVES CLUE

A clue to the reason for this attack is given on page 12 of the pamphlet—"they (the missionaries) have done good work in the field of education and medical relief. But their political and intelligence work has serious implications for the people of the country."

The work of these Western missionaries and welfare workers seems so to have impressed the people of Kashmir, that the Communists had somehow to try to discredit it.

The Communist climb to power in Kashmir started before the Second World War when Kashmir was fighting against the heavy-handed Hindu Maharajahs who ruled over the predominantly Muslim population. Led by Sheikh Abdullah, the people of Kashmir fought for constitutional concessions from their Maharajah, rather than independence from the British.

In his fight against the Maharajah, Sheikh Abdullah formed a party which he called "National Conference," and into which he took the Communists. Abdullah often explained his alliance with the Communists by saying that he could use their organizing ability in his fight against the Maharajah's despotism.

Another ally of Abdullah's in his struggle against the Maharajah was Mr. Nehru's Indian Congress Party.

ASKED INDIAN AID

When fighting started in Kashmir at the end of 1947, to decide whether the state would become a part of India or a part of Pakistan, the Maharajah—who, being a Hindu, feared Muslim Pakistan—asked for India's help. Mr. Nehru helped but he also demanded that his old friend Sheikh Abdullah be freed from the Maharajah's gaol.

The Maharajah fell from power. Abdullah, the leader of the only party in the state, became prime minister, and, not forgetting his Indian allies, he decided to join India, although he himself and nearly all his followers were Muslims.

Abdullah did not forget his other allies, either; the Communists and fellow-travellers were given top jobs in Kashmir's administration. Though not a Communist, Abdullah was attracted by Communist theories on land reform. The fellow-travellers in his government were put in charge of land confiscation. They adopted land reform measures closely parallel to those in Soviet Tajikistan which is only 40 miles from Kashmir's northern border.

Controlling land reform, however, was not enough for the Communists. Real power was still in the hands of Abdullah, so the Communists joined in a plot to overthrow him. Their chance came when, irritated by Hindu anti-Muslim activities in southern Kashmir, Abdullah started talking of independence from India, thus embarrssing Delhi. It became politically difficult for Mr. Nehru to support his old friend Abdullah.

As often happens in Eastern adventure stories, Abdullah had a lieutenant who was ambitious. This lieutenant, Bakshi Ghulam Mohammed, seized the opportunity given to him by the strained relations between the chief and India, and he carried out a coup d'etat and imprisoned Sheikh Abdullah, "the old Lion of Kashmir."

GAINED SUPPORT

After seizing power, Bakshi needed support against Abdullah's followers. He was given this support by the Communists in exchange for control over the police, the treasury and the propaganda machine.

The new rulers of Kashmir carried on with at least one of Abdullah's favorite policies. They continued to exploit the uncertainty of Kashmir's status to preserve a large measure of independence from India. India has to woo the Kashmir government because it is a government of Muslims who did not secede from India on religious grounds as did Pakistan. India would not like the Kashmir government to change its mind.

The present increased Indo-Pakistan tension over Kashmir is ostensibly due to a decision by the Kashmir constituent assembly to adopt the Indian constitution and thus "accede irrevocably to India." The decision itself does not worry Mr. Mohammed Ali, Pakistan's premier, because it is by no means a new decision. What does worry him is that, as a reaction against the United States military aid to Pakistan, India might accept the accession decision of the Kashmir assembly. That would be going back on Mr. Nehru's undertaking to let Kashmiris decide for themselves, by plebesicite, whether to join India or Pakistan. In that case Pakistan feels that there would be little she could do to prevent the union with India, which the Kashmir government demands.

This union, however, would be very conditional. The Communists and fellow-travellers in Bakshi's government want to adopt the Indian constitution but with the amendments they deem necessary so as to avoid any obstacles to the Communist path to absolute power in Kashmir.

Political observers in Delhi believe that the next obstacle the Communists will have to remove is Bakshi himself, the present premier, who helped them to power. That will fit the political pattern set in Czechoslovakia and also the pattern of retribution to faithless lieutenants traditional in Indian fairy tales.

General Motors Laying Off 975

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—General Motors Corp. today was reported preparing to lay off 975 workers at four plants in the Buffalo area, beginning Monday.

The Buffalo Courier-Express said 300 employees are scheduled to be laid off at the Chevrolet division plant here; 175 workers at Harrison division plants in Lockport, N.Y.

Alton A. Way, plant manager of the Chevrolet division, would not confirm the newspaper's figure, but he said layoffs are planned and "temporary" employees will be released.

Douglas B. Whitney, general division, said the newspaper's figures were "substantially correct," but added that changing conditions could reduce the number of layoffs.

The four plants employ about 11,000 workers.

STIRLING (ENS) — C. A. Baker, manager of the Trent Cotton Mills Ltd., has announced the establishment of a branch factory at Stirling. The site for the new factory will be the farm of C. B. Rollins which the company purchased recently.

Stirling was selected as the ideal site because it was accessible to provincial highways and had the proper type of manufacturing facilities, it was said.

The new plant will cost approximately $350,000 in building and equipment and will employ about 75 persons.

Compelte Jr. NCO's Course Nine Receive Certificates

A special graduation ceremony was held Friday night at the armouries for nine members of the 50th HAA Regiment upon the completion of a junior NCO course.

Those who passed the two-week course were: Acting Cpl. B. A. Graham, L/Bdr. A. W. Coakley, L/Bdr. A. L. Rowlandson, Gunners, R. J. Cooper, R. A. Corp, R. P. Francis. R J. Harvey, D. W. Kennedy and C. E. Spearin. Gunner Harvey is cadet major of the PCVS cadet corps and Gunner Francis is a lieutenant in the same unit. Gunner Spearin is cadet major of the Kenner Collegiate corps.

The graduates were inspected by Major R. Cummings, GSO 2 of the Eastern Ontario area, Major P. R. V. Carr-Harris, Lt.-Col. H. Hammell, commanding officer 50th Regiment, and Lt. E. H. Martin.

Following the general salute and the inspection, Gunner Francis took charge of the parade. L/Bdr. Coakley conducted a demonstration of weapon drill, followed by a another demonstration on drill, conducted by Gunner Cooper.

After the demonstrations, the graduating class marched past, led by the regimental band under Sgt. C. E. Gallagher.

Inspecting officer, Major Cummings, complimented the class on the high standard of proficiency, assuring them that they were on the way to both service and promotion within the regiment.

The certificates were presented before the march off.

The course is designed to qualify those holding the acting rank of bombadier and enable others to qualify for that rank. It included drill on weapons (bren gun, sten gun. rifle, grenades and the 3.5 rocket launcher), military law, techniques of struction, map using, range work and NCO duties.

Ottawa Players Complimented By Graham Suter

BROCKVILLE (CP)—The Saturday players of the Ottawa Little Theatre group were told Friday night that their presentation of "Blood Wedding" in the eastern Ontario drama festival rated high, both by endeavor and achievement.

Adjudicator Graham Suter said Ottawa's version of the play, written by Frederico Garcia Lorca, was a superb bit of theatre although the intangible piece of poetic symbolism probably didn't convey quite the tragedy the author intended.

Mr. Suter said the direction by Julia Murphy had been done exceptionally well.

From the large cast the adjudicator mentioned the performance of Marion Taylor as the mother, as being compelling. She played with great force and with complete confidence. He also said that the bride, played by Ruth Addelman, was outstandingly good in the last part of the play.

The bridegroom, Bill Armstrong, played his difficult part with gentleness but not weakness.

Lung Punctured In Car Accident

COBOURG (ENS) — Condition of Don Crossen, 35, at Cobourg hospital, badly injured in a car accident early Friday, is very serious. Several ribs were broken and a lung was punctured after the car in which he was riding rolled over several times on a county road north of Cobourg. With him was Tom Lapp, of Grafton, who escaped with lacerations. Crossen is a construction worker and has been working for several months in Cobourg. His home is at Huntsville.

Notice Improvement In Girl's Condition

COBOURG (ENS) — Lynda Simpson, 7 years old, who is in Cobourg hospital suffering from injuries received Wednesday night when apparently struck by a beer bottle thrown from a car near her home at Roseneath, is showing good progress. Brought to hospital in a stupor caused either by a fractured skull or concussion, she started to come out of it yesterday and brightened considerably. Possibility of a fractured skull has not been dismissed, but it becomes more unlikely as her condition improves.

Meanwhile, Provincial Police are continuing their investigation in an attempt to learn who was responsible for the injuries to the little girl.

Youth 16 Arrested After 2nd Deportation

FORT ERIE (CP)—A runaway 16-year-old Exeter, Ont. boy, who last week escaped local immigration authorities following his deportation from Buffalo, N.Y., was re-arrested Friday after a second deportation.

Police Chief Trevor Matthews said the youth had been deported via the Peace bridge today, following his arrest in Ohio. Last week he was picked up in Buffalo in possession of a sawed-off shotgun.

His parents in Exeter were called to come and get him.

Traditional Comedy Theme Hit With Modern Audience

The scold, who makes her husband's life miserable but gets her come-uppance in the end, is always a popular subject with less sophisticated theatre audiences.

Women in the audience chuckle appreciatively at her verbal barbs and are perhaps slightly envious at her ability to reduce her mate to a state of tongue-tied acquiescence.

Irreverent children in the audience revel in the sight and sound of a domestic squabble. It comes within the range of their own understanding and experience. And it's always nice to see the "old man" getting a blast.

PROPER WAY

Men, too, like this type of comedy. Before the curtain goes down on the last act the shrew is properly tamed and repentent. The male has got the upper hand at last. And that, reasons the lord and master of a leaky wartime house, is the way things should be. The way things were ordained by the Almighty.

All this is by way of saying that Friday night the St. George's Dramatic Club staged the comedy "Henpecked Henry" in the church hall, and the audience of 275 — men, women and children—enjoyed it.

The three-act play was all amateur talent—members of the congregation. Direction was by Mrs. Leslie Moore.

Proceeds are going toward the building fund of the new St. George's church, which so far has reached only the basement stage in construction.

It was only the second performance of the play and the first in Peterborough. Last Tuesday the cast went to Ida, and they already have bookings for Warsaw, Campbellford, Cobourg and Bethany. But they will not be playing again in St. George's Anglican church until April 23, after Lent.

As the title of the play suggests, the theme is that of the domestic salvation of a henpecked husband.

The plot revolves around the experiences of Henry Hyde or "Henpecked Henry" who goes away with a chum, Ace Bliss, one of those lads who thinks he has all the answers. Ostensibly the trip is to a convention but actually it is one of those well-known fishing trips.

The boys trespass while fishing and are thrown into the pokey. To reassure Henpecked Henry's suspicious wife, Ace sent away a telegram with something less than original wording. When it arrived at Henry's home it contained something less than the correct spelling, as well, because it read:

"Having a wonderful time, wish you were her".

That tore it as far as the old Battle Axe was concerned, and Henry was really in for it when he finally got back to his own hearth and home. A complication was the fact that he and Ace really did meet two girls while on their trip.

OUTSTANDING

Tops in the cast were the two principal characters: Tom McQuigge as "Henpecked Henry", and Mrs. C. H. Crouter as Erilla Hyde, his domineering wife.

There was also some romantic interest in a sub-plot, involving the Hydes' daughter and a neighboring boy.

Seats were all sold out in advance. Lots of fun and laughs. Everybody seemed to enjoy it from quiet old ladies munching fudge to the inevitable horde of kids who poked their heads under the stage curtains to watch the scenery being shifted between acts.

Clever Nuisances

Listening to the broadcast from Saskatoon on Thursday evening, in which Dr. Hilda Neatby and Dr. C. E. Phillips, head of the Ontario College of Education, debated certain educational problems, we were struck by a remark which Dr. Phillips made about clever people. Dr. Neatby had said that our Canadian school systems tend to pay much attention to children who are less than normally clever in school, and to neglect children who were more clever than the average. Dr. Phillips countered by saying that clever people tended to be nuisances, and could generally look after themselves without any help. Of course Dr. Phillips was speaking extemporaneously, and at that particular part of the argument we thought that he was not in perfect control of his temper. Under such circumstances a man may speak tactlessly, but he often says what he really thinks. If Dr. Phillips thinks that clever people are nuisances, we wish that he would, at some future time, expand his comment, and tell us why.

* * *

Not that we cannot see his point of view. Clever people are very often inconvenient. They ask embarrassing questions and they are not content with superficial answers. They sometimes twist the tails of sacred cows. They sometimes insist that an argument be confined to its real point, as Dr. Neatby did on Thursday night, and will not permit their opponents to wander off into quiet bypaths. But we question whether a man charged with directing the training of teachers in Ontario is wise to suggest that clever children are nuisances in schools, and may safely be left to their own devices.

* * *

We have never heard of a country which had too many clever people. We are certain that Canada is not such a country. We need all the clever people we can possibly produce, working at their best, to make our country great. But perhaps we should escape from that somewhat discredited word 'clever', which is not always used in a complimentary sense; let us say 'intelligent' instead. Surely it is the task of schools to help every pupil to use whatever intelligence he has to best advantage. It is certainly desirable that the pupil who lacks academic ability should be helped to find the direction in which his ability lies. Surely, also, we must face the bitter fact that there are some people who have no particular ability of any kind. And undoubtedly a school has a duty to help a child of unusual intelligence to recognize the advantages, and also the responsibilities, that go with that gift?

* * *

Let us not confuse democracy with the exaltation of mediocrity. Let us not be content with schools which are geared to the mediocre, and those below mediocrity, and which regards those above mediocrity as nuisances. Make no mistake about it, only those who rise above mediocrity will make a country great, and our educational system has a duty toward them no less clear than its duty toward the others. It comes as a shock indeed when we hear a man holding an important educational post sneering at brains.

Dreadful Prevalence Of Authorship

Yesterday we came upon some curious information about authorship in the U.S.A., reprinted from The Standard of Butte, Montana. How accurate its figures are, or where it gets them, we do not know, but this paper says that half a million Americans begin to write books every year and of this number an approximate 100,000 actually finish them. Of this number apparently 10,000 are published and 500 make what The Standard calls 'enough cash to make it worthwhile'. Perhaps 50 become best-sellers, and the Montana paper says that their authors 'become famous'.

There is a neatness about these calculations which disturbs us. We do not think that publishers, who are often very shrewd men, publish 10,000 books if only 500 of them are going to make any money. Of course, The Standard says 'enough money to make it worthwhile', and we do not know how much money that may be. Some authors are content with modest returns. We suspect that publishers who undertake to bring out a book which they do not think has an even chance of making a little money are very few, and do not remain publishers for long.

Now, about the 50 books which become best-sellers, and their writers, who become famous. A book may be a best-seller for reasons not closely connected with literary merit. Timeliness, a scandalous plot—many factors play a part in these sudden rushes into fame. But the fame of the best-seller may be short-lived. How many of our readers, under the age of 25, can name the authors of If Winter Comes, The Green Hat, Lavender and Old Lace, or The Girl of the Limberlost? All of these were best sellers in their day, and all are, in their way, good books. We question if any of their authors lived or died in luxury.

The sad fact is that an author, who receives a royalty on the sale of his book, may in a single year or two make very big sums, but he will also be very heavily taxed. He can, according to legislation now in force in Canada, spread his earnings over a three-year period, and this gives him some relief. But it is also a fact that, unless he works as an author and as nothing else, his royalties are taxed at the rate applied to investment income. The likelihood, then, that any author is going to be rich, or even substantially rewarded for his work, is so small that it can hardly be said to exist. Even the most outrageous, runaway success will profit the tax-collectors more than the writer.

These things considered, it is interesting that half a million people in the U.S.A. think of themselves, at some time, as authors. If we follow the U.S. in this as in other things, it means that about 50,000 Canadians think of themselves as writers, that 10,000 write books, that 1,000 are published and that 50 of these make money which would attract the interest of the Butte Standard. As Canadian books do not become best-sellers by any reckoning known to the U.S.A., we shall stop there. The figures seem high, but we doubt if they are far out of line.

A Plea To The C.B.C.

In our Third Column today we print a comment on the work of the late Dylan Thomas, who died suddenly and before his time last autumn. Although it is true that Thomas' work has enjoyed an unusual popularity since his death he was very well known to lovers of poetry before that, and in Britain he was known as the writer of some of the finest scripts for broadcasting that the B.B.C. ever presented to its hearers.

The last of these broadcasting scripts was a play called Under Milk Wood; it is not a play in the sense that it deals in incidents, for it has no plot; it is rather a description of a village by the sea, somewhat in the spirit of Thornton Wilder's very popular Our Town. We have had an opportunity to read it, and we thought it very fine, and worthy of a poet of great gifts.

It is not 'poetic' in the sense which makes so many people hate poetry. It is not high-flown, strained and remote from the ordinary feelings of ordinary people. It is, on the contrary, truly poetic, for it reveals and illuminates the beauty of ordinary life. It is full of keen observation, pathos and great humour. It has the quality of making us see part of life freshly.

It has been recorded by the B.B.C., and we utter this plea to the C.B.C. to get the recording and let Canadians hear it. A reciprocal arrangement exists between the two systems which makes this possible. We hope that the C.B.C. will undertake to make this fine work by one of the great writers of our time familiar to hearers in our country. For, after all, that is one of the things for which the C.B.C. exists.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Latest U.S. dance craze is called The Creep. Choose your partners accordingly.

Half a peanut supplies enough energy for an hour's mental work. Of peanut calibre, we have no doubt.

It is no more true to say that every man has his price than it is to say that every woman has her figure.

Insurance statisticians estimate that a man would have to possess an income of $20,000 a year before he could afford to pay for all the work which is normally done by a wife. Perhaps that's why two can live as cheaply as one!

In the recent celebration of Washington's birthday in the U.S.A., somebody revealed that George had an excellent recipe for brewing beer. Judging by some we have tasted in the nation which he founded, it was lost long ago.

A physician is quoted as saying that 'Not only is fun good medicine, but it's cheap'. This gives some comfort to those of us who, desiring to give the Canadian public a dose of medicine, have been accused of making cheap fun of serious things.

An Illinois clergyman has pleaded guilty to cashing $80,000 worth of bogus cheques, many of them while buying Bibles. There are several morals in this but the old Latin one which means that 'The cowl does not make the monk' seems the best of the lot.

Death Brought Him Honour

(A note on Dylan Thomas by Ron Evans, Canadian Press writer in London.)

By RON EVANS

DYLAN THOMAS loved a wry joke, and he might have relished this one. Six months ago he was a chubby young man in a worn duffle coat, unobtrusively drinking beer in a pub. Only the literary elite appreciated his rich and complex writing.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEN he died. Overnight he found a wider fame. Dylan Marlais Thomas, poet, romantic, vagabond—the improvident, almost penniless Welsh bard, the newspaper man who couldn't make the grade because he couldn't learn shorthand, the lyricist whose imagery gushed forth with almost explosive force—suddenly was heaped with honors denied him in life.

He died in a New York hospital, aged 39, Nov. 9. There followed spontaneous memorial services, a flood of genuinely-felt tributes, an awakening of interest in his near-neglected work. It was a remarkable emotional reaction, a phenomenon few great literary figures have evoked.

✧ ✧ ✧

HIS PUBLISHERS, J. M. Dent and Sons, reported demand for his work had multiplied five times since his death. Reprints are being rushed out and editors clamour for permission to include his poems and short stories in anthologies.

His verse radio drama, "Under Milk Wood," completed only a few days before he left for the United States, was produced three times within three weeks by the BBC and the Old Vic scheduled two more readings in the theatre.

Even more amazing was the response to memorial recitals of his work. Two such programs, featuring leading figures of the British theatre including Dame Sybil Thorndike, Emlyn Williams and Richard Burton, drew huge audiences, encompassing shopkeepers and students as well as scholars and artists.

✧ ✧ ✧

MANY of the 3,000 admirers who packed Festival Hall for a Sunday afternoon service wept throughout the program. The spontaneous recognition startled fellow writers in London. Said one: "T. S. Eliot is still alive and kicking but no one would think of hiring Festival Hall for readings of his poetry. It seems that Thomas' sudden death so young has caught the imagination of everyone—even those who never knew his writing before."

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS MAY also explain the response to money appeals for his young widow, Caitlin, and three children, Llewelyn, 14, Aeronwy, 10, and Coln, 4. So far £1,500 has been subscribed. Another £771 was contributed to a Welsh fund to bring Thomas' body back for burial in his native Laugharne.

✧ ✧ ✧

PERHAPS the most ironic twist came with the posthumous award, by the National Arts Foundation of New York, of the title "most outstanding artist of 1953." Later it was announced that Thomas had won an international poetry contest with a £575 cash prize.

Mrs. Thomas commented: "It is ironic that the money we needed so desperately when Dylan was alive should come now. He never knew I had entered his poetry for the prize. I wanted it to be a surprise for him when he returned from his poetry readings in America."

✧ ✧ ✧

THE TIDE of sentiment was swollen by literary magazines turning whole issues over for tributes to the Swansea school teacher's son. They recalled that his first collection, "Eighteen Poems," which appeared in 1934, was rudely received by critics who disliked his strange fierce and unfettered style.

Letter To The Editor

SHOCKED AND DISAPPOINTED

Sir: Your recent Editorial, "$1 To Fish", was shocking and very disappointig to say the least. Obviously, the many reasons given for not wanting a resident fishing license comes purely and simply from personal prejudice. You certainly were not thinking of the many true sportsmen and all those others who derive material benefit, and those who just feel close to God when fishing. Your paper speaks for those of us residing in Ontario's greatest tourist and fishing region, and yet you condemn the most constructive proposal put forth by the Ontario Legislature to help preserve this heritage. Just imagine what would happen to our wild animal life if hunting and gun licenses were not imposed. Surely, you would not expect a better fate for our fish!

Our fishing regulations are presently being abused by some local residents in bold defiance of our laws and by some weekend fishermen, mainly through ignorance. Both of these groups, if compelled by license to contribute to the cost of conserving our game fish would be less likely to abuse the privilege of catching them. The true sportsman and conservationist, "takes only what he can use", and will welcome a resident license.

I do not think it fair to allow the American tourist to pay our admission charge to the greatest sport of all. After all he pays his own way, not only in license but in goods and services thus, directly benefiting this and other communities.

I think you will agree that fish are a very important commodity in Ontario. Surely it is worth "$1", even to you to help conserve this wonderful sport and important industry.

Sincerely,
A. METCALFE

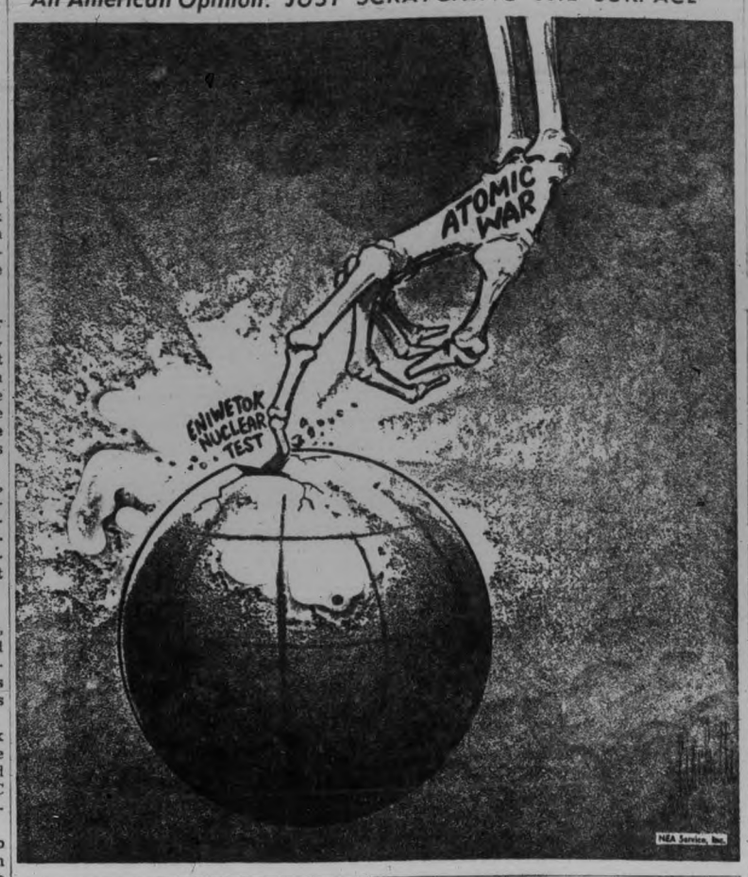
ED NOTE: We fully share our correspondent's enthusiasm for wildlife conservation and objected to the fishing license because we do not think it can be enforced. Unenforced laws breed contempt for the law.

Oshawa's Debenture Debt

(Oshawa Times)

It is not surprising to find, from a report presented to the city council, that the debenture debt of Oshawa is due to rise to a total of around eight million dollars within the next two years. This was bound to happen. When it is considered that for nearly two decades capital construction of civic and educational buildings and facilities stood still, while the city continued to grow, one cannot escape the conviction that rapid increase in debenture debt was inevitable. Annexation aggravated the needs for municipal services, and naturally, these have to be paid for in the form of capital expenditures.

An American Opinion: JUST SCRATCHING THE SURFACE



Dreadful Old Churchill

(FROM THE MANCHESTER GUARDIAN)

WHEN Mr. Gladstone was 83 and showing what many of his contemporaries thought was a most reprehensible reluctance to retire, Lord Randolph Churchill said cynically, "Mr. G. will be in his prime somewhere about the middle of next century." Here we are at the middle of the next century and the pack is in full cry again.

Queen Victoria railed against her two most internationally respected ministers — Palmerston and Russell — as the "two dreadful old men."

Sir Winston Churchill must have been getting some ironical satisfaction out of the thought that the only two great prime ministers before him to be assailed for being past their work were Palmerston and Gladstone both of whom at over 80 showed more vigor than most other first ministers 20 years their juniors. He is not, perhaps, as nimble on his feet as Palmerston, who used to climb up railings to see if he was losing his agility, or Gladstone, who was knocked down by a cow in Hawarden Park and said nothing about it until at dinner someone mentioned that there was a strange cow wandering about. "Oh, yes!" he said, "I met it and it knocked me down."

These dreadful old men are tough, as anyone who has crossed swords with the Prime Minister in the House in the last week or two knows. Sir Winston may not do spectacular physical feats any longer, but there does not appear yet to be much wrong with his brain and he can still fire a rifle.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHY then all the fuss and the yapping? What has Sir Winston done to let down either the country or his party? He is not at loggerheads with any of his ministers nor, as were Palmerston and Gladstone, with his Queen. He can write a better state paper and make a better speech than any of his ministers.

He is not done for yet, though obviously the question of retirement must be always in his mind. He has a high public conscience and, like Gladstone, he is not the man to persist when he is sharply failing. Where does the pressure come from?

This is hardly a Cabinet bursting with potential prime ministers, Palmerston had an even abler successor pressing on behind him — Gladstone. Gladstone had at his heels Rosebery, Harcourt, Morley, to say nothing of Asquith and others — all abler than all but one or two of the present Cabinet.

Who is in line? There is no pretence among the critics that Mr. Eden is not the successor designate with Mr. Butler as runner-up. Why the urgency to get the old man out of the way? Mr. Eden is worthy enough but hardly a man of force. Sir Winston for all his supposed senility has still more dynamism and fire. It is not pretended that Mr. Butler can yet hope to push aside Mr. Eden, although he would probably be the abler prime minister. Mr. Eden has a job to do which may occupy him some months. (Here again, if he becomes prime minister what Tory can become foreign secretary? It is a pretty bare field.)

Sir Winston has still something to contribute towards the guidance of foreign policy from his store of wisdom. Why try to force him out?

✧ ✧ ✧

IT will be said of course, that the voice of the Gallup poll has spoken. Replying to a slightly weighted question over half the questioned said they thought Sir Winston too old and nearly half that it would be better for the country that he should go now.

Apparently these feelings were strongest in the Opposition parties. Labour, now in its leadership so much a party of the old and ageing, seems to be a little inconsistent, unless it is governed mostly by electoral considerations.

Probably the root feeling behind the poll is that in the Welfare State everybody, from plumber to prime minister, ought to get on the shelf at 65 or 70, and that it is bad trade unionism to stay on. Still the real test for the country is whether we have a bad prime minister or not. The general verdict, the pollsters notwithstanding, must be that we have had a great many worse and no better one is in immediate sight.

Of course, Sir Winston will not be in his Gladstonian and Palmerstonian prime for ever. Probably he will not try to break the astounding records of these dreadful old men. But he is wise enough to know when to retire.

He has acquired in the mellowness of his later years a fine sense of timing. He will go out with a flourish and with honour. Why not leave it to him to choose the occasion?

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

When the morning was come, all the chief priests and elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death . . . And they crucified him, and parted his garments, casting lots: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet. They parted my garments among them, and upon my vesture did they cast lots. (Matt. 27:1, 35.)

✧ ✧ ✧

In the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it . . .

And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay. And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: lo I have told you . . .

Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them . . . And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen. (Matt. 28:1, 2, 5-7, 16, 18-20.)

Mysterious Carvings

(Brantford Expositor)

Carved stones, described as "mysterious" have been found about five miles east of Kingston, Ontario, at Abbey Dawn, woodland retreat of the Canadian poet and historical novelist, Wallace Havelock Robb.

Mr. Robb described the carvings as similar to those found in Mexico, but neither he nor anyone else in the vicinity has a clue as to how they got to Abbey Dawn.

Now had these markings been Scandinavian runes, we might hope that Mr. Robb's rocks would rival Minnesota's famous and much-argued-about Kensington Stone. The latter, it now seems pretty well established, was carved by a member of an exploring party of Norsemen. If this is substantiated, the legends about the Vikings penetrating far inland in America will become history.

As has often been remarked in these columns, Brantford has some interest in this matter, the Brantford Axe now in the Royal Ontario Museum is considered to be of Norse origin and there is also, at the local museum a little head carved of bone and represented as wearing something that bears considerable resemblance to one of the horned helmets fashionable among the Vikings.

The late J. W. Curran of The Sault Ste. Marie Star wrote seriously and convincingly of archealogical finds in his district and held that this part of the world, not some area much further south, was Vineland the Good.

Recent discoveries on Manitoulin and elsewhere have shown that men were in these parts many centuries ago, long before the coming of the Vikings, Columbus or any of the relatively late arrivals. Some of the old-timers may even have antedated the aboriginal people commonly but incorrectly known as Indians. There may have been other migrations, also, and it is possible that Mr. Robb's treasures will throw further light on this fascinating subject. We hope the authorities at the museum have been called in on the case.

Guns By Number

(Strix in The London Spectator)

"The Gatling's jammed and the Colonel's dead!" wrote Newbolt; and though, with his schoolboy relish for technical terminology, might have been just as happy writing "The FN's jammed," I doubt if the line would have stuck so firmly in posterity's mind.

I really do think it is time that we started giving our weapons decent names. The EM2, and not the EM2, is to replace the SMLE Mark IV; and soon the Sten is to be superseded by the L2A1, which at an earlier stage of its evolution was known, not unonomatopoetically, as the Patchett gun. Why, in the names of Martini-Henry and of Hotchkiss, shouldn't it go on being known as the Patchett gun? Or, better still, why doesn't Mr. Head, the Minister of War, set up a committee to see that a soldier's personal weapons are given good names, as tanks and aircraft are?

The Bren (by Brno out of Enfield) represents a modest flight of the military imagination (or was it excogitated by some madcap in the Ministry of Supply?); but it almost the only recent deviation from a tendency to use either unnecessarily long designations, like Armoured Personnel Carrier, or meaningless numerals; what our fathers called a Mills bomb has become a No. 36 grenade.

Here and there the specialists have been permitted to christen their inventions sensibly; there is a flame thrower called a Wasp, a rather unreliable rocket for making gaps in barbed wire called a Viper. In my view there ought to be more of this sort of nomenclature. If a man is already slightly uncertain in his own mind whether he is fighting for NATO or for EDC, to send him into battle in a DUKW, brandishing his faithful L2A1, is needlessly to weaken his grip on essentials.

Living History Of County To Be Found In Registry Office

Greatly Increased Volume Of Records And Business Crowds Office To Capacity

By NICK NICKELS

As soon as man ceased being a nomad and settled down on a piece of land he called his own he has been in trouble making record of it, of parcels sold, of portions and whole properties willed to heirs. Were it not for some central place where these records could be meticulously kept, transactions by memory would be an impossibility, even in the life span of the land owner concerned.

The ancient machinery of justice from the earliest times made provision for recording land transactions. Methods of British land law jurisdiction were brought to Canada with the first settlers. It might be said that the machinery for this record-keeping was instituted as soon as the land surveyors had run their transit lines through the virgin bush. Such was the case in the Peterborough district.

Before Peterborough county was set aside out of the original Newcastle district land records were kept in Cobourg and, as soon as a building was provided for it in the "village", land transfer documents were transferred from Cobourg to Peterborough when the documents had application in these parts. The Children's Aid society occupies the orignal county registry office building which was used for this purpose until 1929.

At that time the registrar and his records moved to new quarters on the north side of the court house building and have been there ever since.

FIVE COUNTY REGISTRARS

Genial registrar John Richard Corkery was appointed county registrar in 1947. He follows a distinguished line of contemporaries who held the office so long that there have only been four others since the old office was first opened in 1840.

Pioneer Captain Charles Rubidge, R.N., was the first; he carried on the duties of registrar until his death in 1873. Col. F. W. Haultain succeeded him for the next 10 years followed by Bernard Morrow who held the appointment for 38 years, until 1922. His son, William Frederick Morrow, was registrar for the next 24 years until the appointment of Mr. Corkery seven years ago. The term "appointment" means that the position is given by the department of the Attorney-General at Queen's Park and the duties of a registrar are under the constant scrutiny of the inspectors of legal offices in that department.

TWO SYSTEMS OF REGISTRY

There are two systems of registry in Ontario at present. In the older settled parts of the province, and this includes Peterborough, registry offices keep a record of registrations, and the searching of all documents must be done by individuals or their appointed legal services.

In newly-settled parts of Ontario the land titles system is in effect. In this the local master of titles keeps all the titles up to date and issues certificates to that effect upon request.

The Peterborough county registry office handles the recording of the inumerable legal "instruments." These are Crown grants; deeds; mortgages; discharge of mortgages; leases; certificates of proceedings in which titles to land are in question; mechanic leins; probates of wills and letters of administration (those who die without leaving a will).

The office records all money by-laws affecting land in one city (Peterborough), three villages (Havelock, Lakefield and Norwood) and 15 townships.

Any citizen upon payment of a set fee may examine the documents in the registry office. He might be the bookish type who wants to see some authentic early records, but if he has any idea that he might trace the ramifications of transfers of some particular parcel of land, he will give up in disgust and call in his lawyer to do the painstaking job.

There is on record, for instance, a 200-acre parcel of land in North Monaghan township designated as Lot 12, Concession 13, that spills into three monstrous ledgers for a total of some 800 registrations. The first entry is dated 1818.

CONTINUING HISTORY

Records in the registry office are a continuing history of city and county. There are large parchment Crown Land deeds complete with plate-sized seals dating back to the early 1800's. There are instruments with the signatures of Sir John Alexander Macdonald who was a large landowner in Otonabee township. Sir John Colborne, Sir Isaac Brock, Sir Perigrine Maitland, John Graves Simcoe, the Hon. Zacheus Burnham, Capt. Rubidge, are but a few names of men prominent in Canadian and district history.

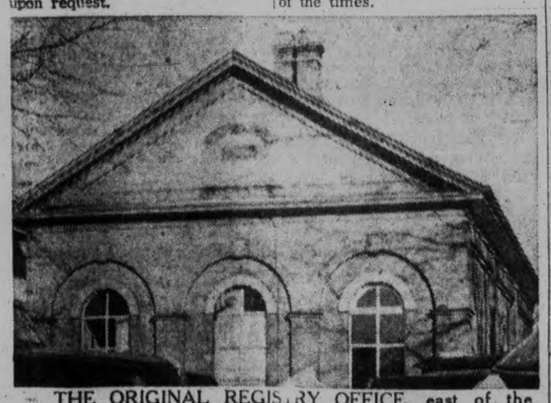
There is also the printed will of the city's benefactoress, Charlotte Jane Nicholls, which, signed in a hospital in New York city, lists how her fortune was to be distributed. There is living history in the records of the county registry office.

Gross receipts of office business which amount largely in searching fees are substantial and pay the salaries of assistant registrar Madeline Flynn and Helen Huppe and a junior stenographer. These are not meant to purchase the required ledgers and paper forms, metal book stacks and instrument files that crowd the fireproof "search" room from floor to ceiling. This is paid for by city and county each year.

From copperplate writing to typewriting of records will come the microfilming of them, Mr. Corkery is sure. Such modern methods would be in step with the current registering of uranium claims in the northern part of the county and all other instruments of the recording of land. Film recording will have to be used sooner or later, or, an addition built to the present office to handle the volume of work instigated by the current building boom in the district. The registry office must, and will, keep abreast of the times.

A SEARCHING FINGER FOLLOWS the many written instruments of land transactions at the county registry office. It is no work for the novice, for the above photo shows the record of Lot 1, Concession 13; North Monaghan township. In three large ledgers there are some 800 entries pertaining to this one property; the first starts in 1818.

THE GROWTH OF LAND REGISTRATION is displayed by Helen Huppe (left) and assistant registrar Madeline Flynn who examine a small handbook that records five years of business from 1840 onward. The large city and county registry ledgers in front of them record about four years of current transactions.



THE ORIGINAL REGISTRY OFFICE, east of the court house, was abandoned for larger quarters in the court house building in 1929. It is now occupied by the Children's Aid society. (Examiner Staff Photos)

COUNTY REGISTRAR John Richard Corkery has held the appointment for the past seven years. There were only four others before him since the original appointment was made in 1840.

Your Garden:

Plant A Tree For Summer Comfort From Terrific Heat

By HENRY PREE

A cooler home is possible next summer without fans, blowers, or other electrical gadgets. Just plant a tree this winter. The many home owners who sweltered in the August and September hot spells will be surprised to learn indoor temperatures can be reduced 20 degrees or more by strategically shading off the sun.

It's especially easy for owners of ranch or bungalow, one-storey homes. Simply plant a fairly mature tree which will shade a sizable portion of the roof and the west or south wall.

Tree planting is safest after leaves have fallen and tree is dormant, according to some experts. Fall or winter are ideal times to move in a good-sized tree. Good shade trees are maple, oak, linden and thornless honey locust. Check the type of tree with the locality, since certain trees grow better in one area than in another.

To locate your tree for maximum shade and cooling, careful advance planning must be done so that it will be placed where its shade will be cast over the proper part of the home at the desired time of day during the hot months.

Winter, too, is the ideal season for removing dead, dying, dangerous and unwanted trees. The condition of these trees won't improve with spring. It is much simpler to remove them while they are dormant, while gardens are abandoned and while lawns are fairly firm or solidly frozen.

In spring and summer, the problem of the removal is complicated by growing vegetation all around. The tree surgeon may spend as much time protecting lawns, shrubs and flower gardens as in the actual removal process.

Winter removal requires skill and care, but the task is easier and usualy less expensive than at other times, specially the chores of cleanup and disposal.

Always plant a tree so that it will be an aid in providing shade for your home.

Although dangerous trees may appear less hazardous without their leaf burdens, these trees are the first to succumb to winter storms, with ice, snow or howling winds to batter them. If there is any doubt as to the safety of dormant trees, the best and cheapest insurance is to consult a qualified tree expert.

He can diagnose a hibernating tree's condition as well as when it is in full leaf. And, if removal is needed, he can eliminate the risk of falling trees when winter gales are raging.

A-F-I-E-L-D with NICK NICKELS

There is no subject that is causing more stir in these parts than the proposed $1 resident fishing rod fee that the department of lands and forests is mulling over at the present time.

The view of the average fisherman: Why should we pay for a privilege that we have always enjoyed?

The opinion of law makers: The grand ride on the gravy train of unlimited fishing is all over. We have bent over backwards for years now to attract tourist fishermen, Canadian workmen have more leisure time to fish and there are no longer enough limit catches for all. Hatcheries, nor law enforcement measures can no longer control the depletion and, if sportsmen want fishing to continue in modified form, money for a 10-year conservation plan must be raised to finance it.

Our personal opinion: Fishermen who think nothing of investing from $75, away up, on equipment, boats, motors and bait shouldn't buck at one buck if they know they and their heirs will still be able to enjoy fishing indefinitely. Hunters pay a dollar gun license without batting an eyelid; they probably raised the same holler when that law was enforced, too.

Many years ago a railroader, Fred La Rose, threw a track hammer at a fox and missed it but the crude weapon bounced off some strange-looking rock that proved to be cobalt. This, so the legend has it, is how the greatest cobalt-silver camp in the world was located.

Same thing happened at Centre Lake Uranium Mines north of Paudash Lake a few days ago. Surveyor-axeman Lawrence Green, 23, of Bancroft sat down to rest on a log while brushing out a survey line and a hibernating bear popped out of the end of it. Green slipped out of his snowshoes, belted the bear twice with his axe and killed it. If snow had not been on the ground Green might have dislodged some rock and uncovered the hottest uranium strike this side of Great Bear Lake. Instead, he skinned the bear.

The Ontario department of Travel and Publicity have tabulated American tourists dislikes in an endeavour to point out what improvements can be made by our resort operators. Perhaps this prompted Jim McHattie of the T and P to visit Peterborough recently to survey the possibilities of holding a three-day resort owners' course. It may be here or in Belleville or not at all, depending on the response that invitation letters draw.

Fan letter-writer Perry Alexander of Cleveland, Ohio, sobs from the Everglades:

"Another link of the past has gone with the fishing, the Gannons Narrows Bridge. Soon there will be paved highways from town to Buckhorn via the new causeway and what remains of our back country will disappear.

"Well, Nick, ten-cent whiskey and twenty-cent beef have gone, too, and we have managed to survive, so I, along with you old timers can only say:

" 'It was great while it lasted'."

(Regardless of all the changes Perry says he will welcome spring so he can get back to God's country where he belongs.—Ed.)

We mentioned something last week about movie lecturer Dick Bird who will show his latest film epic for the Peterborough Nature Club on March 3. We met him and his wife last year and enjoyed listening to some of his experiences in the movie field.

A native of Regina, Mr. Bird has, from time to time, "shot" his way around the globe but found free-lancing his forte. He is one of the experts who does piece work for Walt Disney's famous nature series on sequences of rock rabbits, wood sheep and mountain goats. Dick's lecture film last year on Newfoundland was splendid and his large audience may expect something of high calibre next Wednesday with his latest offering "Alphabet of the Outdoor." See you there.

As the nightly loser in the family battle of grabbing off the newspaper I sulked in the corner the other evening with a copy of great-uncle Uriah's "3,700 Facts for the People" and came up with the solution which I cut out and nailed to the living room wall.

HINTS FOR WIVES — Never complain that your husband pours too much over the newspaper, to the exclusion of that pleasing converse your formerly enjoyed with him; don't give it to the children to tear; don't be sulky when the boy leaves it at the door, but take it in pleasantly and lay it down before your spouse.

"Think what man would be without a newspaper; treat it as a great agent in the work of civilization, which it assurely is; and think how much good newspapers have done by exposing bad husbands and bad wives, by giving their errors to the eyes of the public.

"But manage you in this way: when your husband is absent, instead of gossiping with neighbours, or looking into shop windows, sit down quietly and look over that paper. Run your eye over its home and foreign news; glance rapidly at the accidents and casualties; carefully scan the leading articles and, at tea time, when your husband takes up the paper, say,

"My dear, what an awful state of things there seems to be in Toronto," or, "What a terrible calamity down at the gas works."

You may depend on it, down will go the paper.

If he has not read the information he will hear it all from your lips, and when you have done, he will ask,

"Did you, my dear, read Simpson's letter upon the discovery of chloroform?"

And whether you did or not, you will gradually get into as cozy a chat as you ever enjoyed. And you will soon discover that, rightly used, the newspaper is the wife's real friend, for, it keeps the husband at home, and supplies capital topics for everyday table talk.'

Baker-Charlton In Finals Badminton Play

A big entry started play Friday evening at the annual Central Ontario badminton championship tournament held this year at the RCAF Station, Trenton. Mixed doubles, senior men's doubles and the singles will take over most of today's play, with the finals being held tonight. Competitors were entered from Peterborough, Bowmanville, Cobourg, Oshawa, Ajax and Trenton.

Mrs. Bob Baker and Mrs. Ralph Charlton of Peterborough reached the finals last night in the ladies' doubles to go against Ruth Thompson and Doreen Reddock of Oshawa. In men's doubles, Charlton and McDonald of the Peterborough Badminton Club went into semi-finals Friday night against last year's champion pair, Burgess and Tighe of Bowmanville. Two other pairs from here, Ed Johnston and Bob Baker as one duo and Roy Johnston and Ken Butt on the other, were busy in consolation playoffs late last night.

Argentine Golfer Ties In Mexican Open

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo Friday shot a tournament record five-under-par 67 to forge into a tie for the lead with Johnny Palmer of the United States in the Mexican open.

The Argentine, who won the Mexican title last year, thrilled his large gallery with the best golf of the match to date, turning in a 33-34—67 to bring his total for the first two days to 139.

Palmer, from Charlotte, N.C., shot a first nine 37 but tightened up on the back nine with a 34 for a 71.

Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ont., was one of seven in the top 20 tied at 145.

SPEEDY DUCKS

EARL McCREADY, above, who will replace Fred Atkins as partner for HOMBRE MONTANA when they tangle with AL and TINY MILLS in a tag team match at the Brock next Wednesday. Husky Earl should be an able partner against the horrible Mills Bros. A newcomer, Big IKE EAKINS, will show in the semi-final against another newcomer the GOLDEN HAWK.

...h wrestlers are highly-rated and many fans have asked to see the Golden Hawk in action. TOAR MORGAN returns to the local scene meeting up with FIRPO SZYBSKO in the opener.

WINNER AND RUNNER-UP—Chum Fryia (at left) was voted the most valuable player for the Petes last year, receiving the Drummond Memorial Trophy at last night's game, as well as several other gifts. Playing coach Eddie Redmond (right) was runner-up to Chum, and he also received fitting recognition for a fine season's play.

Petes Beat The K's In 7-3 Tussle With Strong Finish

Battling bitterly in a last desperate drive to finish in top place before the OHA senior "B" group schedule ends tonight, the Petes broke a 2-all deadlock in the third period here last night to roll to a 7-3 victroy over the third-place Kingston Goodyears. Both teams were fighting to improve their positions for semi-final playoffs coming up early next week, and they showed more than 1200 fans a preview of group playoff hockey. It was fast, hard but clean all the way, with a lot of smart puck artistry served up on both sides.

Petes led 2-0 in the first period but it was 2-all to end the second. Kingston scored first in the third, but the homesters finished strong to blast five more in and clinch matters, two of the goals coming in the last minute and 10 seconds of play. Petes drew four of the six minor penalties.

BELISLE STARS

Rod Belisle turned in an outstanding performance for the Petes with a goal and four assists. Denny Peterson clicked for a marker and he helped on two more. Doc Prentice scored twice, and Ted Collins aided on two. Single markers were notched by Bert Hill, Bill McMaster and Bill Crowley. The Kingston counters were by Kenny Partis, Ted Nicholson and Don Murray, while an assist apiece was marked to George McGregor, Jack White, Jim Olinski and Joe Watts. Both goalies kicked out plenty of rubada with thefirst settlers. It might ber.

Montgomery went off early for interference and Belisle followed for tripping, but there wasn't a shot on Donlevy's cage in their absence as the Petes checked closely. Crowley later scored on a fast dash in from the side and angle shot with Collins' pass. Peterson made a good try and then was hurt when he banged into the goal-post but he returned to play shortly. Myke and Crowley were chased for high-sticking, both being back when Prentice cuffed home a fine passout in the corner from Belisle.

KINGSTON BETTER

While the Petes had a good margin on play in the first frame, the second period belonged to the hustling Goodyears. They got two goals and should have had several more on their play but for quick work by goalie Donlevy, aided by his defence. Murray scored early from Watts and McGregor, a rebound finishing off a close-in thrust with the goalie sprawling from one save. A Crowley-Hill thrust made Johnson step but then Partis hit the right side of the post and it went in on a fast drive with White and Olinski earning assists on the stab. The latter drew a cross-checking penalty later, and Greenlaw tested Johnson. Later in the frame Montgomery got the nod for tripping but was back as the period ended with no further scoring.

PETES ERUPT

In the third, the Hill line pressed plenty at the start in fast, clean play. A bit later, Kingston claimed a goal when the light went on back of the Petes' net, but the puck wasn't in and the goal was not allowed. Nicholson scored Goodyears' last marker with an angle screened shot on a solo try. The Petes caught fire then to swarm in repeatedly on the Johnson citadel. Belisle scored first from Peterson with a carom off a play helping befuddle the goalie. McMaster got the third tally of the period within a minute when he blasted home a passout on a play fashioned by Belisle and Peterson. Fryia and Peterson in turn were robbed and then Prentice picked off Belisle's pass on a corner faceoff to score. It was fairly even for a spell and the Petes then erupted once more in the final two minutes, Hill counting on a nice play in close from Collins, and Peterson rapping home Belisle's pass to end it.

Teams:

Kingston — Goal, Johnson; defence, Goodfellow and Nicholson; centre, Myke; wings, Catlin and Gerow; alternates, Partis, White, Olinski, Murray, Tinkess, McGregor, Watts, Londry and McKeown.

Petes — Goal, Donlevy; defence, Montgomery and Munroe; centre, Hill; wings, Crowley and Collins; alternates, Leonard, Fryia, Greenlaw, Belisle, Prentice, Peterson, Armstrong, Redmond and McMaster.

Jack McNamara, Joe Stewart, Joe Lowrey and some others are planning to hold a senior baseball meeting here next week to see what can be done about entering the revived Ceneral Ontario Baseball League this year. Closing date for entries is at a March 7 meeting in Belleville. Three definite entries so far: Oshawa, Kingston and Belleville, while Smiths Falls and Watertown have expressed interest in entries if a proper schedule can be worked out. Watertown, for instance, would have to make it weekend double-headers on the longer trips both ways. However, we believe that if the Petes enter, the circuit will be a four-team oldtime COBL. All these parks have floodlights.

Doug Vaughan remarks that basketball continues to undergo changes in rules and that few fans who haven't see basketball in the last 10 years could explain one-third of the present code. There is a definite feeling that modern defence borders strongly on intentional fouls to prevent the other team from gaining the advantage with a possible field goal. The defence gives up a point on a free throw for the chance of scoring two themselves by getting the ball after a free throw attempt. One authority is against the "one-one" free throw rule, the "three-minute" rule near the end of the game, and the penalty banishing a player for committing a fifth personal foul. We may see some new rule changes another year.

No OLA Play For Ike

Ike Hildebrand is coming along okay after suffering a fractured leg playing for Chicago Hawks some time ago in an NHL game at Toronto. But he may be in a cast for several months yet, and definitely will not play lacrosse this season for the Petes' Trailermen. We didn't expect he'd be able to resume the gutted-stick game once he made the National Hockey League, as NHL monguls frown on unlue summer-time injury risks taken by their chattels. Ike has been assured that his berth with the Hawks remains for him next hockey season, so he'll spend the summer quietly while the leg heals for another pro puck campaign. In 38 games with Rangers and Hawks he had seven goals and 11 assists for 18 points, a good rookie showing.

The Petes sure finished strongly against Kingston Goodyears here last night to rap in five goals to one and break the 2-all tie at the end of the second frame. It wound up 7-3 and the goodly gallery of fans on deck must have realized that, on the night's play, the TPT-ers rated it. They all played fine hockey, and we ran some of their pitcures today. Unfortunately (and it happens all the time) one guy is missing when the photographer goes around at a practice to get pix, so Rod Belisle — in on five goals last eve — hasn't a picture. But they were all hustling and it was a fast, surprisingly clean contest, though both sides wanted the win badly as they jockey for playoff spots coming up early next week. Petes are still in the hunt for first as Orillia beat Oshawa 4-3. First home playoff for the Petes is Wednesday.

Chum Most Valuable

Before the tilt got underway, a pleasant little ceremony took place. Chum Fryia, classy winger and Petes' high scorer for the season, received the Jimmy Drummond Memorial Trophy as most valuable player on the team this semester. With the big trophy (held for a year) and a smaller replica to keep, Mrs. Drummond gave the winner a $25 shopping certificate and a lovely bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Fryia. Chum also won a suit of clothes from Dunn tailors, and a handsome dinner set from the Toronto-Peterborough Transport Co. Also, he got a fine bomber jacket and an unique hockey ashtray stand from Ashby's Sporting Goods. He certainly did well, eh? As runner-up, playing coach Eddie Redmond received a suede jacket from the hockey club.

Looking over the local hoop scene after a busy e'en we rather expect about half a dozen high school girls' and boys' squads from here to make COSSA playoffs next month. PCVS junior girls trounced Cobourg to open their series, and the senior lasses are in. PCVS senior boys lost to Oshawa Central here but won the round by three points, while the junior PCI-ers won the first playoff o'er Pickering High. Collis colleens put up a great scrap against Toronto Trotters to win here last p.m. but they lost their LOBA series by just two points. A toughie. St. Mike's proved too strong for SPS seniors and juniors in OCC playoffs Friday. There'll be three school playoff tilts this eve at St. Peter's, Port Hope and Bowmanville supplying the opposition, the first fray going at seven.

Sorry to hear of the death of genial Art Moffatt, a former City Baseball League prexy and one-time organizer of a horse-shoe pitching loop here . . . DEAD HEAT—The verdict in the 60 yard high hurdles at the National Amateur Athletic Union meet went to Jack Davis of Los Angeles, bottom, but phototimer showed a virtual dead heat between Davis and Harrison Dillard, of Cleveland. That's Pete McCreary, of Dartmouth, in third place.

KEEP GOING—Kim Woodling, 3, keeps an eye on pop, outfielder Gene Woodling of the Yankees, as he goes through some bicycle road work at St. Petersburg, Fla. Woodling led New Yorkers with .306 last year, and his trainer-daughter is making sure he doesn't let down.

Marmora Gets TVL Series Over Hastings

MARMORA (ENS) — Marmora's TVL hockey team went into the finals of the northern section of their league on Friday evening in a hard-fought game which ended with the score 8-4 in their favor over Hastings.

It was their third straight win but although Hastings arrived with only 10 players they extended Marmora and some brilliant saves by Mulholland, their goalie, kept the score down. Oliver, Stephenson and Hillen got in on the goal list but the veteran Hill along with McGillen and Allen turned in a good game.

It was the first time for Brown of Marmora to accomplish the hat trick and in addition he got an assist. Jones added two more goals to his season's record and also had two assists. Each team got five penalties but there was little roughing. The attendance was back to the 300 mark once again.

Marmora goal, Killian; defence, Gray and Leonard; centre, Maynes; wings, Lavender and K. Trumble; alts.: Doyle, Darrah, E. Trumble, Brown, Jones, Smith, Nayler, Paranuik.

Hastings: goal, Mulholland; defence, Sullivan and Hill; centre, Stevenson; wings, Killan and Ford; alts.: Allen, West, Oliver, McGillen.

Referees, G. McFaul, R. Fitzpatrick.

FIRST PERIOD

Hastings—Killen (McGillen)	4:38
Marmora—Maynes (Paranuik, Smith)	12:35
Hastings—Oliver (Hill)	12:45
Marmora—Jones (Brown)	16:40

Penalties—Gray, Nayler.

SECOND PERIOD

Marmora— Brown (Darrah)	4:30
Marmora—Brown (Darrah)	10:58
Hastings—Stevenson (West, Ford)	13:05
Marmora—Smith (Paranuik, Leonard)	14:50
Hastings—Oliver (Allen)	15:05
Marmora—Jones	17:48

Penalties—Leonard Ford.

THIRD PERIOD

Marmora—Lavender (Jones, Leonard)	4:07
Marmora—Brown (Leonard, Jones)	9:57

Penalties — Paranuik, Stevenson, Leonard, Allen (2), Oliver.

Marmora now plays the winner of the Havelock-Campbellford series to decide the championship of the northern section.

Port Hope Rubs Out Lakefield Pucksters

PORT HOPE (ENS) — In a fine playoff hockey contest before a big and noisy crowd here Friday night, Port Hope Redmen defeated Lakefield Lumbermen 5-3 to capture their OHA intermediate "A" lakeshore group semi-final series. They had previously won two and tied on, while losing one in the best-of-five series. Lindsay Muskies open best-of-seven group finals in Port Hope on Monday, second one being in Lindsay Wednesday, and then back to Port Hope next Friday.

It was 1-1 last night but Ned Vitarelli's scrappy squad rolled to a 5-1 lead to end the second. Lakefield fought furiously to outscore the Redmen 2-0 in the third but couldn't come closer owing to some fine netminding. Both goalies Red Wasson and Ray Harding were tops again.

Freeman, Medhurst, Buckton, Racine and Al Lintner did the scoring for the winners, while Caravaggio, Hunter and Floyd tallied for Lakefield. The game was well handled by Referees Lecompte and Holway, though Dean Wasson drew a misconduct, and Birch and Fennell majors once for a fight.

PCVS Girls Capture First But Collis Lasses Beaten

A basketball game often is not decided until the last minute. Friday night the game and the series between Collis and Trotters, the Toronto city intermediate "B" champions, wasn't decided until the last minute. Then the Bus Manbeck-coached girls won the game 44-41 but last the two-game points-to-count series. Toronto won the first game 55-50 and that five-point edge allowed them to take the series 96-94.

At the same time in Cobourg the PCVS junior girls were holding girls' basketball in the playdown fight. The Mabel Gillen-coached Garnet and Greys romped to a 59-10 victory over Cobourg high in the first game of a two-game series.

The lop-sided win clearly indicates that the PCVS girls teams, both senior and junior, will see action in the COSSA playdowns again this season. The seniors are already in while the juniors have to defeat Cobourg again next week; this seems likely.

EVEN TERMS

The Collis quintette, thanks to Mabel Gillen and Joan Dunk, played on even terms with Trotters in the first quarter, 10-all. Then Dunk continued her spree in the second and Collis tied the round, staying ahead 24-19 at the half.

Pauline Stewart and Gillen lengthened the Collis lead in the third quarter when they led 25-26 for a four-point lead in the round. But in the fourth Trotters cashed in on 11 foul shots to win the round.

Dunk easily led the scoring with 19 points while Toronto's best was Mary MacDonald with 13.

Bernice Callan, Marg Patterson and Joan Weir practically put the Garnet and Grey into the COSSA junior finals two weeks today with a spree in the first half. That trio accounted for most of the PCVS scoring with 28 points in the first half while Cobourg was held to but four points.

All the Peterborough forwards took part in the scoring in the second half as they ran their lead on the round to 49 points with the 59-10 victory. Once again they were paced by Callan who shone.

Callan, with a variety of shots and setups by her teammates, easily led the scoring with 21 points while Janet Hughson had eight, Joan Weir 10, Marg Patterson and Dot Kingston, six each.

Local Quartets Victorious Lindsay 'Spiel

After playing Monday and Tuesday in the open mixed rinks bonspiel at Lindsay, Dr. M. McCartney's rink and Dr. R. Morgan's rink returned on Friday with first honors. When you consider there were rinks entered from all parts of Ontario, it makes the wins all the sweeter. We, along with club members, say "Well done!"

Main event, "The Gruen." First and each a Gruen wrist watch—Mrs. L. Calvert, C. Selkirk, Mrs. M. McCartney, Dr. M. McCartney, skip.

Fourth event, "The Benson. First, ladies each a set of steak knives; gents, each a pack-away bag—Mrs. I. MacGillivary, A. Winslaw, Mrs. R. Morgan, Dr. R. Morgan, skip.

Coach Tommy Ivan Should Lead Red Wings To Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tommy Ivan has never played big-time hockey but the game will always remember him as one of the greatest coaches in the business. Ivan, the dapper, reserved coach of Detroit's rambunctious Red Wings, is almost a cinch to lead the Wings to a sixth straight National Hickey League championship this year. No coach has ever done that before. Unless the Detroiters fold during their 10 remaining games in this season's 70-game schedule, Ivan is in. The Red Wings have won 34 starts and tied 11 for 79 points, an 11-point lead over Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens.

Ivan won't get his boys into action in the four games this weekend. But they will be fresh for their encounter against the Leafs in Detroit Thursday.

In two games tonight, the last-place Chicago Black Hawks are at Toronto and the fifth-place New York Rangers meet Canadiens at Montreal. On Sunday it's Toronto at Chicago and Montreal at New York.

BANKING ON TITLE

Ivan never says much but it's obvious he is banking on the Red Wings breezing through to the league title. There probably isn't a fan who will argue with him.

The 43-year-old Ivan has been successful ever since he succeeded Jack Adams, now manager of the Wings, after the 1946-47 season. The Wings jumped from fourth to second place during Tommy's first season, then captured five straight titles. However, they won only two Stanley Cups in those five years.

Ivan, a native of Toronto, ended his playing days as centre in Brantford, Ont., at 27 when he fractured a cheekbone and dislocated his jaw. He turned to coaching and scouting before Adams moved him from Omaha to Indianapolis to Detroit.

Before Ivan took over as coach, the Red Wings last won a league crown in the 1942-43 season.

"A Good Turn Each Day" Is Boy Scout Slogan

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Can I help you, sir?" asked a British Scout in uniform when he saw a stranger groping his way through a dense London fog. William D. Boyce, a visitor from the United States, was very glad to accept this boy's help. The Scout accompanied the stranger to his destination, just to make sure that he got there. When the American thanked his young guide, he also offered him a shilling. But the boy refused the money saying, "I am a Boy Scout and Scouts do not take tips for their daily good turn."

Mr. Boyce was surprised and impressed. He determined to learn more about the Scouting Movement. As this happened in 1909 he was able to make an appointment with Baden Powell, the founder of Boy Scouts. When the principles of Scouting were carefully explained to the American visitor, he was convinced that here was something which he must transplant to his native soil. How well this movement has taken root in less than half a century is shown by the most recent world census of 1952 totals. Out of the 5,561,993 Scouts in 57 countries, there are 3,183,266 in the United States. To the south of the U.S. in Mexico there are 3,891 Scouts, and to the north in Canada 146,089.

The name of this British Scout who did Mr. Boyce a good turn and thus introduced Scouting to this continent was never discovered. But in Gilwell Park, England, that great centre of Scouting, there is a beautiful bronze statue of a buffalo. Beneath is this inscription,

"To the Unknown Scout, whose faithfulness in the performance of the Daily Good Turn brought the Scout Movement to the United States of America."

From the very first the daily good turn was woven into the fabric of Scouting. Sir Robert Baden-Powell, the originator of Boy Scouts, in his book "Scoumastership" wrote: "With a little encouragement on the part of the Scoutmaster, the practice of daily good turns becomes a sort of fashion with boys. It is the very best step towards making a Christian in fact, and not merely in theory . . . this "good turn business" brings out the spirit of Christian character towards his neighbor."

The Cub promise which each boy makes when he is admitted to a Wolf Pack for eight to 11 year olds states:

"I promise to do my best to do my duty to God and the Queen, to keep the Law of the Wolf Cub Pack; and to do a good turn to somebody every day."

The Scout in his teens, and the Senior Rover Scout pledge themselves "to help other people at all times."

A novel way to empahsize the importance of the Good Turn program was carried out last Autumn by the Wolf Cub pack of Red Deer, Alberta. At the weekly meetings an unsigned list of good turns for each day was handed in to Akela, the Cub Master. These papers were wrapped in tinfoil. Then they were added to an ever-growing "snowball". At the Christmas party, Cubmaster Calander showed the great tinfoil snowball with its precious record, and a few of the anonymous sheets were red aloud by individual Cubs.

Many good turns are done right at home. How many thousands of mothers have been thankful for Scouting when a son has willingly offered to do some extra task around the house, run an errand, shovelled snow, looked after a younger child at play! The story is told of a widow with a large family whose oldest boy was a Scout. One day when he had been particularly busy helping his mother with tasks such as clearing out the ashes in the furnace, which his Dad used to do, he met his Scoutmaster in the evening, on his way to post some letters. "Have you done your good turn today?" his leader asked. The boy hesitated, embarrased. Then he faltered, "I'm awfully sorry Sir, but I've been so busy with work Mother had to have done, that I've had no time for my good turn!"

This boy was certainly the exception. Most lads have all kinds of spare time . . . and it is the very lack of things to do which is a contributing cause to their getting into destructive mischief. The vandalism at the old Peterborough Scout Camp site has certainly not been carried out by boys in Scout troops or Cub Packs! An official of a Canadian Juvenile Court recent mentioned that the boys who are in trouble with the law are not from Scout groups or Sunday School classes.

Isaac Watts wrote, "Satan finds some michief still for idle hands to do." There are few "idle hands" in the 188 registered Scouts, the 388 registered Cubs or the dozen Rover Scouts in Peterborough . . . the pity is that there are not MORE LEADERS, and more churches eager to give the growing boys the "good turn" of providing space for their activities. If your boy is in Cubs or Scouts, give their Cub or Scout Master your support. If he is not a Scout, why not do something about it?

A WOLF CUB, a Boy Scout and a Sea Scout are shown at the entrance to the Ottawa district Scout camp site. There is no better "good turn" an adult can do a boy than introduce him to Scouting and encourage him in camping."

Quebec Session May Close Next Week

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec legislature is nearing the end of its winter's work and some observers think it will prorogue late next week.

Its session started Nov. 18 — most of the other legislatures assembled about mid-February — took a three-week break for Christmas holidays and has kept up a steady pace. One of its main pieces of legislation has been one providing for a provincial income tax.

Still to come before it are measures which would set up a system of income tax appeals, the voting of estimates for roads and the attorney - general's department and the budget debate.

The Manitoba legislature Friday approved a government plan to set up a committee to study redistribution of electoral seats. The present distribution of 57 seats was made in 1949.

NO OLEO CHANGE

Manitoba legislators also voted down a bill to increase the amount of coloring allowed in Manitoba-made oleomargarine to 3.5 per cent from 1.5. The 33-to-18 vote cut across party lines.

Michael McDonald, Nova Scotia CCF leader, said in the legislature at Halifax that in his own riding of Cape Breton Centre there have been about a dozen recent cases of children fainting in school because of lack of nourishment. He said the province has "poverty, want and misery" and he urged co-operation by federal and provincial governments to solve the unemployment problem.

Passamaquaddy Plan Survey Approved

WASHINGTON (AP)—A $3,000,000 survey into the cost and economic feasibility of the Passamaquoddy tidal power project was approved unanimopsly Friday by a House of Representatives foreign affairs subcommittee.

Authorization of the survey, which would be undertaken by the international joint commission on boundary waters, was approved by the Senate Feb. 10.

The project calls for the harnessing of the unusually high ocean tides at the Maine - New Brunswick boundary.

The survey proposal, jointly sponsored by Maine members of Congress, now goes to the full foreign affairs committee.

Trading In United States Begins To Make Headway

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP) — Several bright spots stood out in sharp focus this week against the background of the United State's overall business picture.

Business failures were at their lowest level in nearly a month. Residential building activity was just under the booming rate of a year ago.

The final week of February also saw a brisk pickup in retail trade. "Big ticket" items like furniture, appliances and TV sets moved in greater volume. Department store sales for the latest week were up two per cent from the year before.

The country's biggest railroad, the Pennsylvania, ordered all department heads to chop their payrolls to the absolute minimum. Expenses, said the Penn management, must be cut to the bone because of a decline in freight traffic.

SEES DEPRESSION

New curtailments were reported in the copper mining, zinc refining and steel casting industries. Emil Rieve, president of the CIO United Textile Workers Union, declared that jobs in the textile industry are down to 950,000 from the 1948 peak of 1,318,000, a drop of 28 per cent, and the industry is "in a fullfledged depression."

Steel producers have more business on their books right now than at any time in the last two or three months, according to the Iron Age, national metalworking weekly.

Down slightly for the week was automobile production, despite near-record output by Chevrolet and Ford. Chrysler's Plymouth division, loafing along on a curtailed basis since the start of the year, will put a second assembly line into operation Monday at its main Detroit plant. Dealer inventories have been worked off, Plymouth officials said, and they look for a "rising spring market."

A big batch of highly favorable corporate earnings reports this week gave further evidence that 1953 was a record year for profits. Of the more than 400 companies reporting thus far, three out of four earned more money than in 1952. Most pointed out, however, that business in the fourth quarter was not as good as in the two previous quarters and many said they expected figures for the first quarter of 1954 to show a further downturn.

Genial Doctor

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Dr. J. I. O'Connell of Curling was presented with a purse of more than $500 on retirement after 20 years' service in which he made many trips by open dory or motorboat. The genial physician was described as a real "country doctor."

No Evidence Police Beat Prisoner

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney General Porter said Friday that, after a thorough check, he has found no evidence to support Paul Cachia's claims that he was beaten with a rubber hose by police.

Robert Macaulay, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Toronto Riverdale, charged in the house Wednesday that a confession had been beaten out of Cachia. Mr. Porter denied the charges but said he would check further.

Cachia was found not guilty of armed robbery at a trial Jan. 15 after being convicted at two previous trials. The charges arose from the robbery of a service station in suburban Swansea.

Mr. Porter said Friday he thought all possible checks had now been made, including reading of the evidence and conversations with the persons involved.

Nice Catch

ESPANOLA, Ont. (CP)—Women here don't take a back seat to the men when it comes to ice fishing. Mrs. Julia Romaniski caught a great northern pike weighing nine pounds at Mud lake.

Morganston WA Hold Pot Luck Dinner

WARKWORTH —(ENS)— The Woman's Association of Morganston United church held a pot luck dinner, followed by a meeting and quilting.

Mrs. H. George, president, presided. Mrs. Lorne McComb was in charge of the devotional period. The scripture reading was given by Mrs. C. Bradley. Mrs. H. Fitchett gave a short address. Mrs. B. Fitchett offered prayer.

It was decided to buy the wood for the church from Mr. John Darkins at the price quoted.

It was also decided to hold a pot luck dinner in the church basement again at the next regular meeting.

Mrs. E. Redden and Mrs. Chas. Puffer were conveners for the program which consisted of readings by Mrs. C. Bradley and Mrs. Dean Massey. The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer by Mrs. H. George, president.

Slow Payment

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP)—Stephen Webb, 38-year-old unemployed road sweeper, would be 227 years old before he pays off a debt to his wife at the present rate. He was ordered to pay a shilling a week on £498 maintenance arrears while an inquiry is made into his financial ability to pay.

PEANUTS, a three-month-old puppy, takes his first steps on splints after falling off the back porch of his home at New Bedford, Mass., recently. The puppy was showing off for co-owners Thomas and David, sons of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. O'Bomsawin, when he fell.

U.S. Has Poured In Help To Indo-China Since 1951 To Halt Rebels

By JOHN RODERICK

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—Since 1951 the United States has sent money, material and munitions into Indo-China to help hold back the rebel forces of Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh.

By Jan. 31 400 American and French ships sailing from San Francisco had unloaded at Indo-China ports 260 million rounds of small arms ammunition, 21,000 transport vehicles and trailers, 1,400 combat vehicles, 360 military aircraft, 390 naval vessels, 17,000 radio sets and 175,000 small arms and automatic weapons as well as mines, rockets, mortar and artillery shells, hospital supplies, engineering and technical equipment.

In all, the American taxpayer will pay nearly $1,000,000,000 this year to help fight the war. This amounts to about three-fifths of the money cost of the fighting.

But in helping the French and Indo-Chinese to fight Ho Chi Minh, the U. S. government feels it is getting its money's worth. It sees these alternatives: The loss of southeast Asia to communism, or another Korea-type war.

CHINESE AID REBELS

While the United States is aiding the French and the established governments of Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos, the Chinese Communists are doing the same for Ho Chi Minh. Over about 18 highway routes the Chinese are shuttling an average of about 3,000 tons of war material a month to the Vietminh.

Roughly $400,000,000 of the money the United States has allotted to Indo-China for 1954 goes to purchase arms and munitions. Of the remainder, $385,000,000 is for "soft" goods—uniforms, food and other services; $25,000,000 for economic, technical and refugee aid; $30,000,000 for harbor improvements, roads, reservoirs and other projects which are militarily important now but can be converted to civilian use.

The United States military advisory assistance group handles the supply job involved in the aid program. It is housed in a former Japanese brothel of neo-classic design in the nearby Chinese city of Cholon.

The American mission so far has been confined almost entirely to aid, not training. The 200 air technicians in Indo-China are an exception. They will teach French ground crews to maintain 10 U. S. B-26 light bombers recently provided. In three to four months they will pull out.

Britain's Minister Of Health Adds More Fuel To Cancer Issue

LONDON—It is easy for non-smokers like myself to be smug about the recent announcement of the minister of health that a relationship has been established between smoking and cancer of the lung writes Sir Shuldham Redfern in Montreal Star. And it is also easy for heavy smokers to derive a certain wry satisfaction from a small item of news of an old lady who died at the age of 101 on the same day as the minister's announcement, had been a regular pipe-smoker since the age of 18!

There is nothing new about the facts on which the minister's statement was based; they have all been previously published in scientific journals. What gives new significance is that they are considered to be of sufficient weight to justify an official warning, and especially a warning by the ministry of health which is more closely in touch with the lives and habits of the people of ths country than any other segment of government.

The minister's statement was drafted with extreme caution so as not to cause alarm which may be unnecessary if what are so far no more than inferences do not in due course yield to unchallengeable scientific proof. It is, for instance, unknown whether tobacco smoke carries a direct cause of cancer or merely creates a predisposition to the disease, the cause of which is derived from some other source.

The evidence of relationship between smoking and cancer is largely statistical and, as everyone knows, statistics can be notoriously fallacious. But it is impossible to ignore the increasing incidence of deaths through cancer—nearly 8,000 in England and Wales in 1952, of which over 16 per cent were from cancer of the lung—and it is obviously right that every possible cause should be scientifically investigated. It is greatly to the credit of the immense commercial interests in the sale of tobacco in this country that they should have been among the first to make a substantial contribution to scientific research on the whole subject.

It remains to be seen what will be the effect of the Minister's warning on the smoking habits of the population as a whole. The inveterate smokers and chain-smokers of long standing will probably be unimpressed. Those who are thinking of taking to smoking, whether as a solace in their old age or as a form of bravado—because they think there is something grownup about it—in their adolescence, will perhaps be discouraged. The hypochondriacs and those who are always fussing about their health will, no doubt, make a determined effort to break themselves of the habit. But those who should pay particular heed to the warning are the young people in their twenties and thirties who already know that they are smoking to excess. At one time there was a certain ritual about smoking, dictated by the requirements of good manners, and it is in many ways a pity that this ritual has now been abandoned, for apart from its value in preserving the standards of polite society, it imposed a limitation on the amount of tobacco consumed.

I would not go so far as to say that anyone should put on a smoking cap or jacket before lighting up in order to protect his hair or clothes from contamination. But I would prohibit smoking in theatres, concert halls and cinemas, for although I like the fragrance of tobacco smoke when it emerges fresh from a cigarette or pipe, I find it disgusting when it is exhaled from the human body. And I know of no more revolting habit than that of smoking in the middle of a meal. I once knew a man who carried a small disc in his pocket to put over his glass of wine in case someone smoked before he had finished it, and although his gesture may have been a conceited idiosyncracy, he was right to draw attention to an intolerable abuse of good manners.

Just as polygamy is restricted mainly by economic considerations in countries where it is legally and socially admissible, so likewise it is probable that the economics of the tobacco industry will determine the course to be followed both by private individuals and by the Government in the light of the minister's statement. Last year the tobacco tax brought in £617,000,000 and the trend of Government research policy, so far as cancer is concerned, is therefore more likely to be aimed at making tobacco innocuous than to scare people off smoking. But if fewer people smoke through fear of getting cancer of the lung, the tobacco companies may be compelled to raise the price of cigarettes in order to recoup their losses and smoking will then become a luxury for those who can afford it. In the meantime we cannot rest content with knowing that a relationship exists between smoking and cancer of the lung. We must find out what that relationship is.

Govt. Plan To Use Anti-Dump Legislation

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister McCann said Friday the government's new anti-dumping legislation will be used without the prompting or request of any industry.

Replying to a Commons question by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre), Dr. McCann said the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association has made no request to have the law used against imports of stoves and electrical appliances other than refrigerators.

Any request would be considered, but it was the government's duty to enforce the law without the prompting of any industry.

Magic Trio

SACKVILLE, N.B. (CP) — Not one magician, but a whole trio, performed at Mount Allison University's annual Trueman House party. Dr. D. W. MacLauchlan, dean of men, teamed up with Ken Bagnell of Glace Bay and Wilson White of New Glasgow.

Record Catch

OSLO (CP)—The winter herring fisheries on the Norwegian west coast reached a record of 700,000 tons with a few days still to go before the season ended. The former record of 670,000 tons was set in the winter of 1951.

Helpful Pilot

LOOK, MA, NO HANDS—And no feet or seat either as rodeo rider Foy Cowan, of the Kinsley ranch, near Tucson, Ariz., flew high, wide but not handsome from the bucking bronc. The cowboy broke his left leg when he landed. Rodeo season is in full swing around Tucson, with four rodeos planned each week until May.

Dogs, Soap, Pies Abbreviations At Defence HQ

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Know what UN stands for? Sure, United Nations.

And NATO? Easy, North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

NDHQ? A cinch, National Defence Headquarters.

Well, how about DOGS, SOAP, PIES, DOE, or DAD? A real jungle, eh?

You'll find them all in the new list of official abbreviations of directorates and committees of the Canadian armed forces. The 15-page list contains more than 400 examples of military brevity.

DOGS is the official short form for the Director of General Stores, a navy directorate.

Mail addressed to SOAP doesn't go to a giveaway radio program but ends up on the desk of the Staff Officer Air Personnel.

TRY PIES

PIES stands for the Panel of Inter - service Engineering Standardization, DOE for Director of Organizations and Establishments, an RCAF directorate.

DAD is the Director of Armament Development at army headquarters. ADA is the Air Distributing Authority.

JAG is the Judge Advocate General; VAG the Vice Adjutant General; and WAG the Women's Advisory Group.

JIB is for the Joint Intelligence Bureau and DID for the Directorate of Inter-service Development.

DND naturally doesn't turn out to be the department of national defence. It stands for the Director of Navigation and Direction, a navy directorate.

You reach the centre of this word jungle at SALO-UKSLS. Any smart clerk can translate this without hesitation into Senior Air Liaison Officer United Kingdom Service Liaison Staff.

Act States Broker Must Be Registered

TORONTO (CP)—A bill clarifying that a person can trade as a broker only if he is registered as such was introduced in the Ontario legislature Friday.

The bill, an amendment to the Ontario Real Estate and Business Brokers Act, was introduced by Attorney-General Porter.

Under the present act a registered salesman is left free to operate as a broker because he is registered as a "broker or salesman."

Colin Cameron (CCF—Nanaimo) aid it should not be the court's usiness to arrest a workman be- ause he "sneaked off five, 10 or 5 minutes ahead of time."

Mr. Cameron, a west-coast ship- ard worker before his election o the Commons last summer, said f the law had been enforced gainst himself "I would have een before the magistrate almost very day of the week."

Justice Minister Garson said the ractice "is really obtaining wages nder false pretences."

Mr. Cameron moved an amend- ent to a section in the new revis- n of the Criminal Code which ates that a person who falsifies n employment record or punches time clock with intent to deceive guilty of a crime.

He proposed deletion of the eferenc to time clocks.

Later the Commons approved an lternative amendment by Davie ulton (PC—Kamloops) stating it s a crime to falsify employment ecords "by any means, including unching of a time clock." Both Ir. Fulton and Mr. Garson said he false punching of a time clock s simply one way to falsify em- loyment records.

Mr. Cameron said employers should enforce their own rules in- tead of asking the courts to do it. When an employee sneaked out a ew minutes early to get his car while another workman punched is time card, it was just care- essness on the employer's part.

Employers used time clocks as "a cheap and easy method of keeping accounts" and forced em- ployees to use them.

"If they want to do it in that way, that is their right, but they must take the risk."

Mr. Garson said the law applies to both employers and employees. In fact, the employer was in a better position to get "some real return" from cheating.

Changes in the Criminal Code had gone a long way toward the CCF position. Under the existing code, the maximum penalty was two years, a $5,000 fine, or both. Under the proposed code, the maximum penalty would be six months, a $500 fine, or both, but in practice there would be a nominal fine.

Mr. Garson said the law has been in effect for 18 years but he knows of no case where it has been used against employees.

Reverse Flow Of Current To Prevent Pipe Corrosion

TORONTO (CP) — Engineers have found a way to prevent corrosion in multi-million-dollar pipelines due to the natural electric current that flows through the pipes. The engineers have just reversed the flow of the current.

A. R. Murchison, Toronto engineer, told the National Association of Corrosion Engineers in an address how the principle is applied. Although the principle has been in use for some time, the engineer spoke of its particular application to the $11,000,000 Imperial Oil Company pipeline which carries refinery products from Sarnia to Toronto.

To protect the 195-mile pipeline, the piping was coated with successive layers of coal tar, enamel applied hot, fibre-glass matting and felt paper. But even a small hole in such a coating could start a sizable leak in the pipe through electrolytic action between the pipe and the soil in which it is buried.

The natural electric currents flowing from the pipe through the small hole into the soil would corrode the pipe metal. The engineers' plan was to force the current back into the pipe, transferring the corrosion to some expendable structure nearby.

Mr. Murchison said that at intervals of 30 miles electrical equipment was set up and connected both with the pipeline and graphite rods buried in the ground. This reversed the flow of the natural current so that instead of the electricity causing corrosion as it left the pipe, the more expendable graphite deteriorated.

No Girl Need Be Lonely — When Facilities Of YWCA Are Available

Life in a big city can be lonely —so lonely that many girls have attempted suicide in a last desperate bid to let the world know they exist. For the most soul-destroying thing in the world is boredom.

The YWCA is one of the 10 agencies connected with the Red Cross and Community Fund which will start on March 8 an appeal to the citizens of Peterborough for $100,000. Today the activities of the YWCA are described in the accompanying article.

But no girl need be lonely in any city where there is a branch of the Young Women's Christian Association, particularly in Peterborough where Miss Leta Brownscombe has been friend, big sister, mother and confidant for more girls than she can remember. Some have been expectant mothers, a few have been jailbait, but most have been just restless confused people with no place to go and nothing much to do when they get there.

"There's a grain of good in every individual," says Miss Brownscombe. In the case of the YWCA, this is more than just pious plaitude for, as director Brownscombe says, "we try to give troubled girls who come to us the first inkling that the world cares."

FAIL TO TELL STORY

When one thinks of the YWCA, one usually thinks of a vast and pleasant dormitory for business girls who find this the most economic and interesting way to live. It's true enough that the Y can handle 60 or more girl residents at a time (235 altogether in 1953) and that there are more than 1,000 who hold YWCA membership cards. But statistics don't begin to tell the story of the YWCA.

Take the case of Linda, and that isn't her name. Linda came to the Y one day some time ago dirty, dishevelled, depressed and with no money. Since the Y never turns anybody away without at least getting another agency on the job, the girl was admitted to the Y and given a sympathetic ear. Later she moved to Toronto and spent a term in reformatory. After she was released she wrote Miss Brownscombe, saying that the Peterborough YWCA was the only place where anyone had ever made an attempt to make her feel that she was a human being.

But you don't have to look to the debased and criminal classes to find that the YWCA is on the job. The organization does equally fine work with those who, for one reason or another, are handicapped in their social relations. These folk soon see that the Y has something to satisfy every taste, bring out every ability, and soothe most any worry.

Take the case, now famous, of Joan Fitzgerald. Four years ago when she was 16, Joan developed polio. On the advice of physiotherapist she came to the Y. She began to take swimming classes in the YWCA pool and the directors of the Y had the germ of an idea.

AID TO THE CRIPPLED

The rest is history. Backed by the Rotary Club, more and more crippled children began to come to the Y for swimming therapy, and the Peterborough YWCA was the first in the country to have regular swimming classes for crippled children. Now there is a class of 12 meeting two mornings a week with swimming director Miss Roselyn Stone and her assistants.

From all over the county, children come to these classes. Transportation is provided by the Home and School Association. Taking classes now are children from such points as Keene and Lakefield as well as Peterborough.

A basic idea of these swimming classes is to develop a social awareness on the part of the children, as well as exercising their muscles. Says Miss Brownscombe: "More than anything children need a competitive spirit." Many of these children get into the spirit so well that they end up with water safety crests.

From time to time we hear the lament: "Where oh where can we go on Saturday nights except to the Aragon?" How many know of the Over 20 Club, sponsored by the YWCA and operated by a keen cross section of Peterborough youth. This club is more than just a dance committee. It leads those coming to the Saturday night parties (men too) into YWCA and YMCA organizations best suited to their interests.

"Growth forever" is another motto of the YWCA. Every Tuesday night oldsters gather with the Old Country Club. The idea is to keep people interested in the Y, and the Y interested in them almost from womb to tomb.

Naturally the YWCA plays no favorites, but if it had a specially stressed theme it would probably be to make newcomers to Canada feel at home. In an industrial community like Peterborough many foreign-speaking new Canadians arrive each month, and their greatest needs are for instruction in English and social activities.

TOUGH TIME FOR WIVES

Usually it's the wives of immigrants who have the roughest time in Canada. Husbands can pick up the language at work and children at school, but wives often find life especially hard. Perhaps the best testimonial ever given by a female new Canadian to the work of the Peterborough Y for newcomers was this: "I learned people at the Peterborough YWCA."

Let's take another case history, this one of Miss Beatrise Pelsis, gymnasium director at the Y. Miss Pelsis came to Hamilton from Latvia several years ago. Recently she published an article entitled "I Met the Y Through a Paper Bag." When she arrived in Hamilton she was met by a Y worker who presented her with a bagful of bobby pins, Kleenex and odds and ends she would need and would not know where to find.

The Peterborough YWCA is hoping for a strong public response to the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund campaign. They have an especially good reason for wanting more help in 1954. Says Miss Brownscombe: "We are growing so fast that we hope we will soon be able to establish a branch of the YWCA in the south end of the city."

The YWCA progression philosophy has had some unusual ramifications. How many know that both the Canadian Girls in Training and the Students' Christian Movement originated in the YWCA. The SCM is now an international movement of university students and the CGIT is Canada's best-known girls' organization.

Within the YWCA organization, a child enrolled in a junior class soon finds herself a member of a teenage club. Here she takes courses on leadership training and also learns leadership by following and then by leading. As one YWCA "graduate" put it: "There's no better background for university than several years at the Y."

LEARNING TO SERVE

These girls find, almost by accident, says Miss Brownscombe, that "the greatest joy is learning to serve." As they learn to serve they automatically teach others to serve. It's a circle, but it's anything but a vicious one.

Camping is perhaps not so significant a Y activity as it once was for teenage girls and adult women. This is because the male half of the human race has slowly come to acknowledge that women are people too. There is less incentive (and less opportunity) for a wage-earning woman or girl to attend camp. Average age of campers has declined over the past 10 or 15 years, but this is still a vital part of the YWCA program. Last year 65 girl campers enjoyed a holiday at Camp Kawartha.

No job could be more satisfying than that of executive director of the YWCA, says Miss Brownscombe. She has but one complaint is that m wants no girl entering to become a cipher. She is encouraged to take an active and constructive part in as many activities as she is interested in.

...girls per square foot in the Y cafeteria at lunchtime than anywhere else in Peterborough." . . . Time for lunch.

Low Level Stock Trading In Toronto This Week

By BOB JOHNSTONE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The stock markets ran into some tough going this week.

Montreal and New York markets, although low at times, had some strong moments and their closes were hopeful. Not so Toronto. Every session, except Thursday's, was down and trading was at its lowest level since the pre-Christmas lull.

Steels and papers led Toronto industrials lower from the opening, with foods, utilities, manufactures and liquors slipping. Textiles, depressed for more than a year, dropped again.

Western oils were weak at the beginning of the week but strengthened toward the close.

Mining groups, golds and base metals drew little confidence. The gold drop was gradual.

Base metals attracted more attention as seniors showed some individual action. Noranda added $2 Thursday. Manitouwadge-area issues were quiet. Geco, the leader in the new northern Ontario field, was steady, although well below its $13 high two weeks ago.

The Friday-to-Friday comparison showed industrials down 1.53 at 323.09, golds down 1.52 at 72.05, base metals down .53 at 137.59 and western oils down .10 at 92.35.

MONTREAL IRREGULAR

Papers and steels set the standard in Montreal trading as they slipped at the beginning of the week then added toward the close. Utilities joined the higher move Thursday and Friday, and refining oils and carriers were standouts early in the week.

The Friday-to-Friday comparison showed banks off .21 at 37.46, utilities off .2 at 97, industrials off 2.2 at 182.1, combined off 1.5 at 153.7, papers off 4.45 at 823.97 and golds off 1.37 at 53.96.

New York trading followed the Montreal pattern of a slow, weak beginning, then a stronger close. (The week had only four sessions; Monday was the Washington's birthday holiday.)

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 60 cents at $114.40.

Canada Takes Defence More Seriously

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's defence planners are working on the assumption that the Communist threat against North America has increased.

This assumption runs counter to recent views expressed by world statesmen, including External Affairs Minister Pearson, that world tensions have eased in the last year. It is based on the knowledge that the Russians are increasing their stockpile of nuclear weapons and are developing long-range aircraft capable of delivering atomic bombs on this continent.

Some officials here say that both the United States and Russia have so many atomic bombs that "the bombs are running out their ears." They express the hope that this might result in an atomic stand-off similar to the poison gas stand-off of the Second World War.

ONLY A HOPE

But it is only a hope, they add. In the meantime, the build-up of continental defences must go on.

Defence spending in Canada, is expected to increase by $190,000,000 in the 1954-55 fiscal year from the 1953-54 outlay of $1,820,000,000. The major portion of this increase reflects additional costs for operating and maintaining interceptor planes and radar stations.

The U.S. has earmarked an extra $1,000,000,000 for continental defence in the coming year, mostly for interceptor aircraft.

There now is virtually complete integration of the RCAF and U.S. Air Force fighter commands on this continent. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, USAF chief of staff, and James H. Douglas, U.S. air undersecretary, conferred with defence officials here recently and inspected air defence command headquarters at St. Hubert, Que.

Both countries are "thickening up" radar defences continuously. In Canada, the McGill Fence is being installed as a backstop for the main radar networks. But it will be some time before this early-warning device is completed.

NEW TREND

Meanwhile, the chiefs of the Canadian armed services are making a close study of the new trend in the U.S. defence policy—more emphasis on strategic air power and nuclear weapons as a deterrent to war. The U.S. and Britain are both cutting down on manpower.

Officials say Canada will not be affected by this new trend, at least not for some time. Eventually, Canada's forces will be supplied with nuclear weapons which would mean some structural changes within the army, such as new units for atomic artillery and atomic anti-aircraft weapons.

But the Canadian services need all their personnel—110,000 — to meet present commitments and there is no possibility now that manpower might be cut and the gap filled with atomic weapons. As far as atomic weapons go, the forces are most interested right now in getting more information from the U.S. and Britain on how they work and what effect they have tactically.

Active Workers

OSLO (CP)—More than 300,000 Norwegians now are active in various branches of civil defence. The majority serve as house wardens, but others work in alarm and mobile support centres and act in industrial defence groups.

MERLE-ANN MEYERS, 17-year-old member of Winnipeg's Little Theatre group, posed as Hollywood starlet "Dawn Sommers" and duped University of Saskatchewan students and faculty. Flown to Saskatoon to aid a blood drive, the hoax was not made public until she returned to Winnipeg. Miss Meyers brought back a U. of S. engineer's sweater, a stethoscope from the medics, a straw hat from agricultural representatives and a parrot from the law students. Result of hoax—some 62 per cent of the students donated blood.

New Record High Income Achieved By Trinity Church

A "record-breaking high point in congregational generosity has been achieved by the people of Trinity United church," according to an announcement made Friday night by Dr. Ralph C. Honey at a church rally. The meeting concluded the intensive phase of Trinity's canvass which had been in progress for the past three weeks.

Although 15 per cent of the congregation have not yet had an opportunity to participate, new bond redemption and church extension pledges received during the past few weeks amount to $74,171.50, payable over a three-year period. When allowance is made for the congregation's new budget pledges for the current year, the total annual envelope giving at Trinity exceeds $60,000.

"Only the intensive phase of the canvass has been completed," said Dr. Honey, retiring chairman of the canvass committee. "Before us lie the labors of the three-year canvass period."

The canvass committee announced two continuing programs. The first will be a visitation of those members and friends of Trinity who were not reached during the intensive phase of the canvass. To carry out these visitations during the next sixty days, a follow-up committee under the chairmanship of Douglas Vaisey was appointed. Members of the new committee include Dr. Don Whyte, Jim Hendry, Bill Fanjoy, Ralph Standish, Jack Wood, Jim Clark, Hubert Chown and Doug Smith.

The second program will be directed by a collection committee which will be active throughout the entire three-year period, supervising pledge payments and arranging other solicitations. Five members have agreed to act on this committee until the entire program is approved by the church's official board. With Dr. Ralph C. Honey as chairman and Dr. Harry Dunham as secretary, the newly-appointed members of the collections committee include J. E. Girven and Dr. S. Y. Walsh.

In order to co-ordinate both programs a monitoring chairman will be appointed in the very near future.

The appointment of the new officials was announced by the the retiring chairman of the canvass, J. H. Vernor, who presided.

In outlining the responsibilities of the new officers, Dr. Dunham said, "Our congregation has already given us every reason to believe that it will measure up to all the needs of our bond redemption-church extension program. We are all gratified by the spirit which has produced this splendid response."

Desert Nfld. Villages In Industrial Revolution

By STEWART MacLEOD

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The present so-called "industrial revolution" in Newfoundland is resulting in many of the tiny coastal settlements and ishing villages facing desertion.

Hundreds of settlements occupied by the cod fishermen for many years now are lonely and almost empty. Tiny islands where house lights blinked assurance to off-shore coastal vessels are dark and bleak.

In many cases villagers have taken everything with them, even their houses, leaving the coastline almost as John Cabot found it in 1497. Only cellars remain where houses once stood.

ENTER FACTORIES

Fishermen and their families are beaching their dories in favor of factory employment, along with security benefits, roads, modern schools and washing-machines.

The movement is having a resounding effect on the province in general. When Newfoundland entered the Canadian Confederation in 1949, there were 1,300 settlements in Newfoundland. Today there are about 900. On the other hand, incorporated towns have multiplied from 13 to 49.

A boat trip around the coast, followed by an inland tour by car and train, gives a picture of Newfoundland's past, present and future.

From the boat, although many outports remain, hundreds of deserted settlements may be seen.

DESERTED BUILDINGS

On islands perhaps only a mile or two offshore, stand schools and churches with roofs sagging and steeples leaning. Grass grows through many floors. Doors are musty and stuck. Pews once filled with churchgoers, creak when touched. A stained-glass window, once the pride of the community, can be seen only through improvised wooden shutters.

Houses, if any remain, are gradually being beaten to the ground, and boat and fish houses, which withstood crashing Atlantic waves for years, have given up the battle. Timbers and shingles drift along the shoreline.

GROWING TOWNS

Where hunters and fishermen clobbered through thick forest a few years ago, stand towns. If these men were to kneel by the same spring they drank from three years ago, they would probably hit their head on a fire hydrant. The stream they fished is spanned with concrete bridges, and the hunters' abode, the meadow, is being used as an airport.

In the old camping spot citizens are gathering to cast their votes in the municipal election.

Majority of these new towns are ultra modern. New ranch-styled homes are built close to the town's industry. They are equipped with modern appliances, many with built-on garages.

The people themselves have mixed feelings about the new life. Some love it, but there are many former fishermen, with salt in their blood, who would trade it all for a trusty dory and lots of bait.

Japs Prepare Defence

By WARREN WHITE

TOKYO (Reuters) — Bursting shells and clattering tanks in the pine-clad foothills of the Japan mountain chain are signs of Japan's thriving rearmament program.

The tanks and guns are American, many of them surplus stock from the Second World War. But the shells are "made in Japan" products of the last two years.

From nothing, in 1950, Japan has built up a new American-style army of 110,000 men. The navy has 9,000 men, manning 18 frigates and 50 patrol boats, leased by the United States under the U.S. Japan security pact. The embryo air force, with at present only 87 training and reconnaissance planes, has big plans but so far no real 'teeth.'

The Japanese Army consists of five units equivalent to divisions. The elite division, known as the Northern Corps, has 28,000 men and considers itself ready for an active defence job. It is stationed on Hokkado, Japan's northernmost island, commonly described as an "invasion route" from Russian Siberia.

HAS 20 U.S. TANKS

This corps has an artillery regiment, two engineer regiments and an armored car battalion equipped with more than 70 American M-24 "General Chaffee" tanks, the type used by the United States Army early in the Korean war.

Old professional soldiers say that the new divisions have at least 10 times the fire-power of divisions in the old Japanese Imperial Army.

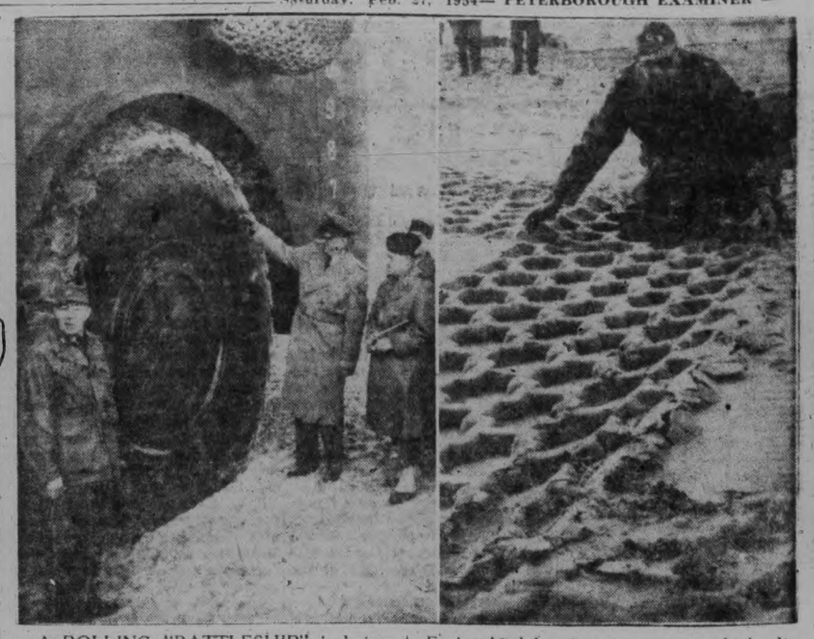
There is no shortage of men willing to serve in the "new army." During the last recruiting campaign in October, 54,000 applications were filed to fill 8,000 vacancies.

Smaller Units

TORQUAY, England (CP)—This seaside resort's 26-man municipal orchestra was reduced to 12 last year for reasons of economy. Now the municipal council has been asked to reduce it to a sextet for the sea-front pavilion and a trio for the Repertory theatre.

Israel Exhibits

JOHANNESBURG (CP) — Israel will have a special pavilion at the Rand Easter show to boost trade with South Africa. The Israeli consulate here said Israel imported goods worth 1,000,000 from South Africa last year, but sent only about £50,000 worth here.



A ROLLING "BATTLESHIP" is being tested by the U.S. Army on the beaches of Le Verdon, France. These two photos give an idea of the size of the giant amphibious landing craft. It has four tires the size of the one shown at left which dwarfs the U.S. and French Army officers inspecting it. Each wheel has its own motor, which also turns twin screws for pushing the craft through the water. The craft has a speed of seven miles per hour on land and 10 m.p.h. in the water when carrying a 60-ton load. The vehicle has already proved its seaworthiness by crossing the Atlantic under its own power.

Belated Santa Claus

MELTON MOWBRAY, England (CP)—Mrs. Gilbert Smith, who had lost her engagement ring, has received a letter from United States friends thanking her for her Christmas card and asking what they should do with the ring that accompanied it.

Fattening Up

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Commercial feed-lot operators in southern Alberta this winter are fattening 70,000 head of beef cattle and 45,000 lambs, aided by a steady flow of by-products from the region's big sugar beet industry.

Telegraph Milestone

CANBERRA (CP)—Australia will issue a 3½-penny stamp to commemorate the centenary of the telegraph here next April. Since the first telegraph line opened in 1854, the Australian network has grown up to more than 900,000 miles.

Scotland Yard's Dogs Do Good Job

By NORMAN MOSS

LONDON (Reuters) — Scotland Yard's 114 police dogs have been putting teeth into the law with remarkable success since the four-legged sleuths began pounding regular beats in 1946.

The German shepherd and Labrador dogs have proved most successful in Hyde Park, the rolling acres of lawns, woods and flower gardens in the heart of the metropolis.

In 1946, the harassed police force, seriously depleted by war demands, received reports of 219 cases of handbag snatching. By 1952, the number had dropped to about 20.

The thieves have learned canine cops are harder to fool than the human ones. The lesson has often cost them torn trousers and deep tooth marks as well as arrest.

The London police dog accompanies a London constable on his beat at night, sticking his muzzle into side streets, alleys and empty buildings, and drawing attention to anything that warrants investigation.

OTHERS AT STATION

Many dogs, however, stay in the station, waiting to be sent by patrol car to the scene of a crime. Not only will the dog smell out a suspect, he will detain him by snapping his powerful jaws on a sleeve or arm.

Wide public recognition first came to a police dog in January 1949, when Blaze, a German shepherd, cornered three thieves lurking in a garage and held them at bay until his policeman-master arrested them.

Two other police dogs, Rajah and Earl, won kudos in 1950, when they rounded up all 12 of a gang of young hooligans who were wrecking property in Hyde Park at night.

Some dogs have achieved remarkable records. Ben, a black Labrador, has 114 arrests to his credit, and Rajah has 66.

They generally are one-man dogs. Each goes through the entire three-month training period with a policeman, or "handler," and learns to work with him alone. An exception are the Hyde Park squad dogs, who are trained to work with more than one man.

FACE OBSTACLE COURSE

At school, the dogs learn to track; to chase their prey over walls and other obstacles, and to grab him and hang on, without harming him.

Blank revolver shots are fired at them, together with other loud noises and distractions.

When a dog finishes his training, he lives in his policeman-master's home and the policeman is paid an allowance for his keep. One hour of the dog's work day is spent in grooming and keeping fit for the other seven hours.

Their job consists of more than just catching criminals. One dog, Rex, recently was called out to help search a forest on the outskirts of London for a man who tried to commit suicide by taking poison. Rex found the man lying hidden in tall grass—in time to save his life.

Shrinking Mutton

DUNDEE, Scotland (CP) — The Weekly News published here told the story of a 13-pound leg of mutton purchased 80 years ago at Banbury, Oxfordshire, and never called for. The mutton still hanging on a butcher's hook now weighs only one pound, nine ounces.

CUTE AS A BUG—Obviously itching to do a good job, Jeanne O'Connor, the Veterans of Foreign Wars "Cootie Queen," poses in New York City. The Military Order of the Cooties is the fun-loving branch of the VFW which raises funds for the organization's rehabilitation and service programs.

Shakespearian Festival Appears To Be Sellout

By JOHN PATERSON

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—Even last year's overwhelming response didn't prepare officials of the Stratford Shakespearian festival for the flood of ticket requests they are receiving, four months before the June 28 opening date.

Tom Patterson, director of planning and the festival's founder, said "We're practically sold out for the opening nights for all three plays."

James Mason, British stage and screen star, will play leading roles in "Measure For Measure," the opening production, and the Greek tragedy, "Oedipus Rex," which starts July 15. Third play is "taming of the Shrew." "Oedipus Rex," though not a Shakespearian play, is expected to provide a change of pace for the rowdy Elizabethan comedies.

TO SEAT 1,900

Last year, Mr. Patterson said, between 40 and 50 per cent of the season's tickets were sold before the six-week season began. This year seating capacity has been enlarged from about 1,600 to 1,900; the festival is two weeks longer and still it looks like a sell-out.

"We can play to a maximum audience of 110,000," he said. "Last year, despite a better than 99 per cent seat sale, we could only accommodate 66,800. We had to turn away thousands."

He said Tyrone Guthrie, director of London's Old Vic productions, will be back to direct "Taming of the Shrew" and "Oedipus Rex." Cecil Clarke, also of the Old Vic, will return to direct "Measure for Measure" and act as artistic director.

The noted designer Tanya Moiseiwitsch also will return. She now is preparing costumes, decor and properties. She and Dr. Guthrie collaborated on last season's radical stage design. It eliminates scenery, permits non-stop playing, provides several playing levels and projects on three sides into the audiences.

BIG THING FOR CITY

Mayor Lawrence Feicke, lifelong resident of the quiet, industrial city of 19,000 on the Avon river, said hotel and home accommodation for 1,000 visitors a night is being provided by one of the many committees set up to handle affairs.

"I think the festival is the greatest thing this city ever had," he said. "I think visitors will come not only during the shows but at other times. And with the world-wide publicity given the city I wouldn't be surprised to get some new industries out of it."

Cecil Clarke believes this year's supporting cast will be more representative than last year. He has conducted a talent search across western Canada and while many of last year's players will return a number from the Prairies and British Columbia will be among the 57 Canadians in the cast of 60.

The British actor Douglas Campbell, a leading player last season, will return in important roles. A leading woman from London also will be chosen. The rest of the cast is Canadian.

TICKET REQUESTS

Roy Loken, business administrator, had some interesting figures on ticket requests.

"A Buffalo, N.Y. newspaper (the Courier-Express) has asked for 800 tickets for one week-end. A Washington, D.C., group of 120, including four dramatic critics, has booked seats. A Toronto convention has ordered 600. Regina and Moose Jaw, Sask., are sending down a large crowd. A Toronto man has ordered 200 tickets for each Wednesday. The Chatham, Ont., little theatre has ordered 400.

"Complete strangers are writing in for large blocks. They said they saw the shows last year and are organizing bus trips for their friends and neighbors. It's almost floored us. We haven't even sent out tickets to any agencies yet.

"The Canadian National Railways is organizing special trains, with sleeping accommodations. Donald Gordon, CNR president, has become a patron. Stratford has a number of CNR railway shops."

The ratio of ticket requests is running 6-1 in favor of the United States over Canada, Mr. Loken said.

Division of Opinion About Check-off Union Dues

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Liberal Commons members Friday expressed opposite views on legislation for the checkoff of union dues.

The division came between Mrs. Anne Shipley, freshman member for Timiskaming and former reeve of Ontario's Teck township, and James Byrne of Kootenay East, a one-time mine union officer.

Mrs. Shipley argued a CCF bill for the checkoff "would only place more money in the hands of union leaders."

Mr. Byrne, a member of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) at Kimberley, B.C., said the measure would give employees and employers something on which to build better relations.

They were debating an amendment to the federal labor code introduced by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre). It would make employers under federal jurisdiction—in railways and other interprovincial industries—collect dues for unions when individual employees authorize this.

The system is known as the "voluntary revocable" checkoff. It now is in effect in contracts for most workers under federal jurisdiction. Several provinces have legislation making it compulsory on employers, as the Knowles bill seeks for those under federal control.

TALKED OUT

Mr. Knowles' bill did not come to a vote in the hour devoted to legislation sponsored by non-cabinet members of the Commons. It was still being discussed when the hour expired.

Earlier this week, Labor Minister Gregg said legislation such as proposed by Mr. Knowles is under consideration by his department. However, he said, there appeared no urgency about it.

The CCF member drew support Friday from C. E. Johnston, Bow River, chief labor spokesman for the Social Credit party. Mr. Johnston said the Social Credit group favors the voluntary revocable checkoff, but he expressed opposition to unions using dues to finance political fights.

"When a union uses money to assist a political movement," he said, "that has a very disturbing effect on its members."

Mrs. Shipley said she is not against the checkoff when it is negotiated by unions with employers and when unions have earned it by "responsible behavior."

Other unions had not shown such behavior, and they should not get the checkoff by compulsion under legislation.

In some unions, she said, "pressure and intimidation" was used to get the signatures of members for the checkoff.

If this legislation were passed, she asked, "where is compulsion going to end?"

PRESSURE ON PROVINCES

It appeared "the height of folly" to reward, with such legislation, unions that had shown "contempt for law and order."

If the measure was adopted, Mrs. Shipley said, it could be used as "additional pressure" on those provinces which do not want to pass checkoff legislation now.

Mr. Byrne took up the same point by saying it is "regrettable" that the matter now is before the Commons in the shadow of a union-management struggle in Ontario "so that perhaps it cannot be argued dispassionately."

This was a reference to the northern hard-rock strikes lasting several months, now under settlement, in which the checkoff was a prime issue.

"If we succeed in showing the way to some of the provinces and some employers and in avoiding one more disastrous strike," Mr. Byrne said, "we will have accomplished a very good purpose."

He said there is no compulsion on union members to sign checkoff slips. The process also costs the employer practically nothing, he added.

Page-Turner For Patient

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Encased in an iron lung for 16 years, polio victim Kalevi Oksanen will soon get the automatic page-turner he wants so much.

Offers have been pouring into Port Arthur isolation hospital for the 23-year-old Finnish-Canadian since recent newspaper stories said that the thing he wanted most was a page turner.

Kalevi's whole body lies within the iron lung and he can't use his arms. An avid reader, particularly of magazines on mechanics and television, Kalevi now gets a nurse to turn pages for him.

A Calgary man, Don Sims, wrote that he and a group of fellow workers have been working on a page-turner which should be ready in a week. Sims said he developed a simple spool-like machine which can be operated with the head to turn pages of a newspaper.

Kalevi's mother said she has been searching for one the past two years and it appears that one might be received soon. She found that they are manufactured in the United States.

Unclaimed Bank Balances Near $6,000,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Unclaimed bank balances on the books of Canada's chartered banks and the Bank of Canada have risen to nearly $6,000,000.

The accounts department reported Thursday that the chartered banks had about $2,117,000 in unclaimed balances at Dec. 31, 1953. This was an increase of about $331,000, compared with the corresponding date in the previous year. Another $3,606,000 is held by the Bank of Canada. This sum includes balances, other than dividends on bank stocks, which have not been claimed over a 10-year period.

The names of the depositors with unclaimed balances are contained in 15 bulky documents prepared by the chartered banks and tabled in the Commons by the finance department. The public may examine the documents, but the department cannot undertake to furnish information to inquirers unless it is provided with the name and branch of the bank where a depositor has funds belonging to him.

The balances held by the Bank of Canada also may be claimed on the same basis. The owner will receive his original deposit plus interest for a period of not more than 20 years. The banks themselves make no attempts to locate rightful owners of unclaimed balances.

SOME LARGE ACCOUNTS

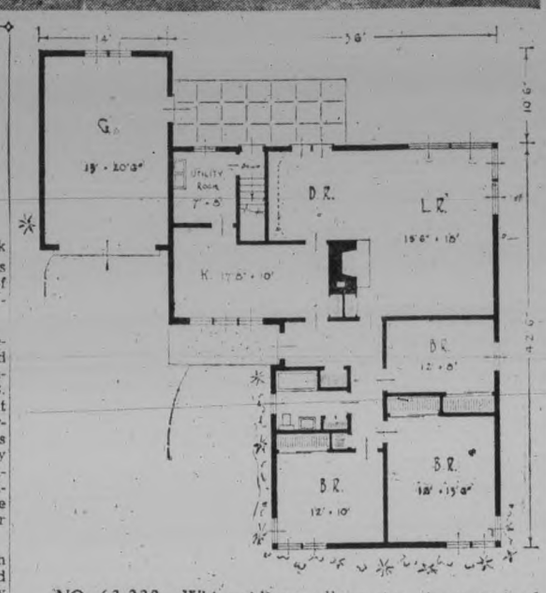
The bulk of the unclaimed money is in amounts of less than $100. However, there are hundreds of accounts which amount to more than $1,000, and many range from $2,000 to $5,000.

The largest account represents a small fortune. It totals $125,000 and belongs to I. Satar, whose last known address was Esplanada App., 3617, Taksin, Istanbul, Turkey. Mr. Satar deposited the money in a Montreal branch of the Royal Bank of Canada several years ago. The last transaction in his name at the bank was May 13, 1948.

Another small fortune belongs to Mrs. Margaret Louisa Maitland-Tennent, who apparently lives in London, England. She has at least $98,000 deposited in a number of Canadian banks.

Kingston Native Dies

EDMONTON (CP) — Jay J. Lieberman, 57, supervisor of mid-western operations of Odeon Theatres and manager of Edmonton's Rialto theatre since 1929, died suddenly Friday. Born in Kingston, Mr. Lieberman was educated in Kingston and Toronto. He came here in 1922.



NO. 63-228—White siding, yellow trim, sienna stained vertical boards and black roof combine in most effective fashion in this attractive three-bedroom ranch-type home. Planning is excellent throughout, the entrance hall being so placed as to afford good privacy between living and sleeping areas. Living-dining room combination must be seen to be fully appreciated. Built-in china cabinets, nicely proportioned grey stone fireplace and wide windows make this particularly attractive. Repair Cracks In Basement Walls

Cracks or fisures in foundation walls and falling mortar between joints may be attributed to various causes. Cracks between mortar and the material to which it was originally bonded may be caused by shrinkage of the mortar during setting, or soon thereafter, or by the expansion of mortar through saturation. Often the volume change of the mortar is greater than the material to which it is bonded and this change sets up a movement that destroys the bond.

If the walls are built on ground that will not support and equal weights at all points, uneven settlement may cause cracks to develop. An underground spring or flowing water under one corner or section of a foundation may produce similar results. Small cracks thus started may become larger in time from action of the weather and other forces. Frost has a tendency to attack weak spots. Expansion and contraction caused by extremes of heat and cold increase the damage, and water seeping through the cracks gradually wears away the material, causing it to crumble and fall apart. The disintegration is generally more rapid in mortar joints.

Results of such disintegration are far reaching and if not remedied may cause further damage not only to the walls themselves but to the structure they support. A basement will probably become damp and unsanitary if these inlets for moisture are not closed.

EXTENT OF DAMAGE

If the walls are otherwise in good condition, minor cracks and places where mortar has fallen out may be repaired by an unskilled workman. If, however, a wall is badly cracked and crumbled beyond the aid of minor repairs, it may be necessary to engage an experienced workman to reconstruct all or part of the wall.

The minor repairs in this section require the following tools and materials: hammer, sharp-edged and pointed instrument (such as a cold chisel or screw driver), wire brush or whisk broom, small mixing board, mason's trowel, and water bucket; portland cement, a finely divided material such as hydrated lime, clean sharp sand, and water.

PREPARING OLD SURFACES

Loose mortar between masonry courses should be chipped and picked out, and the joint brushed thoroughly to remove all dust and loose particles. The cleaned surface should be dampened before new mortar is applied to prevent absorption of water from the mixture.

MORTAR

To make repairs, a mixture of 1 part cement to 2½ parts sand, or 1 part cement to 3 parts sand, is recommended in ordinary cases. However, a 1:2 mixture is recommended for damp basements or those exposed to very moist conditions. A 1:2 mixture represents 1 part of portland cement to 2 parts of sand, measured by volume. The proportion to be used will depend entirely upon conditions, a larger proportion of cement being necessary in cases where excessive moisture prevails.

Enough water should be used to make a fairly dry mortar about the consistency of putty. The mortar should be thoroughly mixed and worked to ensure best results. In filling cracks, the mortar should be applied like a caulking material, that is, well rammed and tamped in to form contact with all corners and depressions to make a complete bond. When the crack has been tightly packed, the surface should be smoothed off with a trowel, and the surface finished to conform with the old mortar.

After the material has hardened the new work should be kept wet for several days to increase the strength of the mortar. If work has been done on the outside of walls, they should be covered by tarpaulins to protect them from direct exposure to the sun and drying winds.

This week-end the four men intend to prospect the area.

Some Tips For Attic 'Expanders'

By MR. FIX

Every now and then you pick up a publication containing an article headed "How to Expand Your Attic." The story may be told in from 50 to 500 words, accompanied by a photograph or two—maybe. Makes the job seem a cinch.

As anyone can tell you who's expanded and built living quarters in his attic, it's no so easy for beginners, although plenty of them have managed it successfully. It is a matter of studying literature on the subject, seeking advice from experts or those who have done it before, and of practicing studied patience— for it's not a job to be rushed.

And when you finally start the work, plan every move very carefully in advance, preferably on paper. You will still run into htiches, but if the basic plan is sound you can best them simply by taking time out to scratch your head and think it through.

It isn't possible to tell how to expand an attic in this space, but there is room for a few important tips.

Subflooring is particularly hard to lay if it is warped, as it often is. To pry it into position, first nail a 1x4 board to two adjacent floor joists at an angle to the flooring. Cut a scrap piece of flooring lumber in a wedge shape, then drive it between the 1x4 and flooring until floor board is forced into position. And remember to avoid ending two adjacent floor boards on one joint, or the floor may creak.

If the warp isn't great enough for the wedge treatment, merely angle one or two nails through the face of the floor board at each joist to close gaps. A pry bar may also be helpful here.

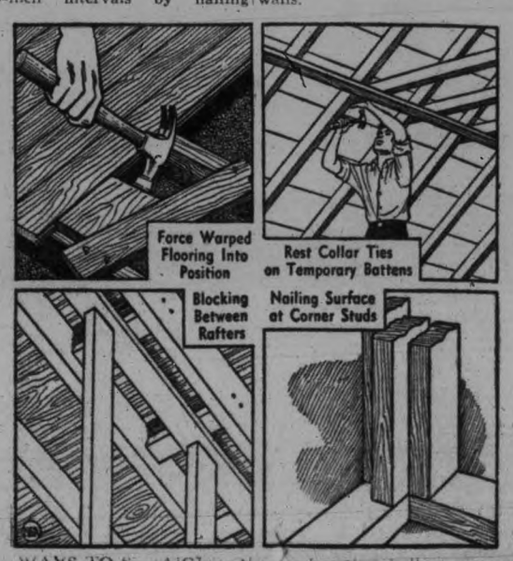
When you come to nail studding in place, remember always to provide nailing surface at every corner so that wallboard panels can be nailed at those important points. The nailing surface should be of 2x4 lumber.

Collar ties—the 2x4 boards run horizontally between opposite roof rafters to form the ceiling framework of the room — are easy to erect. Use a tool called a T-bevel to determine the pitch of the roof, then use the T-bevel to mark the same angle on each end of collar ties, for cutting.

Most houses have existing collar ties between every other pair of rafters. Nail 1x4 battens across undersides of the existing ties, and rest new tie on them temporarily for nailing.

If it happens that studding for a partition doesn't fall directly under a rafter, don't fret. Simply provide a surface to which studs can be nailed between two rafters. Cut lengths of 2x4s to fit between rafters and fasten them at 18-inch intervals by nailing through rafters into ends of 2x4s. Set 2x4s above the edge surface of rafters by thickness of a 1x6. Then nail 1x6 over the series of 2x4s. Face of 1x6 should then be even with edge face of rafter, providing nailing surface for studs and wallboard ceiling panels to come later.

What nails to use and how far apart to space them on wallboard panels is always a question for handymen. On plywood use 4-penny finishing nails on fibreboard, four inches apart on ceiling and wall-panel ends and six inches apart over intermediate studs. Use fivepenny cement-coated nails on plasterboard, spaced six inches on ceilings. Use 13-gauge nails spaced 8 inches on walls.



WAYS TO STRAIGHTEN floor boards. Nail collar ties and frame partitions that fall between rafters are shown above.

Gandhi's Heir Urges Landowners To Share Land With Landless

BODH GAYA, North India — By noon the word had spread across the countryside and the village was crowded. The people still were streaming into town in mid-afternoon when a little wisp of a man stepped out of a mud hut.

"Sant Vinoba," the people murmured.

Some dashed towards him, throwing garlands of flowers around his neck and trying to touch his feet. But the little man in the plain tan blanket brushed off the flowers and stepped back from the waving hands.

VOICES RAISED

Someone began to sing a Hindu hymn. Hundreds of voices took up the chant and for an hour the crowd sang.

Then the man began to speak and the crowd was silent, listening intently. At carefully-chosen intervals his big hands gestured expressively.

What was he saying? Give away your land, he was telling the landlords, give up some of your land to the poor and the landless.

Thus is Acharya Vinoba Bhave, disciple of the late Mahatma Gandhi, seeking to work a peaceful revolution in unpredictable volatile India.

The success of this ascetic who subsists chiefly on milk is amazing.

At the end of three years of walking the dusty roads and preaching in thousands of villages Bhave has coaxed nearly 3,000,000 acres of land gifts from 127,000 owners. His goal is 50,000,000 acres, or one-sixth of India's estimated total cultivable land, by 1957.

Bhave began his campaign in South India in April 1951. There landless Hyderabad farm workers disgruntled with the slow-moving land reforms of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's Congress Party regime, had almost set up an independent guerrilla republic.

The Telingana district had the worst land tyranny in India, with the peasants virtual serfs. Communist guerrillas moved in, killed or put to flight scores of landowners, redistributed the land, seized whole villages and set up their own schools.

In this chaos an idea occurred to Vinoba Bhave. He began asking landowners to give some of their land to the landless, suggesting that if they did not the Communists or the government might take it away from them. As Bhave collected land in Hyderabad and redistributed it among the most destitute, the terror gradually died.

His fame spread across India until today only Nehru himself is better known. When Nehru heard what Bhave was doing in Hyderabad he asked him to come and visit him in New Delhi, offering to send a plane for him. Bhave replied he would come to the capital 800 miles away, but in his own fashion—walking.

Both Nehru and Bhave are heirs of Ghandi. Nehru has modern western ideas and favors industrialization, irrigation and big schemes. Bhave believes in self-denial and spinning wheels.

HISTORIC STATE

At the age of 59, Bhave has come here to the historic Gaya district of Bihar State where Buddha had his revelation under the sacred Bodh Tree 1,400 years ago.

"I shall stay here," he told me in an interview, "until a complete non-violent revolution in land ownership has been achieved.

"Even the Indian Communists are greatly impressed by this movement. There is no disputing the fact that there is acute poverty in India and we need to eradicate it. Now, if a thirsty man can get good, clean water, will he touch dirty water?"

Traffic Offenses Push City's Crime Rate Up

There were none found in disorderly houses in 1953, although ther were 21 such in 1951. Nor were there any murder or manslaughter charges. These facts, however, bring the police department little joy for the number charged with offenses ranging from attempted suicide to shopbreaking is up nearly 1,000 from 4,402 to 5,392.

Almost half of those charged (2,652) were accused of offenses under the Highway Traffic Act. Parking by-laws were contravened by 1,333, up 500 from 1951 and 361 citizens got in trouble with the liquor control regulations.

The increase in the number of those charged is somewhat misleading, however, since traffic offenses invariably follow an upward curve as life becomes more congested. Perhaps more significant are substantial decreases in offenses involving morals, breaking and entering, and indecent as 1952. This, however, is a deassault.

The number charged with vagrancy remained at 38, the same crease of 12 over 1951.

77 IMPAIRED

The new clause of the traffic act, driving while impaired, has resulted in 77 charges in the last two years, 49 of them last year. Drunken driving is up to 37 from 22.

Under general occurrences, the polic department reports 124 warrants to apprehend executed (up 24), 4,619 summons disposed of (up 990) and four inquests held (up two).

IN MINING AREA — More than 100 prospectors seeking uranium, columbium, thorium and iron ore have descended upon the site of the century-old Trappist Monastery at Oka, Que., in the Laurentian mountains, 40 miles northwest of Montreal. Claims have been staked in the orchards and rolling fields that make up the grounds of the cloistered order centred in these buildings. Some 15 mining companies have set up field headquarters in the district made famous by the monks for their Oka cheese. —(CP Photo).

Private Medical Practice Banned In Soviet Russia

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP)—Private medical practice is not banned in Soviet Russia, land of thorough-going state medicine.

"But it is not popular," says Dr. Victor B. Rachmanov, dean of the First Moscow (Order of Lenin) Medical Institute. "Both professionally and personally, participation in the state program is much more satisfying to us."

Rachmanov, a tall grey-haired man, has been connected with the institute 30 years.

MANY REQUIREMENTS

He said a doctor who wants to set up private practice in addition to state obligations, must satisfy the authorities that his credentials are in order and that he has proper facilities for receiving and treating patients. Such doctors pay much higher income taxes.

In Moscow, typical salaries are 650 rubles monthly for a public-school teacher, 800 for a high-school teacher, 1,000 for a barber and 1,900 for a high-school principal. (Russia quotes the ruble at 25 cents for exchange purposes but that does not indicate its buying value in Russia).

A general practitioner or surgeon receives 800 rubles a month. He has approximately the same qualifications as a Canadian M.D. but is not a doctor of medicine here.

That comes after a minimum of six years post-graduate study, during which he obtains an intermediate degree known as "candidate."

TAKE HIGHER STUDY

The most brilliant graduates are retained by the institute for higher study. The remainder go into practice.

General practitioners take a six-month refresher course after three years' practice and again after six years. After three years of practice any general practitioner may apply for higher studies.

Undergraduate studies cost 200 rubles a year. All pay except children of war invalids, orphans and students from countries with which Russia has an assistance program, such as North Korea, China and the Vietminh republic.

More than 80 per cent of the undergraduates receive state stipends, the amount being determined by examination results. They range from 220 rubles a month, paid to first-year students with B ratings, to 500 rubles paid to Korean, Chinese and Vietminh students.

Out-of-town students live in residence, two to a room, free. Meals in the students' dining halls cost three and four rubles. Text-books are loaned by the institute library.

Postgraduate students receive stipends of 700 to 800 rubles a month.

Graduates, assigned to posts by a special commission, go throughcut the union and receive supplements reaching double the basic 800-ruble monthly salary if they go to distant places. Rachmanov said the wishes of a student are taken into account when postings are made.

CANDIDATE'S SALARY

On acquiring a candidate's degree, a doctor gets 2,200 rubles monthly. Apart from supervisory posts in clinics and hospitals, such doctors might be junior assistants in the institute, but would not lecture. There are annual increases in this category to 3,150 after 10 years.

A docent—a candidate studying for a doctorate — draws 4,000 monthly, would be a senior assistant in the institute and deliver lectures.

An institute professor earns 6,000 rubles monthly while the holder of a chair receives 7,050. Rachmanov earns 7,050 as professor of dermatology and 3,000 monthly during his three years as dean.

In addition to their professional salaries members of the Academy of Medicine of the U.S.S.R. draw 4,000 rubles monthly.

Professors have another source of income—writing text-books.

The usual royalty works out to 18,000 rubles for a standard-sized work, but one institute professor received a 108,000-ruble royalty on an extensive text published last year, while another got 162,000 rubles plus a Stalin Prize of 50,000.

Painting Woodwork, Bleaching Furniture Will Brighten Your Home

Cleaning time seems to touch off the decorator urge, too.

A lot of people, for instance, are getting tired of the dark woodwork that seemed to be standard equipment not many years back and still looms darkly in countless homes.

Being dedicated to the easy way of doing things, we can think of no better recipe for getting light where there's darkness than painting over the old woodwork. When the wall are painted, too, woodwork done in the same color (with a slight gloss finish for easier washing) creates the happy optical illusion of making small rooms look larger.

If you persist in a natural finish for your woodwork, however, you've got to start by getting things back down to bare wood again.

PAINT REMOVER

You do this with a liquid paint-and-varnish remover, sandpaper, steel wool, and an ample supply of elbow grease. After you've gotten rid of the old finish, carefully following manufacturer's directions on whatever remover you use, go to work with the steel wool, following with fine sandpaper.

Sometimes—but not very often—you'll wind up with woodwork that's light enough for your taste at this stage. If the old stain went in too deep to be sanded away, you've got another step to take—bleaching. Use a prepared wood bleach or a solution of eight ounces of oxalic acid crystals in two quarts of hot water (careful: it's poison). Brush it on and let it dry, using several applications if necessary, then rince thoroughly with clean fresh water.

Now you're ready to sandpaper again, using very fine paper until you have a surface as smooth as glass. After you've cleaned things up with a dust brush or a cloth moistened in turpentine, you can go ahead with the new finish.

For a natural finish that will be no darker than the wood itself, use shellac or varnish. You can go ahead and stain the whole thing all over again if you keep it light enough, finishing with shellac or varnish in this case, too, or with a pentrating wax of appropriate color.

One particularly popular finish these days is a silver-gray stain, highly adaptable for white oak woodwork. "Pickled" finishes seem to give happy results, too.

One way to achieve this effect is to mix white paste wood filler with turpentine until it's like thick cream. Apply it freely to the bare wood. When the sheen fades out, wipe coarse cloths across grain. Let it dry for a day, sand lightly and shellac.

Since houses of the dark woodwork era often have built-in sideboards or buffets and dining room furniture finished in the same forboding tones, once you've taken care of the woodwork you can apply your new skill on these, too.

Ornamental Lamps, Fixtures Inspired From Skyrockets

The sky's the limit in this year's new look for home lighting. Lighting fixtures take their inspiration from the skies, look like sky rockets and clouds, offer new ideas in decoration and new utility for today's homes.

The skyrocket fixtures are lighthearted, festive designs of Italian derivation. Designed for ceiling use, each consists of a spray of brass shafts, 12 to 24 in number, sky-rocketing from a golden brass globe or disc and tipped with candelabra base bulbs of clear glass. They have a delightful sparkle and shimmer like gala fireworks.

Each of the fixtures fits a particular lighting need. The "Floating Cloud" is ideal from the standpoint of good lighting as well as good design. A ceiling fixture, designed by the Italian designer-architect Maurizio Tempestini, it consists of a white perforated metal hood hovering like a luminous veil over three polished brass "bullet" reflectors. So skilfully is the fixture engineered that light is cast both directly downward and suffused throughout the room, eliminating the demarcation between light and shadow and eye-straining glare.

A companion design is meant for wall use. It utilizes the same materials and light suffusion principles as the ceiling model but has only one up-turned brass reflector. Exceedingly simple to install, it just hangs on to the wall by means of a clip and plugs into any basement outlet.

Another newcomer is a fixture especially appealing for use over a table in a dining or work area. It has a smooth walnut handle by which it may be raised or lowered, providing good, flexible illumination for best vision. Surrounding the light source is a simple cone of polished brass, coated with tensioned plastic for completely glare-free light. Additional light diffusion is provided by a wide-angled Plexilin fabric shade with soft textural feeling. The brass cone directs plentiful light downward, while the textured shade radiates a cheerful glow, spilling softer light over its top rim.

Coating Prevents Seepage Problem

Whenever it is necessary to coat a masonry wall to prevent dampness or excessive seepage of water, a good deal of consideration should be given to the kind of coating to apply.

An effective coating should contain five essential characteristics: A filler, a curing agent, an effective sealing coat, a curing agent and a coating which permits "breathing" of the underlying masonry.

One of the few coating materials on the market containing all of these necessary characteristics in proper chemical balance is Coprox.

Remarkable results have been obtained by several large industrial firms in Canada and the United States through the use of this wall coating.

They all report complete success in overcoming serious water seepage, with the added comment that the coating provides an attractive appearance as well as serving as an excellent water repellent.

Main Question

HAMILTON, N.Z. (CP) — Mrs. Hilda Ross, minister without portfolio in the New Zealand government, told a school prize-giving meeting she has a one-question examination. She said: "Have you learned to work while at school? If you could not answer that question, and I was the examiner, I would not pass you."

Bed Warmer

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — Scientists studying the lake in the crater of volcanic Mount Ruapehu spent a night in comfort with snow and ice all around. They perched their sleeping-bags over fissures giving off steam at an altitude of 9,000 feet.

Red Spy Ships Checking Ports

ROME (AP)—Italy has cracked down on the freedom of suspected Soviet spy ships to rest unchallenged within binocular view of NATO's most strategic Mediterranean ports and shipyards.

Police ordered tightened controls to limit the number of men Russia could keep aboard such ships, to watch their movement ashore, and to check messages they might try to send.

Allied officials of NATO Thursday, saw the pattern of Russia's latest "observation" system become clearer.

As the Soviet freighter Andreev prepared to sail for home after months of repairs at Naples, another Red-flag freighter pulled into the vacant berth for "extensive repairs" which her commander said would take four months or more.

Another Red freighter has started extensive repairs at Leghorn, Italian shipbuilding centre and supply base for U. S. forces in Austria.

Witches Criminal If They Defraud

OTTAWA (CP)—In olden days, witches were burned at the stake. Today they are criminals if they defraud their customers.

That's the essence of Canada's modern-day law against practitioners of withcraft, sorcery, enchantment, conjuration, fortune-telling and "occult or crafty science," to use the terms of the Criminal Code.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert) Friday asked about seances as the Commons reached the witchcraft section during study of the revised Criminal Code.

"Is an offence created in the case of anyone who purports by occult science to have spiritualistic communications with the dead?"

Later, outside the House, he said he was referring to reports that the late prime minister Mackenzie King attended seances.

Justice Minister Garson replied that it is an offence under the code only if done for a fraudulent purpose.

Then, said Mr. Diefenbaker, "if it were for the welfare of the state it would not be an offence."

A Cleric Comments

More Pulpit Thunder Needed

By REV. A. C. FORREST

One of the most controversial figures in the Canadian church is the Rev. J. R. Mutchmor. He probably gets quoted in the papers more than any other minister, and for a man so genuinely liked and respected by all who know him, I don't know anyone who gets more criticism.

I've seen him blasted by some of the more shrill writers in the labor press when he spoke out against their abuse of power. I've known him to be condemned quietly by business men for being too friendly with organized labor. I've heard him criticized for going to bat for the farmers in the west, and known farmers to be mad when he spoke out against too high farm prices. He goes after the "liquor" interests without mercy, but some of the extremists in the "temperance" movement are critical because, though he is a tee-totaller himself, he doesn't tell everyone else they have to follow his example to be a Christian or a faithful member in his church.

Those who know him only by what they read are apt to think of him as a quick-spoken, chip-on-the-shoulder sort of an individual, but those who know him personally love him for his winsome personality, his quick smile, and his handsome dignified figure which fits so well into clerical garb. They know him as one whose alert mind, full of knowledge and statistics, is just as active when he's studying some basic matter in the catechism, planning a new home for the aged of his church, organizing the work of one of the 19 homes and institutions for unmarried mothers, children, or senior citizens, as it is when he is studying figures on unemployment or a lagging housing program.

The main reason why Dr. Mutchmor is heard of so often in the press is that he has taken the trouble to acquaint himself with the way the press works. If he has spare time between trains he is as apt to drop into a newspaper office as into the church. When he speaks he speaks with the press table in mind, and his short pithy sentences and telling phrases get picked up. Sometimes he is criticized for speaking in such a way, and handing out his statements so freely.

Last week, the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church, of which Dr. Mutchmoor is secretary, had its annual meeting. I was interested in some of the reports and speeches, and a susual the news came out of what Dr. Mutchmor had to say. And this time, as usual, his report was full of pithy comment on the national scene, religious and social.

But this year's report is, I think, most telling in its criticism of United Church preaching. I would say it was probably pretty valid criticism, although I remember a short time ago we preachers were being criticized by our professors and others for the opposite.

Jim Mutchmor says: "There's too much preaching of the 'you can master-life variety' . . . Our men give their people some good Biblical exposition. They present also some treatises on Christian doctrine and some homilies about a vague view of peace or loving one's neighbor . . . there should be more sermons on God's judgment more preaching on social righteousness . . . The United Church and the country needs today more preachers who will fearlessly attack civic corruption, financial greed, totalitarion governments, and the irresponsible use of power by management, labor and farm federation . . .

"Canada needs badly more pulpit thunder," he says. "There must be more and better sermons on the Majesty of God, . . . Preachers must deal more faithfully with the sins of pride and arrogance, ostentation and luxury, sloth and gluttony, power plays and gambling, corruption in high places, extravagance and drunkenness."

Of course it is probable that if the preachers went all out for this suggestion, and sent the thunder rolling from the pulpit on such matters related to the social Gospel, that next year Dr. Mutchmor would be warning that "more Biblical exposition was needed, more doctrinal sermons are necessary, and that the down-trodden and discouraged need more comfort in the 'you can master-life style'." And Dr. J. R. M. would be quite right. That's his job, to keep feeling pulses, taking temperatures, and organizing, chiding, prompting, directing his church in these matters. Preachers know him, and appreciate him, and are aware that he has a tough and exacting job. A lot of other people don't understand, and may be very critical if he makes a mistake.

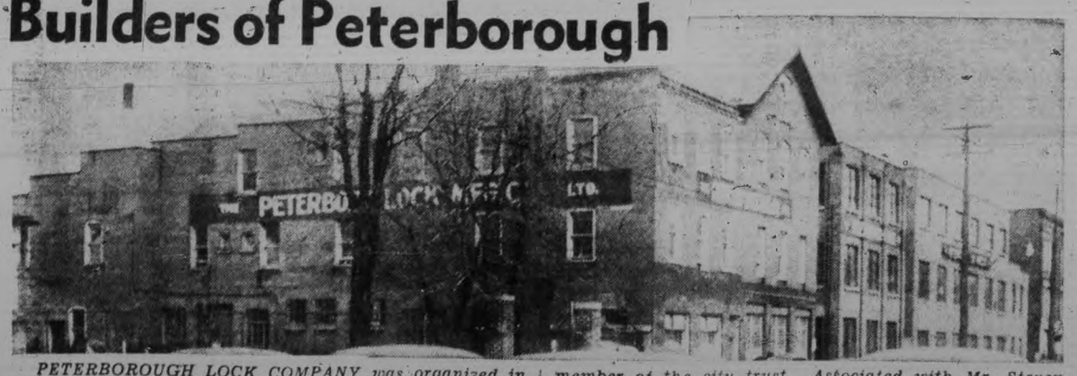
PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CVII. No. 49 — SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1954 — PRICE TEN CENTS

Builders of Peterborough



PETERBOROUGH LOCK COMPANY was organized in 1885 with James Stevenson who served for years as mayor, member of parliament, member of board of education and member of the city trust. Associated with Mr. Stevenson was George A. Cox. They were on opposing sides in politics and Stevenson defeated Cox in a subsequent federal election.

Oldest Lock Makers In Canada

First Locks Made For Canadians By Prison Labor

Of the chief executives of Peterborough's industries during the first half of this twentieth century, Ernest H. Howson, 548 Aylmer St., retired president of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Co., Ltd., Simcoe St., has the longest memories.

He was 50 years with the company from 1901 until 1952, with the exception of an absence of several years early in his career.

Mr. Howson was a youthful and unrecognized contemporary of the older industrial leaders whose time was running out during the first stage of his experience with the Lock Company,—men like Col. James Z. Rogers of Peterborough Canoe; James Kendry of Auburn Woollen Co.; Benj. F. Ackerman of the B. F. Ackerman & Sons Leather Co. and other seniors, most of them from the 1880's when industrial development of the town depended on local capital and enterprise. Subsequently, he was moving up in responsibility when branch factories from the United States were being established here, before and after the First World War.

BEGAN AS OFFICE CLERK

The foot of the business ladder in Mr. Howson's experience was a clerkship in the office of Peterborough Lock in 1901. He switched to the insurance office of W. H. Hill of Sun Life Assurance Co., but was back with the Lock Company as secretary-treasurer in 1904, was appointed managing director in 1911, and finally attained the presidency in 1939.

ORGANIZED IN 1885

Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Co. was organized in 1885 by a group of citizens who were keenly interested in the growth of the old town of 70 years ago. Outstanding among them was George A. Cox, who later became a member of the Senate of Canada.

It was the first lock manufacturing company in Canada. Up to that time the only locks made anywhere in the country were produced by convict labor in the federal prison at Kingston. As the inception of the company has been told, it happened that Thomas Brooks of the Whipple Lock Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, was impressed by the prospect and opportunity of setting up lock manufacturing on this side of the border.

Brooks was directed to Peterborough as a progressive community, presumably met Mr. Cox, and unfolded to him the possibilities of going into the lock-making business, with the broader implications of the builders' hardware field.

ACTION BY GEORGE A. COX

At any rate, Mr. Cox put out enquiries, and was informed at the capital that the government would shut down its lock shop at the Kingston prison, if assured that private interests would form a company and set up production. Plans of organization passed through the stage of discussion. Thomas Brooks was authorized to engage a small group of men skilled in the manufacture of locks, and premises were rented on the second and third floors of the original building on the present site of the Lock Works, the popular name that has clung to it from the outset.

In parenthesis, it appears that the first factory building on the property beside the creek at Simcoe St. was the Helm foundry. Incidentally, Thomas Bradburn, who kept a general retail store in the Robert Fair premises on George St., married a daughter of the Helm family. Herbert I. Bradburn is their grandson. The Helms were of Port Hope, where Walter Helm is today associated with the Midland Loan Co.

INDUSTRIAL NURSERY

Simcoe St., and now completely occupied by the Lock Co., was a Crown grant in 1837 to one Dennis Driscoll, who by some means, according to the registry records, mortgaged his lot for £61 in 1836. Robert Dennistoun appears to have bought that lot, No. 5, at a Sheriff's sale in 1851, and sold it that year to William Malcolm for £100. In 1855, George F. Orde paid £500 for it, and James Stevenson became the owner in 1857 at the £100 level. Eventually it was acquired by the Bank of Montreal, and it was not until 1896 that the bank sold the lot to the Lock Co.

James Stevenson also owned lot four in 1856, and apparently this lot was included in the sale by the bank.

The Helm foundry building, presumably the first manufacturing plant on the site, was evidently a nursery for infant industries during the 1880's. Hall Brothers' biscuit factory was transferred in 1882 from Water St. to part of the foundry premises. In that year, Central Iron and Bridge Works, of which the proprietors were McLean and Bradshaw, also found temporary accommodation in the foundry.

Central Bridge later moved to the Romaine brick works building at the east end of Dalhousie St., and on the north side, the largest structure of the new material of concrete erected in Peterborough

St. John's Cubs Celebrate 25th Birthday

To commemorate the 25th birthday of the troop and pack of St. John's Anglican church, the annual father and son banquet was held Friday night with an attendance of 132.

A two-tier birthday cake decorated in the troop colors centred the head table, flanked on both sides by candles in silver holders and bouquets of daffodils and iris. The troop colors of purple and gold decorated the tables with a miniature neckerchief at each place.

Guests at the head table were the Rev. F. G. Ongley, Mayor Norman Graham, E. Trueman, ADC H. Wilson, Dr. E. P. Ray, E. V. Morphet, Skipper George Groombridge, G. Dunford, Scouter A. Fort and Akela S. Purser.

A toast to the church was given by Scout Tom Gunn. Cub Jamie Welsh proposed the toast to the fathers, responded to by his father, L. Welsh.

BADGES PRESENTED

Badges were presented by ADC H. Wilson to the following boys: Blain Calhoun, second class; Fred Willison, toymaker, artist and homecraft; Bill Collison, artist; Jamie Welsh, house orderly and honor pennant; Bob Yudin, collector. Tom Gunn, patrol leader of the Beavers, was presented with the honor plaque.

The Rev. F. G. Ongley spoke briefly about his United States travels and finding the "Pinioned Pine" in a canyon in Zion Nationalist park.

He stressed to the boys how the small undeveloped pine tree could be likened to a person's life which had not received the sunshine of healthy development of mind and body. By applying the principles of Scouting to their lives, the boys could develop into healthy and useful manhood.

On behalf of the Mothers' Auxiliary, Mrs. R. K. Brown presented 36 new neckerchiefs to the Cubmaster.

The 1953 Scout jamboree film was shown. Scout Brian Dunford sang "At the End of a Boy Scout Day," accompanied by Mrs. Sutton. Gifts were presented by the Scouts to Scouter A. Fort and Fred Ford.

A church parade will be held at the evening service Sunday, February 28.

BREAK OFF TALKS

Next step in the negotiations between the hospital employees and the Civic Hospital board of governors is expected to be the setting up of a conciliation board. William Dunn, conciliation officer of the Ontario Labor Relations Borad, said he would recommend a board after talks between the board of governors and representatives of Local 19, National Union of Public Service Employees (CCL) broke down earlier this week.

Teacher Wins Top Award In Swimming

Only One Candidate Of Seven Who Tried In Ontario Pass Exam

Betty Merrett, a 20-year-old Peterborough school teacher, has brought fresh swimming laurels to this city. She has a diploma and crest emblematic of the highest award of the Royal Life Saving Society.

That this is no everyday accomplishment is shown by the fact that there were seven candidates for the award from Ontario. Only Betty made it.

It combines an exacting practical test in swimming proficiency and a three-hour paper on the theory of swimimng and life-saving. The examination paper is marked in England by judges who zealously maintain the high standards of the Royal Life Saving Society.

Betty has received a diploma from the society's head office in England, and she is also treasuring this congratulatory message from Mrs. J. M. Pretty, of the Ontario branch of the society.

"This is indeed an achievement and please accept the congratulations of the executive of the Ontario branch on your having passed the highest award of the society."

At present she is the only person in Peterborough to hold this swimming honor.

TESTS PASSED

To obtain it she had to reach perfection in all swimming strokes

DATE EXTENDED

Deadline for the renewal of automotive licences has been extended until March 17 for passenger and ownership licences; and until March 24 for truck licences. The chamber of commerce reports an all-time high output this week, issuing an average of 380 car plates an hour. To date, the total car plates issued is over the 8,000 mark, and about 3,000 are still to be obtained within the next three weeks.

MARCH OF TIME

Time was, Richard Raine reminisced at the Peterborough Utilities Commission Friday, when office girls would resign in droves or at least raise an almighty protest to work with an electric typewriter. But now, says Mr. Raine, girls detached from work on electric typewriters to man the other kind, are likely to complain. He was commenting on PUC secretary James Turnbull's recommendations for electric calculating machines in the PUC business offices. The PUC duly voted to buy these machines.

Lakefield Family Homeless When Fire Destroys House; Blaze Lasted Three Hours

Thought Caused By Overheated Pipes Today Only Shell Of Building Remains Standing On Concession St.

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — A family of six were rendered homeless Friday night when fire, thought to have been caused by overheated stove-pipes, gutted their two-storey frame home on Concession St. Fire Chief Allan Clark and Chief Constable Price Morris searched throughout the flaming building at the height of the blaze in an attempt to find the father, George Todd, who it was feared had been trapped inside. But it was discovered later that he had left the house earlier.

SHINGLES CONFINE FLAMES

The Lakefield fire department battled the stubborn blaze from 9:15 p.m. until after midnight.

Metal shingles on the outside of the building helped to confine the flames to the interior but hampered the firemen's attack. They had to enter the building and rip down partitions to get at the flames.

"It was the most difficult fire I ever fought," said Chief Clark. "But we managed to bring it under control with three lines of hose and prevented it from spreading to near-by buildings."

Today, only the shell of the building remains standing, containing the ruined interior and contents. There was no insurance to cover the loss.

FAMILY ALL AWAY

None of the family were at home at the time. Mrs. Todd had taken the two younger children, Tommy, 4, and Wesley, 11 months, to the doctor. Harold, 10, and Dianne, 7, were attending a concert in the town hall.

Returning from the doctor's about 9:15 p.m. Mrs. Todd noticed smoke in the house but thought it might have been from wood that had been put in the oven to dry. She opened both the back and front doors to let out the smoke and then noticed that the smoke was coming from the pantry.

Before she could open the pantry door, Mrs. Todd had to move a big, four-drawer dresser out of the way. When she opened the door there was a rush of flame from the pantry.

NEIGHBOR ALARM

Mrs. [illegible] faced next door with the [illegible] to the home of Mrs. Cecil [illegible]gett where she telephoned in the alarm.

When she had left the house to go to the doctor's, Mr. Todd had been lying on a couch in the house. Mrs. Todd thought her husband was still inside but the search by the fire and police chiefs through the flaming building showed he was not there. It turned out Mr. Todd had left earlier.

In a highly nervous condition, Mrs. Todd was advised by her doctor to leave the scene of the fire and, shortly after 10 p.m. she was taken to the home of her mother, Mrs. W. J. Shannon, 1013 Water St., Peterborough, where she, Tommy and Wesley spent the night. Mr. Todd, Harold and Dianne stayed with neighbors in Lakefield.

Elevated Tank Would Boost Water Pressure

A million-gallon elevated water tank at the head of High St. may be built by the Peterborough Utilities Commission in 1955. Cost would be $250,000.

The PUC should "get people's attitudes" on building one of the huge structures, and also make a study of the experience of other municipalities, PUC general manager Howard Powell suggested at Friday's meeting.

An elevated tank would be "especially useful" in the hot, dry summer months when the filtration plant is at top capacity. The tank would also increase pressure to high sections of the land in the city where the flow is sometimes light in summer.

Upon recommendation to Mr. Powell the PUC approved purchase of equipment at the Weller St. sub-station to increase water volume on the Hatton property and in the new Westmount subdivision. There will also be a new six-inch main connecting mains on Gordon-Clonsilla avenues.

LAST CHECK-OUT for veteran employee Harold B. (Chick) Hamilton of Canadian Nashua Paper Company was Friday afternoon when he punched his time card for the last time in 34 years of continuous service. Mr. Hamilton, a machine operator, was one of the original ten employees that formed the staff of the company in Peterborough in 1920. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

34 Years An Employee Of Nashua Paper Company

Harold Bert (Chick) Hamilton of 443 Park St., N., retired from work at Canadian Nashua Paper company on Friday afternoon after 34 years of continuous employment.

As machine operator in the plant Mr. Hamilton was highly regarded by company officials who were pleased enough with his work to allow him to spend an extra five years after he had passed the required pensionable age, 65.

Born in Peterborough, 70 years ago, Mr. Hamilton has always worked in the city from the time he left the old Ashburnham public school. He worked in the packing department of the Quaker Oats company for 16 years and then went to the old Cordage plant on munitions work for the duration of the First World War.

Back to the Quaker again for a couple of years and then again to his old plant building when Nashua organized on the same premises in 1920. His first boss was R. A. (Bob) Brown who is now president of the Canadian company.

Mr. Hamilton married the former Eva Fredenburg. They have one son, Harold, sales manager of Silverwood Dairies, and two grandchildren. He is a member of the parish of St. Peter's cathedral.

With no definite plans for his retirement, Mr. Hamilton thinks he will just "take it easy". He is in excellent health and he has no reason to believe that the condition will not continue for many more years to come.

Complaint Day With Utilities Commission

Chairman Notices Chlorine In Water When Shaving

It was complaint day at the Utilites Commission meeting Friday as the three commissioners, plus secretary James Turnbull and general manager Howard Powell brought in reports of complaints from consumers on various phases of the PUC's services.

Many of the grievances were small. One of the members recounted the tale of a citizen who had a new electric meter installed at his house last fall. Now he is clamoring to have the old meter back, because "it didn't register nearly as much."

Chairman Fred Hills reported hearing complaints about too much chlorine in the drinking water. He said that he had never noticed anything wrong with the water's taste, although he had "caught a few whiffs" of chlorine while shaving.

Every effort will be made to check defects in the chlorination of water, said Mr. Powell. "It is however, better to have the water A-1 for health purposes than just tasting good."

Mr. Powell also suggested that psychology has a lot to do with the chlorine in the water. Mr. Powell checked, drank some, found nothing wrong. The lady then said: "I can't taste anything wrong either, but I won't drink it."

Most of the complaints about the high cost of electric power can be dismissed, the board agreed, because of the winter. It was also pointed out that power adds up especially quickly when consumers use electric kettles (1,500 watts) or block heaters (400 watts) on cars.

"I wonder," Mr. Powell mused, "why people will cheerfully spend $13 or $15 a month on cigarettes and begrudge every penny they spend for power." He said that he was forever hearing complaints about consumers having no hot water, when "all they have to do" is invest two dollars in a 1,000-watt booster for their hot water tanks.

No Offence To Leer At Pretty Girl

OTTAWA (CP)—A male won't run afoul of Canada's assault laws by leering at a pretty girl. But it's a different case if he does his leering through the sights of a loaded rifle.

Justice Minister Garson made this observation Friday as the Commons resumed study of various sections of the revised Criminal Code.

Thomas M. Bell (PC — Saint John-Albert) asked if the law on assault can be used to prosecute a leerer.

The section says a person commits assault when "he attempts or threatens, by an act or gesture, to apply force to the person of the other. . . ."

Mr. Bell said an assault charge was laid in the United States some time ago against a Negro who leered at a white woman about 200 yards away.

"I think it would not apply under Canadian law," Mr. Garson said. "If on the other hand he aimed a loaded rifle at her, it would be different. However, I should think it would be very difficult to assault someone by leering across a distance."

He said a leer might be considered "a look of admiration" rather than an act or gesture threatening force.

THE HARD WAY—F/O William "Scotty" Falconer, left, an instructor at the RCAF Survival Training School's Arctic base at Cambridge Bay, rams his ice chisel into the 70-inch-thick covering of Survival Lake, to fill a bucket with chips for hot coffee. When it comes to food, anything with four feet and fur is fair game. At right, dressed in mukluks and heavy bush clothing, students at the school prepare a trap, balancing the triggered "door."

Timmins Miners Not Guilty Seven Charges

COCHRANE (CP) — Two Timmins miners were freed on all but three counts Friday by a jury which deliberated five hours and returned seven not guilty verdicts and three disagreement verdicts.

Patrick Walsh, 26-year-old union official and McIntyre miner, and Alphonse Norkum, 32, former Paymaster company miner, were both freed on counts of shooting with intent to murder four police officers, shooting with intent to maim the officers and attempted arson on the Broulan Reef headframe Sept. 3.

Walsh will stand trial again on charges of shooting with intent to prevent his lawful apprehension and possession of offensive weapons. The jury could not agree on a verdict.

Norkum will stand trial on the possession of weapons charged as a result of a disagreement in the jury. Bail of $10,000 each for the two miners will be renewed, the court decided.

Court officials said it is likely both men will come before the general sessions of the peace court here next June.

Before the jury retired, Mr. Justice J. L. McLellan warned the jurors he thought it would be "unsafe" to bring convictions on the charges of attempted murder, attempted arson and shooting with intent to maim.

Car, Truck Hit 1 Dies, 2 Hurt

HAMILTON (CP) — A woman was killed and two other persons were injured Friday when a car and truck collided on Highway 6, two miles north of Mount Hope.

Dead is Mrs. Archibald Thomson, 54, of RR 4, Cayuga, a passenger in a car driven by her husband who is in St. Joseph's Hospital with injuries to his right side and face.

Another passenger, Miss Ann Baltzer, RR 5 Cayuga, has a fractured leg and internal injuries.

Police said the car apparently went out of control on the slippery pavement hitting the truck near the crest of a hill.

The two women were thrown from the car and lay on the highway for more than half an hour before an ambulance arrived.

Mrs. Thomson died in hospital.

Papers Disappear

HAMILTON (CP)—All 1,200 copies of the McMaster Silhouette, the university's student weekly, disappeared Friday before they could be distributed. Editor Charles Williams said he thinks a prankster is responsible and he is confident the papers will turn up. The issue, final one of the year, contained a mild take-off on the university's student council, Williams said.

Scotland Tackles Peat Hopes To Solve Problem

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (AP) — Where Canada failed, Scotland is spending £500,000 to try to do something high-powered about peat, the brown fibrous stuff that Highlanders for 1,000 years or so have primitively hewn by hand and spade.

There is plenty of peat in the Highland bogs. The trouble, is as a Canadian committee reported in 1925, that peat, wherever it occurs, is 90 per cent water, and the best way of drying it has been the old Highland method of sun and wind.

Now the Scots are trying again. An official body appointed in September, 1949, has issued a long-awaited report, recommending new-fangled techniques for large-scale production, and the government has taken action. A six-figure sum is being invested, principally in an experimental peat-burning plant at Altnabraec in the barren moorlands of Caithness where the average population is five persons every 100 acres.

A spark plug of the new plan is a closed-cycle gas turbine engine, developed 2½ years ago and said to be the world's first peat-burning turbine.

CLEARING LAND

If all goes well, the project will have considerable impact in a country whose workable peat deposits are estimated at 600,000,000 tons, equal to 500,000,000 tons of coal representing 20 years' production. The peat committee says it could mean useful employment for 20,000 persons over a 100-year period.

An important secondary consideration would be the clearing of bog land for farming and forestry, leading to reclamation of as much as 500,000 acres in a part of Scotland now feeling the economic pinch.

"We have taken the lead in developing solid fuel gas turbines and the results so far . . . are extremely promising," says the official Scots report, published this month. "They are being watched with very great interest in a number of countries, including Ireland, Sweden and Canada . . . If we lost the chance to carry the development further and maintain our technological lead, these countries may get ahead of us."

Canada is credited in reference works with having 37,000 square miles of peat deposits, second only to Russia's 65,000. And the peat committee's report notes that the use of peat for generating electricity has recently been investigated by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission.

WORK STARTED

Elsewhere it refers to studies by a committee jointly appointed in 1925 by the Ontario provincial government and the Canadian federal government, which stressed the difficulties of removing water from peat either by heat or pressure.

Preliminary work on the Caithness plant has already started. The Scots are in ernest. As BBC commentator Alastair Borthwick said in a recent broadcast:

"I understand that elsewhere peat is a sort of joke, something associated with hairy Highlanders eating porridge on top of Ben Nevis, but up here in Scotland peat, what the Irish call turf, up here peat is something we're taking very seriously indeed."

Patron Saint Of Wales 6th Century Evangelist

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Welshmen the world over celebrate the Feast of St. David, patron saint of Wales, Monday.

They will honor the memory of a great 6th century evangelist, whose courage and piety has inspired Welshmen ever since. Welshmen wearing the traditional leek and singing the old Celtic songs will recall the great days of the little principality when St. David was preaching Christianity and the Welsh were repelling Saxon invaders.

Of the many churches founded in Wales by St. David, 53 still bear his name. His seat of church government, as primate of South Wales, was at Mynyw, or Menevia, and his fame increased in the centuries following his death. Tradition says his bones were taken to Glastonbury about the ninth century, and he was formally canonized about 1120 by Pope Calixtus II.

PROUD TRADITION

Wales now has a population of a little more than 2,500,000, occupying an area of 8,000 square miles on the Irish sea and the Bristol channel. Its sons and daughters have spread to many lands, and its people are a proud and distinct nationality with their own language literature and traditions.

David was one of the devoted Celtic missionaries who carried Christianity through Wales. Many legends grew up around him. It is said that a white dove perched on his shoulder whenever he preached, and that the ground where he stood raised itself into a mound so the people could see him.

Legend also gives St. David credit for the Welsh national emblem, the leek. The story is that in a confused battle against Saxon invaders the Welsh could not tell friend from foe. David told the warriors to pick leeks, the plants that were widely used for food, and wear them in their hats. Thus identified, they beat back the enemy.

Perhaps the best-known Canadian of Welsh origin was the explorer David Thompson, who travelled the western plains and the Pacific slope at the end of the 18th century. Thompson, who died in 1857, was the first white man to follow the Columbia river from its source to its outlet on the Pacific, 1,400 miles from its start.

Jacobs Guilty Of Manslaughter

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — William Jacobs, 32, the father of six children Friday was found guilty of manslaughter in the Christmas Eve bludgeon slaying of Alfred Hindrea, his 76-year-old landlord.

The jury deliberated more than five hours before reaching a verdict, and Mr. Justice Judson said he would have to give the matter of sentence "some considerable thought."

He remanded Jacobs for sentence next week.

Jacobs testified he had no knowledge of events surrounding the death of his landlord. He said that except for three instances his mind was a blank from the time he was sitting in his Port Weller home before the slaying, till he woke up in police custody Christmas morning.

Dr. Kenneth Gray, assistant professor of psychology at the University of Toronto, said that Jacob's intoxication would have rendered him incapable of forming an intent to kill.

Hector Edwards

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—The funeral service for Hector Edwards, who died following a truck accident on Monday evening, held from the Hendren funeral home on Thursday afternoon, was widely attended.

Mr. Edwards served overseas with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders and was awarded the Netherlands Bronze Cross by the Queen for distinguished service in the cause of the allies.

On Wednesday evening the IOOF 358 held a service and the Rev. L. J. Delaney of St. John the Baptist Anglican Church, of which Mr. Edwards was a member, conducted the final services.

The flag covered casket was borne to its resting place by members of Branch 77 of the Canadian Legion. They were Jack Mose, Les Edwards, Elmer Graham, William Woods, Gordon Hill and Walter Ziroff. The Last Post was sounded by bugler Cecil Gallagher.

Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

No Likelihood Abolish Permits

TORONTO (CP) — Abolition of liquor permits would create a "bootleggers' paradise," C. E. Janes, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Lambton East said Friday.

Mr. Janes made his statement during a meeting of the legislature's committee on government commissions which discussed the recommendation by Albert Wren (Lib-Lab—Kenora) that permits be done away with.

Col. Arthur Welsh, chief commissioner of the Ontario liquor control board said the permits, besides producing $600,000 revenue last year, give a "measure of control" over illicit traffic in spirits. He said there was no likelihood of the government abolishing permits. Without them it would be "almost impossible" for police to obtain bootlegging convictions.

THREE VERY DIFFERENT opinions were registered at a Montreal railway station recently by these three girls from Holland. Anke, Jannie and Bertha were caught by the camera just before starting out on the last leg of the long journey from their homeland to Terrace, B.C. The three little girls are making the transcontinental train trip with their parents. Their father was a shoemaker in Hoensbroek, Holland.

Balcombe Trial Verdict Expected Today

CORNWALL (CP) — Indications today were that a verdict in the murder trial of 2nd Lieut. Peter Balcombe, 24, charged in the stabbing of a 21-year-old girl who turned down his offer of marriage, will be brought in by nightfall.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer was scheduled to deliver his charge this morning, directing the jury on points of law involved in the case.

Balcombe, married and the father of two young children, was arrested near London, Ont., Oct. 16, three days after the naked body of Marie Anne Carrier of Bienville in the Quebec City area was found in a grassy ditch 35 miles west of here.

Evidence was that Balcombe kept company early last year with the girl, who was a typist in a Levis bank by day and on some weeknights took part in precision squad drills of a reserve army mixed unit in Quebec City.

Members of the girl's family testified that Balcombe gave her a ring and offered to divorce his wife and marry her but that she refused him.

RENTED APARTMENT

After returning to Valcartier last fall from army exercises in Alberta, Balcombe rented an apartment near Quebec City in preparation, he said, to take his wife and family there from his father-in-law's home at Komoka near London. But, witnesses said, the same week he tried to telephone Anne Carrier and went out with her at least once.

Miss Carrier, a vivacious brunette, disappeared the night of Oct. 14 and the next afternoon a farm boy found her dead in the ditch. A pathologist said she apparently had not been sexually attacked.

Crown witnesses said during the trial, which started Monday, Balcombe was in Montreal about 2 a.m. Oct. 15, a defence witness placed him in Colborne at 8:30 a.m. Oct. 15, and a crown witness said he rented a cabin near Woodstock about 2 p.m. the same day and remained there for the night. Woman's clothing found later in an attic of the cabin was identified as belonging to the slain girl. Witnesses said bloodstains were found on Balcombe's car.

SEVEN WOUNDS

A pathologist said the seven stab wounds in the girl's body were made with a stiletto-type knife.

Three of the six defence witnesses testified that Oct. 15 they were in the area in which the body was found but saw nothing. Balcomb himself did not testify.

Addressing the jury Friday, Crown Attorney R. P. Milligan said:

"Can you come to any other reasonable conclusion, from the evidence presented, than that Balcombe committed this crime?"

He said it was a clear case of murder. He said there was no possibility of a manslaughter verdict; it had to be one of guilty of murder or not guilty.

RE-UNITE FAMILY

Defence counsel J. M. P. Kelly of Ottawa asked the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty and "return Balcombe to his family and two children."

He said the pathologist had testified some of the stab wounds on the girl's body was inflicted perhaps as long as half an hour before she died.

"When was this torture committed that the pathologist said took so much time? This is the most important consideration in this case.

"It was done, I submit, by some persons other than Balcombe. The clothing found is not consistent with murder by Balcombe. The situation may have arisen where he had the clothing but did not commit the murder."

TWENTY-SEVEN EXAMINER NEWS CARRIERS took off by bus for Ottawa and Montreal on Friday noon on a three-day all-expense tour. Printed Stories Too Soon Dealer Jailed, Publishers Fined

CORNWALL (CP)—A magazine distributor was jailed for 10 days and fines totalling $14,000 were imposed Friday on contempt of court charges arising from publication of magazine stories about the slaying of Marie Anne Carrier prior to the murder trial of 2nd Lieut. Peter Balcombe.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer, presiding at the Balcombe trial, sent news dealer Edward Bryan of Cornwall to jail without option of a fine.

He fined Fawcett Publications of New York $5,000, Triangle Publications of Philadelphia $4,000, T-D Publications of New York $3,000, and Mrs. Rene Buse, editor of True Detective Cases, $2,000 or six months.

He gave Mrs. Buse until noon today to pay her fine.

The judgment was cofisidered the most severe of its kind on contempt of court charges in Canadian legal history.

J. M. P. Kelly of Ottawa, counsel for Lieut. Balcombe, showed the magazine stories to the chief justice Monday at the start of the 24-year-old army officer's trial on the charge of murdering the 21-year-old girl whose nude and stabbed body was found in a ditch 35 miles west of here Oct. 15.

The articles were: "His Alibi Came too Soon," an Official Detectives Cases; "The Nude and the Ring," in True Detective Cases; and "The Riddle of Canada's Nude CWAC," in True Police Cases.

BASED ON NEWSPAPERS

Counsel for the publishers sought to show that the articles were based largely on material published in Canadian newspapers.

Mrs. Buse, unable to find a clipping to support a quotation read to her by the chief justice, said: "Sometimes we rephrase."

"Did you create this conversation?" asked the chief justice. "Do you print what is not true?"

G. A. Stiles, Cornwall laywer appearing for Fawcett Publications, said the True Police Cases story was written from clippings from Canadian newspapers. Also unable to show a newspaper story to support a quotation selected by the chief justice, he said:

"I am bound to admit the authors embellish it sometimes and that occasionally it is not quite fact."

He said his clients were in the dark about Canadian law.

"They won't be any longer," said the chief justice. "There is going to be a great ray of light."

Isidore Levinter of Toronto, appearing for Triangle Publications, said the Philadelphia magazine's story was no more prejudicial than some that appeared in Canadian newspapers.

The chief justice said there was a great difference in that newspapers performed a public service by informing the public of what was happening and that often information helped the administration of justice. He said he feels magazine stories are for the object of attracting attention and making money.

"These articles are far more serious than an accidental error," said the chief justice, referring to the stories on the Balcombe case. "They contain false quotations put in the mouths of reputable police and army officers and they are written in a lurid way to attract the attention of the reader. They could do far more to prejudice a trial than a factual newspaper account of what may have taken place."

In a letter read in court, Triangle Publications apologized and said that, in future, no Canadian crimes will be reported until trials have been held and the time for appeal has expired.

150 Wool Workers To Be Laid Off

HESPELER (CP) — Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Limited Limited Friday announced a 25 per cent production cut in fabric lines most severely affected by import competition.

The cut will result in the layoff of about 150 office and mill employees effective immediately.

Employees at the plant were asked to take an 8½ per cent voluntary wage cut to help offset adverse conditions in the textile industry but refused in a vote Wednesday.

NFB Looking For Charwoman With Hidden Talent To Act

OTTAWA (CP)—National Film Board talent scouts are looking for a woman with unusual qualifications. She has to be a charwoman with a hidden talent for acting.

The ideal woman is wanted for the star role in an NFB short on the woman who clean up the Parliament Buildings while the rest of the capital sleeps.

A spokesman said today that it's nothing new for the NFB to bring out the actor in unsuspecting people. He said it has been done quite a number of times in the board's current series "Faces of Canada."

One NFB crew is making a short called "The Station Master" at Finch, Ont., about 33 miles southeast of here. Dalton Henry, star of the film, is joint agent of the Canadian National Railways and the New York Central Railway at Finch. He never acted before.

LIMITED CIRCULATION

Faces of Canada is primarily for distribution on the NFB non-theatrical circuit, for service and farm clubs and church groups, but many of the shorts have been seen on television. They give Canadians a look at their fellow countrymen and their jobs.

Titles of some of the pictures give an idea of what the series is about: "The Sexton," "The Motorman," and "The Photographer."

The shorts, usually from five to 16 minutes, are about the jobs of average Canadians, portrayed by the people who do the jobs.

Holland's Navy Brand-New Post-War Fleet

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—Holland will be the third strongest naval power in the Atlantic pact by 1956, naval experts here say.

Measured in terms of hitting strength, her brand-new post-war fleet will be exceeded only by the United States and Britain.

One illustration of Dutch naval resurgence is the invention here of a new type of anti - submarine weapon being installed in Dutch cruisers and destroyers. It is described by naval experts as "much more modern" than American and British types.

Two 10,000-ton cruisers were commissioned at the end of last year, the de Ruyter and the Zeven Provincien. These are not only the most powerful anti-aircraft cruisers existing in western Europe, but since their guns can fire at both high and low angles, they have more hitting power against surface and air targets combined than any other cruisers in the world.

By 1956, the Royal Netherlands Navy expects to have one aircraft carrier, two cruisers, 12 destroyers, 17 frigates, 11 patrol vessels, 82 minesweepers and seven submarines. Of these, all the destroyers and ships larger than destroyers as well as most of the smaller craft will have been built since the war.

The naval air arm, too, is to be modernized. The 13,000-ton aircraft carrier Karel Doorman, formerly the British HMS Venerable will go into dock at the end of this year to be equipped with a new flight deck for jet planes.

Unusual Baby

DOVER, England (CP)—Derek Stroud was an eight-day wonder to his parents. He was eight days old when they took him to the dentist to have a tooth pulled, and they said "He didn't seem to mind a bit."

Proud Cruiser

CANBERRA (CP)—The veteran cruiser of the Royal Australian Navy, HMAS Australia, is being scrapped after 25 years' service. Once the pride of the navy, with a distinguished record on various seas in the last war, she has been used as a training ship since 1949.

Russians Invite Arsenal Football Club

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Among the pile of invitations received by the Arsenal football club is one for a visit to Russia next August. Indications are that the Russian bid has priority.

The Russians have asked the English Football Association to send Arsenal for a home-and-home series, although the Gunners, the glamor boys of international soccer, are considering more than half a dozen requests from other places including North America.

The FA seems anxious to meet the Russian "new look" in international sport at least half way. It has said it is delighted at the proposal.

CLUB HAS PROBLEMS

Following custom, Arsenal authorities are reserving decision on their tour offers until the present season is more advanced.

One reservation might be the showing of the club this year. By Arsenal standards, based on seven league championships and a chronic tendency to be around when the Football Association Cup competition ends, this season has been a lean one.

The team got off to a bad start and now is down the table, although it is well out of relegation danger. Another factor might be the clash between the Russian and English soccer seasons.

Here, soccer is played through the winter. In Russia it goes on during the summer, and a visit in August would tend to pit a slack team against one in peak form.

On such state visits, however, the game still tends to be the thing. And Arsenal, the most sought-after club in English soccer on these occasions, has a wealth of tradition and team spirit to uphold.

RUSSIANS WON LAST TIME

The last England-Russian soccer meeting occurred in 1945 when East-West relations still glowed with wartime warmth. The Moscow Dynamos appeared in Britain and beat Arsenal 4-3. They trounced Cardiff 10-1.

Chelsea, the first division club which will probably play in Montreal and Toronto this year during a Canada-United States tour, held the Russians 3-3

Reports from European soccer teams who have visited Russia recently indicate that any English team can expect a far better time off the field than on. Hospitality is lavish, say Italian and Austrian clubs.

Austria sent its crack team recently. The Russians provided travelling and accommodation expenses. Players were given more pocket money than they could spend.

The Austrians lost 4-0 against Spartak, the Russian team of the moment, but beat the Dynamos 2-1. More than 160,000 persons watched the two games in Moscow.

5 Colleges Enter Wrestling Match

KINGSTON (CP)—Five colleges were represented in elimination and semi-final bouts of an intercollegiate wrestling tournament Friday night.

University of Toronto placed six competitors in the finals to be held tonight. Ontario Agricultural College of Guelph and the University of Western Ontario each have five finalists, Queen's University two and Montreal's McGill University none.

Losers will participate in consolation bouts today.

RIZZUTO IN FOLD

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) Phil Rizzuto, veteran shortstop of the world champion New York Yankees, signed a one-year contract at an estimated $40,000 salary Friday. It is believed to be the same salary the spry little infielder received last year.

HARRY LUMLEY, Toronto Maple Leafs' goalie, registered his 11th shut-out of the present campaign and moved back into the lead in one of the closest races for the Vezina Trophy for a few years. Lumley turned back the Montreal Canadiens with a goose-egg while Chicago pumped two goals past Terry Sawchuk as Detroit edged the Blackhawks 3-2. By the way, Toronto didn't score any themselves as the game ended in a scoreless tie. In the above photo Lumley kicks out a shot by Canadiens' Elmer Lach.

May Be Upsets Ahead In Senior OHA Playoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The start of the first round of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A playoffs Friday night may be an indication that some topsy-turvy results lay ahead.

Owen Sound Mercurys, who finished first in the league standings, had all they could handle while edging Chatham Maroons, who ended sixth, 5-4 in Chatham. The victory gave the Mercurys, a 1-0 game semi-final.

But Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who finished in second, had little trouble walloping Hamilton Tigers, who closed out the regular schedule in third place, 9-1 in Kitchener. Dutchmen now have a 1-9 lead in their best-of-five quarter-finals.

Similarly, Stratford Indians trounced Windsor Bulldogs 9-2 in Stratford and yet the Indians finished fifth—one place behind Windsor. Stratford's win gives the Indians a 1-0 jump in their best-of-five quarter finals.

Winner of the Kitchener-Hamilton series will meet the winner of the Stratford-Windsor series for the right to advance into the OHA finals against the winner of the Owen Sound-Chatham playoff.

REID GETS WINNER

Jerry Reid's goal with less than five minutes left in the game gave the Mercurys the victory in Chatham. Other scorers for the Mercurys were Buck Forslund, Elmer Skov, Ralph Hosking and Roy Leckie. Oliver sparked the Chatham attack with two goals, the others going to Al Plouffe and Jim Connelly.

In Kitchener the short-handed Tigers were no match for the Dutchmen. Hamilton lost defenceman Bud Kemp during the first five minutes of the game. Fritz Fraser didn't play because his equipment was run over by the team bus and his skates were ruined.

Gerry Theberge was the spark-plug for Kitchener, getting two goals and assisting on another two. Ken Laufman, George Scholes, Charlie Brooker, Jack McKenzie, Clare Martin, Don Oberholtzer and Art Hurst scored the others for the winners. Murray Comfort, the most effective Tiger on the ice, scored the only goal for Hamilton.

CHANGE GOALIES

Nick Pidsodny replaced Monty Reynolds in the Windsor nets in the third period after the Indians had poured eight goals into the Bulldog goal.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group, the league-leading Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds shaded the second-place Sudbury Wolves 4-3. Each team has one game left in the schedule which ends Sunday.

Jim McBurney scored twice for the Greyhounds. Hec Pozzo and Ron Lay shot singles. George Defelice, Ed Harrison and Tatter McLellan were the Sudbury marksmen.

The OHA playoffs continue Sunday when Stratford visits Windsor. Second game of the Owen Sound-Chatham series will be in Owen Sound Monday, the same day that Kitchener plays in Hamilton for its second game.

North Bay visits the Greyhounds and Sudbury is at Pembroke in the NOHA Saturday. North Bay play the last-place Indians in the Sault, Mich., Sunday.

Fail To Agree On '54 Schedule

GALT (CP)—Operators of teams in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League held a long meeting here but failed to agree on a draft of the 1954 schedule.

Disagreement on the schedule, submitted by Don Gallinger of Kitchener, centred around the playing of doubleheaders.

Gallinger also proposed that United States residents with no previous experience in professional baseball be permitted to play in the Intercounty League. League rules this year permit only eight imports for each club. Two of the eight must be members of last year's club.

The proposal would allow the players without previous professional experience to be classified as non-imports.

Road Games May Lose Cup For Toronto Collegians

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Road games may cost Toronto St. Michael's College Majors their chance for a Memorial Cup championship.

The Collegians, whose once-convincing lead on third place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings has been cut to two points, play like champions on home ice. Their 4-2 won-and-lost record against the second-place Toronto Marlboros verifies that. But on the road it's a different story.

The Irish continued their slump Friday night when they were walloped 6-0 by Barrie Flyers in Barrie. Barrie's victory moved the Flyers from seventh to sixth place.

While St. Michael's was being drubbed Hamilton Cubs knocked off Kitchener Greenshirts 5-2 in Hamilton to move to within two points of the Collegians.

In the night's only interlocking game Trois-Rivieres Reds of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association Junior league defeated Guelph Biltmores 5-3 in Trois-Riviers to send the Biltmores back into seventh place below the Flyers.

POLIZIANI STARS

Danny Poliziani led the Flyer attack with two goals, both in the second period. Other counters went to Jim Robertson, Bob Barlow, Ed McQueen and Cleland Mortson.

Hamilton's victory, the 12th for the Cubs in their last 15 starts, was won in the second period when Ed Louttit broke a 2-2 deadlock.

Cummy Burton's two third-period markers insured the victory. Joe Zorica and Ted Reid notched the other tallies for the winners. Bud Hillman and Grieg Hicks scored for Kitchener.

Leon Michelin sparked the victory with two goals for the Reds. Herve Lalonde, Gaston Marcotte and Andre Therrien added the others. John Gillis, Ed Shack and Ron Howell were the Guelph snipers.

League-leading St. Catharines play the Frontenacs at Quebec Saturday while Galt entertain Marlboros, Montreal Canadiens travel to Hamilton and Kitchener plays host to Barrie.

Sunday the Biltmores play the Royals in Montrea, St. Catharines meet the Marquis in Jonquiere, Canadiens are at Marlboros and Galt is at St. Michael's.

Canadians Play First Game In World Hockey Championship

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Canada plays its first game in the 1954 world hockey championships today and the showing of Toronto East York against Switzerland may provide a hint on where the Canadians will finish in the 10-day tournament.

Czechoslovakia, one of the top four teams in the eight-nation round-robin, defeated the Swiss 7-1 Friday and is considered by many sports writers here the favorite to win the world title.

The showing of the Canadians against the same Swiss team was expected to give observers a basis for comparing Canada and Czechoslovakia.

While Canada did not take part in the opening day schedule Friday, six other teams did and in each case the favorites emerged the winners.

In addition to the Czech win over the Swiss, Russia, appearing for the first time in world championship play, trounced Finland 7-1.

The third member of the big four, Sweden, swamped Norway 10-1.

GAMES SLATED

In today's other games, Germany, which was also idle Friday, meets Czechoslovakia and Norway plays Russia.

The games are played on an outdoor rink and a small crowd of 1,400 braved a storm to watch the opening day's play.

Possible highlight of the championships may come on the final day when Canada, with a long history of domination in international hockey, plays the Moscow Dynamos, rated by some writers here as favored over the Ontario Hockey Association Senior B team.

BULLETIN

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Czechoslovakia defeated Germany 9-4 in the world ice hockey championships here today. Period scores were 2-0, 4-0, 3-4.

Havelock Beats The C's 8-4 In TVL Playoff

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS)— Havelock took one of the most sprited hockey games of the season here on Friday night by a score of 8-4 when they invaded Campbellford in a TVL playoff encounter.

The game was well handled by referees Carson and Aquino of Belleville, who dished out a total of 32 penalties during the 60 minutes of play. Four penalties were handed out in the first 47 seconds, two of them coming at the 13-second mark.

Campbellford's passing plays were not clicking and their sharp-shooting forwards couldn't seem to find the net. It looked as though the locals were going to make a comeback in the second period, and finally moved out in front with a 4 to 3 score, but Havelock, playing a number of imports, clinched the game in the third frame by batting in five goals.

Havelock— Goal, Nicholls; defence, D. Mortimer, Berardi; centre, F. Mortimer; wings, Floyd, Slater; alternates Kane, Mason, Eakins, Hannah, Ruttan, Laing, Scott, Kelly.

B.C. Experience May Count

By GRAHAM McMULLIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — If experience means much skip Elwyn C. (Bung) Cartmell of a Vancouver rink stands a good chance of winning the Canadian curling championship at Edmonton March 1-6.

Cartmell, from West Vancouver, will make the championships for the third time in 16 years. He threw third rock in 1938 when the Ab Gowanlock rink from Glenboro, Man., won the Canadian title and carried the hopes of the province in 1950 Dominion tournament. The B.C. rink finished fifth that year.

Bung, who picked up his nickname years ago by his robust style of knocking opposing rocks out of the house, skipped quartet through the provincial play-offs without a loss at Trail, B.C. early in February. He has been considered Vancouver's finest skip since he arrived here five years ago.

FROM MANITOBA

Cartmell, who has been curling 30 years, has a well-balanced rink. All four, originally from Manitoba, came to the coast within the last five years.

The lead, Reg Fry, throws with a feather touch, winding his rock in over the hog line for the foundation of the Cartmell house. From Hartney, Man., he started curling as a youth but pressure of business took a 20-year-bite out of his career. He made his comeback last year.

Jimmy Dickson, second, can also draw in where Bung wants the rock and will guard or take out with equal ease. He also curled with Gowanlock in Manitoba and has been skipping his own rink here.

Les Kitsen, third, a native of Portage la Prairie has been curling for 28 years. He played with Bung in Glenboro and is a veteran of the annual Winnipeg bonspiel. Kitsen and Cartmell combine to finish out an end in deadly fashion.

Cartmell's victory was the second provincial curling title brought to Vancouver this winter. A rink from John Oliver high school, skipped by Ron Foster, won the junior championship at Trail in January and competed in the Dominion high school championship at Hamilton, Ont., this week.

B.C. CHAMPIONS—British Columbia curling champions, the E. C. (Bung) Cartmell rink of Vancouver, will represent the province at the Dominion curling championships at Edmonton March 1-6. STYLE OF CHAMPIONS—The western slide, as illustrated by Stan Austman, helped bring the national title to Saskatchewan in the Dominion schoolboy curling championships at Hamilton. Stan throws second rock on the Saskatoon rink which compiled an imposing nine wins against one loss. Saskatchewan has won five national championships in the last six years. The thrilling style of play sends the curler almost half-way down the ice following the rock.

PCVS Cagers Win Playoffs As St. Mike's Defeat SPS

It was a typical Oshawa-PCVS basketball series this season. The Garnet and Grey seniors won in Oshawa Central and Friday night in a hectic fourth quarter the Central quintet held on for a 73-69 victory in the PCVS. But the series went to PCVS by virtue of their Oshawa victory 59-52 as they won the two-game series by three points, 128-125. The old rivalry between the two cities was at its best in both games.

While the senior Garnet and Grey advanced into the COSSA playdowns, the juniors, coached by Art Currie, have a small five-point lead over Pickering High in their COSSA semi-finals. The Garnet and Grey juniors won the first game Friday night 33-28 and the return game will be played next Friday in Pickering.

Meanwhile in Toronto the strong St. Michael's College seniors and juniors finished the Ontario Catholic Conference season with wide-margin victories over the St. Peter's High, who placed second this year.

The senior Saints fell to St. Mike's seniors 79-36 as Toronto won its 11th game in three weeks while the junior Saints lost 36-21.

OFF AT FIRST

Carrying a seven-point lead into the game, PCVS were off for the first quarter as Oshawa arrived 45 minutes late. During that quarter the Collegians saw that lead wiped out in the first five minutes by baskets by Olynik.

After that five minutes, the first game didn't mean a thing for the round lead which changed back and forth. At one time Oshawa Central led on the round by five points in the third quarter, but Doug Ash rallied the PCVS quintet to keep PCVS close.

Terry Roberts, who had four fouls early, wasn't played much until the fourth and along with Bob Boorman helped PCVS retain the round margin.

The deciding factor in the game was that four Central players, high-scoring Oylnik, Fisher, Planeta and Reid, fouled out when needed in the fourth. In fact Olynik went out in the third.

Oshawa's Starr led the game scoring with 21 points, followed by Olynik and Ash with 19 each.

WELL-MATCHED

Playing without star Paul Davis who was sick, the PCVS juniors and Pickering were well-matched. Paced by Jim Bellany and Brian Bell, the Collegians played to a seven-all tie in the first quarter and then took the lead for a 16-14 half-time score, 27-20 third-quarter score and kept their lead in the fourth.

Pickering's Newell led the scoring with 11 points while Bell had eight and Bellany seven for PCVS.

In winning their 11th straight game, St. Michael's seniors led all the way with the senior Saints. The Toronto quintet took a 17-8 first quarter score, led 34-16 at the half and then 51-28 at three-quarters. Barry Callahan topped the scoring with 21 points while the Saints' Ab Ryan had 15.

The junior Saints fell the same way as St. Michael's led 10-6, 17-10, 28-13 in the three quarters and held the Saints on even terms in the fourth. Rzekpa led his game's scoring with 19 points while Dan Quinlan had nine for the Saints.

Plays Begins College Basketball

MONTREAL (CP)—Teams from the University of Toronto and McGill University Friday won opening matches in the women's intercollegiate basketball tournament here.

The Varsity girls dumped a Queen's sextet 42-26 and McGill edged University of Western Ontario 26-24 to go into the sudden death championship final today.

Queen's will play Western in a consolation event.

Co-captains Jane Duff and Sally Wallace, along ith Shirley Roberts, paced Varsity's girls in their easy win over Queen's. Duff collected 10 points and Roberts eight —all on field goals—while Wallace sank two hoops and four foul shots for eight points.

Toronto led 21-13 at half-time and both teams doubled their points during the second half. Dorothy Enwright — the night's highest-scorer—scored five goals and three free throws to earn 13 points for Queen's. Statuesque Norma Higgs counted seven and, along with Jane Nelson, played a strong checking and intercepting game.

ANNOUNCE GAMES TRIAL

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian open track and field championships, tune-up for the British Empire Games trials, will be held in Toronto June 26.

Fred Rowell, chairman of the national track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, said times in the championships will likely decide which athletes will compete in games trials here July 9 and 10.

He said Canadian athletes at Michigan State College will probably attend the meet. Also expected is Wes Santee, United States threat to the four-minute mile.

LIONS SIGN GRAPPLER

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 230-pound Negro wrestler was signed to a try-out-contract Friday with the British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Luther Lindsay, who claims the world's Negro heavyweight wrestling title, will report to the Lions' training camp in July.

Lindsay, 26, was named to the third all-America team while attending Hampton Institute of West Virginia in 1949.

Standing five-foot-eight, he plays guard or tackle and spent two years with Jersey City Giants, a semi-pro farm club for New York Giants of the National Football League.

EARLY MIST WITHDRAWN

LONDON (AP) — Early Mist, winner of the 1953 Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, was withdrawn Friday from the race, scheduled to be run March 27, because of an injured hock.

Joe Griffin, owner of the Irish jumper, reported his horse was "slightly amiss." Early Mist had been the joint favorite along with Irish Lizard until last Monday when first reports of the injury were heard. That sent Early Mist's price to 33-1, and Irish Lizard was made the 10-1 choice.

Griffin has another Grand National contender, Royal Tann, runnerup to Nickel Coin three years ago. Royal Tan is 18-1 this year.

Many Dancers

WETASKIWIN, Alta. (CP)—The crowd at the square dance in the drill hall here was estimated at 1,400—making it probably the second-largest dance of its kind ever held in Alberta. Officials said the record was set during Calgary's Stampede corral last year.

Future Champs

OSLO (CP)—A total of about 7,000 Norwegian boys and girls are enrolled in special skiing schools operated by the Association for the Promotion of Skiing. Largest of the schools, at Gjovik on Lake Mjosa, has more than 700 students.

BITKOWSKI MAY RETIRE

OTTAWA (CP)—Bruno Bitkowski, big 23-year-old Windsor, Ont., stalwart with Ottawa Rough Riders football club for the last three years, may quit football, he reported Friday.

Bitkowski, who plays defensive end or centre, sought his release because he wants to work in Toronto. Toronto Argonauts sought to make a deal with Riders, offering Oatten Fisher, United States import with Balmy Beach, in exchange, but Riders refused.

Lulu Perez Wins In Second Round

NEW YORK (AP)—Young Lulu Perez of Brooklyn Friday night stopped 31-year-old Willie Pep in 1:53 of the second round on the three-knockdown rule at Madison Square Garden.

Pep weighed 127½, one pound more than Perez.

Referee Al Berl halted the fight after the 20-year-old Perez floored the former featherweight champion for the third time with a vicious right to the head.

A left and right dropped the former ring great for nine shortly after the round began. Swarming after the ring-scarred Hatford, Conn., veteran, the flashy Perez clipped Pep with a right uppercut that snapped Willie's head back and brought a roar from the crowd.

BIG RIGHT

Another right dropped Pep right on his pants. He shook his head and then got up at the eight count. Lulu stormed after him again, throwing punches with machine-gun speed. As Willie backed against the ropes, Lulu smashed over another right and Willie hit the deck for the third time.

As soon as he fell, Berl waved his hands, signalizing the end of the scheduled 10-rounder. Under Ne York rules, the referee must stop the fight when one fighter is dropped three times in one round in non-title bouts.

The defeat snapped a 19-fight winning streak Pep had built up since he was stopped by Tommy Collins last June. It was only his sixth defeat against 183 victories in his 14-year career and the fifth time he had been stopped.

It about marked the end of the big time for the dark-haired little gladiator who had held the 126-pound title twice.

Dr. Vincent Nardiello, a physician for the commission, said "Pep is not going to fight any more as far as I'm concerned." He can't take a punch any more. I wouldn't pass him in a physical."

ROBERTS GETS PAY HIKE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Robin Roberts Friday signed his 1954 contract which is believed to make him the highest paid pitcher in the National League.

It is reported the 27-year-old right hander will receive in excess of $40,000 from Philadelphia Phillies. It is a raise over last year.

Roberts, who won 23 and lost 16 in 1953, originally was offered a cut from his 1953 pay and turned back the contract with an "I'll never sign that" statement.

Minor Hockeyists In Millbrook Play

MILLBROOK —(ENS)—Minor league hockeyists, in the fortunate selection of a date, had good ice for their night on Tuesday. Three games were played. Kendal and Millbrook pried the lid off with the locals overcoming an early Kendal lead to take a 7-4 decision. Earl Ruth was largely responsible for the 'Brooks win as he came up with a fine performance to register five goals. Trim led the Kendal snipers with three, with Westhauser getting the other. Dawson and Earl picked up the singles for Millbrook. Dit Clapper and Gary Carr handled the refereeing chores in top style.

Kendal — Don Mercer, Gary Madison, Dave Foster, Larry Manders, Neal Elliott, Joe Trim, Robert Westhauser, Dave Mercer, Murray Gordon.

Millbrook — Wayne Roper, Gord Hall, Ross Thompson, Don Earl, Glen Manley, Glen Earl, Glen Forsyth (that's right, three of 'em), George Dawson, Earl Ruth, Bob Hamilton, Bob Bredin, Ray Stranaghan, Wayne Challice.

PROVED STRONG

In the second game the Scott's Corners midgets packed too much power for the locals and took a comparatively easy 7-2 win. Spearheading the Corners attack was classy young Gary Carr who had three and assisted on two others. The Ruth brothers and Minnie accounted for the balance of the counters. For Millbrook it was Guthrie and Anderson on unassisted efforts. "Dempsey" Crossett of Port Hope and Alan Wright were referees.

Scott's Corners— Carr, A. Ruth, E. Ruth, B. Ruth, Minnie, Seymour, Fair, Sargeant, Moore, Fee, Sargeant.

Millbrook — Anderson, Lowery, Guthrie, Anderson, Argue, Palmer, Manley.

In the third game the Port Hope juveniles were unable to keep their engagement to meet Bowmanville and a Millbrook combine team was substituted. Except for one brief interval in the third period the visitors didn't play inspired hockey and took the short end of a 10-7 score.

Bowmanville — Sellers, Masters, Stacey, Hughes, Hooper Brooks, Hall, Bird, Gimlett, Richards, Lake, Lycett, Vanstone.

Combines — Blair, Handley, Carr, A. Hutchison, Palmer, Kent, Lowery, Guthrie, Wright, Ginn, Lunn.

Westerners Slightly Favored In Curling Championships

By JACK ENEFER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—The 25th renewal of the Canadian curling championships which gets under way here Monday is expected to provide some of the hottest rock-tossing since the game was introduced in the country.

The experts aren't making any rash predictions. They give the West a slight edge but aren't writing off the East.

The list of 11 entries reads like curling's who's who — Jimmy Welsh, Bung Cartmell, Reg Piercey, to name a few.

All 11 rinks were in camp today. The "curlers' special," carrying nine rinks from provinces east of Alberta arrived here early today. Cartmell, British Columbia representative, arrived Friday night and Matt Baldwin of Edmonton, winner of the Alberta title, was waiting for him.

The rinks will take it easy during the week-end in preparation for the open draw Monday. The draws are expected to be announced Sunday.

Jimmy Welsh of Manitoba is the only repeater. He won the Dominion title in 1947 with the same rink he won the Manitoba title this year.

STRONG OPPOSITION

He will get strong opposition from other western rinks. The Campbell brothers of Avonlea, Sask., have been strong for years and hope to give Saskatchewan its first Dominion victory this time.

Cartmell packs as much experience as any of the other skips. He has been active curler for 30 years and has played in 24 provincial playoffs in Manitoba and British Columbia. He was with the Ab Gowanlock rink in 1938 when Manitoba won the Dominion title. His other three players are also from Manitoba.

Matt Baldwin, 27, of Edmonton is the youngest skip in the bonspiel. Baldwin has a deadly third in Glenn Gray, who skipped the Alberta entry in the championships in 1951.

Another strong contender is the Bill Tracy rink from Arvida, Que. Northern Ontario is represented by the Don Groom rink from Sudbury, site of the 1953 playoffs.

Ross Tarloton of Hamilton heads the Ontario entry. With experience in six provincial playoffs, the experts will keep a close watch on him.

NOVA SCOTIA BANNER

Reg Piercey of Halifax will carry Nova Scotia's banner. His rink has been tabbed the "dangerous 40s," as all players are more than 40 years of age. Piercey has had 16 years' experience and competed for Nova Scotia in the 1947 Dominion finals at Saint John, N.B.

Robert Kent of St. John's will lead Newfoundland's attempt to gain the Dominion title. A native of St. John's, this will be Kent's first Dominion 'spiel.

Dick McCulley of Saint John also is making his first appearance in the Dominion this year.

TV NEWS

By KEN McCANNAN

We heard this week of a wonderful couple named Hunter who some time ago bought a brand new 21 inch TV set which they've never had a chance to use. They had it installed in their living room entirely for the enjoyment of friends who come to see them. You see, the Hunters are both blind!

We also heard of a TV fan who made his living climbing into second storey windows while the house occupants were away. It seems this particular housebreaker miscalculated and on this occasion found the entire family enjoying a sit around the TV set while they watched the antics of a pair of wrestlers. After shaking the family down at gun point for $15 this unorthodox robber then paused in his efforts to give his critical attention to the wrestling match. Whereupon he bet the by this time thoroughly startled householders that a certain "groaner" would win. When this man came out second best the thief handed back the money and slunk very downhearted back into the night.

For our money that above proves it . . . TV is the most popular form of entertainment today and is every bit as important to the average home as the kitchen sink. And speaking of sinks, be sure you don't "sink" your money in a TV set before you've had a look at the unbeatable values that ADMIRAL, a name that stands for top quality in television, has to offer. At McCANNAN ELECTRIC we have a full range of models to suit both your taste and pocketbook. Just one more thing—with every purchase made in our store goes the highest grade of service in the business. We stand behind everything we sell and take pride in our installation. If this complex business of TV has you in a dither drop into 274 George Street and we promise you'll bless the day you did. YOU CAN PUT YOUR CONFIDENCE IN KEN McCANNAN.

Big Retailers Spend 5% On Advertising

FORT ERIE (CP) — Robert B. Adam, president of the Buffalo, N. Y., Retail Merchants Association, Friday said that big retailers spend five per cent of their net sales return in advertising and three per cent of that is spent on newspapers.

Earlier he ha been quoted as saying in a speech here Wednesday that about five per cent of all merchandise in the larger retail establishments is sold through advertising. Mr. Adam said today that the five per cent figure actually refers to the proportion of sales revenue spent on advertising.

Mr. Adam said that the newspaper leads as the best media for selling merchandise. With three per cent spent on newspapers, one per cent went to radio and TV and one per cent to direct mail advertising.

Chief constable John Lafleche of Sturgeon Falls, who took Peacock off a bus bound for North Bay when he was arrested Jan. 10, testified Peacock had a one-dollar bill that was identified by employees of the United Auto Parts in Sudbury as part of $300 taken when the company safe was smashed open.

Cancel Dancing Lesson For Royal Children

LONDON (AP) — Unexplained "purely domestic matters" caused a sudden cancellation of Thursday's dancing lessons of Prince Charles and Princess Anne, Buckingham Palace said Friday. It refused to elaborate.

But the royal children will resume their lessons as scheduled next Thursday with the same group of palace children who attended regularly. Buckingham Palace spokesmen denied a gossip column report which connected the missed lesson with the absence of a four-year-old dancing companion who was quarantined for measles.

Amendments To Court Acts

TORONTO (CP) — An amendment to the Juvenile and Family Courts Act which would name all such courts "juvenile and family courts" was contained in a bill introduced in the legislature Friday.

Attorney-General Porter said the move would give equal emphasis to the two fields in which these courts function.

An amendment to the Infants Act would make fact-finding procedures used in divorce cases involving custody of children applicable to all custody cases, whether arising from a divorce action or not.

Mr. Porter said such investigations were of great assistance in divorce cases.

Urge Israeli Forces To March On Suez

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israel's biggest afternoon newspaper, Maariv, says today in a front-page editorial that Israeli forces should march on the Suez now to assure the security of the vital canal zone for the West.

The independent paper says the downfall of Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Naguib showed that "any adventurer who holds a pistol or, even worse, any Communist agent can seize power and immobilize the huge canal base."

"The hour of the Cairo regime's fall is the hour of great opportunity to cut off the Sinai desert and the Gaza coastal strip (Egyptian territory east of the canal) from Egyp. The Israeli state could have done it any time but especially can do it now. Israel can mop up the small Egyptian garrison in Gaza and reach the Suez."

"16-Cylinder Smith" Considered Ideal For New Army Appointment

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — Maj.-Gen. J. D. B. (Des) Smith, named today for a new appointment in Canada, is one of a select group of young Canadian officers whose soldierly spit and polish merges easily into a broader appreciation of modern military requirements.

The 42-year-old Ottawa-born general—they used to call him "16-Cylinder Smith"—leaves London in July to become commandant of the National Defence College at Kingston. Fellow officers here consider this an ideal appointment for a man who has always had a broad outlook on military affairs.

It is Gen. Smith's conviction that defence, in the present crotchety era of cold war and uneasy peace, is far more than a mere matter of guns and parade squares. Instead it is a national concern, and military needs must be balanced against other aspects of life in the community.

"Defence is not a military consideration, it is a national consideration," is the way he puts it.

Smith started the Second World War as a staff captain in the 1st Canadian Infantry Division, served in England, Italy and northwest Europe and rose to become chief of the 1st Canadian Corps. He emerged with a string of decorations, including the Distinguished Service Order, and awards from France, Italy and Greece.

In England, as commanding officer of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, his energy and drive earned him the "16-cylinder" label.

After the war he became commandant of the Canadian Army Staff College at Kingston, attended the Imperial Defence College here, was secretary of the Canadian chiefs of staff committee and later quartermaster-general. In 1951 he came back to London as chairman of the Canadian joint staff, an organization which in the last five years has grown from nothing into a headquarters for more than 500 Canadian military personnel, stationed here permanently or on courses.

Smith tries to cultivate a truly "tri-service" outlook.

Whimsically, it might be said he carries this even into his private life. His 13-year-old son Jamie has an eye on the air force; six-year-old Stephen, the other son, plans to enlist in the navy. Gen. Smith's wife is the former Miriam Blackburn of London, Ont.

MISS JEAN BUCK

President of the Peterborough Red Cross Society

Says:

"Do You Know the LOCAL RED CROSS SOCIETY Does All This and More?"

1—Sponsors Apsley Outpost Hospital

A 20-bed hospital serving a vital need in a sparsely populated area. Staffed with fully trained nurses, able to make school and home visits, T.B. and Dental clinics, First Aid, immunization and maternity work.

Through the sponsorship of the Red Cross the citizens of the City of Peterborough are saved a burden of extra taxes which would otherwise be necessary. We are proud of the work done by this outpost hospital in Peterborough County.

2—Swimming and Water Safety

Last year 248 children in or near Peterborough passed their Red Cross Swimming and Water Safety Tests. Each was taught by a Red Cross trained instructor. These safety programs are carried out in Peterborough at the Y.W.C.A., The Lions Pool and Inverlea Park, also at Bridgenorth, the Y.W.C.A. camp at Clear Lake and the C.G.I.T. camp. This work is directed toward the prevention of death by drowning. The more places there are to swim—the more places there are to drown, and yet statistics show that there has been a decrease in drowning deaths in Ontario.

Plain Dark Pumps Will Conceal Flat-Footedness

Before a girl decides to capitalize on a good feature she ought to consider other features that will accidentally come into the limelight with it.

This was brought sharply to mind recently by a girl who, in wearing yellow pumps, was obviously calling attention to her rather attractive legs.

Apparently, she was unaware of, or was ignoring the unfortunate fact that she was very flat-footed. The east and westerly directions her feet took actually arrested one's eyes. The flat feet completely detracted from the allure of her legs.

The woman whose feet are big, either in length or width, should never wear light-colored shoes. She should keep them discreetly in the background by wearing black, navy or brown, regardless of the current color trend.

Shoes that feature considerable ornamentation should also be left to the girl blessed with well-shaped feet. The wearers of the plain, dark pumps can find consolation in other accessories of more elaborate design to point up real assets.

And the flat-footed women in the group certainly should consult their doctors about the problem.

Prettiest Setting Achieved For Nurses' Starlight Ball

Prettiest decorations for a dance seen this season were done by the student nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital for their "Starlight Ball" on Friday evening. Winking stars above the dancers and a bright yellow crescent moon that partially hid the orchestra provided a fairyland setting for this delightful event.

Midnight blue and silver streamers garlanded the entrance to the residence auditorium and formed a canopy over the dance floor. Glittering gold and silver stars were simply everywhere, with a background of deep blue in the pillows and window drapes.

Silhouettes were featured as wall pictures and were in the most interesting shapes, pixies, love birds, sprites, ballroom dancing figures, etc.

Lovely prizes were donated to the nurses and were presented as draws for novelty dances. The door prize went to Miss Agnes Doris and John McCrea. Spot dance winners were Dr. Robert Young and Mrs. LaPlante, Miss Marie Woodhouse and Ken Hulsman, and an elimination dance was won by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Collins.

President of the Student Council Miss Patricia Neville received the guests, assisted by Dr. John Neville, who is not her brother as such a nurse, doctor and name combination would suggest, but a cousin. Attending as patrons and patronesses were Dr. and Mrs. John Fraser, Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Blastorah, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Paquette and Mrs. Grace Poole.

Mrs. Paquette and Mrs. Poole were representing the Ladies' Auxiliary to the hospital, which provided lunch for the dancers at midnight.

If Heavy Ankles A Problem Try Exercises

It is not solely a male viewpoint that trim ankles are a beauty asset. Fashionable women realize that heavy ankles throw the nicest figure off balance, creating a very awkward appearance.

Fortunately, no one has to endure such a situation. There are numerous exercises that will reduce the ankles as much as three inches within three months.

So, if heavy ankles are your problem, get busy with the exercise mat. Don't hope that nature will be kind in time. The flesh will only settle more firmly while you hope in vain. Meantime, you will feel mighty awkward in the slim-line dresses that are destined for popularity in coming months.

Here are three very simple exercises that will show amazing results if you are faithful to them:

1. Wring the flesh around the ankles as though it were a rag. Do this for several minutes a few times a day.

2. Slap the ankles with your fists until they are pink. Slap upward, as far as your legs need reducing. Do not slap downward.

3. Lying on back with right leg raised and ankle and knee relaxed, make a circle out from ankle 10 times with toes. Then make 10 circles with ankle of left leg. Do this exercise two or three times a day, gradually working up to at least 200 circles each day.

Varied Interests Keep Alert Women Past 40

It is not mere accident that some women past 40 retain their youthful appearance and vigor.

These women, the ones whose interests are as varied as a 20-year-old's, are alert mentally and socially, have one beauty secret in common: they know the value of proper pampering.

Constant pampering of the body never does anyone any good, be she young or old. But taking time out to restore enthusiasm is essential for successful living.

As active as they manage to be, these women who are adding years gracefully, schedule a beauty rest every day. They have learned that just a brief rest can mean the difference between ending the day on a high or low note.

So they recline for 15 or 20 minutes with their feet higher than their heads to stimulate the circulation of blood. And they restore the sparkle of their eyes by covering them with soothing pads during the quarter hour.

Some women have also found a weekly oil bath very beneficial. Before relaxing in the beauty-rest position, they rub a rich body oil all over their bodies. Others have found that using a good body lotion has the same stimulating effect as oil.

When nervous tension threatens their day, some women count on a relaxing bath and a nap to bring them around. They spend at least a half hour in a warm bath, resting against rubber head rest with an icebag at the back of their necks. Then an hour's rest and they are ready to get back into the swing of modern living.

FELLOW CHOIR MEMBERS honored Miss Mary Morton of the Knox United church choir at a social gathering this week. Miss Morton, who is soon to be married, was presented with two suitcases. Shown in the picture are, front row (left to right), Mrs. H. Wood, Miss Morton and Mrs. A. Huffman. Back row, Mr. W. R. Potter, choirmaster, and the Rev. H. Douglas. Friends of long standing in the choir who also attended were J. Gerard, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lewis, Mrs. G. Spicer, Mr. and Mrs. J. Richmond, Miss Helen Gillies, Mr. J. Donaldson, Mrs. N. Hughes and Mr. A. Pitchford.

Look To Yourself If Your Corset Is Poor Fitting

The most neglected items in many women's wardrobes are their foundations garments.

Yet, when chosen with care and cared for, they will return excellent service. They will be comfortable as they work wonders with your figure.

Look to yourself if your garments do not wear well and feel like torture chambers. Do you take time to be properly fitted? Do you buy two at a time so that frequent rests and sudsings can prolong their lives?

And have you found a conscientious corsetiere whose advice you can rely on? She can help you to make the right selection, provided you allow her sufficient time to do her job.

DETERMINE TO FIT

For example, when trying on a girdle, one should walk in it and sit in it to determine the fit. Bend over to see whether it pulls in too much at the waistline. Nausea is not the price to pay for waist-trimming.

You will find that you will get most satisfaction if you build up a foundation wardrobe. This might consist of two sturdy girdles or all-in-one's for every day, one or two lighter ones for sports and a more fragile garment for dress wear.

Square Dancer's Attire Decorates Room

Denim jeans, plaid shirts and straw hats decorated the YWCA recreation room walls Friday evening for the "straw hat square dance" held by the Senior Swim Club, with Mrs. K. Pilkington, Mrs. J. Buckley and Mrs. S. Wright the conveners.

Dancers too made a decorative scene, with swinging skirts and colorful blouses or jeans and bright shirts chosen by the ladies, and the men adopting casual style.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Frank Every and Mr. Gordon Widdess.

Those attending were:

Mr. and Mrs. Mat Didero, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Pilkington, Mr. and Mrs. John Buckley, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Al Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Spurway, Mr. and Mrs. Gord. Widdess, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Hurley, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pruner, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dunford, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Student Teachers 'At Home' Features Operetta, Dance

Two nights this week the Peterborough Teachers' College became a social centre in which the students entertained. Thursday evening they were At Home to parents and invited guests, some of whom came distances more than 100 miles. Friday evening they held the At Home Formal, this time having guests from similar distances and also from outside the province.

With the change of name from Normal School to Teachers' College came also a change in the arrangement of the biggest social event of the school year, the At Home. It formerly took up only one evening.

This year the Student Society chose the light operetta "Pirates of Penzance" as the feature of their program and gave a splendid presentation for an audience of more than 300, followed by a reception and the serving of refreshments.

Decorations following the general tradition and theme of "The Pirates," and done in black and white with the "skull and crossbones" the prime motif, were seemingly mass-produced for this occasion. The huge top floor auditorium, where the operetta and the dancing went on, and rooms on the other floors arranged for games, sitting out, smoking and lunch all took on the festive appearance from posters and streamers.

Music of the operetta, which is so thoroughly enjoyable, was played by the student pianist during the reception Thursday and at an interval around midnight Friday. Dancing was broken off for the choristers to sing their songs once again.

The teaching staff and representatives of the student society formed a receiving line before the operetta and reception. On hand to greet the students and their escorts to the dance were Principal Mr. L. W. Copp and Mrs. Copp, Mrs. E. H. McKone, dean of women, Miss Beverley Watchhorn, president of the Student Society, Mrs. C. Kotchapaw, vice-president and the president and vice-president of last year, Mr. D. Langton and Miss M. McBride.

Mrs. McKone was presented with a bouquet of roses by the students to show their appreciation for her management and direction of the social side of these two evenings. The students also had gifts for Mr. Quirt McKinney and Mr. John Londerville to be momentos of their experiences in teaching the songs and directing the operetta.

Students themselves arranged and served the refreshments to their guests Thursday evening, and the following evening a group of the students was on hand to serve lunch, assisted this time by a caterer.

Those attending the dance Friday evening were:

Woman Of Two Interested In Things Feminine

Women from the age of two, are charmed by things that bear the exclusively feminine stamp. You might keep this in mind if you would interest your feminine toddler in the use of soap and water.

Let her feel that she is acting like a grown-up beauty.

Instead of offering her soap, face cloth and towel, give her her own body brush, bath mitt, nail and complexion brushes. A novelty toothbrush is also good insurance for after-meal brushing.

To add appeal to the items, you might make them into a package to present as a special gift. Wrap it in pretty paper and ribbon to complete the glamor touch.

Of course, as much as they love acting grownup, little girls can't resist fun with soapsuds. If you show your youngster how to smooth the suds across her mouth and exhale gently to create bubbles, she'll have a wonderful time and get her face clean in the process.

You might also extend the adult atmosphere to shampoo time, though, of course, this will be your responsibility for some while. For instance, your daughter will love having her curls lathered above a plastic shield that will keep the soap out of her eyes.

Then she won't mind at all having her hair washed as often as once a week. And you will be starting her out right on the sound practice of the weekly shampoo.

Sorority News

ALPHA THETA AND XI IOTA CHAPTERS

Members of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, met this week at the home of Mrs. D. H. Wyatt, Rogers street, with her daughter, Mrs. Jack Taylor as hostess. Vice-president of Alpha Theta chapter, Miss Marilyn Hollingsworth presided for the business.

A report on the bake sale held last week showed $18 profit. Mrs. Claire Sullivan, convener of the April concert, which is to be in aid of the School for Retarded Children, asked for a full attendance at the meeting on March 8th when she will give instructions on the work to be done for this event and the reception following.

Word was received from former member Mrs. E. Cochrane (nee Betty Preston), that she is now in St. John's Convalescent Home, Newtonbrook.

It was decided that in future members who are late for meetings must give a two-minute speech on a current event. Starting time is 8:15 o'clock.

Program chairman Miss Moira Whalon introduced as speaker Mrs. Jack Taylor who spoke on the play "Death of a Salesman" and told something of the life of the author, Arthur Miller. Discussion of the play followed.

Lunch was then served.

DOROTHY DIX

Second Wife Leaves Her Invalid Husband

DEAR MISS DIX: My mother died 10 years ago, and five years later Dad, a veteran of World War I, married a woman 30 years his junior. She was always pleasant and co-operative, until four months ago when Dad had a stroke. Then she called me to come take care of him, saying she was leaving. Since I have four children, I don't know what to do about him. That's problem No. 1; the second is that Dad made a will leaving all he owns, consisting largely of several pieces of property, to his wife. He has a small pension, but the chief difficulty is that he must have someone with him constantly. I don't know how we can get the will changed, since he can't talk.

H. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

LEGAL ADVICE NECESSARY

ANSWER: Get legal advice on the matter of the will. Even though your father can't talk, he has full mental capacity, and I'm sure a change could be made. It would seem to me that the best thing you could do would be to sell the property as soon as possible, thus providing money for someone to stay with him. Since it would be best for him to be with someone in the family, you might be able to look after him so long as you had help.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Our 17-year-old daughter, Elsie, is graduating from high school in June, and had planned attending the state university in our town. Then she met Ted, and all intentions concerning continuing her education went flying. She is set on marrying him, and no arguments have swayed her so far. The problem involved, however, is more than that; the boy is inconsiderate of her, breaks dates at the last minute, even though her preparations may have meant a new dress. He never takes her anywhere nice—his sole idea of entertainment is to go out on back roads to park for hours, or to go to his house to watch television when his folks aren't home. His brother was forced into marriage, and his sister's baby was born seven months after her wedding. With this background, do you blame me for trying to break Elsie's romance?

Mrs. T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Any means you take, no matter how drastic, to break up this affair, will be overwhelmingly appreciated by Elsie—when she wakes up. At present there seems to be no reasoning with her, so you must resort to parental authority as your modus operandi. If you are firm enough in your demands, she'll meet them, though she may cry buckets of tears while doing so. Tell her and the young man that the friendship must end at once, that Elsie is going to college regardless, at the moment, of her own desires. There's no doubt but what you have given her every reason for breaking with the young man, all of which have been futile. Try being unwaveringly stern.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: A soldier, home on leave and the son of people who are good friends of my family, attends our church. I have been introduced to him, and have met him elsewhere on a few occasions. Last week I met him while shopping. We talked for a while, and I invited him to my house for supper Saturday. I have been told I did the wrong thing.

Eva F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If you live in a community where friendly gestures are tabu, you were wrong; if you have been brought up—as you should have been—to be gracious and considerate, you were right. Just why anyone should object to your friendliness, I don't know.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a very nice boy friend whom my mother likes very much. However, my stepfather says he doesn't want boys in the house, and if I want to date my beau, I must meet him at the corner.

N. T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your stepfather couldn't tell [illegible] wrong, apparently he [illegible] of the house a[illegible] things his way. If [illegible] hasn't the authority to [illegible] and give you dating privileges at home, the responsibility of behaving in a proper manner is entirely yours.

Readers' Saturday Column By Mary Moore

DEAR READERS: I have a problem "You help so many others I know you can help me"... Problem: SPACE. Would you let me be the judge as to whether I print the recipe you want in this column or send you a copy of a previous release which contained it? When I want to mail something to you I must have your name and address I'd like a stamped envelope too.

QUESTION: Would you be good enough to print...recipe for "Cabbage Rolls" ...as soon as possible..."Ethel".

ANSWER: Had you given me your surname and address I could have mailed this to you 2 weeks ago Ethel.

CABBAGE ROLLS

One lb. ground beef, ½ lb. ground pork, 1 cup raw rice, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 chopped onion, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 small cabbage, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup milk or cream or sour cream. Break leaves from cabbage stalk, and parboil 3 minutes to wilt them. Drain and trim off thick part of rib. Mix steak, pork, onion, salt, sugar, pepper. Steam or parboil rice 10 minutes only, drain and add to mixture. Put heaping tablespoon of mixture on wilted cabbage leaf and roll up, being sure to fold over and tuck in ends before you finish rolling. Place open side down in greased baking dish. Continue until all filling is rolled into cabbage leaves, placing rolls close together. Cover with 1 cup hot water for tomato juice or sour cream). Cover. Simmer 1 hour. (This may be baked if desired, at 325 deg. F.) Before serving pour over heated milk or cream or sour cream. Lebanese or Turkish folk serve yogurt with this dish.

LETTER: Please let "Starved" get his nice, firm and white potatoes! I like your causeries about food very much, but this time I have to voice a little protest. If "Clever cooking" can't dot it, then magic will! You could tell "Starved" that he can enterprise as a fairy, watch his Mom putting the potatoes on the stove, grab a bottle of vinegar, swing it three times mumbling some magic words and just pour a little vinegar into the pot. And the potatoes will be white, really white, and not sour! I can't tell you how much vinegar to use—I never measure it— but a teaspoon full will be enough for 3 or 4 potato-loving people. You can use vinegar or mashed potatoes. The milk will not curdle, and the mash is going to look like an iceberg. By the way—cauliflower stays white[illegible] lemon juice [illegible]

ANSWER: Your whimsical letter and the original sketch were very refreshing. I know of the vinegar treatement, but was advised by a research worker who has been studying potato chemistry for many years, not to print it because I might bring down blasts on my head from many authorities. I hope you saw column of Feb. 17 where I gave proportion of cream of tartar to use in boiling potatoes that have tendency to darken—¼ teaspoon to each lb. peeled potatoes, added after they have cooked 15 minutes. Thanks a million.

LETTER: Wish I could be chatting with you instead of writing... I look forward to your column every evening...We haven't a family—just my husband (Les) and I. At one time I entertained a great deal...am interested in something new in food. I want to tell you how I do Sauerkraut. It is delicious. I sear (not brown) a piece of pork, sear all over, then I add water (if I have celery liquid some of it is added). A little catsup and as much chopped onion as you want. Let that simmer. Add kraut and let simmer anywhere from an hour to an hour and a half. I use all the kraut liquid for a cocktail. It is lovely. I use quite a heavy aluminum kettle. Also want to tell you about celery. All the lovely green leaves and outside stalks I cut up and stew them with water,—when tender I put through ricer and make sure some of the pulp goes through. I use that in tomato juice, soups, gravies, etc. I have noticed when cold it is quite jellied...my hobby is fancy cookies. I would like to send you a box some time when I make them. I know when you opened them you would ah! ah! ah!... would you like to hear how I have kept my weight down? When Les and I were married I wore a size 16. Made up my mind never to wear anything larger—that was 27 years ago...on the scales this a.m.—115 lbs. It shows it can be done...happy days and good health and God bless you. Mary S.

ANSWER: Well done! and thanks. Yes, please Mary I would love a box of cookies—but remember just a little one—I have to keep my weight down too.

THE MOVIE COLUMN:

Disney Has Competitive Problems

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—You think you've got problems? Walt Disney finds he is competing against himself in two academy divisions.

The wizard of Burbank faces his biggest year in the Oscar derby. He is up for six different productions, an amazing number for an independent producer. But his films have to fight each other as well as the rest of the nominees.

Disney has two entries in the one-reel cartoon class — "Toot, Whistle, Plunk and Boom" and "The Rugged Bear." In two-reel shorts, his "Ben and Me" is up against "Bear Country."

The nominations show how Disney has branched out from his original business of gnipding out Mickey Mouse shorts. "The Living Desert," up for the feature-length documentary award, is his first feature in the true-life adventure series.

"The Alaskan Eskimo," nominated for the best documentary short, is his first venture in a companion series called "People and Places."

"Ben and Me" is Disney's first 20-minute short and "Toot" his first cartoon in cinemascope.

His major 1953 effort, "Peter Pan," isn't up for an Oscar since cartoon features have no niche in the voting set-up. However, Walt isn't worrying. It has already won the movie-goers' award of $7,000,000 in domestic gross.

"The Robe" may rank as the top money-maker of all time when the returns are totalled up, but it has been something less than an artistic triumph. Witness the fact that it garnered only five Oscar nominations to 13 for "From Here to Eternity."

This may be the reason: The script was written for Gregory Peck. The studio long hoped for Peck to play Marcellus and expected him to. But he had gone to Europe.

Lacking a final turn-down from Peck, it continued to have the script rewritten to fit his talents. As a result, the role of Demetrius, so important in the book, became subordinate.

Finally, Peck declined to return to Hollywood for "The Robe." The studio had an investment of millions of dollars, as well as staking its whole future on the new cinemascope process. So the promising young actor Richard Burton was assigned to the Peck role.

The scrip didn't fit Burton as well as it did Peck, and the weakening of the strong Demetrius role didn't help matters.

The Wedgwood exhibition in Eaton's College Street Store is a milestone in the lives of art lovers. Here are examples of the genius in pottery by the Master Himself, and the Art of Potting carried on by six generations of this Famous Family. In viewing the Art of Wedgwood, we are enthralled not only by Wedgwood creations, but by the encouragement this great man instilled in his contemporary artists. The craftsmanship of great modellers and designers like Stubbs, Flaxmien and Hackwood to mention a few whose art is best know to us, and the impetus given other potters to improve their wares.

Oldest Lock

up to that time. They turned out steel girders and other frame parts for the York St. bridge and enlargement of the old Union Station on Front St., Toronto.

FIRST SHAREHOLDERS

Finally, in 1885, Peterborough Lock rented the two upper flats of the three-storeyed Simcoe St. factory known then as Central Bridge Works. Additional space was built for a foundry, brass room, polishing room, and other details of the Lock Co. Its first shareholder was George A. Cox, and associated with him were: James Stevenson, John Carnegie, A. C. Dunlop, John Burnham, George Hilliard, C. E. Sherwood, and Thomas Brooks of Cleveland.

James Stevenson was the first president, succeeded in turn by Senator Cox, Hon. J. R. Stratton, W. G. Morrow, E. H. Howson and in 1952 by the sixth president, Robert Maybee.

Mr. Howson was elected president of the company in 1939, after 28 years as managing director from 1911. The Cox interest in Peterborough Lock was continued through the years in the name of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company.

FIRST TREASURY FUNDS

The first meeting of the directors, Aug. 29, 1885, was attended by Thomas Brooks, John Burnham, G. A. Cox, Geo. Hilliard and Jas. Stevenson. The first money put into the company, as it arranged for the financing of its business, represented the purchase of shares by Mr. Cox.

After two year's operations the company needed more space, and it was then that W. H. Law of Central Bridge moved his plant to Dalhousie St. and the vacant Romaine brick works.

Successive general managers have been: Thomas Brooks from 1885 until his death in 1897; Thomas Fortye, 1897-1911; E. H. Howson, 1911-1945; and Robert Maybee. The first skilled employee of the company recalled a few years ago that he was one of a party of six men from Cleveland who arrived here on April 15, 1885.

The late Charles Westbrook was superintendent from 1911 until 1951, and the presidency of W. G. Morrow extended from 1916 to 1939.

ADDITIONAL COX MONEY

That is an outline of the personal background of Peterborough Lock. Mr. Howson recalls that in the financial stringency of 1911, it was W. G. Morrow who persuaded Senator Cox to put more money into the business, tiding it through a lean year throughout the country.

"Mr. Morrow was deeply interested in the success of the company," Mr. Howson said. "His financial experience was a big asset and help, his advice was sound, and he was mainly guided by results. He was not a man to interfere in the practical aspects of the business. I can also say that Mr. Westbrook was of great assistance to me, and I think of him gratefully for the co-operation and ability which he contributed as superintendent of the plant."

From this sketchy review of the company, it transpires that Peterborough Lock is the last of the Cox enterprises surviving the years since he left the city, and since his death. Another was the Canadian General Electric Co., but evidently his interest in that firm was largely in the inceptive stage of securing its location here as the Edison Company.

PRODUCTS WIDELY KNOWN

The products of the company have been distributed through all parts of the country as builders hardware and other equipment in banks and offices, churches and many other institutions. Its wartime work is a separate story. And, as with other Peterborough industries, its facilities and skills contributed in the emergent need of the armed forces of Canada in the two World Wars of the half century.

The last Peterborough chapter in the long history of Peterborough Lock was briefly told in the announcement in August 1945 that the entire stock of the company had been purchased by Bewser, Limited, Toronto, subsidiary of Bowser, Incorporated of Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Sixty years separated the record of the investment of George A. Cox that put Peterborough Lock in business, and the new financing by the Bowser corporation. That announcement was made by R. Hosken Damon, president of Bowser, Inc., which made its bid to fortune in the same year the Lock Co. was formed here in Peterborough.

It signified the beginning of a new day for the old Peterborough industry and a future that has already begun with fresh energy in the second half of the century.

Russia's Burst Of Frankness On Economy Has Disappeared

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

LONDON — The stimulating burst of frankness which marked last year's pronouncements on the Soviet economy by Malenkov (Soviet Premier) and Khruschev (Soviet Minister for Agriculture) is evidently not to be taken as a precedent.

When Khruschev exposed the true and potentially calamitous state of affairs in Soviet agriculture last summer it seemed permissible to hope that in future, under the Malenkov regime, Soviet statistics generally would improve in accuracy and explicitness. This hope has now died. It is scotched by the latest production of the Soviet Central Statistical Administration: the report on the fulfillment of the 1953 Plan, which is an unrevealing and positively deceptive as anything which emanated from Stalin's private office. The fresh wind of reality which blew away a lot of cobwebs six months ago has evidently not penetrated into the offices of the State planners.

Once more there are almost no real figures, and there is a wholehearted relapse into the old technique of recording production in terms of percentage increases on past totals, which were themselves indicated only in terms of percentage increases. Heavy industry is shown to have fulfilled its plan, more or less; but since it is not known what the plan was, this does not help very much. Light industry and consumer goods are shown to have expanded very considerably — as Malenkov promised they would, but again there is no information as to what the plan was supposed to have been.

FIGURES SUSPECTED

Even when the planners do deign to provide real figures, these are suspect. For example, there seems to have been a striking failure of liason between the offices of Khruschev, the supreme boss of agriculture, and the offices of the planners and statisticians. Six month ago Khruschev announced categorically that the Soviet Union had 3-5 million fewer cows at the beginning of 1953 than in 1941, on the eve of the war, and 8.9 million fewer than in 1928, on the eve of the collectivisation of the farms — this in spite of the fact that the population of the Soviet had greatly increased since 1928 and that its area, including much rich agricultural land, had been forcibly expanded since 1941. In spite, also of the fact, that there had been a frenzied stockbreeding drive since 1950.

This dismal livestock siuation was one of the main reasons for the all-out effort to get more out of the land, largely by offering incentives and concessions to the peasants, which began in August last year. The Statistical Administration, however, seems to have paid very little attention to Khruschev. It has reverted to the bad old ways. Instead of reflecting the urgency of the task, it offers the rosiest of pictures. It says that the number of cows was increased 1.7 million between January and October 1953, and that the total number of horned cattle increased in the same period from 56.6 million to 63 million. Even more spectacularly, the number of pigs is said to have increased from 28.5 million to 47.6 million in the same period, regardless of the fact that Khruschev's target for the end of 1954 is only 34.5 million.

The explanation of these figures, if they are to be believed at all, is given in another part of Khruschev's speech, last summer, in which he said that after the annual census there was always an orgy of mass slaughter of livestock and unloading of unsatisfactory animals on to the market. Animals were kept until the census has been taken, he said, some so emaciated that they were good for nothing, and were then killed off. He deplored this practice. He said it must stop. But the new figures show that it has not stopped at all. Once more the planners' totals are artificially inflated.

Again, Malenkov himself, in his August speech to the Supreme Soviet, sharply attacked the current method of assessing grain production. It was ridiculous, he said, for the grain production figures to be based on estimated yields instead of on the harvested grain in the barn. This practice was to cease forthwith. Foreign observers had been saying the same thing for many years. The practice was introduced in the early 'thirties to conceal the catastrophic fall in grain yields immediately after the collectivisation; and competent foreign economists calculated that the real yield (corn in barn) was something like twenty per cent less than the official statisticians' yield (corn estimated in the fields). They looked forward with interest to seeing this long-notorious discrepency corrected in the next annual returns.

They looked in vain. Malenkov has evidently been obeyed. The grain has evidently been measured in the barns instead of in the fields. And evidently the discrepency was so gross that the Government dared not publish the figures — because they would make it appear that grain production had suddenly slumped in a spectacular way. So, for the first time in years, grain production figures are not given — not even in the form of percentages. All that is published is this: "Although in a number of areas of the country unfavourable meteorological conditons prevailed, the actual harvest of grain in 1953 was close to the actual harvest of 1952."

It is known that the 1952 harvest was virtually the same as the harvest for the previous three years, in spite of the promises of the new plan. This means that the 1953 harvest is also lagging behind schedule even in terms of what the planners innocently call "actual" production. But it will never be known for certain, by the look of it, just how much was the difference between the "actual" production of the past year and the theoretical production of the planners' imaginations.

Police Probe 4 Accidents

A total of four minor accidents were recorded Thursday night and Friday, resulting in some $750 damage, but no injuries.

Most costly was a collision on Parkhill Rd., near Aylmer St., Friday, between a parked car owned by Thomas A. Lister, 45, of 677 Aylmer St., and a car driven by Orval H. Eddington, 26, of 733 Bethune St. The Lister car was parked on the north side of the street facing east. Eddington claimed that the sun blinded his vision as he drove up the steep grade. Damage to the parked car was estimated at $100, with $150 damage to the Eddington car. Constable B. Howden investigated.

Another accident of comparable damage occurred at George and Lansdowne Sts., on Friday, between a car driven by Ray Sharp, 18, of RR 3, Stirling, and a bus owned and driven by Wilfred Fletcher, 52, of Keene. The bus was moving south on George St. when the accident occurred at the intersection. Damage to the car was estimated at $200, and the bus, $40. Constable G. J. Gillespie investigated.

A '51 model car, owned by Fred Forsythe, Peterborough, and driven by Mrs. Agnes Berry, 36, of 83 Robinson St., was damaged to the extent of $200 when in collision with a truck owned by Joseph McWilliams, 476 O'Connell Rd., in front of 362 Burnham St. The truck, driven by William Reynolds, 28, of 139 Stewart St., received about $15 damage. Both vehicles were travelling south on Burnham St.

Constable G. J. Gillespie investigated.

A small accident on Charlotte St. near the Civic hospital, Thursday, caused total damage of $40 when two cars, driven by Milne G. Cullen, 21, of 508 Wolfe St., and Arthur Hardinge Jr., 66, of RR 5, Cobourg, scraped together. Sun glare was said to be the cause. Constable W. A. Scott investigated.

Western Europe Falling Behind Struggle For Economic Control

By NORA BELOFF

PARIS — Western Europeans are neither producing enough nor investing enough to prepare themselves to balance their accounts with the rest of the world, once the exceptional influx of United States defence dollars dies down.

This is the crux of the fifth annual report of the Organization for European Economic Co-operation, the body formed to organize the European end of the Marshall Plan aid program, and now trying to judge how Europeans will manage when aid finishes.

The report shows that there is a marked similarity between military and economic preoccupations: those responsible at supreme headquarters, Allied powers, Europe, for collective military security are warning against complacency and inaction: those concerned with economic security in OEEC are now equally worried about "sluggishness" and "stagnation" which they, too, seem to feel arises from a false and fleeting sense of security.

The report shows that the dollar deficit is now diminishing and that Western Europe during the past year has been piling up additional hard currency reserves. The authors regret that this has eliminated any sense of emergency and any awareness that the countries of Western Europe still need to get together to readjust their pattern of production to meet the requirements of the twentieth century world.

Only one of the four principal factors listed in the report as responsible for the improved dollar balance is felt by the writers to be "desirable and permanent"; this is increased food production, which diminishes European reliance on external supplies.

THREE FACTORS

The first of the other three factors is improved "terms of trade" —that is, a drop in the costs of primary products which make raw materials less expensive for the European manufacturing countries to buy. But this has proved a mixed blessing as the Europeans, paying out less to the primary producing countries, are in return finding these countries less willing to buy European products.

The second factor in improving foreign balances is a drop in imports which has followed a lowering of European production and of internal consumption. A healthier economic life and higher living standards would automatically cancel out this advantage.

Finally, Europe is provisionally benefitting from a vast influx of dollars owing to United States military expenditure — expenditure which is, in part, provision for the American troops stationed in Europe, and is in part in the form of defence and "off-shore" procurements — that is, dollars spent on armaments manufacture in Europe for Europeans.

ARTIFICIAL EXCHANGE

France alone is budgeting in the year 1954 on receiving 1,400 million dollars, and this has enabled her to maintain an artificial exchange rate and buttress an antiquated and wasteful economic structure. The writers of the report feel that European reliance on America is excessive; and although they do not believe in the dangers of a U.S. slump, they nevertheless anticipate "fluctuations" which might have the gravest repercussions on Europe's dollar income. To meet this danger and reduce this reliance, Europeans are advised to concentrate on expanding their domestic production and on winning markets for their exports elsewhere —which means a selective program of investment, making sure that the limited capital funds are employed to help the European countries produce what the rest of the world is willing to buy.

They therefore recommend that European countries turn their back on recent deflationary practices designed to stabilize currencies by slowing down economic tempo and instead—on the principle of making hay while the sun shines—use the brief period while dollars are still plentiful to carry through expansionist economic policies. This, they insist, may create some short-term problems of reserves, but would have the long-term benefit of fitting Europe to hold its own and pay its way in world competition.

REQUIRE MORE CREDIT

Obviously, the types of policy required without direct government investment, more flexible credit policy and new fiscal measures, would vary from one country to another. But OEEC warns that expansion will be impossible in separate European countries unless there is closer co-operation between them, particularly to prevent the spreading of a local and minor recession and the snow-balling of restrictive practices.

The report also calls on the Americans to take the lead in following a "good creditor" policy, making it easier for America's allies to earn dollars and to obtain U.S. capital.

The OEEC annual report was prepared before the publication of the Randall Commission's recommendations to President Eisenhower of a new American economic foreign policy. Unlike the Randall Commission, OEEC believes America's economic strength gives it "special responsibilities" and that "new initiatives, bold in scope and purpose," are urgently required. Without them, OEEC predicts the re-emergence of the dollar gap as soon as military aid declines; drastic devaluation of European currencies, and "the hardening of the division between the dollar and non-dollar world"—a division which, judging from Mr. Molotov's latest "peace plan," is what the Russians rather than the Americans want. Film Festival Has Full House

Queen Mary school auditorium was filled to capacity again Friday evening for the second night of the three-day Peterborough Film Council Festival. Films about Pakistan, Sweden, Finland, Germany, the Netherlands, and Scotland were featured, together with a car endurance race through Italy, Austria and Switzerland, and bridge construction over the Tagus strait to Lisbon, Portugal.

Twenty minutes of color film was dedicated to the Highlands of Scotland through the courtesy of the A. Arthur Rank (Canada) Ltd. A German film described in sound and picture the step-by-step progress of violin making in the Bavarian Alps. Although the text was in German, the methods were easily followed and a solo on the finished product adequately bridged the language barriers.

SPORTS FILMS

Skiing, hockey, water and field sports of Finland were flashed for 10 minutes in color and were contrasted by the mtchanical athletes entered in the tri-country 2,000-mile endurance test for cars through the heights of Austria, Italy and Switzerland. The actual construction of the five-span bridge across the Tagus to Lisbon was clearly depicted in color.

Contemporary sculpture of the internationally known Carl Millis was shown on display at his home Millesgarden, Sweden, and nature's ultimate in color and sculpture were seen in the fields and flower markets of Holland.

President W. L. McNeil informed the audience that the same enjoyable fare was on display at each monthly meeting of the film council.

and was judged by two special examiners, Gord Minty and Fraser Wade of the YMCA. Her practical tests included breaststroke, sidestroke, backcrawl, inverted breaststroke, frontcrawl, propellor, sculling, rescuing a person while the rescuer is fully clothed and wearing shoes, and shedding clothing while submerged.

Four minutes on each stroke were required to pass the test. The performance had to be almost letter perfect.

She also had to do a high dive, low dive and a foot dive from a height.

Mrs. Pansy Forbes, coach of Peterborough's famed Ornamental Swimimng Club, instructed Betty in her swimimng strokes. During the summer Betty was chief instructor at the Lions swimimng pool in Riverside Park. After hours she trained under Mrs. Forbes' watchful eye.

"Betty deserves a lot of credit," said her coach. "Don't forget that she is the only one of seven in this province who all tried at the same time that got the society's highest award."

THEORY EXAMINATION

Mrs. Forbes also presided while Betty wrote her stiff theoretical examination on swimming and life-saving generally.

Betty, who lives on the Canal Rd. in Douro township, has talents other than being a water sprite. She is a serious-minded young lady who wants to be a successful teacher.

She graduated two years ago from the Normal school, taught for a year at King George, and is now on the staff at Armour Heights.

There should be no non-swimmers in her class of school children. Not if the kids are smart, anyway.

To Unveil Tablet

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A special tablet commemorating a meeting of Huron College professors and alumni in Christ church here in 1877, which resulted in the establishment of the University of Western Ontario, will be unveiled in the church March 7 by Arthur R. Ford, chancellor of the university.

Dr. R. A. Allen, vice-president of UWO, said today the unveiling will be held at a special Founders' Day service at 11 a.m.

Appeal Against Pirates

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese fishermen have appealed to the maritime safety board for protection from Communist pirates in the East China sea, Kyodo news agency said today. The fishermen met with repreeutatives of the board, which directs the Japanese Coast Guard, to map strategy in dealing with the problem. Patrol boats will accompany fishermen in areas where Communist craft are reported.

Tuna Disappearance Puzzles Fishermen

VANCOUVER (CP) — Skipper Jack Noble, air force veteran turned fisherman, and his 120-pound wife are as puzzled as other experts over disappearance of the tuna fish run off the British Columbia coast.

Up to three years ago the highly-prized tuna kept five B.C. canneries in operation. Then, the next year, not a tuna was sighted, and the only tuna sold here since has been caught by Canadian boats off southern California or came in frozen from Japan.

Skipper Noble contracted polio on a mercy flight some years ago, but by sheer willpower and relentless exercise got back on his feet. Five years ago he had to be helped aboard his fishing ship Lady Royal, but he has never looked back since.

Mrs. Noble, every inch a sailor and fisherman, has hauled in 300 fish (the biggest 36 pounds) in one day, protecting her hands with foam-rubber mitts. She takes her turn at steering and on watch.

TRICKS OF TRADE

In fishing for tuna, they said, on the end of an unweighted 80 foot line is placed a double, barbless, stainless steel hook hidden in a bunle of red and white chicken feathers, or perhaps a rubber squid. Towed at five or six knots, the lure bounces along the surface until the tuna strikes. The Lady Royal can put 17 lines out.

Excitement causes the tuna's temperature to rise to between 70 and 80 degrees. If iced immediately not only will the ice melt quickly but the fish will split up the back. They have to be left on deck under wet sacks for two hours before icing.

But gone are the good days when vessels like the Lady Royal made $5,500 in two weeks. Most of B.C.'s 100 tuna boats have transferred to salmon or halibut.

"I think," said Jack Noble, "that we'll go for a little cruise down the coast to Venezuela—and come back for the fishing season."

Warsaw, Hiawatha Ordered To Replay Second Game Smith Suspended From EPL

A Warsaw player was suspended from further East Peterborough Hockey League play and the second game of the semi-finals between Keene and Hiawatha ordered replayed at a special meeting after the supposedly second game in Keen Friday night.

With the score tied four-all with seconds left in the game, there was a skirmish in front of the Warsaw net. Referee Bell blew his whistle to award a penalty to Warsaw's Darling for holding the puck.

But apparently the timekeeper didn't hear the whistle and time ran out, the other referee, Len Williams, blowing his whistle to end the game.

Bell called for the game to proceed into the 10-minute overtime period, and sent Darling to the penalty box. Immediately George Payne complained and was given a 10-minute misconduct, which he refused to take.

Bell then awarded the game to Hiawatha and went to the league president, Fred Whalen, for conference. While there H. Smith of Warsaw attacked Bell, knocking him to the ice.

Then the teams, coaches, managers and the president met. Smith was suspended and the game ordered replayed. Hiawatha still leads the series 1-0.

Until the last minute the game was evenly and cleanly played. On goals by J. Berry and Stan Lonsberry, Warsaw had taken a 2-1 lead in the first period, Jeff Stock scoring Hiawatha's only goal.

In the second period Lawrence Sellaby and Bob Hayfield tied the score at three-all for Hiawatha as they outscored Warsaw 2-1, Lonsberry picking up his second goal. Hayfield and Smith scored to knot the game at four-all in the third.

Line-ups:

Hiawatha—Goal, Atchison; defence, Anderson, Close; centre, Stock; wings, Cowie, Paudash; alt., E. Musgrove, Thomson, Hayfield, L. Sellaby, G. Sellaby, Morgan, B. Musgrave, Brydges, Steenburgh.

Warsaw — Goal, Wingett; defence, G. Payne, J. Berry; centre, L. Lonsberry; wings, G. Darling, H. Smith; alt., H. Darling, Crowe, Watts, Matthews, S. Lonsberry, Clements, Williams, Griffin, Evans.

Threatened Kill Jockeys Man Arrested

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A man accused of threatening the lives of famous jockeys Conn McCreary and Ted Atkinson in an attempt to make them throw races at Hialeah Park was arrested today by FBI agents in Hollywood, Fla.

Both jockeys will ride in the famed Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah today, McCreary on Goyamo and Atkinson, formerly of Toronto, on Maharajah.

The FBI said the arrest of Robert Hugh Lonsford, 46, an ex-convict and unemployed construction worker, ended a three-week search for a man who had threatened the two jockeys with torture and death if they did not comply with his demands.

BOUGHT IN FBI

The jockeys started receiving letters last year, but they dismissed the printed messages as "crank" letters until Feb. 4, when the matter was turned over to the FBI.

Since that time the jockeys had received a total of seven letters and a number of telephone calls at their residence here, the FBI reported.

"The letters would threaten to shoot Ted and myself when we least expected it. In one letter he threatened to chop off my hands so I'd never be able to ride again," McCreary said.

"He kept mentioning Al Snyder (a jockey who disappeared on a fishing trip in the Florida keys several years ago) and asked me if I wanted to end up like that."

Policeman Faces 40 Charges

HAMILTON (CP)—An ex-London policeman wanted on fraud charges was arrested by detectives James Campbell and Les May as he entered a hotel here last night.

Detective campbell said accused is sought by the St. Thomas, Chatham, Windsor, Kingston, Toronto, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, and North Bay police departments.

All told, Lawrence will face about 40 charges of fraud when he appears in magistrate's court here on Monday.

Training Camp Notes

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) Tom Poholsky, handicapped by a sore pitching arm during most of his St. Louis Cardinal career, looks in fine shape this spring and may get manager Eddie Stanky's No. 4 starting assignment.

Gerry Staley, Harvey Haddix, and Vic Raschi appear slated to start in that order.

Poholsky, just back from two years in the army, was operated on a year ago.

✦ ✦ ✦

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Although there are 21 pitchers in the Dodger camp, Don Newcombe pitched to the Brooklyn batters for the second time in three days Friday.

Newcombe, bearing down to regain his ace status of 1951 when he won 20 games, has been out of the army three weeks.

✦ ✦ ✦

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Bill Terry now knows the Dodgers are still in the league.

The former New York Giant manager, once hated in Flatbush for his snide remarks regarding Brooklyn, has recommended a Negro outfielder to the Brooks. The name of the 24-year-old Jacksonville player is being withheld by the club until his talents are examined here March 7.

✦ ✦ ✦

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—Pitcher Ray Crone is one of the most unusual rookies in Milwaukee Braves' training camp. At 22 he already has had five year's experience in the minors.

Crone, who is not too proud of his 19-11 record of 1953 with pennant-winning Jacksonville, Fla., of the Sally League, is confident this is his year to break into the major league. "All I want is a chance," he said.

Pitcher Herb Grissom became the first casualty in camp when he was struck on the ankle by a line drive during batting practice.

Museum Secures Historic Gown

MONTREAL (CP)—McGill has received a gift from the Royal Family — a rich-hued doctorate gown worn by the late Queen Mary when she received an honorary doctorate of laws while visiting here with the late King George V in 1901.

The gown, kept in perfect condition throughout the years, was sent to Dr. F. Cyril James, principal and vice-chancellor, by Princess Royal, a daughter of the late Queen Mary.

The robe will be placed in the McCord Museum.

Dies From Injuries

KINGSTON (CP) — Pte. Douglas Amos, 21, of Kingston, died in hospital today from injuries suffered when the car in which he was a passenger smashed into a hydro pole at an intersection here on Friday.

Two other occupants of the car, 19-year-old Pearl Marshall, and Howard McDonald of Sunbury, both escaped injury.

McDonald will be charged with impaired driving, city police said.

FRIDAY NIGHT'S LAKEFIELD FIRE made six people homeless. Thought caused by overheated stove pipes, it gutted the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Todd and four children. The village fire department brought the blaze under control after fighting it for more than three hours. The house was not insured and an estimate of loss has not been given.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

70-Year-Old Man Beats Off Two Robbers

PETROLIA (CP)—A 70-year-old service station operator Friday night beat off an attempted robbery by two masked bandits who carried a sawed-off shotgun.

Ontario provincial police searched the countryside today for the two who tried to rob William Pukai near this town 15 miles east of Sarnia.

The robbers entered Pukai's station hooded with stockings with holes cut for the eyes and ordered him to hand over his money.

Facing the muzzle of the shotgun, Pukai warded off a blow aimed at him by one of the thugs and ran for a back room to get his own gun.

One of the masked men said: "Let's go" and the two ran out the front door and escaped in a car. By the time Pukai returned, they had disappeared.

Pukai said he had about $40 in the till at the time.

Ordered To Pay $7,500 Damages

WHITBY (CP) — A Supreme Court jury Friday night found that Lloyd Metcalf, 37, a former Oshawa church elder, and Sunday school teacher, alienated the affections of the wife of a service station attendant.

The all-male jury assessed damages against Metcalf, the father of an 11-year-old boy, at $7,500, including $2,500 for criminal conversation. The case lasted five days.

Peter Szoldra, 31, launched the suit, claiming he and his wife Mary, were happily married until Metcalf entered the picture. Evidence disclosed that Szoldra found his wife in the front seat of Metcalf's car. Szoldra struck Metcalf on the head and face, breaking his glasses. Later he hammered on the rear of Metcalf's car with a baseball bat.

The jury decided Metcalf committed criminal conversation in a Toronto house where Mrs. Szoldra was rooming after separating from her husband.

Church Says Curb Instalment Buying

TORONTO (CP) — The United Church board of evangelism and social service has asked the federal government to curb instalment buying.

In a resolution passed Friday, the board said restrictions on instalment buying should be reimposed "in order to prevent many people from making purchases they cannot afford."

The board also urged United Church members to limit their instalment buying to necessities, "such as houses and helpful equipment like washing machines and refrigerators and to use their influence with others to do the same."

Nehru's Stop-War Summons More Than Hopeful Gesture

By PHILIP DEANE

DELHI —(OFNS)—Mr. Nehru's call "to all parties concerned" for a cease-fire in Indo-China is no more than a hopeful gesture, I am authoritatively informed.

The Indian government does not expect that conditions will be ripe for an agreement on Indo-China for another six months. Mr. Nehru's call for a cease-fire does not mean that India is ready with a compromise solution on Indo-China.

India has been repeatedly approached by the French and asked to act as intermediary for negotiatons. I understand, however, that she is reluctant to do so before the French undertake to fix a date for their withdrawal from Indo-China. The French government's declaration of the 3rd July, 1953, is not considered here to be adequate for this purpose. Although that declaration spoke of independence for Indo-China, it has, in the Indian view, been robbed of its meaning by France's continued opposition to the secession of Indo-China from the French Union. According to diplomatic sources here, India would gladly help if France offered unconditional independence to Indo-China, but not otherwise. Moreover, Ho Chi Minh's (Communist rebel leader in Indo-China) ambassador in Peking has inofrmed the Indian government that his leader will negotiate only on the basis of a total French withdrawal.

The Indian government believes that the United States are opposed to a total French withdrawal from Indo-China until the Nationalist Governments of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia are strong enough to resist Ho Chi Minh on their own. This, at best, could not come about for another six months. During that period, the Indian government believes, the United States will exert all its influence to keep French troops in Indo-China, in spite of spreading desire in France for a withdrawal.

This six-months eriod will it is believed here, serve another useful purpose for the U.S. State Department: It will give Mr. John Foster Dulles (U.S. Secretary of State) time to accustom American opinion to the idea of negotiations with Communist China—not negotiations between the two armies as in Korea, but negotiations between the United States and the Chinese Governments. The agreement in Berlin for a Far Eastern conference at Geneva is regarded here as a step taken by the United States towards a de facto, if not de jure recognition of Red China.

But it is not expected here that much will come out of American negotiations with Mao Tse Tung for some time, until public sentiment in the United States and the various "lobbies" have been appeased. Even then, it is considered here that it would be unwise to look for great changes: in Korea the best that can be hoped for is a neutralization of the country under a unified government. But the Indians know that such a solution would be more difficult to achieve in Korea than it has been even in Germany.

As for Indo-China, Indian opinion considers that the most "hopeful" sign is French weariness with the war there. This lassitude, it is thought, might induce the French Government eventually to make concessions which the West would not make in the course of normal bargaining.

Did Hush-Hush Weapon Hit Cars

Scores Of Windshields Shattered On "Missle Mile"

By A. V. SELLWOOD
In Sunday Graphic

LONDON—The scores of car windscreens shattered over the notorious "missile mile" on the London-Portsmouth road have been, in all probability, accidental targets of a British secret weapon.

For three years motorists on the two-mile stretch between Esher and Cobham have reported strange happenings.

Solitary by night, or in the line of traffic by day, they have found their windscreens suddenly "frosted" by a maze of cracks. And they heard no sound.

No one has been hurt. But no one—not even Scotland Yard—could reveal the cause.

Road tests have been made. The police kept watch, searched with dogs for a maniac. The incidents continued.

Last week, after the home secretary said there was no reason to suppose "malicious damage," I uncovered these striking facts:

1. Seven hundred yards from one spot where 67 of the incidents occurred is a top-secret research establishment.

2. Its equipment includes an instrument which converts electrical energy into intensely concentrated pressure waves.

3. Its staff are experts in the new field of ultrasonics, developing sounds far beyond human hearing and capable of punching holes through steel plate.

So close has been the "security" surrounding it that few people know of its existence. Even local police have not been allowed in.

The buildings, hidden behind a country house and bush-lined drive, are equipped with electronic devices to warn against intruders.

Could these waves smash a windscreen half a mile away? I put this to an ultrasonics scientist. "Yes," he said. "It is not only possible, it is reasonably likely."

Advises UN Stay Out Of News Agency

NEW YORK (CP) — Editor and Publisher, newspaper trade publication, says in an editorial in its Feb. 27 issue that the United Nations and its agencies should continue to make news, but stay out of the news agency business.

The trade publication commented on a UNESCO suggestion for a world co-operative news agency under UN auspices. The proposal was made in a study published last week on "News agencies: their structure and operation."

"Government control of the dissemination of news is just as dangerous and distasteful whether it be by a democratic, fascist or communist government or by a so-called 'world government,' comments Editor and Publisher.

"Apparently, the UNESCO dreamers think that because their group is international it would be the ultimate in impartiality. Nothing could be further from the truth . . . It would soon produce a struggle among the nations for control . . .

"If there is need for a world co-operative news agency, let the newsmen of the world create it without any UN thumb in the soup. Enterprising newsmen have a long record of filling a demand when it arises."

Warns Tenants Against Abuse

SUDBURY (CP) — Leo Landreville, president of the Sudbury Property Owners' Association, said Friday night the association's successful fight to defeat rent controls may make a member master in his own house, but "it doesn't give any of us the right to be a tyrant."

City council decided at a recent meeting not to continue controls when the Ontario government drops them next Tuesday.

Mr. Landreville asked landlords to avoid serving eviction notices before May 1. Because it could be unfair to tenants.

He said landlords should set their rents to make a net profit between 10 and 12 per cent.

"That is a fair return for your investment," he said. "Anything much over that isn't fair, and anything under that is foolish."

Largest Bomber Destroyed

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A $3,500,000 B-36, the world's largest bomber, caught fire on the Fairchild air force base runway here early today and was destroyed, but all 20 men aboard scrambled to safety unharmed.

The fire was detected in an engine as the plane was being warmed up.

Two Youths Arrested For $96 Robbery

GALT (CP) — Two Kitchener youths were arrested today on charges of robbery with violence of the operator of a billiard parlor a week ago.

Police said they are withholding the youths' names pending further arrests.

Nick Dubetsky, manager of the billiard parlor, said three youths threatened him with a knife, and hit him on the head with a bottle. Ninety-six dollars was taken from a cash box.

Lumber Worker Dies

STURGEON FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Adrien Pilon, a lumber worker injured Thursday while unloading logs, died Friday night. Fellow workers said he had been hit by a log while unloading from a truck at a field company lumber camp near this town 20 miles west of North Bay.

Two Young Musical Artists Delight Capacity Audience

Two young artists filled St. Peter's auditorium with pure musical sounds Friday night and the audience did not have to qualify its appreciation by recalling the youth of the performers. The most significant feature of the evening sponsored by St. Cecelia's School of Music, was the absence of strain in the performances and corresponding apprehension in the audience. Following the initial offerings, the audience relaxed in a state of pleasurable expectancy.

It appeared as though 17-year-old pianist Carolle-Ann Craigie had misplaced the climax of her half of the program when she offered Beethoven's Sonata, Op. 31, No. 3, as her introductory number. Quietly, gracefully, she paused before the keyboard apparently creating mentally the sound picture she would actualize momentarily, and then with dancing feminine fingers she rippled through the first and second movements. It was in the third movement that her true interpretive talent showed itself and the guilded Beethoven folk-tunes spread their webbed spells throughout the hall.

The delicate echoes of Beethoven were shaded moments later when Yolana Di Paolo startled the audience with her clear, resonant coloratura renditions of four Italian love songs. Three of these were light, and provocative, perfectly adapted for her voice. The other "Selve amiche" (Caldera) contained more pathos, and still the perfection of tone which marked her performance throughout.

EFFECT SHATTERED

Miss Craigie returned alone to the stage and began Aaron Copland's comic composition "Cat and Mouse." The author's intention was in the process of masterful interpretation when a segment of the audience snapped the subtle thread with a burst of applause. The total effect was shattered and the final musical twist nullified.

Again Miss Craigie demonstrated her powers of spell weaving as she played Charles Griffes' musical adaptation of Keats' "Lake at Evening." Her pianissimo technique was controlled and constant, although even more quality might have been obtained had she been playing a grand, rather than an upright piano.

Miss Paolo again chose the light expressive song for which she has a natural talent in the "Jewel Song" from Gounod's Faust, but following intermission, she proved these were not her limitation.

The ancient Irish melody to which Thomas Moore set his poem "The Last Rose of Summer," and in which Flotow detected the quality of fragile power which made him seek permission to use the melody in his opera "Martha," is a thing of beauty not to be mishandled. Miss Paolo was an Irish colleen for a few magic moments last night.

As was said earlier Miss Craigie seemed to have misplaced the climatic selection of her program with the Beethoven sonata, but this was not so. Her final number was Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsodia No. 6. Perhaps the handfuls of octaves dictated by this demanding composer were just a little more than this 17-year-old girl could skilfully control, but nevertheless, the excitement she generated was genuine. Here, too, the massive bass quality of the grand piano was missing, but the rhythmic emotion created by the rhapsody had its cathartic effect upon the audience.

"A wonderful evening," said more than one.

Miss di Paolo is a student of Dr. Ernesto da Vinci, and Miss Craigie of Miss Madeleine Bone, both of the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto.—J.F.

Singer Charges Husband With Assault

MONTREAL (CP) — Alys Robi, sultry French songstress and the singing sweetheart of French Canada, has lodged assault charges against her husband of a few months.

Using her real name, Alice Robitaille, the 30-year-old brunette filed the charge Friday in municipal court before Judge Henry Monty. The charge claimed her husband, Aladino Chiamarra, 30, "hit her in the face several times with his fist and kicked her in the abdomen as she lay on the floor."

Chiamarra pleaded not guilty. Trial was set for March 5.
